Preface to the Third Edition.

The first edition of the book was published in March, 1930 and by September 1930 it was exhausted. The new Companies (Amendment) Act, 1930 received the assent of the Governor-General on 27th October, 1930. From October, 1930 when the new Act was passed to 1st January, when it came into force there was demand for the book as there was a big time rush for new floatations of companies with a view to escape from some of the stringent provisions of the new Act. This temporary demand could not be met as the book was out of print.

The new amending Act was published in the Gazette of India on 7th November 1930, but only a limited number of copies having been printed the Gazette was not available to the subscribers. The Government publication of the amending Act was not out till 17th of December last. It is no easy task for any one single press to print a closely printed book of more than 1500 pages within this short time. This is my explanation for not being able to bring out the book earlier.

In this edition the provisions of the Companies (Amendment) Act, (XVII of 1930) have been incorporated and shown in italics. Those provisions of the Act of 1913 which have been replaced by the said amending Act have also been given in different types. The new Rules framed by the Government of India under the Act have been incorporated in Appendix B.

Few companies, if any, governed by Table B of Act XIX of 1857 are in existence now. But there are a few companies still in existence that are governed by the Table A of Act VI of 1882. This Table A has, therefore, been printed as Appendix A.

The objects and reasons, the report of the select committee and other proceedings of the legislature cannot be cited in a court of law for interpreting the Act, and they are of little practical use to the general public. Therefore I have no thought it right to encumber the book with these things.

Now that a large number of provisions of the new English Companies Act of 1929 have been reproduced in the ~~new~~

Indian Act, it may be necessary to look into the provisions of the English Act for a proper understanding and construction of the Indian Act. Therefore the English Act of 1929 in its entirety has been printed as Appendix C.

A list of offence, offenders and punishments under the Act has been given in Appendix D, a list of documents &c required to be filed with the registrar has been given in Appendix E and a list of the registers &c to be kept at the company's office has been printed as Appendix F.

Appendix G gives 149 forms—all that may be required, in addition to the forms given Appendices B and H in running a company. The Rules framed by the Calcutta High Court (as amended up to date) under the Act with forms have been printed as Appendix H.

Appendix I gives the provisions of the Stamp Act (relevant to companies) in force in different Provinces, as amended up to date and in Appendix J has been printed a chapter on the Income Tax (as applicable to Companies) so kindly contributed by Dr. Radha Binod Pal, M. A., D. L.—a lawyer of international fame.

In view of the large number of new provisions and amendments introduced by the Companies (Amendment) Act, 1936, the Introduction has had to be re-written. In this all the salient provisions of the Act (including the new ones) have been given in a connected form. The main object of this Introduction is that business men who have to promote, incorporate and manage companies and laymen who have connections or dealings with companies may have all possible assistance in having ready at their hands the provisions of the Act (new and old), the commentaries thereon with ease, law and all the forms that may be required by them. The references to pages where all these are to be found have been given in the Introduction. In a word, I have endeavoured to make the book a self-contained one, so that it may, meet all the ordinary requirements of the profession as well as the lay public. How far I have been successful in this it is for the readers to judge.

The case notes have again been thoroughly revised and largely added to. Besides, all important cases, both Indian and English, that have appeared in the reports since the last edition was published have been incorporated.

Again I offer my thanks to Mr. A. L. Collett, Registrar, Original Side, Calcutta High Court for helping me with the amendments made in the Rules of the said High Court.

My sincere thanks are due to Mr. Atmaram Khemka and to Mr. B. Swarath Mulherjee, both Advocates (Original Side) of the Calcutta High Court for preparing the Index, and to Mr. Suresh Chandra Mitra, Advocate of the said High Court for preparing the Table of Cases.

Preface to the Second Edition.

I must thank the profession and the public for the cordial reception, kindly accorded to the first edition of this book which was exhausted in a comparatively short time. The second edition is overdue by several months, and I can say only this in extenuation that the delay was due to circumstances over which I had no control.

In this edition all amendments to the Act as well as to the Rules, framed under it by the Governor General in Council and the Calcutta High Court up to the beginning of February, 1934 have been incorporated. The English and Indian decisions reported since the publication of the first edition have also been given. Besides a thorough revision of the whole work including the case notes, important principles of company law have further been explained by giving ample quotations from the judgments of eminent Judges in leading cases on the subject.

It has been suggested that the book may be of more help to promoters, directors, managers, secretaries, creditors and shareholders of various companies as well as to persons having dealings with them, if a systematic account is given of the salient provisions of the Act relating to the formation, management and winding up of companies. I have tried to meet this demand by adding an Introduction to the book in which the whole procedure from the conception to the dissolution of companies with all intermediate steps has been described. For fuller information on each matter references to the sections and commentaries in the body of the book have also been given. Taken with the various forms, law and rules relating to stamp duties and income tax printed in the Appendices, the Introduction, it is hoped, will be of substantial help to all persons having or desiring to have connections with limited companies.

The Introduction being a summary of the whole Act may be of much use to students appearing at various examinations in which the company law is one of the subjects, specially if they read it in conjunction with the commentaries referred to therein.

One hundred and fifty more forms have been added in this edition and printed as Appendix F. These contain, among

Preface to the First Edition

The Indian Companies Act (VII of 1913) is almost a verbatim reproduction of the English Companies (Consolidation) Act of 1908. Although some minor amendments were made in the English Act principally by the Acts of 1913 and 1914, the real changes were introduced by the Companies Act 1928 (18 & 19 Geo. 5, c. 45). This Act contained 118 sections with many amendments in the schedules. It made so many alterations that consolidation became necessary. So the Companies Act 1929 (19 & 20 Geo. 5, c. 23) was passed which consolidated all the Acts from 1908 to 1928. It came into operation on the 1st November, 1929.

As a result of this new Act, the Indian Act will, no doubt, be overhauled, but when the Government will be in a position to undertake this onerous task is a matter of speculation. In this connection it should be borne in mind that in normal times it took the Government about five years to reproduce the provisions of the English Act of 1908 in the present Indian Act. This time the public will not be satisfied with such reproduction of an English statute and a considerable body of opinion has already grown against this course.

From the two tables of corresponding sections the reader will see at a glance that out of 385 sections (as against 296 of the Act of 1908) 94 sections are altogether new, and amendments have been made in 123 other sections. All these new provisions will have to be considered in the light of public opinion which is yet to be elicited and further provisions for the protection of the investing public will have to be made in view of the peculiar conditions prevailing in this country. At present the hands of the Government of India are full on account of the pending question of Reform and disturbed political conditions. The consideration of such an important and contentious measure will require a calmer atmosphere.

Soon after the passing of the present Act of 1913 the High Court, as all other High Courts, made Rules. These Rules were published in the Gazette of February, 1930. These have been printed as

Although there is a number of books on the Indian company law in the field, so far as real annotated editions on the lines of Lord Justice Buckley's Companies Act are concerned, there are not too many of them. Moreover a considerable number of important decisions have been passed on this subject by the higher Courts, in England and India during the last few years. So there is perhaps some scope for a work like this in which I have endeavoured to collect almost all important decisions, reported up to date, under the appropriate sections, the number of English cases naturally far outnumbering those of all the High Courts in India put together. I have tried, wherever possible, to explain the more important principles of the company law by giving ample quotations from the judgments of eminent English and Indian Judges.

Special attention has been paid to the elucidation of those matters which a layman is likely to feel difficulty in understanding when he is engaged in promoting, floating and managing limited liability concerns, as for instance—the nature, scope, powers and limitations of public and private companies, acts ultra vires of companies and directors, powers, duties, rights and liabilities of directors and managers, and how far their acts bind the company, the duties and liabilities of auditors, jurisdiction of Courts and the doctrine of internal or what Lord Hatherley called 'In loco' management, debentures, ordinary and perpetual, fixed and floating charges, conversion of private companies into public companies and vice versa, meaning of share capital and fixed and circulating capital, distinction between share and stock, different classes of shares, e.g. preference, ordinary, deferred, pre-preference and founder's shares, cumulative and non-cumulative dividends, nature of shares and the mode of their transfer, transfer in blank and priority of titles, rectification of the register of members before and after winding up, re-organisation, reconstruction and amalgamation of companies and their effects on different classes of shareholders, extraordinary and special resolutions, statutory, ordinary and extraordinary general meetings, notice, quorum, adjournment, voting, poll, minutes and chairman's rights and duties regarding general meetings and board meetings, contracts, bills of exchange &c and liabilities of companies thereon, as well as the personal liabilities of the directors and managers, the meaning of 'promoter' and his liabilities, what constitutes a prospectus and the duties and liabilities of the directors and promoters in connection therewith, authority coupled with interest, and winding up, allotment, and forfeiture of shares, different kinds of winding up, and their incidence, contributories, past and present, their reciprocal liabilities and the right of set off, duties and liabilities of official and voluntary liquidator, effect of a compulsory winding up order and stay of suits and proceedings against the company, application of the bankruptcy rules in winding up, public and private examination of directors and officers, fraudulent preference, preferential payments and prerogative right of the Crown in the winding up, in a vacantia, misfeasance in a promoter, directors, officers, liquidators and auditors, defunct companies &c. Although these and many such matters are truly well known to the members of the legal profession, they are not so clear to business men who really conduct the affairs of limited companies. Therefore I have tried to explain them at some length by reference to as many decided cases as possible.

In annotating Table A of the Act notes on those points only have been given which have not been previously dealt with under the appropriate sections to which references have been given. I have tried to avoid repetition by giving cross-references under various sections of the Act and articles of Table A.

Rules and notifications made under the Act by the Governor General in Council and collected up to date have been given in Appendix A. For the convenience of secretaries and managers of companies three tables have been compiled and printed as Appendices B, C and D.

In writing my commentary on the Indian Companies Act one must draw largely upon the various standard works on the English company law. In this respect I am greatly indebted to Lord Justice (Lord Wrenbury) Buckley's Companies Act, 13th ed (1924), Sir Francis Gore Brown's Joint-Stock Companies, 36th ed (1925), Palmer's Company Precedents, 12th ed (1922) and his Company Law, 13th ed (1929), Halsbury's Laws of England, vol V (Company), Mr Justice Buckland's Indian Companies Act, 3rd ed (1922), Stubel's Company Law and Precedents, 3rd ed (1929), Topham's Company Law, 5th ed, Haydon's Secretary's Manual, and Crew's Public and Company Meeting.

For the detailed Index my best thanks are due to Mr. Monmohun Binerjee, M.A., B.L., Advocate, Cuddalore High Court, who is also on the staff of the Indian Council.

S 3 Jurisdiction

The jurisdiction conferred on the High Court in company matters is the jurisdiction to deal with matters provided for by the Act and it is very doubtful whether an application to rectify the register for which no provision is made in the Act can properly be brought before the Judge who is dealing with company matters.

Priority of Crown debts in winding up proceedings is limited to those specially mentioned in s 230.

S 239 does not incorporate in the Act the provisions of s 19 of the Presidency Towns Insolvency Act and all questions relating to priority of debts in winding up proceedings are governed solely by the provisions of s 230. Apart from the exception contained in the said section the assets of the company must be applied in satisfaction of its liabilities pari passu.

Therefore 'company' in this part of the section can only and must mean a body which has no corporate existence, not being registered under the Act. But a foreign company is a corporate body and a legal entity and under the law it can sue and be sued as such. The words 'shall include' will not exclude a foreign company not registered under the Act and such a company must fall within the expression 'unregistered company' whatever may be the number of its members.

The High Court has jurisdiction to wind up an unregistered foreign company irrespective of the number of its members under ss 270 and 271 and the mere fact that the order for winding up the company has been made by a competent Court of the place of the company's incorporation cannot make any difference to the jurisdiction.

The word 'in India' in the interpretation clause is intended to be enumerative and not exhaustive. When it is intended to exhaust the significance of the word interpreted the word means 'is used'.

S 277 Foreign company—Right of maintaining suits

A company which is registered in a foreign state is entitled to file suits and maintain actions in British India, and the mere fact that it has not complied with the requirements of s 277 does not disable it from filing suits and maintaining actions in British India.

INTRODUCTION.

Preliminary.

The history of legislation regarding companies as opposed to mere partnership has been shortly delineated in the beginning of this book namely at pages 15 and 16. The present Act that is Act VII of 1913 was framed on and almost a verbatim reproduction of the English Companies Act of 1908 which was a consolidating Act. In 1920 this Act was thoroughly overhauled and another consolidating Act was passed not only altering the arrangement of the sections of the previous Act but introducing as many as 94 new sections and making amendments in 125 out of 240 sections of the Act of 1908.

This as well as a growing demand which became more and more insistent since the passing of the English Act of 1908 for making more stringent provisions regarding the powers, duties and responsibilities of directors and managing agents resulted in the passing in India of the Companies (Amendment) Act of 1936.

The Companies (Amendment) Act, 1936

This amending Act namely the Act No XXII of 1936 has not taken the form of a consolidating Act and has not therefore altered the arrangement of the sections of the Act of 1913, but has introduced provisions most of which are verbatim copies of the new provisions of the English Act of 1929, although there are certain provisions and amendments for the purpose of dealing with problems peculiar to this country. Some special provisions relating to banking companies have also been made taking into consideration the recommendations of the Central Banking Enquiry Committee.

Commencement of the Companies (Amendment) Act, 1936.

This amending Act received the assent of the Governor General in Council on 27th October 1936. Sub-section (2) of section 1 of the Act provided: "It shall come into force on such date as the Governor General in Council may by notification in the Gazette of India appoint in this behalf." This notification was published in the said Gazette of 28th November 1936 which stated: "The Governor General in Council is pleased to appoint the 15th January 1937 as the date on which the said Act shall come into force."—See Notification No 24 (2)—Tr (C L) dated 28th November 1936 in Gazette of India dated 28th November 1936 Part I p 1412.

In this book the provisions introduced by the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936 have been incorporated in the sections Titles and Forms of the Act VII of 1913. The nature and effect of the amendments have briefly been indicated in this Introduction.

Illegal Associations.

No company or association or partnership consisting of more than ten persons in the case of a banking business and of more than twenty persons in the case of any other business the object of which is the accumulation of funds can be legally formed unless it is registered under the present Act or some other Act of the Governor-General in Council. No partnerships consisting of more than the above-mentioned numbers of persons, unless so registered, will be illegal associations with all their consequent risks and liabilities (see s 4 and notes at pp 14-50)

Amendment made in S 1

By the amending Act the new Subs (1) (1) and (5) have been added. Subs (3) says that this section shall not apply to a joint family carrying on a joint family trade or business. But where two or more such joint families form a partnership they will, it is apprehended, come within the mischief of this section and in computing the number of persons the minor members of such families will be excluded.

Subs (5) provides that every member of such illegal associations will be punishable with fine not exceeding Rs 1000.

Subs (1) says that every member of such an association carrying on business will be personally liable for all liabilities incurred in such business. See p 15.

Companies Authorized to be Incorporated

Companies authorized to be incorporated under the present Act may be (a) companies limited by shares—these must have share capitals divided into shares of a fixed amount [see ss 5 (1) and 6 (1) (1)], (b) companies limited by guarantee—these may be with or without share capital [see ss 5 (1) and 6 (1) (2)] and (c) unlimited companies [see ss 5 (1) and 6 (1) (3)]—these may also be with or without share capital [see ss 5 (2)]. These companies may be either public companies or private companies. See s 3. For the definition of a public company see the new Cl (13A) and for the definition of a private company see the new Cl (13) of sub s (1) of s 2 at p 24.

Companies formed under the previous Indian Acts or in pursuance of an Act of Parliament or of Letters Patent may be registered under the present Act in accordance with the provisions of Part III even if the sole object of such registration be that the companies may be wound up.

An unregistered company is defined in s 2(a) including any partnership, association or company consisting of more than seven members may also be wound up as provided in Part IV of the present Act.

The companies authorized to be incorporated (as distinguished from registered) under the Act must state in the memorandum of association (i) the name of the company (ii) the province in which the registered office of the company is to be situated and (iii) the objects of the company. If the company has a share capital (which is obligatory in the case of a company limited by shares) the memorandum must state the amount of share capital with which the company is proposed to be registered and the division thereof into shares of a fixed amount. Each subscriber must write opposite to his name the number of shares he takes but he cannot take less than one share.

In the case of a company limited by shares or a company limited by guarantee the memorandum shall also state that the liability of the members is limited.

In the case of a company limited by guarantee the memorandum must comply with the provision of s 7 sub s 1 (v).

In the case of an unlimited company the memorandum should comply with the provisions of s 8.

Any company already registered as a limited company may be registered under the present Act and a company already registered as an unlimited company may register itself as a limited company (s 67).

As to the companies authorized to be registered under the present Act and the provisions therefor see Part VIII of the Act.

Objects of a Company

The question whether a company should be incorporated as a company limited by shares or a company limited by guarantee or an unlimited company generally depends upon the object for which it is going to be formed. If the object is to promote commerce art science religion charity or any other useful object and not to pay any dividend to its members it may be formed as a limited company under s 26 of the Act. On registration such a company will enjoy all the privileges of limited companies and be subject to all their obligations except those of using the word Limited as a part of its name of publishing its name and of filing a list of members and directors and managers with the registrar of companies. Such companies are usually registered as companies limited by guarantee. For the fees to be paid for registration of such a company under s 26 see Table B II (p 712) and App B (p 756). Other companies limited by guarantee are not entitled to these privileges.

As observed in Palmer's Company Law [13th ed (1929) p 404] Companies with unlimited liability are rarely formed now. While limited companies have been increasing by leaps and bounds unlimited companies have dwindled nearly to zero.

Where the object of a company, association or partnership or any individual member thereof is to carry on a business for the acquisition of gain it must be registered under the present Act or some other Act &c mentioned in s 4 if it consists of more than ten persons in the case of a trading business and more than twenty persons in any other case. Otherwise it will be an illegal association with all its risks and disadvantages (see s 4 and notes at pp 45-50).

Generally speaking a limited company is formed for the following purposes — (1) to carry on a contemplated new business or a number of new businesses (2) to acquire an existing business (3) to convert business owned by a single individual or a firm into a limited company (4) to form ing on the company until it gets from the registrar the certificate for commencement of business [see s 107 sub ss (2) and (3)]

As to the agreement to issue fully paid shares to vendors see Form B at p 92

Memorandum of Association ✓

The memorandum of association must be printed, divided into paragraphs numbered consecutively, and signed by each subscriber (who must add his name, address and description) in the presence of one witness who must attest the signature. See the new s 9

For the contents of the memorandum of association of a company limited by shares see s 5 and Form A, p 725. For the specimen of a complete memorandum with all necessary object clauses in the case of a company formed to purchase an existing business as a going concern see Form 1 p 99 and for that of a company intended to do general business see Form 10 p 95

(1) Name in the memorandum

The memorandum should contain the name of the company with Limited as the last word. As regards the selection of the name see p [4] (ante). A company may, by passing a special resolution and with the approval of the Local Government, change its name [s 11 (4)]. Where a company is through inadvertence or otherwise registered with a name identical with or similar to that of an existing company, it may be changed with the consent of the registrar of companies [see s 11 (2)]. In such cases a fresh certificate of incorporation is to be obtained from the registrar [see s 11, sub ss (5) and (6)].

(2) Province in which the registered office will be situated

Next, the province in which the registered office is to be situated e.g. Bengal, Bombay, &c., is to be stated in the memorandum. A company may by passing a special resolution change the registered office from one province to another subject to confirmation by the Court [see s 12 (1) and notes thereto].

(3) Objects of the company

Much care and circumspection is necessary in drafting the object clauses. The objects should be lawful and they must not offend against the provisions of the Act [e.g. prohibition of purchasing its own shares and of giving financial assistance in connection with such purchases (s 54A)] the general law [e.g. running a lottery] or be immoral [e.g. keeping a brothel] or opposed to public policy [e.g. sale of public offices].

The objects should be clearly and definitely expressed. It is not enough to say that the object of the company is to carry on any business which it may think profitable for this defines nothing. In the case of a trading company the trade should be defined and not the various acts which it would be within the powers of the company to do in carrying on the trade. Wide powers taken in general terms will be construed as merely ancillary to the specific objects mentioned in previous clauses. But objects should not be confused with powers: the memorandum should state the objects of the company and not the powers (see pp 54-56). I

this view the power to borrow money need not be taken in the memorandum of association it is sufficient if the power is taken in the articles of association. But it is wise to take the power in the memorandum for a company other than a trading or a banking company has no implied power of borrowing (see pp 304-305)

In App G specimens of the main object clauses of various companies are given (see Forms 16 to 19 pp 969 to 982). These with additions and alterations may be used for drafting the objects clauses of the memorandum of association taking other suitable clauses from Forms 4 and 10 of App G (see pp 962-67)

Companies are often formed specially for acquiring and taking over the business of persons, firms or other companies or for amalgamating with other companies. For the first object clauses of such companies see Forms 12 to 15 (pp 965-69)

(4) Limitation of liability

The memorandum should state that the liability of the members is limited. In case a company limited by shares is wound up a member will not be bound to pay any thing more than the amount unpaid on the shares taken by him [see s 156, (1) (17)]

(5) Capital clause in the memorandum

The memorandum must also state the amount of share capital with which the company is proposed to be registered and the division thereof into shares of a fixed amount. It is not necessary to state anything further. For at any time a company can by passing special resolutions take the powers to issue shares with preferred deferred or other rights. But where it is intended to issue a particular class of shares with unalterable rights (e.g. the founders' shares) the memorandum should state the number of such shares and the amount of each and should define the rights of such a class. If the memorandum defines the rights attached to a particular class of shares they cannot be varied except with the sanction of the Court in a proceeding under s 51 or s 153 unless the memorandum also gives the power to alter such rights (see pp 64-66). In this connection see the new s 61A.

The classes into which the shares are divided and their respective rights regarding dividends and voting are more properly stated in the articles of association. Therefore the question of the capital clauses will be discussed under the heading Articles of Association (infra). But as the capital clauses defining the rights &c of the respective classes of shareholders are generally included in the memorandum of association, forms of such capital clauses are given in App G (see forms 11-17 pp 101-111). With the necessary alterations they may be incorporated in the articles of association.

(6) Issuance and subscription clause

The issuance and subscription clause should be in the form given in Form A of the Third Schedule to the Act (p 721) and each subscriber shall write opposite to his name the number of shares he takes but he cannot take a fraction of a share. Any person except a minor, a lunatic or a firm in the firm name may be a subscriber to the memorandum of association.

INTRODUCTION

(see pp 51 and 52) In the signature the full name should be given. Address and occupation should also be explicitly stated. If the subscriber has no occupation the fact should be mentioned. There must be at least seven subscribers except in the case of a private company where at least two are required. An agent may sign the memorandum on behalf of his principal where authority in this respect is given by the principal.

The signature must be attested by a person who sees the subscriber sign. If all the subscribers sign in the presence of one person he may attest all the signatures otherwise different witnesses will be necessary. The signature of a subscriber cannot be attested by him or by another subscriber. Names, addresses and descriptions of the witnesses should be given (see pp 18-19 and A of the Third Schedule to the Act and Forms 9 and 10 pp 16-17).

Alteration of the memorandum—amendments in ss 10 and 11 —the new ss 20A and 25A

A company cannot alter the conditions contained in its memorandum except in the cases and in the mode and to the extent provided. But by an amendment in s 10 it has been provided that any alteration of the memorandum relating to the appointment of managing agent and other matters of a like nature, incidental or subsidiary objects of the company will not be deemed to be an alteration. The object of this amendment appears to be to frustrate the directors, managing agents and secretaries who try to perpetrate or in effecting a change to that effect in the memorandum (see p 69).

The memorandum of association can be altered only, change of the registered office from one province to another, respect to the objects within the limits mentioned in s 12, special resolution and obtaining the sanction of the Court (see pp 74 to 76). A certified copy of the order confirming the alteration with a printed copy of the memorandum as altered should be filed with the Registrar within 3 months of the order for registration upon which the alteration will take effect (see ss 15 and 16).

The new s 20A provides that no member shall be bound by any alteration made in the memorandum or articles after the date on which he became a member if and so far as the alteration requires him to subscribe for more shares or in any way increase his liability, the member agrees in writing to be bound by the alteration.

The new s 25A provides that when an alteration is made in the memorandum or articles (it is apprehended by virtue of any Act or otherwise) every copy of the memorandum or articles after the date of the alteration shall be in accordance with the alteration. sub s (2) provides penalty for contravention of this provision.

Stamp and fees

As to the stamp for the memorandum of association and as to the fees to be paid to the Registrar of companies see Table B, pp 711-12. The stamp must be affixed to the memorandum.

INTRODUCTION

Articles of Association

The articles of association contain the regulations of the company. They must not contain anything which is against or repugnant to the provisions of the Act nor should they go beyond the scope of the memorandum of association to which they are subordinate. For their respective functions and other matters relating to the articles see s 17 and notes thereto.

In the case of a company limited by shares it is not obligatory to register any articles of association. If they are not registered the provisions of Table A will automatically apply to the company (see s 18 and notes). A new set of articles for the management of the company may be adopted if registered excluding Table A altogether or in part for the provisions of Table A will apply to a company in so far as its articles do not exclude or modify them (see s 18).

The articles must be printed, be divided into paragraphs numbered consecutively and signed by the subscribers to the memorandum (who must add their addresses and descriptions) in the manner the latter is to be signed (see the amended s 19).

The articles by numbered clauses should make provisions as to (1) the exclusion total or partial of Table A (2) definition of important words and phrases (3) adoption or execution of a preliminary agreement if any (4) capital clauses specifying the different classes into which the share capital of the company will be divided and defining the rights of the respective classes regarding dividends bonuses voting and modification of the rights (5) allotment of shares (6) share certificates (7) calls (8) forfeiture surrender and lien (9) transfer and transmission of shares (10) increase and reduction of capital (11) consolidation and sub-division of shares (12) borrowing (13) general meetings proceedings thereof and votes of members (14) management (15) directors their qualifications remuneration &c, and board meetings (16) dividends reserve and depreciation funds (17) accounts and audit (18) common seal (19) notices and (20) special provisions in the winding up.

Unless powers are taken in the articles the following things cannot be done — (1) keeping branch register in the United Kingdom (s 41) (2) issuing share warrants to bearer (s 43) (3) making arrangement for a difference between shareholders in the amounts and times of calls (s 44) (4) accepting amounts on shares though not called up (s 46) (5) paying dividends in proportion to the amounts paid up on shares (s 47) (6) increasing the share capital by the issue of new shares (s 50) (7) consolidating and dividing the share capital into shares of larger amounts (s 50) (8) converting any paid up shares into stock and re-converting that stock into paid up shares of any denomination (s 50) (9) subdividing the shares into shares of smaller amounts (s 50) (10) cancelling shares not taken or agreed to be taken (s 50) (11) reducing the share capital (s 55) (12) increasing and reducing the share capital (if any) of a company limited by guarantee (s 61) (13) varying the rights attached to any class of shares (s 61) (14) rendering the liability of the directors unlimited (s 71) (15) allowing proxies to vote and demand a poll at a general meeting (s 81) (16) providing for the appointment of directors, filling up casual vacancies among them and their qualifications (sec 84 & 85 and 86) (16) having official seal for use at a place outside British India (17) having the minimum subscription (s 101 sub s 1 to 2A) (18) having a minimum for placing shares (s 105) issuing redeemable preference shares (s 101B) (19) paying interest out of capital in certain cases (s 107) (20) closing register of debenture holders for inspection (s 121) and (21) converting private company into a public company (s 154)

INTRODUCTION

In certain of the foregoing powers are not to be found in the articles of association, powers may be taken by passing special resolution. But it is better to have them in the original articles.

Act articles of association generally sec 17 and notes thereto. A specimen of the articles of association of a company intended to be managed by managing agents and excluding Table A is given in Form (1) (pp 82-87) for the forms of articles of a company intended to be managed by the directors see Form (2) (pp 97-100B) and those of a private company intended to be managed by the governing director see Form (3) (pp 100C to 101C)

Amendments in s 17

By amending s 17 it has been provided by the amending Act that the articles of a company shall be deemed to contain regulations identical with or to the same effect as regulations 56 (6 71, 78 79, 80 81 82 95 97 105 107 112 113 114 115 and 116 contained in Table A of the Act. Of these regulation 78 will not be deemed to be included in the articles of any private company except one which is the subsidiary company of a public company. It should be noted that regulations 97 and 107 have been amended by the said amending Act. It has been further provided that regulation 107 shall be deemed to require that a statement of the reasons why of the whole amount of any item of expenditure which may in fairness be distributed over several years, only a portion thereof is charged against the income of the year, shall be shown in the profit and loss account unless the company in general meeting shall otherwise determine. As to the nature of the contents of these regulations see pp 80-81.

As these regulations have been made compulsory, it is better to have them in the articles of companies to be formed after the coming into force of the amending Act.

As to other such compulsory provisions in the articles of companies of the new s 79 relating to the proceedings of a general meeting, it also should be kept in view in framing the articles of association.

Alteration of articles

Subject to the provisions of the Act and to the conditions in the memorandum of association a company can alter its articles (s 20). The only other limitations are that they must be altered in good faith and not to commit fraud on or to take advantage of a minority of shareholders for other matters in connection therewith see notes to s 20 at pp 86-89.

As to the provisions of ss 20A and 25A relating to alteration of articles see p [7] supra.

INTRODUCTION

Capital clauses in the articles.

Where it is intended that the shares should be divided into several classes, e.g., preference, pre preference, or A preference, B preference, A ordinary, B ordinary, deferred, founders' or management shares, with special rights, privileges and conditions attached to them, the provisions to that effect should be made in the articles of association. For forms of such capital clauses see Forms 64 to 67 in App G (pp 1013-14) which may be used with necessary modifications.

For a discussion as to the rights &c of these different classes of shareholders see pp 64 to 66 and 620 to 623.

Stamps

As to the stamps on the articles of association see App. I. The stamp must be affixed before the articles are signed.

Consent and Qualification of Directors.

Every company except a private company must have at least three directors [see the new sub-s (1) of s 83A]. The promoters should settle the number, qualification and remuneration of the directors and approach suitable persons for their consent. If it is thought expedient to appoint the directors by the articles, their consent in writing signed by themselves or by their respective agents authorized in writing should be obtained. Where it is provided in the articles that a director must have certain number of qualification shares, he must either have subscribed for those shares in the memorandum of association or signed a contract to take from the company and pay for the qualification shares and filed the same with the registrar or taken from the company and paid for or agreed to pay for his qualification shares or made and filed with the registrar an affidavit to the effect that a number of shares not less than his qualification is registered in his name (see the amended s 84). This last provision makes it possible, it is apprehended to acquire his qualification shares as he can so secure it, without paying for them in cash. A list of persons who have thus consented to be directors of the company should also be prepared and filed with the registrar (see s 84 and notes at p 210). S 84 does not however apply to a private company or a company which was a private company before becoming a public company (see sub-s (3) of s 84).

For the form of directors' consent see Form II App B p 760, for that of contract to take the qualification shares see Form XXV App B, p 780 and that of the list of directors who have thus consented see Form III, App B, p 761.

Registration

For registration of a company the following documents should be filed with the registrar of companies for the province in which the registered office is to be situate, namely:—

1. The memorandum and the articles of association (if articles are prepared) duly signed (in the case of a private company by two and in any other case by seven subscribers at first) and properly attested as stated above and stamped.

2. Statutory declaration under s 24(2) of an advocate or attorney of a High Court (for meaning of High Court see pp 11-12), or of a director, manager or secretary of the company who has been named as such in the articles (see Form I App B p 760)

3 Directors consent under s 54 (see Form II App B p 760)

4 Agreement by directors to take qualification shares under s 54 (see Form XXX App B p 780) if the directors have not signed the memorandum for the number of qualification shares

5 List of Directors who have thus consented (s 54) Form see Form III App B p 761

Along with this 10 per fees for registration (see Table B, p 711) should be paid

If a registration the registrar will give a certificate of incorporation and from the date of incorporation as mentioned in the certificate the subscribers and other persons who subsequently become members, form a body corporate having an altogether separate existence perpetual succession and a common seal (see s 23 and notes pp 93-96)

The memorandum and articles upon registration become a contract binding the company and the members their heirs and legal representatives to observe all the provisions thereof (see s 21 and notes at p 90-91)

A member is entitled, on payment of one rupee or such less sum as may be prescribed in the articles to a copy of the memorandum and also of the articles if articles are registered. The copy must be sent within 14 days of the request (see the amended s 25)

Situation of Registered Office and Changes therein

The new s 72 provides that a company must have a registered office as from the day on which it begins to carry on business or as from the 20th day after the date of incorporation, whichever is the earlier, for a private company is entitled to commence business as soon as it is incorporated

In the cases of all companies, including a private company, notice of the situation of the registered office and of any change therein must be given within 28 days after their incorporation or of the change to the registrar (see Form 70 at p 1016). The inclusion in the annual return of the statement as to the address of the registered office will not satisfy the obligation imposed by s 72 for the consequences of contravention of these provision see sub s (1) of s 72

Common Seal and Publication of Name &c

A company must get its common seal prepared in which its name is engraved in legible characters [s 73(b)]. It is better to have on the impressions from which may be obtained by lever movements for ordinary purposes in addition rubber stamps may be used one containing the name of the company and others containing words and phrases in daily use in the company's transactions and correspondence, such as 'for & on behalf of the Limited', 'copied', 'cancelled', '& co.' (for the purpose of crossing a cheque) &c, &c

A company should also have its name displayed in a conspicuous position on the outside of its registered office as well as other places where its business is carried on as provided in s 73(a) It should further have its name mentioned (preferably printed) in legible English characters in all bill heads letter paper, notices advertisements and other official publications of the company, as well as on all bills of exchange hundis promissory notes endorsements cheques and orders for money and goods bills of parcels invoices receipts and letters of credit of the company (s 74)

Where any notice advertisement, &c contain a statement of the authorised capital of the company they should show in equally prominent position and equally conspicuous characters the amount of capital which has been subscribed and the amount paid up (s 75)

As to the proof of seal, power to affix it and the documents which require a seal see pp 112 and 675 and as to the form of affixing seal and that of the register of documents sealed see Forms 80 and 81 at pp 1015 19

Contracts

Contracts which are required to be made in writing may be made on behalf of a company in writing signed by any person acting under its authority express or implied and may in the same manner be varied and discharged Contracts which may be made by parol only may be made by parol on behalf of the company by any person acting under its authority, express or implied, and may in the same manner be varied or discharged (see s 88 and notes at pp 234 26 A bill of exchange hundi or promissory note if made drawn accepted or endorsed on behalf of a company by any person acting under its authority, express or implied will be valid, if its constitution has express or implied authority from the company or its agents (see s 99 and notes at pp 227 23)

The director or other officer who acts for the company in these matters should take care that it is clearly expressed to be done for and on behalf of the company, otherwise they may find themselves personally liable (see notes at p 225)

Every manager or other agent of a company other than a private company not being the subsidiary company of a public company who enters into a contract for or on behalf of the company in which contract the company is an undisclosed principal must at the time of entering into the contract make a memorandum in writing of the terms of the contract and specify therein the person with whom it has been made The manager or agent must immediately deliver the memorandum to the company to be filed and read before the next board meeting and send copies to the directors otherwise the contract will be void as against the company See the amendments 91 D As to the penalty for default see s 91D (3)

Ordinarily contracts on behalf of a company do not require to be made under its common seal which is made use of on special occasions such as issuing the share certificate power of attorney &c

As to the execution of deed and power for a company to have official seal for use abroad see s 90 (amended) and 91

Statement by Banking and some other Companies

A banking company, an insurance company, or a debenture or benefit society, must before it commences business on the first Mondays in February and August every year disclose its business, make a statement in Form G in the Statute (see p 744). A copy of the statement together with a copy of the audited balance sheet laid before the members should be kept in a conspicuous place in the registered office of the company, branch office or place where the business of the company is carried on. Every member and creditor of the company will be entitled to inspect the statement on payment of a sum not exceeding 8d. As to the penalty for default in complying with the Statute, see s 136 (4).

INTRODUCTION

Directors.

Where the directors have not been named in the articles and subject to the provision (if any) for the appointment of directors therein, the subscribers of the memorandum of association shall be deemed to be the first directors of the company until the directors are appointed in a general meeting (s 83 B) and any casual vacancy among them may be filled up by the directors subject to the provisions of s 83 B (iii).

Where the articles provide as in art 45 of Table A, that the number of the directors and the names of the first directors shall be determined by the subscribers of the memorandum of association they should forthwith proceed to fix the number and to appoint the directors, for the names of the directors or proposed directors are to be given in the prospectus [s 91 (1) (c)] or the statement in lieu of prospectus [s 98 (1)]. This may be done either in a meeting of the subscribers called for this purpose or by a statement in Form 71 App G p 101.

If the directors are required to hold qualification shares a director must obtain them within two months after his appointment or such shorter time as may be fixed by the articles (s 85) and in default he will cease to be a director and shall be incapable of being re-appointed until he has obtained the qualification [see the new s 86 (1) (a)]. After he has thus ceased to be a director if he acts as such he will be liable to the penalty provided in s 85 (2). But the acts of a director will be valid notwithstanding any defect that may afterwards be discovered in his appointment or qualification (s 86).

The company should keep a register of its directors and managers and managing agents (see the new s 87 and Form XXXI App B p 751) and file with the registrar a copy thereof and from time to time file with the registrar notice of any change among the directors and managers and managing agents (Form XXXI above). For consequences of default see s 87 (c).

The new s 87 provides that the company shall within 14 days from the date of appointment of or any change in the directors managers and managing agents send to the registrar a return and notification of change in Form XXXI (see p 781). It further provides that the register to be kept under this section shall be open to the inspection of any member without charge and of any other person on payment of one rupee or such lesser sum as the company may impose for each inspection. As to the penalty for default see sub s (1). In case of refusal the Court may direct an immediate inspection [see sub s (5)].

S 91 A (1) provides for the disclosure of a director's interest in any contract or arrangement entered into with the company at the meeting of the directors. Sub s (2) of that section mentions the penalty for contravention of the above provision.

As regards the position powers duties obligations and liabilities of directors see notes at 11-118 207 230 24 256 51 266 55 57, 60 14 and 172 71.

In a limited company the memorandum of association may provide that the liability of the director or any of the directors will be unlimited. In such a case notice is to be given to the director before he accepts the office that his liability will be unlimited, and in default the proposer will be liable to penalty (see s. 70)

Where the memorandum does not contain the provision it may be inserted therein by special resolution if so authorized by the articles. The power in the articles may be taken by altering it under s. 20. Where the memorandum is so altered by special resolution a copy thereof should be embodied in or annexed to every copy of the memorandum issued after the confirmation of the resolution (see s. 253)

New Provisions relating to Directors

The amended s. 81A provides that except in the case of a private company which is not a subsidiary company of a public company, every company shall have at least three directors.

The amended s. 83B provides that except in the case of a private company not less than two thirds of the whole number of directors shall be persons whose period of office is liable to determination by retirement in rotation. This restriction will not however apply to a company incorporated before 1st January, 1937 where by virtue of articles of such a company the number of directors falls below the two thirds proportion. It is doubtful if the company can exempt itself from the operation of this section by altering its articles after the above mentioned date.

As regards the obligation of a director to take his qualification shares see the amended s. 84 which is now a reproduction of s. 140 of the English Act of 1929.

The new s. 86A following s. 142 of the English Act of 1929 provides heavy punishment for an undischarged insolvent person acting as a director managing agent or manager of a company including one incorporated outside British India which has an established business within British India.

The new s. 86B following s. 143 of the English Act of 1929 provides that a director or manager of a company may be appointed by special resolution. The proviso and explanation regarding the provision of alternate directors are not however in the English Act.

The new s. 86C which is a reproduction of s. 152 of the English Act of 1929 provides that any provision in the articles contract or otherwise for exempting any director, manager officer or auditor from or indemnifying him against any liability which by virtue of any rule of law would otherwise attach to him in respect of any negligence default breach of duty or breach of trust shall be void. In respect of any such provision which is in force on the 15th January 1937 this section will have effect only on the expiration of six months from that date. But if a judgment is given in favour of such a person or if he is acquitted or a relief is granted to him under s. 281 the company may indemnify him.

The new s. 86D provides that no company except a private company which is not a subsidiary company of a public company and except a banking company, shall not make any loan or any loan made to a director or to a firm of which such a partner or to a private company of which such

As to the requirements for the directors of the company and as to the duties of the directors of the company.

The new s 151 provides that a firm or a private company of which a director is a partner or a director, from holding any office or position in the company as a director, manager, secretary or financial adviser, banker or insurance agent. There is no restriction in the provision for a director elected or appointed before 15th January 1937.

The new s 151 provides that a firm or the firm of which he is a partner or any partner of a firm or the private company of which he is a director or member from entering into any contract for sale, purchase or supply of goods or materials with the company except with the consent of the directors thereof. This restriction will not however apply to such contracts entered into before 15th January, 1937.

The section also makes provision for removal of a director whose period of office is liable to termination by retirement in rotation, by an extraordinary resolution and for appointment of another person in his stead by an ordinary resolution. The section will not however apply to directors elected or appointed before 15th January, 1937.

The new s 152 provides that except with the consent of a general meeting the directors of a public company or of a subsidiary company of a public company shall not (a) sell or dispose of the undertaking of the company, or (b) remit any debt due by a director.

The new s 153 states the events on the happening of which the office of a director shall be vacated. A company may of course specify in its articles any other ground for vacation of a director's office.

The new sub-s (b) of s 154 requires that every company must keep a register in which the particulars of all contracts or arrangements made with the company in which a director is interested should be entered and that the register shall be open to inspection by any member of the company. This last provision has been rightly characterised by the Bengal Chamber of Commerce as highly objectionable, as disclosure of such particulars may be prejudicial to the interests of the company. Sub-s (f) of that section provides penalty for contravention of this provision.

The amended s 155 prohibits voting by an interested director in respect of the contract or arrangement in which he is interested directly or indirectly. This prohibition does not apply to the directors of a subsidiary company or arrangements with an unincorporated body.
For the definition of

For the statements relating to directors to be made in prospectus see the amended s 93 and those to be made in the statement in lieu of prospectus see Forms I & II at pp 713 and 717 respectively.

Under the new s 130 the directors should see that proper books of account are kept with respect to (a) all sums of money received and expended by the company (b) all sales and purchases of goods by the company and (c) the assets and liabilities of the company. For default in complying with this provision the managing agents where the company is managed by them and in other cases the directors will be liable to a fine not exceeding one thousand rupees.

Under the new sub-s (1) of s 131 it is the duty of the directors to lay before the company in general meeting every year a balance sheet and profit and loss account as mentioned in that sub-section. The new s 131A provides that the directors shall make out and attach to every balance sheet a report with respect to the company's affairs and other matters mentioned therein. As to the penalty for default see sub-s (3) thereof.

The new sub-s (5) of s 132 provides that the profit and loss account must include particulars showing the total of the amount paid whether as fees percentages or otherwise to the directors as remuneration for their services. It further provides that if any director is by virtue of nomination whether direct or indirect of the company a director of any other company any remuneration or other emoluments received by him for his own use, whether as director of or otherwise in connection with the management of that other company, must be shown in a footnote to the profit and loss account.

The new s 141A provides that if a director is convicted as the result of a prosecution under that section upon a report under s 138 he shall not, without the leave of the Court, be a director of or in any way concerned in or take part in the management of a company for five years from the date of such conviction.

The new s 177A provides that a statement as to the affairs of the company verified by one or more persons who are directors must be submitted to the official liquidator, provisional or otherwise, and if the liquidator so directs the statement should be submitted and verified by persons who have been directors of the company. As to the penalty for default see sub-s (5) of that section.

Under the new s 207 where it is proposed to wind up a company voluntarily the directors are to make a declaration of solvency verified by an affidavit for the purpose of a members' voluntary winding up. The new s 209A provides that in a creditors' voluntary winding up the directors must cause a full statement of the position of the company's affairs together with a list of the creditors of the company and the estimated amount of their claims to be laid before the creditors' meeting which is to be presided over by one of the directors [see sub-s (3)]. As to the consequences of default see sub-s (6) of s 209A.

By the new s 237 a machinery has been provided for prosecuting present or past directors, if it appears to the Court in the course of a winding up by or subject to the supervision of the Court or to the liquidator in a voluntary winding up that he has been guilty of any offence in relation to the company for which he is criminally liable.

A considerable number of provisions has been introduced by the new s 238A for punishing present or past directors of a company which

at the time of the commission of the alleged offence is being wound up in any way or is subsequently ordered to be wound up or subsequently passes a resolution for voluntary winding up if they do any act or omission mentioned in subs (1) or (2) of that section

Punishment is also provided in the new s 292A for wrongfully obtaining possession of the company's property by a director, for wrongfully withholding possession and for misapplication of such property by a director. S 292B provides penalty for misapplication by directors of the securities and provident funds of the employees of the company

For a list of offences under the Act see App D for a list of documents &c to be filed with the registrar see App E and for a list of books &c to be kept under the Act see App F

It should be remembered that director includes any person occupying the position of a director by whatever name called [see cl (5) of s 1 (1) of s 2] and that the word "officer" includes a director [see s 2 (1) (11)] See also s 2 (1) (2) & (3A)

As to the statements regarding directors to be made in a statutory report see the new s 77

Board Meetings

In accordance with the provisions of the articles regarding the board meetings and the notice should be of the meeting, and by a director or the secretary (if any) or by the managing agents if they are empowered by the articles to call such meetings. As to the form of the notice see Form 72 App G s 1016

Soon after the registration of the company and the appointment of the directors urgent and important subjects should be brought before the board meeting as for example approval of the company's memorandum of the laws thereof appointment of chairman and managing director appointment of bankers auditors and secretary, adoption or approval of vendor's agreement (if any) quorum of board meetings appointment of committees for dealing with particular matters and delegation of authority to some of the directors e.g. for sealing share certificates signing cheques settling the prospectus &c &c

The directors may if so authorized by the articles as in Table A (see Art 72) appoint one of their body to the office of managing director or manager. In such a case also in the case of appointment of a secretary or managing agents agreements should be entered into by the company with such managing director secretary or managing agents defining their duties remunerations &c. As to the forms of such agreements see Forms 6 and 7 (pp 960 61)

For the form of agenda of board meetings see Form 71 App G at p 1017. Before the meeting is held the secretary should prepare typed copies of the agenda paper keeping spaces for the names of the directors and the chairman or the secretary's notes (see Form 71 p 1017)

He should take notes on it of the proceedings and resolutions of the meeting and get it initialed by the chairman of the meeting. From these not so he will be able to write the minutes of the meeting in the minute book for board meetings. See s 83 and notes thereto at pp 195-98, where the importance of these minutes and the position and duties of the secretary have been discussed.

The minutes are ordinarily read and approved at the next meeting and signed by the chairman. Form of the minutes see Form 75, App G at pp 101-18. As to the specimens of resolutions see Forms 76 to 79 at p 1018.

A register of board meetings held should be kept in Form 73 (p 1017).

Duty of director's interest in a contract

Every director who is directly or indirectly interested in any contract or arrangement with the company must disclose the nature of this interest at the first meeting of directors after the acquisition of his interest (see s 91A and notes thereto) and he must not vote on any such contract or arrangement (s 91B and notes thereto). A register must be kept in which particulars of all such contracts &c should be entered [see the new sub s (3) of s 91A]. As to the consequences of default see sub s (4) thereof.

In the case of a contract for the appointment of a manager or managing agent of the company in which contract a director is directly or indirectly concerned or interested or in the case of variation of any such existing contract, a memorandum of the interest of the director and an abstract of the contract or variation must be sent to every member of the company and the contract shall be open to inspection of any member [s 91C].

New Provisions relating to Managing Agents and Managers

The expression 'managing agent' has for the first time been defined by the Companies (Amendment) Act 1966 (see cl 9A sub s (1) of s 2). The word 'manager' was of course defined but that was no definition at all. The aforesaid amending Act has also put in a new definition of the word [see the new cl (9) of sub s (1) of s 2]. For the distinction between a manager and a managing agent see p 34.

The statutory report of a company must state the names addresses and descriptions of the managing agents and managers the amounts if any, due on calls from them, as well as from the directors and the particulars of any commission or brokerage paid or to be paid in connection with the issue or sale of shares to any director managing agent or manager or a partner of the managing agent if the managing agent is a firm or if the managing agent is a private company, a director thereof [see s 77 (3) (d) (g) and (h)].

Hitherto, if the articles so provided the managing agents could nominate any number of directors who were not subject to retirement by rotation. But the new sub s (2) of s 83B now provides that in the case of a public company incorporated after 15th January 1937 not less than two thirds of the whole number of directors must be persons whose period of office is liable to determination at any time by retirement in rotation.

The new s 86A provides that if any person being an undischarged insolvent acts as managing agent or manager he shall be liable to im-imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years or to a fine not exceeding one thousand rupees or to both.

A managing agent shall not be able to transfer his office unless the transfer is approved by the company's general meeting [see s 87B (c)] but a resolution of his office by a manager shall be of no effect unless and until it is approved by a special resolution [see s 86B]. It is rather difficult to appreciate the reason for this distinction and common sense suggests that the distinction if one was necessary should have been the other way about.

Sections 86 and 87 provide in that section any provision in the articles of a contract or otherwise for exempting any director, manager or officer [which includes a managing agent—see s 2 (1)(11)] or auditor from indemnifying him against any liability which by virtue of any rule of law would otherwise attach to him in respect of any negligence, default, breach of duty or breach of trust in relation to the company.

Save in the case of a private company which is not the subsidiary company of a public company no managing agent shall after 15th January, 1937 be appointed to hold office for a term of more than 20 years at a time and a managing agent who has been appointed previous to that date shall not hold office after the expiry of 20 years from the 15th January 1937 unless then re-appointed or unless re-appointed before the expiry of the said 20 years. A managing agent whose office is terminated in accordance with the above provisions shall be entitled to a charge upon the assets of the company by way of indemnity, subject to existing charges and encumbrances if any. The termination of the office shall not take effect until all moneys payable to the managing agent for loans made to or remuneration due up to the date of such termination are paid (see s 87A).

If a managing agent or a member of his firm or if the managing agent is a company or director or an officer holding from it a general power of attorney is convicted of a non-bailable offence in relation to the affairs of the company of which he is a managing agent, he shall be liable to removal from his office by a resolution of the company notwithstanding any thing to the contrary in the articles or agreement [see s 87B (2)]. The office of a managing agent shall be vacated if he is adjudged insolvent [s 87B (1)]. A charge or assignment of his remuneration or any part thereof shall be void as against the company [s 87B (d)]. Upon a winding up of the company the contract of management shall be determined without prejudice however to his right to recover any moneys recoverable from the company, provided that where the Court finds that the winding up is due to the negligence or default of the managing agent himself, he shall not be entitled to compensation for the premature termination of his contract of management [s 87B (e)]. Except in the case of the appointment of a company's first managing agent prior to the issue of the prospectus or statement in lieu of prospectus where the terms of the appointment are there set forth the appointment of a managing agent his removal, and variation of his contract of management may after 15th January, 1937 shall not be valid unless approved by a resolution of the company [see s 87B (f)].

Where a company appoints a managing agent after 15th January, 1937, his remuneration shall be a sum less than a fixed percentage of the net annual profits of the company with a provision for a minimum payment in the case of absence of or inadequacy of profits together with an office allowance to be defined in the agreement of management. Any other form of or additional remuneration shall not be binding on the company unless sanctioned by a special resolution [see s 87C]. This provision does not apply to a private company except one which is the subsidiary company of a public company or an insurance company [s 87C(4)].

Except in the case of a private company which is not the subsidiary company of a public company no company must make to its managing agent or his partner or a director of his private company where the managing agent is a firm or a private company any loan out of the company's moneys or guarantee any loan made to the managing agent. But this will not prevent the managing agent from holding any credit in a current account in a bank subject to the limits approved by the board of directors for the purpose of the company's business [see s 87D(1) & 2]. As to the penalty for contravention of this provision see s 87D(3).

Sub s (5) of s 87D provides that after 15th January, 1937, except with the consent of three fourths of the directors present and entitled to vote on the resolution a managing agent or the firm of which he is a partner or any partner of such firm or if the managing agent is a private company, a member or director thereof shall not enter into any contract for the sale, purchase or supply of goods and materials with the company.

No company incorporated after 15th January, 1937 shall make any loan or guarantee any loan made to any company under the management of the same managing agent; and no company shall, after the expiry of 6 months from the 15th January, 1937, except by way of renewal of an existing loan or guarantee given make any loan to or guarantee any loan made to any such company. But these restrictions will not apply to loans made to or guaranteed given by a company to or on behalf of a company under its own management or its subsidiary companies [see s 87I(1)]. As to the penalty for contravention of these provisions see sub s (2) of s 87I.

S 87F provides that a company other than an investment company, that is to say a company whose principal business is the acquisition and holding of shares, stocks, debentures or other securities shall not purchase shares or debentures of any company under the management of the same managing agent, unless the purchase has been previously approved by a unanimous decision of the board of directors of the purchasing company.

S 87G prohibits a managing agent from issuing debentures and except with the authority of the directors and within the limits fixed by them it prohibits the managing agent from investing the funds of the company. Any delegation of any such power by a company to its managing agent shall be void (see s 87G).

By s 87H a managing agent is deterred from engaging on his own account in any business which is of the same nature as and directly competes with the business carried on by a company under his management or by a subsidiary company of such company.

Except in the case of a private company the managing agent shall not, after the 15th January, 1937, be able to appoint more than one third of the which number of directors notwithstanding any such power given to the managing agent in the articles of the company (s 87 I)

The amended 91C provides that where a company enters into a contract for the appointment of a manager or managing agent in which contract any director is directly or indirectly concerned or interested or varies any such existing contract the company must within 21 days send to every member an abstract of the terms of such contract or variation together with a memorandum indicating the nature of the director's interest therein and that the contract shall be open to inspection by the members. As to the consequences of default see sub s (2) of s 91C

As the managing agent is an agent of the company he should comply with the provisions of s 91D if the company is not a private company (other than the subsidiary company of a public company)

For the statements to be made in the prospectus relating to the managing agent see the amended s 10 and for such statements to be made in the statement in lieu of prospectus see forms I and II in the Second Schedule at p 711 and p 717 respectively

As to the obligation of the managing agents and managers to keep books of account and the consequences of default see the new s 130

As the word officer includes a managing agent (see s 2(I) (11)) if he is convicted as the result of a prosecution initiated under s 141A for an offence in relation to the company he will not be able to be reappointed, without the leave of the court, to be the managing agent of or directly or indirectly concerned in or take part in the management of any company for 5 years from the date of his conviction (see s 141A (4))

As to the obligation of a managing agent to submit to the official liquidator provisional or otherwise a statement as to the affairs of the company and the consequences of default see s 177A

Following the provisions of s 277 of the Indian Act of 1929 a machinery has been provided in the new s 254 for the prosecution of any present or past managing agent among others who is held guilty of any offence in relation to the company for which he is criminally liable

Following s 271 of the old Indian Act a considerable number of new and serious offences have been created by s 254 for a past or present managing agent, directors, managers or other officers in relation to a company which is being wound up in any of the three modes or is substantially wound up. These offences are punishable with imprisonment for 2 years or 5 years (see s 254)

As to the punishment for wrongfully passing wrongfully with following person of any managing agent, directors of a company by its managing agent, directors, managers or other officer or employee see s 282A, and as to the punishment for making default in depositing the securities of employees of the company in a safe and or making default in investing the profit fund in any of such employees as directed in sub s (2) of s 254B and s (5) of that section

For a list of offences under the Act see App D, for a list of documents to be kept under the Act see App E and for a list of books &c to be kept under the Act see App F

INTRODUCTION

It should be remembered in this connection that the word 'officer' includes a managing agent [see s 2(1)(1)] and the word director includes any person occupying the position of a director by whatever name called. So a managing agent may be liable as a director or manager and vice versa if he occupies such a position [see s 2(1)(5)(i) & (9A)].

After the expiry of years from 15th November 1937 no banking company can be managed by a managing agent other than another banking company [see s 277H]. For the consequences of default see sub s (4) of s 271.

Prospectus

Great care and skill are required in drafting a prospectus by which share capital is raised for the company. It should be attractive but at the same time it should not contain any misrepresentation of any material fact or any deceptive, misleading or ambiguous statement. The prospectus must comply with the provisions of ss 92 and 93 and conditions as to waiver of compliance thereof and as to notice of any contract be not specifically referred to in the prospectus are void (s 91). In drafting a prospectus the new provisions introduced in s 93 (shown in italics) by the Companies (Amendment) Act, 1938 should be carefully studied and complied with. For the consequences of default in complying with any of the provisions of s 93 see the amended s 97.

The prospectus should contain a copy of the memorandum of association except where it is published as a newspaper advertisement. A form of application for shares is given in Form 32 [see s 96(2)]. A skeleton prospectus is given in Form 33. As to the applications for shares see Form 34.

A copy of the prospectus is to be dated and signed by every person who is named therein as a director or proposed director or by his agent authorized in writing. This is to be filed with the registrar for registration on or before the date of its publication. If a prospectus is issued without such a copy being so filed the persons who are parties to the prospectus shall be liable to a penalty (see s 92). The date of the prospectus will be taken as the date of its publication unless the contrary is proved.

Where a prospectus invites persons to subscribe for shares in or debentures of the company, a director, promoter or any other person who has authorized the issue of the prospectus will be liable for any misleading or untrue statement therein to all persons for compensation or damages who subscribe for the shares or debentures on the faith of the prospectus (see s 100 and notes at pp 257-68). They can escape liability only if they can prove want of knowledge or honest mistake of fact or that the non compliance or contravention was in respect of matters which were immaterial (see the amended s 97).

As to what is a prospectus and what will be regarded as such see notes at pp 38-39 and 236-37 and as to the meaning of the word 'vendor' see ss 95 and 96.

Where there is a misrepresentation or concealment of a material fact in a prospectus the following remedies are open to the allottee: (1) rescission of the contract to take shares; (2) defence taken in an action for call; (3) rectification of the register of members; (4) damages in an action whole number of directors notwithstanding any such power given to the managing agent in the articles of the company (s 57 I)

The amended s 110 provides that where a company enters into a contract for the appointment of a managing agent in which contract any director is directly or indirectly concerned or interested or varies any such existing contract the company must within 21 days send to every member in a list of the terms of such contract or variation together with a memorandum stating the nature of the director's interest therein and the director's name shall be open to inspection by the members. As to the effect of the amendments (2) of s 21C.

As the managing agent of the company he should comply with the provisions of s 110. If the company is not a private company (other than the subsidiary company of a public company)

For the statements to be made in the prospectus relating to the managing agent see the amended s 111 and for such statements to be made in the statement in lieu of prospectus see Forms I and II in the Second Schedule at p 713 and p 717 respectively.

As to the obligation of the managing agents and managers to keep books of account and the consequence of default see the new s 170

As the word "cheer" include a managing agent (see s 2(I) (11)) if he is convicted to the result of a prosecution initiated under s 141A for an offence in relation to the company he will be liable if it is apprehended, without the leave of the Court to be the managing agent of or directly or indirectly be concerned in or take part in the management of any company for 5 years from the date of his conviction [see s 141A (4)]

As to the obligation of a managing agent to submit to the official liquidator, provisional receiver or assignee a statement as to the affairs of the company and the consequence of default see s 177A

Following the provisions of s 277 of the English Act of 1929 a machinery has been provided in the new s 277 for the prosecution of any present or past managing agent among others who has been guilty of any offence in relation to the company for which he is criminally liable

Following s 271 of the above English Act a considerable number of new and serious offences have been created by s 274A for past or present managing agents, directors, managers and other officers in relation to a company which is being wound up in any of the three modes or is subsequently wound up. The offences are punishable with imprisonment for 2 years or 5 years (see s 274A)

As to the punishment for wrongfully possessing, wrongfully withholding possession of and misapplying property of a company by its managing agent, director, manager or other officer or employee see s 282A, and as to the punishment for making default in depositing the securities of employees of the company in a scheduled bank or making default in investing the provident fund moneys of such employees as directed in sub-s (2) of s 282B see sub-s (5) of that section

For a list of offences under the Act see App D, for a list of documents &c to be filed with the registrar see App E and for a list of books &c to be kept under the Act see App F

INTRODUCTION

It should be remembered in this connection that the word "officer" includes a managing agent [see s (1)(11)] and the word "director" includes any person occupying the position of a director by whatever name called. So a managing agent may be liable as a director or manager and vice versa if he occupies such a position [see s 2 (1)(5)(i) & (1A)].

After the expiry of 2 years from 15th January 1937 no banking company can be managed by a managing agent other than another banking company [see s 7(1)]. For the consequences of default see sub s (1) of s 277I.

Prospectus

Great care and skill are required in drafting a prospectus by which share capital is raised for the company. It should be attractive but at the same time it should not contain any misrepresentation of any material fact or any deceptive misleading or ambiguous statement. The prospectus must comply with the provisions of ss 92 and 93 and conditions as to waiver of compliance thereof and as to notice of any contract be not specifically referred to in the prospectus are void (s 96). In drafting a prospectus the new provisions introduced in s 93 (shown in italics) by the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936 should be carefully studied and complied with. For the consequences of default in complying with any of the provisions of s 93 see the amended s 17.

The prospectus should contain a copy of the memorandum of association except where it is published as a newspaper advertisement. A form of application for shares should always be given [see s 96 (2)]. A skeleton prospectus is given in Form 55 at p 1021 App G. As to the applications for shares see Forms 56 and 57 at pp 1023-24.

A copy of the prospectus is to be dated and signed by every person who is named therein as a director or proposed director or by his agent authorized in writing. This is to be filed with the registrar for registration on or before the date of its publication. If a prospectus is issued without such a copy being so filed the persons who are parties to the prospectus shall be liable to a penalty (see s 92). The date of the prospectus will be taken as the date of its publication unless the contrary is proved.

Where a prospectus invites persons to subscribe for shares in or debentures of the company, a director, promoter or any other person who has authorized the issue of the prospectus will be liable for any misleading or untrue statement therein to all persons for compensation or damages who subscribe for the shares or debentures on the faith of the prospectus (see s 106) and notes at pp 257 (3). They can escape liability only if they can prove want of knowledge or honest mistake of fact or that the non compliance or contrivance was in respect of matters which were immaterial (see the amended s 97).

As to what is a prospectus and what will be regarded as such see notes at pp 38-39 and 256-57 and as to the meaning of the word "endorse" see ss 95 and 96.

Where there is a misrepresentation or concealment of a material fact in a prospectus the following remedies are open to the allottee: (1) rescission of the contract to take shares (2) defence taken in an action for call (3) rectification of the register of members (4) damages in an action

of deceit (5) damages under s 100 and (f) criminal proceedings (see pp 237-38)

It sometimes happens that a company allots its shares or debentures to somebody with a view that the whole or part of those shares or debentures may subsequently be offered for sale to the public. Following s 38 of the English Act of 1929 it has been provided in the new s 95A that any document by which the offer for sale to the public is made shall for all purposes be deemed to be a prospectus issued by the company and as such must comply with all the provisions relating to a prospectus issued by the company. It will be presumed that an allotment or agreement to allot shares and debentures was made with a view to those being offered for sale to the public if it is shown (a) that an offer of the shares or debentures or any of them for sale to the public was made within 6 months after the allotment or agreement to allot or (b) that on the date when the offer was made the whole of the consideration to be received by the company in respect of them had not been so received.

S 97 will apply to the person or persons making the offer as though they were persons named in a prospectus as directors of a company and the provisions of s 93 will have effect as if it required a prospectus to state the additional particulars mentioned in clauses (a) and (b) of sub s 2 of s 98A. See also sub s (4) of that section.

Statement in Lieu of Prospectus

A company which does not issue a prospectus must not allot any of its shares or debentures before it has filed with the registrar a statement in lieu of prospectus giving most of the particulars required to be given in a prospectus in the form given in Form I in the Second Schedule of the Act (see p 713). The statement is to be signed as in the case of a prospectus by every person who is named therein as a director or a proposed director or by his agent authorized in writing (s 98).

The terms of any contract referred to in the prospectus or statement in lieu of prospectus cannot be varied except with the approval of the company in general meeting (s 99).

Prospectus offering Debentures for Subscription

The word prospectus means any prospectus notice circular advertisement or other invitation offering to the public for subscription any shares or debentures of a company. So when a prospectus is sought to be issued offering debentures for subscription the prospectus thereof should comply with the requirements of ss 99-103 and 95.

For forms of such a prospectus application allotment and transfer of debentures and the debenture itself see Forms 1 to 17 138 139 and 140 respectively printed at pp 1030-35.

Underwriting

In order to avoid or minimise the risk of failure of an issue of shares or debentures of a company it is usual to make an arrangement for underwriting them before issuing the prospectus. No allotment of shares can be made unless the minimum amount fixed in the memorandum or articles and mentioned in the prospectus has been subscribed and the application money (which is often only a part of the amount of the share) received by the company in cash within 140 days (repealed in the prospectus). In each case all the new shares shall have to be repaid (s. 101). But share capital of a company which does not have to subscribe for its shares, the company or the minimum amount mentioned above. If the proportion has been subscribed and if more than 5 per cent of the amount of the share. For this reason also it is advisable to be sure at least a substantial portion of the share.

The underwriter writes a letter to the company agreeing to underwrite a certain amount, stating that he is only bound to take up his share if the public does not subscribe for the shares. The underwriter usually procures sub-underwriters and underwriting letters. Form of agreement when accepted represents a contract. As the obligations of an underwriter are specified.

Payment of commission

The responsibilities of an underwriter of a commission the payment of which are articles and disclosed in the prospectus (s. 102). The English Act of 1929 the Companies (Amendment) Act, 1936 provides that (a) such issue is authorised and is sanctioned by the Court, (b) the maximum rate of discount not exceeding 10 per cent of the date of issue have elapsed since the date of issue to commence business, and (c) such shares the date on which the issue is sanctioned, extended time as the Court may allow. If the issue of such shares and every balance sheet of such shares must contain the particulars of the commission has not been written off. For the consequence of this provision see sub s. (3) of s. 105 A.

As has been aforesaid, the payment of a commission is illegal (see notes at pp. 287-288). The law in respect of shares and that of commissions is the same, or so much thereof as have not been written off every balance sheet until the whole amount.

If a commission for subscription of its shares is issued in a prospectus it must be disclosed in the prospectus or in a statement in the prescribed form and filed with the registrar and where a prospectus is issued, the commission must be disclosed (1) (b).

Issue of redeemable preference shares

Repealing s. 16 of the English Act of 1908, the Companies Act, 1936 has made provisions for shares if so authorized by the articles in the case of companies limited by shares. Subject to the provisions of clauses (a) to (d) of sub s (1) of s 105 B these shares may be redeemed by the company. In every balance-sheet issued by the company particulars mentioned in sub s (2) must be stated and for consequences of default see that subsection. As regards other provisions relating to the same see sub s (4) and (5) of s 105 B.

Payment of Interest out of Capital

Payment of interest or dividend out of capital is illegal. But where any shares are issued to defray the expenses of the construction of any works or building or the provision of any plant which cannot be made profitable for a long period the company may pay interest not exceeding 4 per cent per annum on so much of that share capital as is for the time being paid up subject to the conditions and restrictions mentioned in s 107.

Application for and Allotment of Shares

It is not lawful to issue any form of application for shares or debentures unless the form is issued with a prospectus which complies with the requirements of s 93 [see the new sub s (2) of s 96].

Application for shares with deposits (which should be not less than 5 per cent of the amount of the share) may be received direct by the company or through a bank or been made for forms of 1023 24. Where a bank is with a list to the company press book which is from. When it is seen that the articles and the prospectus or the statement in lieu of prospectus has been received the company proceeds to allotment.

Minimum Subscription

Following s 39 and paragraph 5 in part I of the Fourth Schedule of the English Act of 1921 the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936 has made new provisions regarding the minimum subscription by amending s 101. In sub s (1) it has been laid down that no allotment shall be made of any share capital offered for public subscription unless the amount stated in the prospectus is the minimum amount which in the opinion of the directors must be raised in order to provide the sums required to be provided in respect of the following matters namely (a) the purchase price of any property purchased or to be purchased which is to be defrayed in whole or in part out of the proceeds of the issue (b) any preliminary expenses including commissions for placing the shares (c) the repayment of any moneys borrowed by the company in respect of any of the foregoing matters and (d) the working capital. The amount so stated in the prospectus as the minimum subscription will be reckoned exclusively of any amount payable otherwise than in cash and at least 5 per cent thereof must be received in cash by the company before going to allotment [see sub s (1) (2) and (2 A) of s 101].

If the foregoing conditions are not fulfilled within 180 days after the first issue of the prospectus all money received from the applicents of shares must be repaid within 190 days after the issue of the prospectus, otherwise the directors will be jointly and severally liable to repay that money with interest at 7 per cent per annum [see sub s (4) of s 101]. Until such repayment or until the certificate for commencement of business is obtained the money should be kept deposited in one of the scheduled banks a list of which is given at p 270 [see sub s (2B) of s 101]. For the consequences of contravention of the last provision see sub s (2C) of s 101.

An allotment made in contravention of s 101 will be voidable at the instance of the applicant within 1 month after the statutory meeting or where the company is not required to hold a statutory meeting as in the case of a private company or where the allotment is made after the holding of the statutory meeting within 1 month after the date of the allotment in toto and will be voidable notwithstanding the company is in course of being wound up [see the amended sub s (1) of s 102]. For the notice voiding the allotment see Form 95 at p 1010.

By the articles shares are generally placed at the disposal of the directors, the managing director or the managing agents. Where the power of allotment is vested in the directors the secretary places the applications before the board meetings from time to time and resolutions for allotment are passed. Thereupon the secretary issues allotment letters (see Form 93 at p 1094) entering the necessary particulars in the Application and Allotment Book (see Form 101 at p 1033). The application on which allotment cannot be made owing to over-subscription of the issue or any other cause should be returned to the applicant with a letter of regret and a payment order for return of the deposit money (see Form 85 at p 1095). For the forms of allotment of preference shares and fully paid shares see Forms 90 and 91 (at p 1027) respectively.

After allotment the company should within one month file with the registrar a return of allotment in form VI p 763 (see s 104). In the case of shares allotted as fully or partly paid up otherwise than in cash duly stamped contracts showing the consideration must be produced for the inspection and examination of the registrar. At the same time copies thereof verified in the prescribed manner (see p 757) should be filed with the registrar [see s 104 and notes]. Where such a contract has not been reduced to writing the company must within 1 month after the allotment file with the registrar the prescribed particulars (see Form VII at p 764) of the contract duly stamped [see s 104 (2) and App I].

The return of allotment is generally filed once a month taking care that all allotments made within the month are included therein.

Commencement of business

A public company cannot commence business unless and until it gets the requisite certificate from the registrar of companies (s 103). To obtain this the company shall have to file a duly verified declaration that (1) shares held subject to the payment of the whole amount in cash have been allotted to an amount not less than the minimum subscription as explained above (2) the directors have paid the application and allotment moneys on the shares taken or contracted to be taken by them and (3) where the company does not issue a prospectus a statement in lieu of prospectus has been filed with the registrar (see s 103). As to the forms of the declaration and verification in the cases where a prospectus is issued and where a statement in lieu of prospectus is issued see forms IV and V at pp 762 and 763 respectively.

All contracts made by the company before the date on which it is entitled to commence business are provisional only and not binding on the company until such date [see s 103 (3) and notes at p 280]. For consequences of commencing business or exercising borrowing powers in contravention of s 103 see sub s (5) thereof.

S 103 however does not apply to a private company or to a company registered before the commencement of Act VII of 1913 which does not issue a prospectus or to a company limited by guarantee and not having a share capital [s 103 (f)].

Register of Members

As soon as a company is registered the secretary should commence writing up the register of members beginning with the names of the subscribers to the memorandum and where the allotments are made he should enter therein the names of the allottees and other necessary particulars. For the particulars and penalty for default see s 31. As to the method of keeping the register see notes at pp 121-2. In large companies another book called the share ledger is used in which an account is kept of the shares of the particular members. Ordinarily one book will suffice and Form 102 (at p 1034) for the purpose is recommended.

Reproducing s 96 of the English Act of 1909 it has been provided by the new s 31A that every company having more than 50 members must keep an index of the names of members and must within 14 days after any alteration is made in the register of members make the necessary alteration in the index. The index may be in the form of a card index and must contain a sufficient indication to enable the account of any member to be readily found. For the consequence of default in keeping the index see sub s (3) of s 31A.

It should be remembered that no notice of any trust expressed implied or constructive shall be entered on the register of members nor will the registrar of companies receive any such notice (see s 33 and notes at pp 125-29).

For the provisions relating to the keeping of a branch register in the United Kingdom called the British register see ss 41 and 42.

The register of members is prima facie evidence of matters directed or authorized by the Act to be entered therein (see s 40 and notes at pp 141-42).

Rectification of the register of members.

Where a person has been induced to take shares by fraud or misrepresentation and where a person has ceased to be a member by transfer or otherwise and his name is kept on the register of members in spite of representation on his part he may apply to the Court for rectification of the register. Similarly where a person has got a right to be on the register by taking transfer of shares or otherwise and the company refuses or makes unnecessary delay to place his name on the register of members, he can make such an application (see s 38 and notes at pp 135-41). As to the director's power to rectify the register without intervention of the Court see notes at p 138.

When the Court makes an order for rectification of the register of members it directs notice of the rectification to be filed with the registrar within a fortnight from the date of the completion of the order (see the amended s 34).

Inspection &c of the register of members

The register of members commencing from the date of the registration of the company and the index of members should be kept at its registered office. It may be inspected by the members gratis and by any other person on payment of one rupee or such less sum as may be prescribed by the articles for each inspection during the business hours. Any member or other person may also make extracts therefrom [see the amended s 34 (1)] and the company must cause any copy so required by any person to be sent to that person within 10 days from the date of the requisition [see the amended subs (2) of s 36]. As to the penalty for default see the new subs (3) and it has been provided therein that in case of default the Court may by order compel an immediate inspection of the register and index or direct that copies required shall be sent to the persons requiring them.

A company may on giving 7 days previous notice by advertisement close the register of members for any time or times not exceeding in the whole 45 days in each year but not exceeding 30 days at a time (see the amended s 37). But no provision has been made for closing the index of members. The register of members is usually closed just before an ordinary general meeting.

Share Certificates and Stock Certificates

From the application and allotment book and the register of members the secretary should take materials for writing up the share certificates (see Form 13 at p 1025). These should be signed and sealed in accordance with the provisions therefor in the articles of association and kept ready for delivery within three months after the allotment (s 108). As soon as the share certificates are ready a notice to that effect (see Form 32 at p 1027) should be sent to the shareholders whose certificates are thus ready. For penalty for default see s 108 (2).

A statement as to the company's lien on the shares should not be entered on the share certificate (see p 235). For other matters relating to the share certificate see notes on pp 111 to 113 and pp 295-96. As to the lien clause in the articles see art 9 Table A and for waiver, priority and effect of assignment or death see pp 625-26.

If a share certificate is defaced, lost or destroyed it may be renewed by the company in accordance with the provisions therefor in the articles (see art 7 of Table A) upon furnishing the requisite evidence and indemnity bond (see Form 97, p 1030). Before issuing a fresh certificate advertisement in a newspaper should be made in Form 96 (see p 1030).

INTRODUCTION

on the shares taken or contracted to be taken by them, and (3) where the company does not issue a prospectus a statement in lieu of prospectus has been filed with the registrar (see s 103). As to the forms of the declaration and verification in the cases where a prospectus is issued and where a statement in lieu of prospectus is issued see forms IV and V at pp 762 and 763 respectively.

All contracts made by the company before the date on which it is entitled to commence business are provisional only and not binding on the company until such date (see s 103 (3) and notes at p 280). For consequences of commencing business or exercising borrowing powers in contravention of s 103 see sub s (5) thereof.

S 103 however does not apply to a private company or to a company registered before the commencement of Act VII of 1917 which does not issue a prospectus or to a company limited by guarantee and not having a share capital [s 103 (1)].

Register of Members

As soon as a company is registered the secretary should commence writing up the register of members beginning with the names of the subscribers to the memorandum and where the allotments are made he should enter therein the names of the allottees and other necessary particulars. For these particulars and penalty for default see s 31. As to the method of keeping the register see notes at pp 121-22. In large companies another book called the share ledger is used in which an account is kept of the shares of the particular members. Ordinarily one book will suffice and Form 103 (at p 1004) for the purpose is recommended.

Reproducing s 96 of the English Act of 1929, it has been provided by the new s 31A that every company having more than 50 members must keep an index of the names of members and must within 14 days after any alteration is made in the register of members make the necessary alteration in the index. The index may be in the form of a card index and must contain a sufficient indication to enable the account of any member to be readily found. For the consequence of default in keeping the index see sub s (3) of s 31A.

It should be remembered that no notice of any trust, expressed, implied or constructive shall be entered on the register of members nor will the registrar of companies receive any such notice (see s 33 and notes at pp 125-29).

For the provisions relating to the keeping of a branch register in the United Kingdom called the British register see ss 41 and 42.

The register of members is prima facie evidence of matters directed or authorized by the Act to be entered therein (see s 40 and notes at pp 111-12).

Rectification of the register of members.

Where a person has been induced to take shares by fraud or misrepresentation and where a person has ceased to be a member by transfer or otherwise and his name is kept on the register of members in spite of representation on his part he may apply to the Court for rectification of the register. Similarly where a person has got a right to be on the register by taking transfer of shares or otherwise and the company refuses or makes unnecessary delay to place his name on the register of members, he can make such an application (see s 38 and notes at pp 135-11). As to the directors' power to rectify the register without intervention of the Court see notes at p 138.

When the Court makes an order for rectification of the register of members, it directs notice of the rectification to be filed with the registrar within a fortnight from the date of the completion of the order (see the amended s 34).

Inspection &c of the register of members

The register of members commencing from the date of the registration of the company and the index of members should be kept at its registered office. It may be inspected by the members gratis and by any other person on payment of one rupee or such less sum as may be prescribed by the articles for each inspection during the business hours, any member or other person may also make extracts therefrom [see the amended s 36 (1)] and the company must cause any copy so required by any person to be sent to that person within 10 days from the date of the requisition [see the amended subs (2) of s 36]. As to the penalty for default see the new subs (3) and it has been provided therein that in case of default the Court may by order compel an immediate inspection of the register and index or direct that copies required shall be sent to the persons requiring them.

A company may on giving 7 days' previous notice by advertisement close the register of members for any time or times not exceeding in the whole 45 days in each year, but not exceeding 30 days at a time (see the amended s 37). But no provision has been made for closing the index of members. The register of members is usually closed just before an ordinary general meeting.

From the application and allotment book and the register of members the secretary should take materials for writing up the share certificates (see Form 93 at p 1025). These should be signed and sealed in accordance with the provisions therefor in the articles of association and kept ready for delivery within three months after the allotment (s 108). As soon as the share certificates are ready a notice to that effect (see Form 92 at p 1027) should be sent to the shareholders whose certificates are thus ready. For penalty for default see s 108 (2).

A statement as to the company's lien on the shares should not be entered on the share certificate (see p 235). For other matters relating to the share certificate see notes on pp 111 to 113 and pp 295-96. As to the 'lien' clause in the articles see art 9, Table A and for waiver, priority and effect of assignment or death see pp 625-26.

If a share certificate is defaced, lost or destroyed, it may be renewed by the company in accordance with the provisions therefor in the articles (see art 7 of Table A) upon furnishing the requisite evidence and indemnity bond (see Form 97, p 1030). Before issuing a fresh certificate advertisement in a newspaper should be made in Form 96 (see p 1030).

INTRODUCTION

Where shares are converted into stock share certificates should be called in and stock certificate issued in lieu thereof. For form of stock certificate see Form 94 at p 102^o

Calls

Calls are to be made by the authority named in the articles of association (see art 1^o to 17 of Table A). Generally directors are empowered to make the call. But sometimes the managing director or the managing agents are so empowered. In any case the proceedings by which the calls are made should be in writing and should be kept in a proceeding book if they are not made by the directors in which case the calls are made by resolution passed at the board meeting. The amount and interval should tally with those mentioned in the prospectus. For notice of call to be sent to the shareholders see Form 15 at p 101. A register of calls should be kept in a form similar to Form 99 (see p 103^o). Provisions are generally made in the articles for interest at certain rate payable to the company or failure to pay call on the due date. For other informations in connection with this matter see notes pp at 62, 31.

Difference between Shareholders

A company may if so authorized by its article make arrangements for a difference between shareholders in the amounts and times of payment of call except from a shareholder the whole or part of of the share money yet unpaid though the same has not been called up and pay dividend in proportion to the amounts paid up on the shares (see s 4^o and note).

Forfeiture

Provisions are generally made in the article for forfeiture of shares for non payment of call money (see art 94 to 100 of Table A). Where the articles provide that a person whose shares have been forfeited shall notwithstanding the forfeiture remain liable to pay the call money with interest (see art 95 of Table A) such a clause is enforceable. The regulations contained in the articles for forfeiture should be strictly followed otherwise the Court may declare the forfeiture invalid as to the notice of forfeiture see Form 100 at p 105^o S 104 does not apply to the issue and allotment of forfeited shares [see the new sub s (4) of s 104].

For other matters relating to forfeiture of shares see pp 642-48

Alteration of Share Capital

A company limited by shares may if so authorized by its articles, (a) increase its share capital by the issue of new shares, (b) consolidate and divide all or any shares into those of larger amounts, (c) convert all or any of its paid up shares into stock and re-convert that stock into paid up shares of any denomination, (d) subdivide its shares or any of them into shares of smaller amounts, and (e) cancel shares which have not been taken or agreed to be taken (s 50). Such a cancellation of shares is not a reduction within the meaning of the Act [s 50 (3)]. The powers must be exercised by the com

power in general meeting [see the amended sub s (2) of s 50] and the company must file with the registrar notice of the exercise of any powers of subdivision or cancellation of shares [see the new sub s (1) of s 50]

If the articles do not contain the requisite powers they may be taken by passing special resolution (see ss 20 and 81 and notes to those sections)

(a) Increase of Share Capital

In increasing the share capital the provisions in the articles or if there is no such provision then in the special resolution authorizing the increase shall be followed. Where they do not require an extraordinary or a special resolution, an ordinary resolution will do. Formerly the company might empower the directors to make the increase but now a resolution of the general meeting is necessary [see the amended sub s (2) of s 50]

Where the directors decide to increase the capital by the issue of further shares they must offer them in the first instance to the members in proportion to the existing shares held by each member (irrespective of class) and such offer is to be made by notice specifying the number of shares to which the member is entitled and limiting a time within which the offer, if not accepted, will be deemed to be declined (see the new s 105 C)

Where a company having a share capital consisting of shares or stock has increased the same beyond the registered capital it must file with the registrar within fifteen days of the date of the resolution a notice of the increase (see Form 107 at p 1037). Similarly where a company having no share capital has increased the number of its members a notice of such increase should be sent to the registrar within fifteen days of the date of the resolution (see Form 110 at p 1038). The notice must include particulars of the classes of shares affected and the conditions (if any) subject to which the new shares are to be issued [see the new sub s (2) of s 53]. As to the penalty for omission to file the notice see sub s (3) of s 53.

Subject to any restriction in the memorandum a company may create and issue new shares with such preferential or other special rights as may be deemed expedient and if the articles do not contain the power it may be taken by passing a special resolution.

(b) Consolidation of Shares

The observations made above in the case of increase of share capital apply generally as to the mode in which the shares may be consolidated and divided into shares of larger amount. For notice to the registrar see s 51 (which appears to be redundant in view of sub s (4) of s 50) and Form 107 at p 1037.

(c) Conversion of Shares into Stock and Re conversion

It should be noted that only paid up shares can be converted into stock. If anything remains unpaid on the shares such shares cannot be converted into stock. For distinction between "share" and "stock" and the conveniences of stock see notes at pp 111 and 149.

A company cannot issue stock directly. For the form of stock certificate see Form 14 at p 102) and that of notice to the registrar on conversion of shares into stock see Form 108 at p 1037

The mode of converting shares into stock or re conversion is the same as in the case of an increase of share capital

Where the share capital has been converted into stock the provisions of the Act which are applicable to shares only will cease to apply in respect of the shares thus converted and the register of members and the list of members to be filed with the registrar must show the amount of stock held by a member without any distinctive number (see s 52)

(1) Sub division of Shares

A company may sub divide its shares or any of them into shares of smaller amount provided that in the sub division the proportion between the amount paid and the amount unpaid on each reduced share be the same as it was in the case of the share from which the reduced share is derived [s 50 (1) (1)]

In the case of sub division of shares the provision for notice to the registrar is similar to that in the case of increase of capital (see the new sub s (4) of s 50)

(e) Cancellation of Shares

A cancellation of shares made under s 50 (1) (e) is not a reduction of capital [s 50 (3)] In this way that portion of the authorized capital which has not been taken or agreed to be taken may be diminished But where the subscribed capital (whether the shares are paid up in part or whole) is sought to be reduced strong safeguards have been provided in the Act (see ss 55 to 57)

Re-organization of Share Capital

A limited company if necessary can by passing special resolution confirmed by the Court reorganize its share capital (1) by consolidating shares of different classes or (2) by dividing its shares into different classes But if the effect of such re organization is to affect the preference or special privilege of a particular class of shareholders then the company must get a resolution passed by a majority in number of shareholders of that class holding three fourths of the share capital of that class See s 51 and notes at pp 151 to 155 For an illustration of re organization see p 151 4th paragraph

A re-organization of share capital which can be done without altering the memorandum of association does not require the sanction of the Court

Variation of Shareholders' rights

The English Act of 1929 repealed s 45 of the Act of 1908 (corresponding to s 54 of the present Indian Act) and enacted s 61 regarding variation of the rights of different classes of shareholders The Companies (Amendment) Act 1936 has reproduced this section in the new s 66A, retaining at the same time s 54 So it is not improbable that in some cases the two sections may come into conflict

It has been provided by this new section that if provision is made by the memorandum or articles for authorising the variation of rights attached to any of the classes of shares subject to the consent of any specified proportion of the holders of the issued shares of that class or the sanction of a resolution passed at a separate meeting of the holders of the shares and in pursuance of the said provision the rights attached to any class of shares are varied then the holders of not less in the aggregate than 10 per cent. of the issued shares of that class being persons who did not consent to vote in favour of the resolution for the variation may apply to the Court to have the variation cancelled and where any such application is made the variation shall not have effect unless and until it is so cancelled by the Court. As regards the procedure for the making and hearing of such application see sub-s (2) and (3) of s 164.

The company must, within 15 days after service on it the order of the Court for ward a copy of the order to the registrar. For the consequence of default see sub-s (5) of s 164.

Reduction of Share Capital

The new s 51A provides that no limited company shall have power to buy its own shares or the shares of a public company of which it is a subsidiary company. But it can effect a reduction of capital by complying with the provisions of sections 55 to 65. If the power to reduce is contained in the articles it can at once proceed to pass the necessary special resolution for reduction but if not the company must first take the necessary power by altering the articles under s 20, that is, by passing "special resolution" (see s 51 and notes at pp 189-92).

Sub-s (2) of s 51A provides that no company shall give, whether directly or indirectly, and whether by means of a loan, guarantee the provision of security or otherwise, any financial assistance for the purpose of or in connection with a purchase made or to be made by any person of any shares in the company. For the consequences of contravention of these provisions see sub-s (3) of s 51A. These restrictions will not however apply to a private company not being a subsidiary company of a public company nor to the lending of money by a company in the ordinary course of its business where the lending of money is its ordinary business (see sub-s (2) of s 54A).

The company can by complying with ss 55 to 65 extinguish or reduce the liability on any of its shares not paid up. As for instance where Rs 5 only has been paid on each of the shares of Rs 10, the company can extinguish the further liability of Rs 5 per share by reducing the Rs 10 shares to Rs 5 shares.

Where capital has been lost or is unrepresented by available assets the company can cancel a portion of its paid up share capital. As for instance where the company's share capital is one lac of rupees divided into 1000 shares of Rs 100 each all paid up and has lost Rs 25,000 in its business which is not represented by any available assets it can write off that amount from its share capital and make each share one of Rs 75 fully paid up.

Where the paid up share capital is in excess of the requirements of the company it can return the excess amount to the shareholders. As for example where the capital is Rs 1,00,000 divided into 1000 shares of Rs 100 each all paid up, if the company does not require more than Rs 50,000 for its purposes it may return Rs 50 per share to the shareholders and make the shares Rs 50 each fully paid up. In such a case the capital may be returned also on the footing that it may be called up again when the company may think it necessary.

In all these cases the return should be an all round one, that is the reduction should be made in respect of each share in the same proportion. But in a proper case the Court can confirm any kind of reduction notwithstanding that it affects the rights of a particular class of shareholders. See notes to s 55 at pp 155-160.

As to the procedure see ss 56 to 65 and the High Court Rules in App H at pp 1060-62.

On and from the passing of the resolution for reduction, or where the reduction does not involve diminution of any liability in respect of unpaid share capital or the payment to any shareholder of any paid up share capital on and from the making of the order confirming the reduction, the company must add to its name the words and reduced until such date as the Court directs (s 57). As to the registration of the Court's order and minute of reduction see s 61. These should be embodied in every copy of the memorandum issued after its registration and in default the company will be liable to a penalty (s 62).

A company limited by guarantee may if it has a share capital and is so authorized by its articles, increase or reduce its share capital in the same manner (s 61).

Reserve Liability

A limited company may by special resolution determine that the uncalled portion of its capital shall not be called up except in the event and for the purposes of winding up (s 69).

Transfer of Shares

A share is a movable property transferable in manner provided by the articles of association (s 28). Shares are transferable subject only to the restrictions that may be imposed by the articles. For discussion as to the right of transfer and the directors' power to refuse registration thereof see pp 101-103. As to how transfers are effected, effects of non compliance with the rule effects of registration, forged transfers, certification and stamp duty, transfer in blank, priority of title, purchase at Court sale &c see pp 103-110 and pp 133 to 135.

Unlike a particular form is prescribed in the articles the transfer may be effected by any usual or common form (see art 18 of Table A). But it is required that the instrument of transfer is to be executed both by the transferor and the transferee [see subs (3) of the new s 34]. For forms of transfer see p 137 and Form 111 at p 1033. The instrument of transfer together with the certificate of shares transferred is sent to the company upon which the secretary gives a receipt (see Form 112 at p 1034). If all the shares mentioned in the share certificate are transferred in endorsement is generally made on the back of the share certificate to the effect that the shares are transferred to the transferee and the share certificate is returned to the latter. But where some of the shares only are transferred a balance receipt (see Form 113 at p 1010) is given and two new share certificates are prepared—one is given to the transferor for the shares retained by him and the other to the transferee for the shares transferred to him

When an instrument of transfer together with the share certificate is received in the company's office the secretary should send a notice (see Form 114 at p 1011) to the transferor to his registered address. But even this does not protect the company if the transfer is found to be forged (see p 100). So it is the duty of the secretary to compare the signature of the transferor with his admitted signature kept in the office. For this purpose specimens of signatures of all members should be called for and kept in a separate book in alphabetical order.

If the secretary does not hear from the transferor within a reasonable time or a communication admitting the transfer is received the former places the transfer before the directors or other authority prescribed in the articles for orders for registration of the transfer, and this should be recorded in the register of transfers of shares (see Form 115 at p 1011). The consequent changes in the register of members are also to be made, and a new folio should be opened in the name of the transferee.

After all this has been done the transferee's name should be endorsed on the back of the share certificate or if necessary a new share certificate or certificates should be prepared taking care that the original certificate is cancelled and destroyed. For if any one can get hold of the original certificate and he transfers the shares to a bona fide purchaser for value the company may be liable.

It is the transferee who usually makes the application for registration of the transfer but the transferor has the same right to apply for registration (see s 34 and notes at p 130).

If the company improperly refuses to register the transfer the remedy of the transferor and the transferee is to apply to the Court for rectification of the register (see s 38 and notes at pp 135-41).

New Provisions relating to Transfer of Shares

The new s 34 provides that an application for registration of the transfer of shares may be made either by the transferor or the transferee, but if the application is made by the transferor of partly paid shares no registration shall be effected unless the company gives notice of the application to the transferee. The company may of course refuse to register the transfer if empowered to do so in its articles. Unless the directors decide to exercise this power of refusal they must if no objection is made by the transferee within 2 weeks of the receipt of the aforesaid notice enter the name of the transferee in the same manner and subject to the same conditions as if the application for registration was made by the transferor.

For the manner in which the notice is to be served see sub s (2) of s 34 and as to the execution of the instrument of transfer see sub s (3).

If the company refuses to register the transfer of any shares or debentures it must within 2 months from the date on which the instrument of transfer was lodged send to the transferee as well as the transferor notice of the refusal [see sub s (4) of s 34] for the consequences of default see sub s (5)

Right of Executors and Administrators to transfer

The legal representative of a deceased member is entitled to transfer the shares standing in the name of the latter without being himself registered as a member (see s 35 and notes at pp 131-132)

Stamp

For stamp on an instrument of transfer see App I

Transmission of Shares

In regulation 21 of Table A it is provided that the executors or administrators of a deceased sole holder of a share shall be the only persons recognised by the company and in the case of a share registered in the names of two or more holders the survivors or survivor or the executors or administrators of the deceased survivor shall be the only persons recognised.

This form of article is hardly suitable to this country for the following reasons: first in the case of small holdings which is usual in a poor country like India it is a great hardship to go to the expenses of letters of administration; secondly letters of administration are not granted in the case of a member of a joint Mitakshara family; thirdly where any property is held by two or more persons other than the members of a Mitakshara jointly family either originally or by succession as heirs, it generally descends, in case of death to the heirs of the deceased and not to the survivor. So a different rule in the case of shares in companies can be devised. These were pointed out by Judges (see p 640) and also in representations to the Government. Still the authorities responsible for the new amending Act did not think the matter worthy of consideration. The words "or holders of a succession certificate" after the word administrators would have mitigated the hardship to some extent.

In the case of a member's death the articles usually provide as to who will be recognised by the company as having title to the shares (see arts 21 to 23 of Table A and notes at pp 139-141). Where it is provided that the executors or administrators of a member shall be the only persons recognised by the company they may either get themselves registered as members on production to the company of the probate or letters of administration (for form of application in such a case see Form 11b at p 101) or they may transfer the shares to somebody else under the provisions of s 35. As to the rights of the legal representatives see notes at pp 131-132.

The company should keep a book for noting the contents of the probate or letters of administration and decrees of the Court directing the rectification of register of members under s 34 or declaring the title of a particular person or persons to particular shares. Powers of attorneys sent to the company for noting their contents may also be noted in this book.

As to the rights of an insolvent member's trustee see arts 22 and 23 of Table A and notes at p 641.

INTRODUCTION

Shares or stock registered in the name of a lunatic can be transferred only under order made in lunacy by the person named in the order (see notes at p 11)

Share-warrants to Bearer.

A company limited by shares if so authorized by the articles, may issue share warrants to bearers with respect to any fully paid up share or to any unpaid share coupons or otherwise for the payment of dividend (see Form 100 at p 1030) The advantages of a share warrant are that it entitles the bearer to the shares or stock therein specified and they are transferable by delivery (ss 43 and 44) s 44 does not apply to a private company [see the new sub-s (2)]

On the issue of a share warrant the company should strike out of the register of members the name of the member and enter instead the particulars mentioned in s 47, otherwise the company will incur the penalty provided in cl (2) of s 47 Upon the surrender of the share warrant for cancellation the date of the surrender should be entered in the register of members (s 48) and the bearer thereof will subject to the articles be entitled to have his name entered as a member in the register of members (s 45) If the company enters in the register the name of a bearer of share warrant without the same being surrendered and cancelled it will be responsible for any loss incurred by any person for thus entering the name of the bearer

Borrowing.

In order to carry out the objects of a company it is sometimes necessary for it to borrow money In the case of a trading or a banking company the power to borrow money is implied (see notes at pp 55 56 and 304 305) but in other cases the power should be taken in the memorandum or in the articles of association Where power is given by the articles of association to raise money on the security of the company's uncalled share capital, and there is nothing in the memorandum to the contrary, the uncalled share capital may be effectually charged [Newton v Debenture Holders of Anglo Australian & Co (1893) A C 244 P C] Where there is a power to borrow, the company can give security for the money is incidental to the power of borrowing and create a mortgage or charge on any property or undertaking of the company

Mortgage and Charge

Where a company creates a mortgage or charge (a) for securing any issue of debentures, (b) on its uncalled share capital (c) on any immovable property or interest therein, (d) on any book debts (e) a mortgage or charge not being a pledge on any movable property except stock in trade, or (f) a floating charge on the undertaking or property of the company, every such mortgage or charge so far as the security is concerned, shall be void against the liquidator and any creditor of the company, unless the prescribed particulars (see Form 1X, p 766) of the mortgage or charge together with the instrument or a copy thereof verified in the prescribed manner (see p 767) are filed with the registrar for registration within 21 days of the creation thereof (see s 109) S 10⁹ should be read carefully and for the meaning of the expressions used therein, e.g., 'debenture', 'charge,' 'fixed', 'specific' and 'floating' charges 'undertaking' &c and for general commentary on the section see pp 298 305

Where any mortgage or charge on any property has been so registered any person acquiring such property or any part thereof, or any share or interest therein, will be deemed to have notice of the said mortgage or charge as from the date of such registration [see the new sub s (2) of s 10¹]

The above and prescribed particulars should be filed with the registrar within 21 days as mentioned above. As to the fees for filing the same see p 78. The registrar will enter the particulars in the register kept in Form XII (see p 710). After making the entry the registrar will return the instrument or the verified copy as the case may be. As to the fees for registration see p 75. The register is open to inspection on payment of a fee in accordance with Re 1 for each inspection (see s 112). The registrar will also give a certificate of registration stating the amount secured and it will be conclusive evidence of compliance with ss 10¹ to 112 (s 114).

The new s 10^{1A} provides that where after 15th January, 1937 a company registered in British India acquires any property which is subject to a charge of any kind as mentioned in s 10⁹ the company shall cause the prescribed particulars (see Form XXII at p 782) of the charge together with a copy [certified in the prescribed manner (see p 755)] of the instrument if any by which the charge was created or evidenced to be delivered to the registrar for registration within 21 days after the date on which the acquisition is completed or in case the property is situate and the charge was created outside British India within 21 days after the date on which the copy of the instrument could have been received in due course of post. For the consequence of default see sub s (2) of s 10^{9A}.

The registration of the above and particulars may also be effected on the application of any person interested therein and in such case he will be entitled to recover from the company the fees properly paid by him for registration (s 114).

Whenever the terms, conditions, extent or operation of any mortgage or charge so registered are modified the company must send to the registrar the particulars of such modification for registration [see the new sub s (3) of s 110] and such registration may also be effected on the application of any person interested therein (ibid).

A copy of every instrument creating a mortgage or charge requiring registration under s 10⁹ should be kept at the registered office of the company. But in the case of a series of uniform debentures a copy of one such debenture will be sufficient (s 117).

Where there is an omission to register a mortgage or charge within 21 days as provided in s 10⁹ or there are omission or misstatement of any necessary particular or omission to give intimation to the registrar of the payment or satisfaction of a debt for which a charge or a mortgage was created due to accident, inadvertence or some other sufficient cause, the Court may, on the application of the company or any interested person, extend the time for registration or order the omission or misstatement to be rectified (s 120) Where the Court extends the time the order will not prejudice any rights acquired before the actual registration (s 120)

The new s 121 provides that a company must give intimation to the registrar of the payment or satisfaction of any mortgage or charge requiring registration under s 101 within 21 days from the date of payment or satisfaction. On receipt of this intimation the registrar will cause notice to be sent to the mortgagee calling upon him to show cause within a time (not exceeding 14 days) to be fixed by such notice why the payment or satisfaction should not be recorded and if no cause is shown the registrar will order that a memorandum of satisfaction be entered on the register and if required will furnish the company with a copy thereof. If cause is shown the registrar will record a note to that effect in the register, and will inform the company that he has done so.

As to the consequences for default in complying with any of the above provisions see the amended s 122

Every limited company should also keep a register of mortgages and floating charges (s 123 (1)) and for this purpose Form VII at p 770 may be used with necessary modifications. For penalty for omission to keep such a register and to enter therein the required particulars see s 123 (2)

The copies of the instruments of mortgages and charges and the register of mortgages kept at the registered office of a company under ss 117 and 123 respectively are open to inspection of any creditor or member of the company without fee, and the register of mortgages is open to inspection of any other person on payment of a fee not exceeding one rupee for each inspection as the company may prescribe (see s 124). As to the penalty for default see sub s (2) of s 124

Debentures

For the purpose of borrowing money or in payment of property purchased or for securing the repayment of money borrowed a company usually issues debentures or debenture stock. For the meaning of these expressions see pp 33 34 and 248. As to the form of debenture see Form 140 at p 1053

Debentures may be for a fixed term of years or repayable on notice or irredeemable (see s 126 and notes at pp 320 21). They can also be framed as payable to bearer (see notes at pp 33 34)

Debentures may or may not give security on the company's assets but generally mortgage debentures are issued creating a fixed charge on some or all the properties of the company or a floating charge on all the properties and assets of the company present and future. As to the distinction between a fixed and a floating charge see notes at pp 33 34 and pp 248 49

Debentures or debenture stock are sometimes secured by a trust deed conveying the company's property to trustees for the debenture holders charging other property and containing provisions regulating the rights of the company and the debenture holders. The advantages of a trust deed are (1) that a legal estate is vested in the trustees (2) that they can look after the interests of all the debenture holders for whom it is sometimes difficult to take common actions to protect their interests (3) the trustees can sell the property secured and (4) they can, if so empowered in the deed appoint receivers to carry on the business

Debentures are offered to the public for subscription by means of prospectus in the same way as shares. For form of a skeleton prospectus see Form 136 at p 1050, for form of application see Form 137 at p 1051, and for form of the letter of allotment see Form 138 at p 1052

Debentures to lenders may be transferred by delivery, but ordinary transfer is made by an instrument in writing as in the case of shares (see Form 139 at p 1053)

Where a series of debentures containing any charge to the benefit of which the debenture holders of that series are entitled pari passu is created by a company it will be sufficient for the purposes of s 109 if there is filed with the registrar the particulars (see Form A, p 767) mentioned in s 110 within 21 days after the execution of the deed containing the charge or, if there is no such deed after the execution of any debentures of the series together with the deed or a copy thereof verified in the prescribed manner (see pp 758-59) or one of the series of debentures. As to the fees for registration see p 758. Where more than one issue is made of debentures in the series particulars of the date and amount of each issue are to be filed with the registrar (s 110). See Form VI at p 768

Where any commission allowance or discount is paid or made directly or indirectly in connection with the issue of any debentures the particulars required to be filed for registration under ss 109 and 110 should include particulars as to the amount or rate per cent of such commissions &c (s 111). The company should also cause a copy of every certificate of registration given by the registrar under s 114 to be endorsed on every debenture or certificate of debenture stock issued by the company and secured by the mortgage or charge so registered (s 115)

A company should keep a register of debenture holders (see Form 103 at p 1044) which will except when closed (not exceeding 30 days in a year) be open to the inspection of the registered holder of any such debentures and of every shareholder and they may require a copy of the register or any part thereof on payment of 6s for every 100 words or fractional part thereof [s 125 (1)]. Similarly every debenture holder may get a copy of any trust deed for securing any issue of debentures on payment of one rupee in the case of a printed trust deed and in any other case on payment of 1s for every 100 words or fractional part thereof [s 125 (2)]. For penalty for refusal of inspection or copy see s 125 (3)

As to a company's power to re-issue redeemed debentures see s 127

A contract for taking debentures may be enforced by a decree for specific performance

Stamp

As to the stamp duty on debentures and transfer of debentures see App I

Interest

When interest on a debenture is paid income tax is deducted by the company and a certificate under s 18 (9) of the Income Tax Act, 1922 is granted to the debenture holder For form of such a certificate see Form 122 at p 1015

Receivers

In a suit by a secured creditor the Court may appoint a receiver when it appears that the security is in danger or jeopardy (see p 125) A receiver may also be appointed by the debenture holders under the powers contained in the debenture In the latter case the power is fiduciary and must be exercised for the benefit of the debenture holders generally As to the appointment position, powers and liability of a receiver see sub s 11 12

When an order is obtained from the Court for the appointment of a receiver of the property of a company, or a receiver is appointed under the powers contained in an instrument he must within 15 days from the date of the order or appointment file notice of the fact with the registrar s 118 For form of such notice see Form XIII at p 771 As to the fee for registration of the appointment see pp 758 and 751 For penalty for omission to file the aforesaid notice see s 118 (2)

In the case of a receiver appointed under the powers contained in an instrument and where he has taken possession of the company's property, he must file half yearly accounts with the registrar so long as he remains in possession (see Form XIV at p 771) and must also file on ceasing to act as receiver a notice to that effect (see Form XV at p 772) with the registrar The new sub s (2) of s 11 provides that where a receiver has been appointed of a company's property every invoice or order for goods, or business letter issued by or on behalf of the company or the receiver of the company being a document on or in which the company's name appears must contain a statement that a receiver has been appointed As to the penalty for default in complying with any of the above provisions see sub s (3) of s 11

Where a receiver is appointed on behalf of the debenture holders or possession is taken by or on behalf of those debenture holders of any property of the company then if the company is not at the time in course of being wound up the debts mentioned in s 230 must be paid forthwith out of the assets coming to the hands of the receiver or other person taking possession in priority to any claim for principal or interest in respect of the debentures (see s 121)

Statutory Meeting

A company other than a private company must, within a period of not less than 1 month nor more than 6 months from the date at which it is entitled to commence business (see s 103) hold a general meeting of the shareholders which is called the statutory meeting (see the new s 77) For notice convening the meeting see Form 104 at p 1035 and it should be remembered that the notice must state that it is to be the statutory meeting

At least 21 days before the meeting the directors should forward the statutory report to every member of the company and other persons entitled to receive it The report should be in Form XXIV given at p 778 and it must be certified by not less than 2 directors or by the chairman of the directors if authorised by the directors. The shares allotted the cash received in respect of such shares and the receipts and payments shown in the report must be signed by the auditors of the company. A copy of the statutory report certified by the directors as aforesaid is to be filed with the registrar forthwith after sending it to the members. For the consequences of default see sub-s (10) of s 71.

The members present at the statutory meeting are entitled to discuss any matter relating to the formation of the company or arising out of the statutory report but if a resolution is desired to be passed previous notice thereof must be given in accordance with the articles. The meeting may be adjourned from time to time and notice of a resolution may be given in accordance with the articles after the original meeting and before the adjourned meeting which has all the powers of the original meeting [s 71 (8)]. For minutes of a statutory meeting see Form 105 at p 1035.

If default is made in filing the statutory report or in holding the statutory meeting the company may be ordered to be wound up by the Court [112 (u)]. But if a petition is presented to the Court for winding up the company on this ground the Court may instead of directing a winding up give directions for the statutory report to be filed or the statutory meeting to be held or make such other order as may be just [71 (c)].

Ordinary General Meeting

A general meeting shall be held within 15 months from the date of incorporation of the company and thereafter once at least in every calendar year and not more than 15 months after the holding of the last preceding general meeting (see the new s 76). For the consequences of default see sub-s (2) of s 71. In case of default the Court may, on the application of any member call or direct the calling of a general meeting [sub-s () of s 76].

At such an annual meeting reports of the directors regarding the working of the company are submitted accounts and balance sheets with profit and loss accounts with the auditors report thereon are presented dividends are declared and directors and auditors are elected. These are called ordinary general meetings and all other general meetings whether called for any special purpose by the directors or by the members under the provisions of s 75 are called extraordinary general meetings.

Regulations are almost always made in the articles as to the proceedings at general meetings notice of the meeting its chairman adjournment votes of members proxies taking of polls quorum and other necessary matters. But the provisions of clauses (a) to (e) of sub (1) of the new s 79 will have effect in any other than a private company and the provisions of clauses (a) to (g) of sub-s (2) of s 79 will have effect in so far as the articles do not make other provisions in that behalf. The above provisions should be carefully read and in framing articles of a company care should be taken that the provisions of sub-s (1) of s 79 are incorporated therein.

INTRODUCTION

In sub s (3) of s 79 power has been given to the Court to order a meeting of the company to be called held and conducted in such manner as the Court thinks fit if for any reason it is impracticable to call a meeting of the company in any manner prescribed by the articles or the Act. So it appears that the Court is not bound in this respect to follow the provisions of the articles or even of the Act regarding the calling holding or conducting a general meeting of the company.

As to the notice calling an ordinary general meeting see Form 117 at p 1042. The notice is generally printed together with the directors' report balance sheet and profit and loss account with the auditors' certificate thereon and is to be sent to the members 14 days before the meeting.

Notice of an ordinary general Meeting should be given to the auditors who are entitled to receive the same and to attend any general meeting at which any accounts examined and reported on by them are to be laid before the company and they may make any statement or explanation they desire with respect to the accounts [see the new sub s (4) of s 143].

Balance sheet and Reports of Directors and Auditors

The directors of every company must at some date not later than 15 months after the incorporation of the company and subsequently once at least in every calendar year lay before the company in general meeting a balance sheet and profit and loss account or in the case of a company not trading for profit an income and expenditure account for the period in the case of the first account since the incorporation of the company and in any other case since the preceding account made up to a date not earlier than the date of the meeting by more than 9 months or in the case of a company carrying on business or having interest outside British India by more than 12 months. The registrar may for special reason extend the period by a period not exceeding 3 months [see the new sub s (1) of s 131].

The balance sheet and the profit and loss account will have to be audited by the auditor of the company and his report attached thereto or a reference to the report made at the foot thereof. The secretary must read the auditors' report at the meeting and it will be open to inspection by the members [s 131 (2)].

Every company except a private company, must send a copy of the balance sheet &c as audited to the registered address of every member at least 14 days before the meeting at which it is to be laid before the members. A copy of the balance sheet should also be kept at the registered office of the company for inspection of the members during the 14 days before the meeting [s 131 (3)]. As to the penalty for default see s 131 (3). The balance sheet should be in the new Form F in the Third Schedule (see pp 776-740) or as near thereto as circumstances admit (s 132). As to what the profit & loss account should contain see the new sub s (2) of s 132. As to the persons who should sign the balance sheet see s 133 and as to the consequence of its not being signed in accordance with that section see sub s (3) thereof.

The new s 131A lays down what has hitherto been the practice, that the directors shall make out and attach to every balance sheet their report regarding the state of the company's affairs the amount, if any, which they recommend to be paid as dividend and the amount, if any, they propose to carry to the Reserve Fund &c shown specifically on the balance sheet or to the Reserve Fund &c to be shown specifically in a subsequent balance sheet.

The new s 132A requires the holding Company to include particulars as to its subsidiary companies. For details in this respect read carefully s 132A and s 2 (2).

The new sub s (5) of s 133 provides penalty for default in complying with the provisions of ss 131 132 132A and 133.

After the balance sheet and profit and loss account has been laid before the company at the general meeting a copy thereof signed by the manager or secretary is to be filed with the registrar at the same time as the copy of the annual list of members and summary prepared under s 32 (see s 134). For the consequences of default see sub s (4) of s 134.

A private company is not required to send to the registrar a copy of the balance sheet [sub s (5) of s 134].

Any member is entitled to be furnished with copies of the balance sheet and the profit and loss account or the income and expenditure account and the auditor's report at a charge not exceeding 6s for every 100 words or fractional part thereof.

Holders of preference shares and debentures of a company have the same right to receive and inspect its balance sheets and the directors' and auditor's reports as is possessed by the holders of ordinary shares. This provision does not apply to a private company, nor to a company registered after 1st April 1914 (s 146) but applies to the trustees for holders of debentures of a public company whether registered before or after the said date [sub s (2) or s 146].

Dividend and Reserve

A company declares dividends in the ordinary general meetings but the directors may pay such interim dividends as appear to them to be justified by the profits if the articles so provide (see Art 94 Table A).

No dividend can be paid out of capital and if the directors make such payment they may be personally liable. Art 97 of Table A provides that a dividend shall be paid otherwise than out of profits of the year or any other undistributed profits. It is sometimes very difficult to say what are profits. As to a general discussion on this point see the rather elaborate note given at pp 63-67.

Art 98 of Table A provides that subject to the rights of members with special rights as to dividends all dividends are to be paid according to the amounts paid on the shares. In the absence of such a provision in the articles no member is entitled to dividend in proportion to their shares and not in proportion to the amounts paid thereon (see notes at pp 702-703). As to who is entitled to the dividends and the rights of preference share holders and others see notes at pp 703-704.

After declaration of a dividend a notice and warrant is sent to each shareholder entitled to dividend. For form of such notice and warrant see Form 130 at p 1014.

INTRODUCTION

In calculating dividend income tax is deducted by the company from the amount due to each shareholder and a certificate of such deduction is given in the warrant itself. For form of such a dividend warrant with income tax certificate see Form 121 at pp 1014-15. As the income tax is deducted at a certain rate in accordance with the Income Tax Act the shareholder on production of the income tax certificate attached to his dividend warrant may get a refund from the income tax authorities if according to his income he is liable to pay income tax at a lower rate. For detailed information in this respect see App 1.

Directors are not bound to distribute the whole profits of a year as dividends. The articles generally provide, as in Table A (see art 95 which has been now made compulsory) that no dividend shall exceed the amount recommended by the directors and that they may set apart certain amount as a reserve or reserves for particular purposes (see art 99 and notes thereto). Unless a sufficient reserve fund is built in this way the company is sure to come to grief in a succession of bad years or in the event of an unforeseen calamity.

A company may, if so authorised in the articles capitalize its profits kept in a reserve or any other account and issue fully paid up shares or debentures to the members entitled to the same. For a detailed discussion see pp 691-92.

Proceedings of Ordinary General Meetings

Before the time of the meeting the secretary should have ready on the table typed agenda papers with spaces for the chairman's or the secretary's notes (see Form 115 at p 1042) the original directors' report, balance sheet and the auditor's report and a sufficient number of printed copies thereof, the register of members, minute book of general meetings, index of members' addresses and specimen signatures (of members) book and proxies received with the date and time noted thereon. As each member enters the room his signature should be taken in a book kept for the purpose.

After election of the chairman or, if no election is necessary under the articles, after he has taken the chair, the chairman will conduct the proceedings in accordance with the articles and proceed with the items on the agenda paper, the secretary taking notes of the proceedings.

As to the form of the minutes of an ordinary general meeting see Form 119 at p 1011, that of a demand for poll see Form 128 at p 1018 and that of a list of members &c in the matter of taking poll see form 129 at p 1019.

Summary of Share-capital and List of Members

Every company having a share capital must, within 15 months from its incorporation and thereafter once at least in every year, make a list and summary in accordance with s 32 (see Form F at p 733) and complete it within 21 days after the day of the first or only general meeting in the year. This list and summary should be contained in a separate part of the register of members and a copy regarding the state of the company's affairs, the amount, if any, which they recommend to be paid as dividend and the amount, if any, they propose to carry to the Reserve Fund &c shown specifically on the balance sheet or to a Reserve Fund &c to be shown specifically in a subsequent balance sheet.

The new s 133(3) provides penalty for default in complying with the provisions of ss 131 132 132A and 133.

After the balance sheet and profit and loss account has been laid before the company at the general meeting a copy thereof signed by the manager or secretary is to be filed with the registrar at the same time as the copy of the annual list of members and summary prepared under s 32 (see s 134). For the consequences of default see sub s (4) of s 134.

Any member is entitled to be furnished with copies of the balance sheet and the profit and loss account or the income and expenditure account and the auditor's report at a charge not exceeding 6s for every 100 words or fractional part thereof.

Holder of preference shares and debentures of a company have the same right to receive and inspect its balance sheets and the directors' and auditors' reports as is possessed by the holders of ordinary shares. This provision does not apply to a private company, nor to a company registered before 1st April 1914 (s 141) but applies to the trustees for holders of debentures of a public company whether registered before or after the said date (sub s (2) or s 146).

A company declares dividends in the ordinary general meetings but the directors may pay such interim dividends as appear to them to be justified by the profits if the articles so provide (see art 96 table A).

No dividend can be paid out of capital and if the directors make such payment they may be personally liable. Art 97 of table A provides that no dividend shall be paid otherwise than out of profits of the year or any other undistributed profits. It is sometimes very difficult to say what are profits. As to a general discussion on this point see the rather elaborate notes given at pp 693-97.

Art 98 of table A provides that subject to the rights of members with special rights as to dividends all dividends are to be paid according to the amounts paid on the shares. In the absence of such a provision in the articles members are entitled to dividend in proportion to their shares and not in proportion to the amounts paid thereon (see notes at pp 702-703). As to who are entitled to the dividends and the rights of preference shareholders and others see notes at pp 703-704.

After declaration of a dividend a notice and warrant is sent to each shareholder entitled to dividend. For form of such notice and warrant see Form 130 at p 1014.

INTRODUCTION

In calculating dividend income tax is deducted by the company from the amount due to each shareholder and a certificate of such deduction is given in the warrant itself. For form of such a dividend warrant with income tax certificate see Form 121 at pp 1044-45. As the income tax is deducted at a certain rate in accordance with the Income Tax Act, the shareholder on production of the income tax certificate attached to his dividend warrant may get a refund from the income tax authorities if according to his income he is liable to pay income tax at a lower rate. For detailed information in this respect see App. I.

Directors are not bound to distribute the whole profits of a year as dividends. The articles generally provide as in Table A (see art. 95 which has been now made compulsory) that no dividend shall exceed the amount recommended by the directors and that they may set apart certain amount as a reserve or reserves for particular purposes (see art. 99 and notes thereon). Unless a sufficient reserve fund is built in this way the company is sure to come to grief in a succession of bad years or in the event of an unforeseen calamity.

A company may if so authorised in the articles capitalize its profits left in a reserve or any other account and issue fully paid up shares or debentures to the members entitled to the same. For a detailed discussion see pp. 191-92.

Proceedings of Ordinary General Meetings

Before the time of the meeting the secretary should have ready on the table typed agenda papers with spaces for the chairman's or the secretary's notes (see Form 115 at p 1042), the original directors' report, balance sheet and the auditors' report and a sufficient number of printed copies thereof, the register of members, minute book of general meetings, index of members' addresses and specimen signatures (of members) to be used and proxies received with the date and time noted thereon. As each member enters the room his signature should be taken on in a book kept for the purpose.

After election of the chairman or, if no election is necessary under the articles after he has taken the chair, the chairman will conduct the proceedings in accordance with the articles and proceed with the items on the agenda paper, the secretary taking notes of the proceedings.

As to the form of the minutes of an ordinary general meeting see Form 119 at p 1043, that of a dividend for poll see Form 128 at p 1046 and that of a list of members &c in the matter of taking poll see Form 129 at p 1049.

Summary of Share Capital and List of Members

Every company having a share capital must within 18 months from its incorporation and thereafter once at least in every year, make a list and summary in accordance with s. 32 (see Form F at p 733) and complete it within 21 days after the day of the first or only general meeting in the year. This list and summary should be contained in a separate part of the register of members and a copy thereof signed by a director, manager or secretary with his certificate (see sub-section 4) shall be immediately filed with the registrar (see the amendment 1914 as to the penalty for default see s. 2 (5)). At the same time a copy of the balance sheet laid before the general meeting signed by the manager or secretary should be filed with the registrar. If the general meeting did not adopt the balance-sheet a statement of the reasons and if the reasons therefor should be annexed to the balance sheet and to the copy thereof required to be filed with the registrar (s. 134). For consequence of default see s. 134 (4).

A private company is not required to file with the registrar a copy of its balance-sheet, but it must file the list and summary as provided by s. 134 as well as the certificate required under the new sub-section (4) of s. 2 (1) for the leading private company (s. 134).

Extraordinary General Meeting

Where a special business requires it the directors may call an extraordinary general meeting. Where it is necessary to pass an 'extraordinary resolution' or a special resolution (see s. 41) an extraordinary general meeting must be called. As to the notice of such a meeting see Form 134 at p. 1047.

Where a considerable number of members dissatisfied with the management of the company or for any other valid reason desire that an extraordinary general meeting should be called a requisition signed by the holders of not less than one-tenth of the issued share capital of the company upon which all calls or other sums due have been paid may be served upon the directors (for form of the requisition see Form 130 at p. 1047) who should immediately proceed to call an extraordinary general meeting. The requisition should state the object of the meeting and may consist of several documents in like form each signed by one or more requisitionists and deposited at the registered office of the company. If the directors do not cause the meeting to be called within 21 days from the date of deposit of the requisition the requisitionists or a majority of them in value may themselves call the meeting but in either case the meeting so called should be held within 3 months from the date of deposit of the requisition. If a special resolution is sought to be passed, the intention to propose the resolution must be given (see the new sub-section (2) of s. 81).

Any meeting called by the requisitionists should be called in pursuance of the requisition and the meeting should be held in pursuance of the requisition. The proceedings of the meeting should be in accordance with the provisions in the articles.

The new sub-section (5) of s. 78 provides that any reasonable expenses incurred by the requisitionists by reason of the failure of the directors to convene a meeting shall be repaid to the requisitionists by the company and any sums so repaid shall be returned by the company out of any sums due or to become due from the company by way of fees or other remuneration to such of the directors as were in default. This provision is obligatory on the directors who may be inclined to ignore the requisition.

Extraordinary Resolution and Special Resolution.

For definitions of extraordinary and special resolutions see s 81. It should be noted that for the purpose of passing an extraordinary resolution the notice calling the general meeting should specify the intention to propose the resolution as an extraordinary resolution. As to the form of such notice see Forms 125 (p 1047) and 142 (p 1055). The resolution must be passed by a majority of not less than three-fourths of such members entitled to vote as are present at the meeting in person or by proxy (where proxies are allowed). As to the members who are entitled to vote the provisions in this respect in the articles are to be looked into. Proxies cannot vote unless the articles allow them and then only on the conditions laid down there. As for instance the articles generally provide that none but members of the company can be proxies or the proxy papers must be lodged at the company's office 72 hours before the meeting [see regulation 66 of Table A which has been made compulsory under the amended sub-s (2) of s 17]. As to the form of an extraordinary resolution see Form 132 at p 1049.

A special resolution is passed in manner required for the passing of an extraordinary resolution at a general meeting of which at least 21 days' notice has been given specifying the intention to propose the resolution as a special resolution. As to the form of notice of the meeting see Form 143 at p 1056.

At any such meeting a declaration of the chairman on a show of hands that the resolution is carried will, unless a poll is demanded, be conclusive evidence of the fact. But a poll may be demanded by 5 persons entitled according to the articles, to vote [see the new s 79 (1) (c)]. The poll is to be taken by the chairman in accordance with the articles and in computing the majority on the poll reference is to be made to the number of votes to which each member is entitled according to the articles. Notices of the meetings are to be given and the proceedings conducted in manner provided by the articles. For other necessary informations see notes at pp 189-92.

As to where extraordinary resolutions and where special resolutions are necessary see p 189.

For forms of proxy, demand for poll and list of members in the matter of taking a poll see Forms 127 (p 1046), 128 (p 1048), and 129 (p 1049) respectively.

As to the form of a special resolution see Form 133 at p 1050, and a specimen of such a resolution is given in Form 134 at the same page.

In the case of an incorporated company it is not necessary that for voting on its behalf at a meeting of another company a proxy or power of attorney is to be given. It is sufficient if the former by resolution of its directors authorize any person to act as its representative at any meeting of the latter company (s 80).

A printed or type-written copy of an extraordinary or a special resolution duly certified under the signature of an officer of the company is to be filed with the registrar within 15 days from the passing of the same [see the amended sub-s (1) of s 82]. See Form 135 at p 1051.

INTRODUCTION

Where articles have been registered a copy of special resolution for the time being in force must be embodied in or annexed to every copy of the articles issued after the date of the resolution. Where articles have not been registered copies of every special resolution must be sent in print to any member at his request on payment of one rupee or such less sum as the company may direct [see s 82 (2) & (3)]. For default in complying with the provisions the company and its officers will be liable to the penalties provided in s 82 (4) (i) and (b).

Minute Books

All companies must keep in separate books minutes of the proceedings of general meetings and board meetings and every such minute shall be signed by the chairman of the meeting or of the next meeting. If this is done then a presumption arises as to the validity of calling, holding and proceedings of the meeting including all appointments of directors or liquidators [see sub s (1) to (3) of s 83].

The new sub s (4) and (5) of s 83 provide that the minute book of a general meeting held after 15th January 1937 shall be kept at the registered office of the company and shall during business hours be open to inspection of any member without charge and that any member shall at any time after 7 days from the meeting be entitled to be furnished within 7 days of his request with a copy of the minutes at a charge, not exceeding 1s for every 100 words. For the penalty for not allowing such inspection or furnishing such copy see the new sub s (6) of s 83, and the Court may by order compel an immediate inspection by or direct that the copy be sent to the member [see sub s (7) of s 83].

Audit

The first auditor of a company may be appointed by the directors before the statutory meeting and if so appointed will hold office until the first annual general meeting unless previously removed by a resolution of the members in general meeting in which case such members at that meeting may appoint auditors [s 144 (7)]. The directors may fill any casual vacancy in the office of auditor, but while any such vacancy continues the surviving or continuing auditor or auditors (if any) may act. The directors may also fix the remuneration of the auditors thus appointed by them. In any other case the remuneration is to be fixed by the company in general meeting [s 144 (8) & (9)].

As mentioned above every company must at each annual general meeting appoint an auditor or auditors to hold office until the next annual general meeting. But a person other than a retiring auditor cannot be appointed auditor at an annual general meeting unless notice of an intention to nominate him has been given by a member of the company to the company not less than 14 days before such annual general meeting, and the company is to send a copy of such notice to the retiring auditor, and to give notice thereof to the members by advertisement or any other mode well before the article not less than 7 days before the annual general meeting [see s 144 sub-s (6) and proviso thereto]. An appointment of auditor made in contravention of these provisions is illegal. As the appointment is to be made at each annual general meeting [sub s (3) of s 144] and if an illegal appointment is made thereat, the appointment of fresh auditors will have to be made by the Local Government under sub s (1)

No person can be appointed or act as auditor of any company other than a private company unless he holds a certificate from the Governor General in Council as provided by section 144 (read that section and notes at pp 345-47)

If the appointment of an auditor is not made at an annual general meeting, the Local Government may on the application of any member of the company appoint an auditor for the current year and fix his remuneration to be paid by the company [see s 144 (4)]

In any case a director or officer of the company, a partner of such director or officer and person indebted to the company and except in the case of a private company not being a subsidiary company of a public company any person in the employment of a director or officer cannot be appointed auditor. If any auditor becomes indebted to the company his appointment will thereupon be terminated [see the amended sub s (5) of s 144]

As to the appointment of an auditor the position of a private company not being the subsidiary company of a public company is materially different from that of a public company. It seems that a private company can appoint any person as auditor whether he holds a certificate from the Governor General in Council or not except a director or officer of the company or a partner of such director or officer. But there is no bar to the appointment of any person in the employment of such director or officer [see sub s (1) of s 144]

As to the powers and duties of auditors what their reports and certificates should contain and whether they are officers of the company or not &c &c see s 145 and notes at pp 345-51

For the purposes of ss 235-236 and 237 of the Act the word 'officer' includes an auditor. Consequently an auditor may be liable for misfeasance mentioned in s 235 (see notes at p 559). He may be liable to heavy punishment, if he destroys mutilates alters or falsifies or fraudulently secretes any books papers or securities or makes or is privy to the making of any false or fraudulent entry in any register book of account or document of the company with intent to defraud or deceive any person. As to s 237 see under the next heading

New provisions relating to auditors

Sub s (4) of the new s 77 provides that the statutory report shall so far as relates to the shares allotted by the company, and to the cash received in respect of such shares and to the receipts and payments of the company be certified as correct by the auditors

The new s 86C provides that any provision made in the articles or a contract for indemnifying any person employed as an auditor by the company against any liability which by virtue of any rule of law would otherwise attach to him in respect of any negligence &c shall be void. But the company may indemnify him against any liability incurred by him in defending any civil or criminal proceedings in which he is

is given in his favour or in which he is acquitted or if any relief is granted to him under s 281 [see proviso (a) to s 86C]

Where a prospectus is issued by a company which has been carrying on business prior to the issue thereof the prospectus must set out a report by the auditors with respect to the profits &c of the company (including its subsidiary company, if any) mentioned in cl (i) of the new sub s (1A) of s 93

The new s 141A provides that if upon the report of inspectors appointed under s 138 prosecutions are instituted against a person or persons it will be the duty of the auditors of the company, past and present (other than the accused) to give to the Advocate General or the Public Prosecutor all assistance in connection with the prosecutions [see sub ss (2) & (3) of s 141A]

As to the obligation of the auditors regarding the balance sheet and the profit and loss account see s 145. The amended sub s (2) thereof requires that their report must state the following additional particulars (1) whether or not in their opinion the balance sheet and the profit and loss account are drawn up in conformity with the law (2) whether in their opinion books of account have been kept by the company as required by s 130

The new sub s (2A) provides that where any of the matters referred to in sub s (2) is answered in the negative or with a qualification, the report shall state the reason for such answer

The new sub s (4) provides that the auditors shall be entitled to receive notice of and attend any general meeting of the company at which any accounts examined or reported on by them are to be laid and they may make any statement or explanation they desire with respect to the accounts

The new sub s (5) lays down the penalty if the auditor's report does not comply with the requirements of s 145

In a voluntary winding up the declaration of solvency mentioned in sub s (1) of the new s 207 must be supported by a report of the company's auditors [see sub s (2) of s 207]

The new s 237 has made detailed provisions for instituting criminal proceedings against directors, managers or other officers of a company if it appears to the Court or the Registrar in the course of a winding up of the company that any such person or persons have been guilty of any offence in relation to the company for which he is criminally liable. In such proceedings it shall be the duty of the auditor (if he is not an accused person) present to give the Advocate General or the Public Prosecutor all assistance in connection with the prosecution [see sub ss (1) (2) (3) (4) and (7) of s 237]

Under the new s 251 the Court has power to give relief to persons employed as auditors of a company if in any proceeding for negligence or fault &c, it appears to the Court that the auditors acted honestly and reasonably

Registrar of Companies

Under s 6 of the memorandum of association of a company must state the province in which its registered office is to be situated. The company must be registered at an office established by the Local Government in that province under s 248

INTRODUCTION

Any person may inspect the documents kept by the registrar on payment of such fees as may be fixed by the Local Government not exceeding one rupee for each inspection and any person may get a certificate of incorporation of any company or a certified copy or extract of any other document or any part thereof on payment of such fees as may be fixed by the Local Government not exceeding Rs 1 for a certificate of incorporation and not exceeding Rs 1 for every 100 words or part thereof required to be copied (s 248)

For fees to be paid to the registrar see pp 711-13 p 758 and p 764

Investigation by the Registrar

On receipt of any document submitted to him under the Act if the registrar is of opinion that any further information or explanation is necessary he may call for the same and all persons who are or have been officers or liquidators of the company are bound to give information or explanation on pain of a fine not exceeding Rs 200 for each offence and the Court may on the application of the registrar and upon notice to the company make an order on the company for production of such documents as in its opinion may require to be required by the registrar for his investigation and allow the company to inspect them on such terms and conditions as it thinks fit. If information or explanation is furnished will be annexed to the document and will be subject to the like provisions as to the taking of copies as the original document [see the amendments and the new sub (7) thereof]

If the information or explanation is not furnished at the specified time or if it appears to the registrar to be unsatisfactory or if it discloses an unsatisfactory state of affairs it will be the duty of the registrar to make a report to the Local Government (see s 17)

If it is represented to the registrar in materials furnished by any contributory or creditor that the business of the company is carried on in fraud of its creditors or in fraud of persons connected with the company or for a fraudulent purpose the registrar may call on the company or an opportunity of being heard by him and the company for information or explanation on such terms and conditions as he may think fit. If upon investigation the registrar is satisfied that the representation upon which he has taken action is true he must disclose the identity of the informant to the Court (new sub (6) of s 134)

The new s 249A provides that if a company is in default in complying with any provision of the Act in relation to the delivering or sending to the registrar any document or in giving notice to him of any matter the Court may on an application by any person or by the registrar make an order on the company or any officer thereof to make good the default and to pay the costs specified in the order. Any such order may be made at any time.

INTRODUCTION

and incidental to the application shall be borne by the company or by any officer thereof responsible for the default

Inspection and Institution of Prosecution

Upon the report of the registrar under s 137 or on the application in the case of a failing company of members holding not less than one fifth of the shares issued and in the case of any other company having a share capital of members holding not less than one tenth of the shares issued or in the case of a company not having a share capital on the application of one fifth of the members, the Local Government may appoint one or more competent inspectors to investigate the affairs of the company in such manner as the Local Government may direct (s 138). The members applying are to satisfy the Local Government of their bona fides and may be directed to give security for costs of the inquiry (s 139). All persons who are or have been officers of the company are bound to produce to the inspectors all books and documents in their custody or power and the inspectors may examine any person on oath. As to the penalty for disobedience see s 140 (3). The inspectors will report their opinion to the Local Government who will send a copy thereof to the registrar and another copy to the registered office of the company and a further copy to the applicants at their request. All expenses relating to the investigation will have to be borne by the applicants but the Local Government may direct them to be paid by the company (see the amended s 141).

Formerly there was no machinery for instituting prosecutions against delinquent persons upon the report of the inspectors. Now this defect has been cured by reproducing s 136 of the English Companies Act of 1929 in the new s 141 A. It provides that if from any report made under s 138 it appears to the Local Government that any person has been guilty of any offence in relation to the company for which he is criminally liable the Local Government shall refer the matter to the Advocate General or the Public Prosecutor. If that officer considers that the case is one in which a prosecution ought to be instituted he shall cause proceedings to be instituted and it shall be the duty of all officers and agents of the company, past and present (other than the accused) to give him all reasonable assistance. The word 'agents' in this section includes bankers, legal advisers and auditors employed by the company.

If a director, manager or other officer is convicted as a result of such prosecution he shall not without leave of the Court be a director of or in any way concerned in or take part in the management of a company for 5 years from the date of such conviction [sub s (4) of s 141 A].

A company may also by a special resolution appoint such inspectors who will have identical powers except that instead of reporting to the Local Government they will report in such manner and to such persons as the company in general meeting may direct (s 142).

A copy of the report of any inspector appointed under the Act, authenticated by the seal of the company will be admissible in evidence as evidence of the opinion of the inspector (s 143).

Service and Authentication of Documents

A document may be served on a company by leaving it at or by sending it by post to its registered office (s 148) and a document may be served on the registrar by sending it to him by post or delivering it to him or by leaving it for him at his office (s 149)

A document or proceeding requiring authentication by a company may be signed by a director, secretary or other authorized officer of the company and need not be under its common seal (s 150)

Arbitration and Compromise

A company can by written agreement refer an existing or a future dispute to arbitration under the Indian Arbitration Act. It can also delegate to the arbitrator power to settle any terms or to determine any matter which its directors or other managing body are entitled to settle or determine. In such arbitration the provisions of the Indian Arbitration Act 1901 will apply (s 152)

It should be remembered in this connection that an award under s 15 of the said Act is enforceable as a decree and that no decree should be passed upon such an award and if passed it would be without jurisdiction and a nullity (see p 354). As to the object of s 152 and other matters see notes at pp 353-355

Carrying on Business with less than the Legal Minimum of Members

A company must not carry on business for more than six months after the number of its members has been reduced to less than two in the case of a private company and less than seven in the case of any other company. For the consequences of doing so see s 147. It may also be wound up under s 162 (iv)

Private Company

A private company is almost on the same footing as a public company with the following differences —

(1) For forming a private company only two persons are necessary to subscribe the memorandum of association (s 5). As regards the memorandum of association there is no other difference between a public and a private company.

(2) A private company must, by its articles, restrict the right to transfer its shares [s 2(13) (i) (a)]. Restrictions are usually placed on transfer of shares without first obtaining the approval of the directors, or transfer to outsiders without first offering them to the existing members at a price to be determined in accordance with the provisions therefor in the articles. This serves the double purpose of first ensuring the continuance of the private character of the company, and secondly of preventing an increase in the number of members.

(3) It must limit the number of its members to fifty exclusive of persons in the employ of the company. Therefore it is necessary to frame the articles so that by transfer of shares or otherwise the number of its members does not exceed fifty. The joint holders of a share or shares will be considered as a single member.

INTRODUCTION

(4) A private company must by its articles [s 2 (13)] prohibit any invitation to the public to subscribe for any shares or debentures of the company. Not only the shares but also the debentures of the company should never be offered to the public for subscription.

A private company must not allow the number of its members to fall below two (secs 147 and 162 (iv)).

If a private company fails to observe the above restrictions it will lose the privileges granted by the Act to these companies. For a summary of the privileges see pp 36-37 and for commentary on s 2 (13) see pp 38-40.

On account of its special privileges (see pp 36-37) and also of the advantages of its distinct legal personality apart from its component members and of a limited liability without the apprehension of losing the private character a large number of firms have been and are being converted into private limited companies. As to the agreement for sale of a business to a new private company see Form 4 at p 959, and for agreement by partners to convert the partnership business into a private company see Form 5 at p 960. For the form of the articles of association of a private limited company intended to be managed by the Governing Director see Form 6 (pp 100-1012).

New Provisions regarding Private Companies

The amended s 17 provides that the articles of association of a company shall in any event be deemed to contain regulations identical with or to the same effect as regulations 56-66, 71-75, 79-80, 81-82, 95, 97, 105, 107, 122, 133, 134, 135 and 136 contained in Table A. But regulation 75 relating to the rotation of directors shall not be deemed to be included in the articles of a private company except one which is the subsidiary company of a public company.

A private company must send with the annual return required by s 1 (1) of s 32 a certificate signed by a director or other officer of the company that the company has not since the date of the last return or in the case of a first return since the date of the incorporation of the company issued any invitation to the public to subscribe for any shares or debentures of the company and where the annual return discloses the fact that the number of members of the company exceeds 50 also a certificate signed by it that the excess consists wholly of persons who under sub-clause (1) of clause (13) of s 1 (1) of s 2 are not to be included in reckoning the number of 50 [i.e. the new sub-s (4) of s 12].

The new s 151 following s 27 of the English Act of 1929 provides that if a company being a private company alters its articles in such manner that they no longer include the provisions of s 2 (1) (13) (b) the company shall, as on the date of the alteration cease to be a private company and shall within 14 days after the said date file with the Registrar a prospectus or a statement in lieu of prospectus in Form II in the Schedule to the Act (s 11, 717-21). For the consequences of default see s 1 (2) of s 32. As to the requirements of prospectus if one is filed, see paras 10-11 and s 1 (1) of s 32.

Where the articles of a private company include both the provisions that default is not in complying with any of these provisions the company will cease to be entitled to the privileges and exemptions conferred by the Act on private companies and thereupon the provisions of the Act will apply to the company as if it were not a private company [subs (1) of s 154]. Power has however been given to the Court for relieving a company from these consequences [see proviso to subs (1) of s 154].

The Companies (Amendment) Act 1936 by introducing new provisions has made, as regards the privileges and exemptions, a distinction between private companies which are not, and those which are, subsidiary companies of public companies.

The following privileges and exemptions have been conferred on all private companies whether subsidiary or not —

(1) The provisions of s 43 (issue of share warrants to bearer) do not apply to a private company [s 13 (2)].

(2) The provisions of s 77 (holding statutory meeting and sending statutory report to members and the registrar) do not apply to a private company [s 77 (11)]. It should be noted that under the old s 77 the holding of a statutory meeting was obligatory though not the sending of the report to the registrar.

(3) The provision that notwithstanding any thing contained in the articles not less than two thirds of the whole number of directors shall be persons whose period of office is liable to determination at any time by retirement of directors in rotation does not apply to a private company [s 153B (2)].

(4) S 54 providing restrictions on appointment or advertisement of directors does not apply to a private company or a company which was a private company before becoming a public company [subs (3) of s 54]. For the definition of a public company see clause (13A) of subs (1) of s 2.

(5) The restriction put by s 87 I on managing agents in the appointment by them of directors (more than one third of the whole number of directors) does not apply to a private company.

The following privileges and exemptions have been conferred on those private companies only which are not subsidiary companies of public companies —

(1) The new provisions of subs (1) of s 79 relating to general meetings and notices, proxies, polls and rights and liabilities of classes of shareholders relating thereto will not apply to such a company.

(2) The obligation to have at least 3 directors will not apply to such a company [s 83A (2)].

(3) Prohibition of making loans or guaranteeing any loan to a director will not apply to such a company [s 86D (3)].

(4) Restrictions on the powers of directors regarding selling or disposing of the company's undertaking and remitting any debt due by a director will not apply to such a company (s 86H).

(5) Limitation of the duration of a managing agent's office to 20 years will not apply to such a company [s 87A (5)].

INTRODUCTION

(4) A private company must by its articles [s 2 (13)] prohibit any invitation to the public to subscribe for any shares or debentures of the company. Not only the shares but also the debentures of the company should never be offered to the public for subscription.

A private company must not allow the number of its members to fall below two [see ss 147 and 148 (1v)]

If a private company fails to observe the above restrictions it will lose the privileges granted by the Act to these companies. For an enumeration of the privileges see pp 36-37 and for commentary on s 2 (13) see pp 35-36.

On account of its special privileges (see pp 36-37) and also of the advantages of its distinct legal personality apart from its component members and of a limited liability without the apprehension of losing the private character a large number of firms have been and are being converted into private limited companies. As to the agreement for sale of a business to a new private company see Form 4 at p 959, and for agreement by partners to convert the partnership business into a private company see Form 5 at p 960. For the form of the articles of association of a private limited company intended to be managed by the Governing Director see Form 63 (pp 1009-1012).

The amended s 17 provides that the articles of association of a company shall in any event be deemed to contain regulations identical with or to the same effect as regulations 56-66, 71-78, 79-80, 81-82, 95-97, 105-107, 111-113, 114-115 and 116 contained in Table A. But regulation 78 relating to the rotation of directors shall not be deemed to be included in the articles of a private company except one which is the subsidiary company of a public company.

A private company must send with the annual return required by sub s (1) of s 39 a certificate signed by a director or other officer of the company that the company has not since the date of the last return or in the case of a first return since the date of the incorporation of the company issued any invitation to the public to subscribe for any shares or debentures of the company and where the annual return discloses the fact that the number of members of the company exceeds 50 also a certificate so signed that the excess consists wholly of persons who under sub clause (1) of clause (13) of sub s (1) of s 2 are not to be included in reckoning the number of 50 [see the new sub s (4) of s 32].

The new s 154 following s 27 of the English Act of 1929 provides that if a company being a private company alters its articles in such a manner that they no longer include the provisions of s 2 (1) (13) (b) the company shall as on the date of the alteration cease to be a private company and shall within 14 days after the said date file with the Registrar a prospectus or a statement in lieu of prospectus in Form II in the Second Schedule (see pp 717-721). For the consequences of default see sub s (2) of s 151. As to the requirements of prospectus if one is filed see provisions to the new sub s (4) of s 32.

Where the articles of a private company include the above provisions but default is made in complying with any of those provisions the company will cease to be entitled to the privileges and exemptions conferred by the Act on private companies and thereupon the provisions of the Act will apply to the company as if it were not a private company [subs (3) of s 154]. Power has however been given to the Court for relieving a company from these consequences [see proviso to subs (3) of s 154].

The Companies (Amendment) Act 1936 by introducing new provisions has made, as regards the privileges and exemptions, a distinction between private companies which are not, and those which are, subsidiary companies of public companies.

The following privileges and exemptions have been conferred on all private companies whether subsidiary or not —

(1) The provisions of s 43 (issue of share warrants to bearer) do not apply to a private company [s 43 (2)].

(2) The provisions of s 77 (holding statutory meeting and sending statutory report to members and the registrar) do not apply to a private company [s 77 (11)]. It should be noted that under the old s 77 the holding of a statutory meeting was obligatory though not the sending of the report to the registrar.

(3) The provision that notwithstanding any thing contained in the articles not less than two thirds of the whole number of directors shall be persons whose period of office is liable to determination at any time by retirement of directors in rotation does not apply to a private company [s 83B (2)].

(4) S 84 providing restrictions on appointment or advertisement of directors does not apply to a private company or a company which was a private company before becoming a public company [subs (3) of s 84]. For the definition of a public company see clause (13A) of subs (1) of s 2.

(5) The restriction put by s 87 I on managing agents in the appointment by them of directors (more than one third of the whole number of directors) does not apply to a private company.

The following privileges and exemptions have been conferred on those private companies only which are not subsidiary companies of public companies —

(1) The new provisions of subs (1) of s 79 relating to general meetings and notices proxies polls and rights and liabilities of classes of shareholders relating thereto will not apply to such a company.

(2) The obligation to have at least 3 directors will not apply to such a company [s 83A (2)].

(3) Prohibition of making loans or guaranteeing any loan to a director will not apply to such a company [s 86D (3)].

(4) Restrictions on the powers of directors regarding selling or disposing of the company's undertaking and remitting any debt due by a director will not apply to such a company [s 86H].

(5) Limitation of the duration of a managing agent's office to 20 years will not apply to such a company [s 87A (5)].

(6) Restrictions on the provisions for remuneration of a managing agent will not apply to such a company [s 87C (1)]

(7) Prohibition of loans to managing agents and restrictions on their powers of contract for the sale purchase &c with the company will not apply to such a company [s 87D (1)]

(8) Prohibition of voting by interested directors in respect of contracts or arrangements will not apply to such a company [proviso to s 11B (3)]

(9) Provisions regarding contracts by agents in which the company is the undisclosed principal made in s 91D will not apply to such a company [s 91D (1)]

(10) The obligation to have a certificated auditor and the prohibition of appointing as auditor a person who is in the employment of a director or officer of the company will not apply to such a company [s 144 (1) & (5)]

In a word a private company which is the subsidiary company of a public company will not have the latter set of privileges and exemptions (1 to 10) but all other private companies will enjoy both the sets of privileges and exemptions mentioned above

In drawing up the articles of association of a private company one should remember that in addition to the matters mentioned in clause (14) of subs (1) of s 2 provisions are to be made in respect of matters referred to in subs (2) of s 79 otherwise they will automatically apply to the company

The advantage of conversion of a private company into a public company is that the company can get additional capital by issuing its shares to the public and by raising money by the issue of its debentures to the public

Company Limited by Guarantee

A company limited by guarantee may or may not have a share capital. In the latter case in addition to the required particulars (see s 7) the memorandum must state that each member undertakes to contribute to the assets of the company in the event of its being wound up while he is a member or within one year afterwards for payment of the debts and liabilities of the company contracted before he ceases to be a member, and of the costs charges and expenses of winding up and for adjustment of the rights of the contributories among themselves such sum as may be required not exceeding a specified amount [s 7 (1) (v)]

If the company has a share capital the memorandum must also state the amount of share capital with which the company proposes to be registered and the division thereof into shares of a fixed amount no subscriber of the memorandum can take less than one share and each subscriber must write opposite to his name the number of shares he takes

Associations for mutual insurance and those mentioned in s 26 are generally formed as companies limited by guarantee

As to the form of the memorandum of association of a company limited by guarantee and having a share capital see Form C at p 730 and that of its articles see p 73. For the memorandum of such a company not having a share capital see Form B at p 72 and Form 11 at p 917 and for the form of the articles of association of such a company see p 72. As to the fees for registering a company limited by guarantee see pp 711 12 and for stamp duty App I. As to such companies generally see s 7 and notes at p 17.

In the case of a company limited by guarantee and not having a share capital and registered after 1st April 1914 the memorandum the articles or a resolution of the company cannot give any person a right to participate in the divisible profits of the company otherwise than as a member. If the memorandum or articles or any resolution of a company limited by guarantee and registered after 1st April 1914 purports to divide the undertaking of the company into shares or interests this will be treated as a provision for a share capital notwithstanding that the nominal amount or number of the shares or interests is not specified by such memorandum articles or resolution (s 27).

A company limited by guarantee must register with its memorandum articles of association signed by the subscribers to the memorandum and preliminary regulations for the company. If the company has not a share capital the articles must state the number of members with which the company proposes to be registered (s 17).

As to the articles generally see notes at pp 50 84 and as to the alteration of articles see s 20 and notes at pp 55 89.

A company limited by guarantee and registered after 1st April 1914 may if it has a share capital and is so authorized by its articles increase or reduce its share capital in the same manner and subject to the same conditions in and subject to which a company limited by shares may increase or reduce its share capital under the provisions of the Act (s 66).

Unlimited Companies

As has been observed above [see p (3)] unlimited companies are rarely formed now a days. For definition of an unlimited company see s 5 (ii). As to the contents of the memorandum of such a company see s 8. For the form of memorandum of an unlimited company having a share capital see Form D at p 732 and for the form of its articles see the same page. See also notes at p 67.

An unlimited company must register, with its memorandum articles signed by the subscribers to the memorandum and if the company has a share capital the articles must state the amount of share capital with which the company proposes to be registered. If it has not a share capital the articles must also state the number of members with which the company proposes to be registered (s 17).

As to the articles generally see notes at pp 50 84 and as to the alteration of the articles see s 20 and notes at pp 56 89.

Any company registered as an unlimited company may register under the present Act as a limited company but such registration will not affect any debts liabilities obligations or contracts incurred or entered into by or to with or on behalf of the company before the registration and there-

debt (c) may be enforced in manner provided by Part VIII of the present Act (s 7)

An unlimited company having a share capital may, by its resolution for regulation of its share capital (a) increase the nominal amount of its share capital subject to the condition laid down in s 68 and (b) provide that its uncalled share capital shall not be capable of being called up except in the event and for the purpose of the company being wound up (s 18)

Reserve Liability of Limited Company.

A limited company may by special resolution provide that any portion of its share capital not already called up shall not be capable of being called up, except in the event and for the purpose of the company being wound up (see s 10 and notes thereto)

Existing Companies.

An existing company has been defined as a company formed and registered under the Indian Companies Act 1866, or under any Act or Acts repealed thereby or under the Indian Companies Act, 1882 [s 2 (7)] The present Act applies to such a company, with the exception of Table A. See ss 270 to 272

Subsidiary Company and Holding Company.

For the definition of a subsidiary company see the new sub s (2) of s 2. Roughly speaking it is a company more than 50 per cent of whose issued share capital or voting power is held by another company or the majority of whose directors can be appointed by another company which is called the holding company. A subsidiary company, it appears, may be a public company or private company or may not be a company within the meaning of the Companies Act. Where the shares of such a company are held as security by a company the ordinary business of which is the lending of money or where the majority of directors can be appointed by a company by virtue of powers contained in a debenture trust deed the former company will not be deemed to be a subsidiary company of the latter.

Where a prospectus is issued by a company which has been carrying on business prior to issue thereof the report required under sub s (1A) of s 30 must show the profits of a subsidiary company also.

of the subsidiary company, or, where there are two or more subsidiary companies the aggregate profits and losses of those companies have been dealt with in or for the purposes of the accounts of the holding company, and in particular how and to what extent—(a) provision has been made for the losses of a subsidiary company either in the accounts of that company or of the holding company or of both, and (b) losses of a subsidiary company have been taken into account by the directors of the holding company in arriving at the profits and losses of the company as disclosed in its accounts. For detailed provisions in this respect the new s 132A should be carefully read.

The holding company may by a resolution authorise representatives to inspect the books of account kept by a subsidiary company [subs (5) of s 132A].

The rights conferred by s 133 upon members of a company may be exercised in respect of a subsidiary company by members of the holding company as if they were members of that subsidiary company [subs (b) of s 132A].

S 277M provides that a banking company shall not form or hold shares in a subsidiary company except a subsidiary company of its own formed for the purpose of undertaking and executing trusts, undertaking the administration of estates as executor trustee or otherwise and such other purposes as set forth in s 277I as are incidental to the business of accepting deposits of money on current account or otherwise.

A subsidiary company which is a private company is not entitled to most of the privileges and exemptions enjoyed by ordinary private companies [see under the heading Private Companies supra].

Companies Authorized to be Registered under the present Act.

As to the companies authorized to be registered under the present Act, requirements for and mode of such registration and the effect of such registration see ss 253 to 261. When a company is registered under these provisions all suits and other proceedings against it instituted before such registration will be allowed to proceed, but a decree or order passed therein will not be capable of execution against any individual member of the company, and in the event of the property and effects of the company being insufficient to satisfy the decree or order, an order may be obtained for winding up the company (s 265). The provisions of the present Act in respect of legal proceedings upon the presentation in respect of commencement of and proceedings after the winding up order will apply to such a company.

Companies Established Outside British India

Every company incorporated outside British India which has or establishes a place of business in British India is required to comply with the provisions of s 277. For the forms of (a) lists of documents (b) list of directors and managers (c) receipt service, (d) notice of alteration in character of the registered or principal of directors and managers (e) names or addresses of persons authorized to accept process and (h) statement of affairs of the company required to be filed under s 277, see Forms XVI to XXIII respectively printed at pp 772-78.

New Provisions

With respect to the above companies a number of new provisions has been introduced by the Companies (Amendment) Act, 1936

If the balance sheet of such a company required to be filed under cl (1) of sub s (3) of s 277 does not contain all the information provided for in Form H in the Third Schedule (see pp 744-46) such supplementary statements as will furnish such information will have to be filed every year with the registrar of the province in which the company has its principal place of business [see cl (1) of sub s (3) of s 177]

Every company incorporated outside British India shall, if the liability of its members is limited cause notice of that fact to be stated in legal characters in every prospectus inviting subscriptions for its shares and in all bill heads and letter paper, notices advertisements and other official publications of the company in British India, and to be affixed on every place where it carries on business [s 277 (5)]

As to the regulation on sale and offer for sale of shares and debentures before the issue of a prospectus and as to the contents &c of such prospectus see ss 2, 3 and 277B For the consequences of contravention of these sections see sub s (5) of s 277A

It shall not be lawful for any person to go from house to house offering shares of such a company for subscription or purchase (see s 277C) For the consequences of contravention of this section see sub s (3) of this section

The provisions of ss 11b and 119 (registration and appointment of a receiver and filing his account) will mutatis mutandis apply to such companies The provisions of s 130 will apply to such companies to the extent of requiring them to keep at their principal place of business in British India books of account regarding money received and expended sales and purchases made and assets and liabilities in relation to their business in British India

Compromise and Arrangement

S 153 of the Act provides that where a compromise or arrangement is proposed between a company and its creditors or any class of them or between the company and its members or any class of them, the Court may, on the application of the company, or any creditor, member or liquidator of the company order a meeting to be called held and conducted in such manner as the Court directs If a majority in number representing three fourths in value of such creditors or members present in person or by proxy at the meeting agree to any compromise or arrangement, the same shall if sanctioned by the Court, be binding on the creditors or members whose meeting was directed to be held and also on the company, and in the case of a company in the course of being wound up on the liquidator and contributories

This section is wide enough to include any reasonable compromise or arrangement and as a matter of fact advantage has been taken of this section to carry through schemes of the most varied character

In this country, particularly in Bengal on account of economic distress a large number of loan companies which took deposits of money on condition to repay at a notice of a week, 6 months a year or at most 2 or 3 years and having no corresponding liquid assets, has been unable to meet the demands of the depositors They have largely taken and are taking advantage of this section. Most of them having adequate securities in landed properties hope to repay the depositors' money if they get sufficient time. For this purpose a scheme is prepared for sanction at a depositors' and creditors' meeting under which they agree not to demand their dues (whether under judgment or not) for a certain number of years in which time the company undertakes to pay them gradually and rateably as the company's dues from its debtors are realized. As regards management in the meantime majority of the directors are elected under the scheme by the depositors and creditors and the directors again elect the managing directors and other executive authorities of the company and control them in the matter of realization and distribution of the moneys realized. The depositors and other creditors readily assent to the scheme as they have found by experience that they may get more in this way than by a compulsory liquidation, which, to say the least, is troublesome and expensive. It is not unlikely that in this country this alternative mode of liquidation will more and more appeal to the creditors of companies which cannot readily meet their obligations but can do so partly at least in course of a few years under the control of directors appointed by the creditors. It should be noted however that for this purpose sometimes it may be found necessary to alter the articles of association.

In this way within the time allotted in the scheme the assets of the company must be realized and distributed, but on the expiration of the time mentioned above the creditors will be at liberty to take whatever action they choose.

In England the commonest form of scheme is, as observed in Palmer's Company Law [13th edition (1929) at p. 163], that a new company is to be formed, that the debenture-holders of the existing company shall take in exchange debentures or preference shares of the new company and the unsecured creditors shall take a composition of so much in the pound payable partly in cash and partly in shares or debentures in the new company and that the shareholders receive only partly paid up shares in the new company.

As a matter of fact any scheme of reconstruction of a company, i.e. organization of its share capital or amalgamation with another company may be carried through under this section.

As to the principle on which the section is based, the Court's jurisdiction what the Court will consider in sanctioning a scheme, meeting, voting and proxy &c see pp. 356 to 365.

New Provisions

An order made by the Court under sub-s (2) of s. 153 sanctioning the scheme shall have no effect until a certified copy of the order has been filed with the registrar, and a copy of every such order must be annexed to every copy of memorandum of association issued after the order has been made [sub-s (3) of s. 153]. As to the consequences of default in complying with sub-s (3) see sub-s (4).

Power has been given to the Court to stay any suit or proceeding against the company pending an application under s. 153 [see sub-s (5)]. A right of appeal has also been given from a decision of the Court [see sub-s (7)].

INTRODUCTION

For the purpose of this section unsecured creditors who may have obtained or obtained decrees will be deemed to be of the same class as secured creditors [see subs (b) and notes at p 362]

Sections 154 and 155 of the English Act of 1929 the new 153A and 153B have made detailed provisions for facilitating arrangements and reconstructions amalgamations compromises and arrangements and power has been given to acquire shares of dissenting shareholders in the connection

Defunct Companies

There is a way in which a company's existence may inexpensively be brought to an end. S 24 provides that if the registrar has reasonable cause to believe that a company is not carrying on business or in operation he may proceed under this section and after complying with the provisions thereof strike its name off the register and on the publication in the local official Gazette of a notice to that effect the company will be dissolved. But the liability of every director and member of the company will continue and may be enforced as if the company had not been dissolved.

If the company or any member or creditor thereof feel aggrieved by the company having been struck off the register the Court may, on application order the name of the company to be restored to the register. See s 247 and notes at pp 576-77.

When the directors or other authorities of a company find that on account of poor response of the investing public to take up its shares or for any other reason the company is unable to commence business or on account of want of fund and inability to raise money it cannot carry on business and there are no assets of the company worth the name for distribution amongst the creditors and shareholders all that they have to do is to inform the registrar that the company is not in operation or has ceased to carry on business and the registrar will take necessary action.

Court having Jurisdiction

Cl (3) of subs (1) of s 2 says that the Court means the Court having jurisdiction under the Act. S 3 says that the Court having jurisdiction under the Act shall be the High Court having jurisdiction in the place at which the registered office is situated. For the purposes of jurisdiction to wind up companies the expression "the Court" shall be the place which has longest been the registered office.

pp 41-44] Where the High Court may direct all subsequent proceedings to be had in a District Court [see s 164]. The High Court has power to transfer winding up proceedings from one District Court to another [s 165].

The Local Government may however empower any District Court to exercise all or any of the jurisdictions by the Act conferred upon the High Court and in that case such District Court shall as regards the jurisdiction so conferred be the Court in respect of all companies having their registered offices in the district (see proviso to s 3).

INTRODUCTION

As a matter of fact various Local Governments conferred limited or full jurisdictions on selected District Courts in their provinces long ago. But Bengal was bracketed with the North West Frontier Province, Burma and Bihar and Orissa for the unfortunate distinction of being considered as having no District Courts in the province competent to administer the company law. The Government of Bengal was at last roused to take some belated but very cautious and restricted action [after perhaps the proceeding in the Legislative Assembly during the passage of the new Companies (Amendment) Act] in November last so now the position is as follows —

Bengal—jurisdiction has been conferred on all District Courts under ss 78 to 104, 120 and 124 in respect of companies having a subscribed capital of not exceeding Rs. 50,000—Vide Notification No. 7288 Com dated 2nd November 1930 published in the Calcutta Gazette of the 5th November 1930 Part I p. 2553.

Assam—jurisdiction has been conferred on the District Courts of (1) Assam Valley and (2) Sylhet & Cachar in respect of companies having a subscribed capital of not exceeding Rs. 50,000.

Bombay—jurisdiction has been conferred upon the District Courts of Ahmedabad, Broach, Kaira, Pooner, Satara, Sholapur and Surat in all matters under the Act.

Madras—jurisdiction has been conferred upon all District Courts under s. 104 only.

United Provinces—jurisdiction has been conferred upon the District Court at Cawnpore in respect of all matters under the Act and upon that of Lucknow in respect of companies whose subscribed capital does not exceed Rs. 25,000.

Central Provinces and Berar—jurisdiction has been conferred upon all District Courts in respect of all matters under the Act.

Winding Up.

There are three modes of winding up a company namely—(1) winding up by the Court otherwise called compulsory winding up (2) voluntary winding up and (3) winding up subject to the supervision of the Court (s. 155). The voluntary winding up may be either members' or the creditors' [see sub s. (3) of s. 207].

Winding Up by the Court

Grounds

A company may be wound up by the Court for the following reasons —

(1) If the company has passed a special resolution that the company be wound up by the Court. In such a case the directors are entitled to present the winding up petition in the name of the company. See s. 162 (i) and notes at p. 381. As to what is a special resolution see s. 81 and notes.

(2) If default is made in filing the statutory report or in holding the statutory meeting [s. 162 (ii)]. Such a petition cannot be presented by any person except a shareholder, nor before the expiration of 14 days after the last day on which the meeting ought to have been held [see s 166, proviso (b)] If a petition is presented on this ground the Court may, instead of directing that the company be wound up give direction for the statutory report to be filed or a meeting to be held or make such other order as may be just [s 77 (4)]

(3) If the company does not commence its business within a year from its incorporation or suspends its business for a whole year [see s 162 (iii) and notes at p 344] It should be remembered that after allotment of shares a company has to apply to the registrar of companies for certificate for commencement of business on compliance with the requirements of s 103 (1) and the statutory meeting is to be held within 6 months from the date at which the company is entitled to commence business. So if a company delays in applying for the certificate for commencement of business for more than a year it cannot be proceeded against under clause (1) of s 163 but a petition for winding it up may be presented under clause (iii)

(4) If the number of members is reduced in the case of a private company below two or in the case of any other company, below seven [see s 112 (iv) and notes at p 343]

(5) If the company is unable to pay its debts. A company will be deemed to be unable to pay its debts in the following cases —

(a) If a creditor to whom the company is indebted to a sum exceeding Rs 500 has served a demand on the company which has for 3 weeks thereafter neglected to pay the sum or to secure or compound for it to the reasonable satisfaction of the creditor [see s 163 (1) (i) and for detailed notes see pp 385-89] As to the meanings of the words employed in s 163 and notes thereto see pp 394-97. It was held that a notice of demand signed by an Advocate or any other agent did not satisfy the requirements of s 163 (see notes at p 396). But the new sub-s (2) of s 163 provides that the demand will be deemed to have been duly made if it is signed by an agent or legal adviser duly authorised on behalf of the creditor, or in the case of a firm if it is signed by such agent or by a legal adviser or any one member of the firm on behalf of the firm.

(b) If execution or other process issued on a decree or order of any Court in favour of a creditor of the company is returned unsatisfied in whole or in part [see s 163 (1) (ii)]

(c) If it is proved to the satisfaction of the Court that the company is unable to pay its debts which include the contingent and prospective liabilities of the company [see s 163 (1) (iii)] It should be remembered, as stressed by Lord Wrenbury, that a company may be at the same time insolvent and wealthy (see notes at p 385). A company will be deemed to be unable to pay its debts within the meaning of s 162 (v) if it is unable to meet its current demands although the assets when realized may exceed its liabilities (see notes at pp 345-85).

(d) If the Court is of opinion that it is just and equitable that the company should be wound up. See s 162, cl (vi) the terms of which are very wide. A company may be wound up under this clause where its substratum is gone, where it is a 'bubble company', where there is a complete deadlock in its management where it is formed to carry on an illegal business where its object is fraudulent or where the particular circumstances of a case require it (see notes at pp 359-92)

Contributories

The term contributory means every person liable to contribute to the assets of a company in the event of its being wound up (see s 155)

The new sub s (1) of s 155 provides that the liability of a contributory shall create a debt payable at the time specified in the calls made on him by the liquidator

No claim on the liability of a contributory will be cognizable by any Court of Small Causes outside the towns of Calcutta Madras and Bombay [sub (2) of s 155]

If a contributory dies his legal representatives and heirs will be liable to the extent of the estate of the deceased coming into their hands [sub s (1) and (2) of s 155]

The new sub s (3) of s 155 provides that for the purposes of that section the surviving coparceners of a contributory who is a member of a Mitakshara joint Hindu family shall be deemed to be his legal representative

Subject to the provisions of s 156 in every winding up every present and past member of a company shall be liable to contribute to the assets of the company to an amount sufficient for the payment of its debts and liabilities and the costs charges and expenses of the winding up and for the adjustment of the rights of the contributories among themselves with the following qualifications —

(1) A past member shall not be liable to contribute if he has ceased to be a member for 1 year or upwards before the commencement of the winding up (for the dates of commencement of different kinds of winding up see p 404) not in respect of debts or liabilities contracted after he had ceased to be a member. A past member will not also be made liable unless it appears to the Court that the existing members are unable to satisfy the contributions required to be made by them in pursuance of the Act. So it is apprehended that if all the required contributions are realised from all the present members but they do not satisfy the debts liabilities &c mentioned above still the past members will not be liable [see clauses (i) to (iii) of sub s (1) of s 156]

(2) Members past or present of companies limited by shares are liable to contribute only the amount unpaid on the shares and no more [see cl (iv) of sub s (1) of s 156]

(3) Members of a company limited by guarantee are liable to contribute only up to the amount of their guarantee and no more [see cl (v) of sub s (1) and sub s (2) of s 156]

As to the saving of any provision in a policy of insurance see cl (vi) of sub s (1) of s 156

As to the set off of dividends &c due to a member against the amount for which he is liable as a contributory see cl (vii) of sub s (1) of s 156

For the liability of directors whose liability is unlimited see s 157

INTRODUCTION

Petition for Winding Up

A petition for winding up a company may be presented by the company itself, by any creditors or creditor including any contingent or prospective creditor, by any contributory or contributories, or by all or any of those parties together or separately, or by the registrar (see the amended s 116)

As to who are the contributories and their liabilities see ss 156 to 161 and notes to those sections. A contributory is not entitled to present a winding up petition unless (1) the number of members of the company is reduced in the case of a private company, below 2 or, in the case of any other company below 7 or (2) he is a registered holder of the share or shares for at least 6 months during the 18 months before the commencement of the winding up or they have devolved on him through the death of a former holder (see s 166 and notes at pp 399-402). A winding up by the Court commences at the time of presentation of the petition (s 168)

The registrar will not be entitled to present a winding up petition—(1) except on the ground that from the financial condition of the company as disclosed in its balance sheet or from the report of the inspector appointed under s 138 it appears that the company is unable to pay its debts and (2) unless the previous sanction of the Local Government has been obtained therefor after the company has been afforded an opportunity of being heard [see proviso (2a) to s 166]

A petition by a contingent or prospective creditor will not be heard until he has given security for costs and until a prima facie case for winding up has been established to the satisfaction of the Court [see s 166 (c)]. As to which of the creditors can present a petition for winding up and which of them cannot see notes at p 399

Different High Courts have made rules prescribing the mode of proceedings to be had for winding up a company in such Court and the Courts subordinate thereto (see s 211). As to those made by the Calcutta High Court see App H. For want of space the rules made by other High Courts could not be given in this book but they are on the same lines as they are all presumably based upon the English Companies (Winding up) Rules.

As to the verification advertisement and service of the petition see pp 106-107 and also the forms referred to there

Injunction

After the presentation of the winding up petition and before making an order for winding up the Court may, upon application of the company or of any creditor or contributory, restrain further proceedings in any suit or proceeding against the company (s 169)

Provisional Liquidator

At any time after the presentation of a petition and the making of an order for winding up, the Court may appoint a provisional liquidator but shall before making any such appointment give notice to the company [see the amended sub s (2) of s 175] On hearing the petition if the Court makes an order for winding up the company it shall except where a liquidator is appointed simultaneously forthwith cause intimation thereof to be sent to the official receiver [see the new sub s () of s 170] As to the mode of application for such appointment form of order &c see pp 1061-5

INTRODUCTION

Hearing of the Petition

As to the procedure for hearing the petition see pp 1063-64 On hearing the petition the Court may dismiss it with or without cost, adjourn the hearing make any interim order or pass order for winding up the company (secs 170 and note) As to the form of the order and service and advertisement thereof see pp 1063-64

When an order has been made for winding up a company, the petitioner and the company must within 1 month from the date of the order file with the registrar of companies a notice and a copy of the order respectively (see the amended s 172 and Rule 45 at p 1063)

Such order will be deemed to be notice of discharge to the servants of the company except when its business is continued (s 172 (3))

A winding up order will operate in favour of all creditors and contributors of the company (s 117)

As soon as a winding up order has been made the official receiver automatically becomes the official liquidator of the company and will continue to act as such until his further continuance is terminated by an order of the Court (sub s (2) of the new s 171 A) The official receiver shall as such liquidator forthwith take into his custody and control all the books documents and assets of the company He will receive such remuneration as the Court will fix [sub ss (3) & (4) of s 171 A] For the meaning of the expression official receiver see sub s (1) of s 171 A

Stay of suits &c against the company

Where a winding up order has been made or a provisional liquidator has been appointed no suit or other legal proceeding against the company can be commenced or proceeded with except by the leave of the winding up Court See the amended s 171 and notes at pp 411-416 Before the amendment suits or other legal proceedings against the company were not automatically stayed before the winding up order But now as soon as a provisional liquidator is appointed they are automatically stayed

Stay of winding up proceedings

At any time after an order for winding up, on the application of any creditor or contributor the Court can stay the winding up proceedings altogether or for a limited time on such terms and conditions as the Court thinks fit. See s 173 and notes at pp 418-19

Wishes of creditors and contributors

In all matters relating to the winding up the Court will have regard to the wishes of the creditors and contributors as proved to it by sufficient evidence For this purpose the Court may call for evidence from the creditors and contributors to be called held and conducted in such manner as the Court directs, and may appoint a person to act as chairman of the meeting and to report the result to the Court. In the case of creditors regard must be had to the value of each creditor's debt and in the case of contributories regard is to be had to the number of votes each contributory is entitled to under the articles (see s 233 and notes at p 569).

As to the meetings of creditors and contributories and proxies thereat see Rules 127 to 153 at pp 1070-73 and the forms referred to there.

Official Liquidator

For the provisions for the appointment, resignation, removal &c of an official liquidator and as to how he should be described see ss 175 to 177 and notes thereto. As to the procedure of his appointment, security to be furnished by him and his remuneration see Rules at pp 1064, 1065 and 1066.

The official liquidator, whether appointed provisionally or not, should take into his custody or under his control all the property, effects &c of the company (see the amended s 176).

For the powers of an official liquidator with the sanction of the Court see ss 179 and 180 and notes thereto at pp 411-41. Subject to the control of the Court he can also exercise and perform the powers and duties of the Court in respect of—(a) holding and conducting meetings to ascertain the wishes of creditors and contributories; (b) settling lists of contributories and rectifying the register of members where required, and requiring delivery of property on time within which debts and liquidator must not without the special leave of the Court rectify the register of members or make any call [sub s (2) of s 216]. As to the Rules regarding the official liquidator's duties, investments, books of account and records, statement of assets &c see pp 1041-47. See also the amended s 182.

The official liquidator may, with the sanction of the Court, appoint an advocate, attorney or pleader entitled to appear before the Court to assist him in the performance of his duties. But if he is himself an attorney, he cannot appoint his partner at a remuneration (s 181).

In the administration and distribution of the assets of the company the official liquidator will have regard to any direction that may be given by resolutions of the creditors and contributories or by the committee of inspection and any directions given by the creditors or contributories at any general meeting shall in case of conflict be deemed to override any directions given by the committee of inspection. The official liquidator may summon general meetings of creditors or contributories for ascertaining their wishes but will be bound to do so when directed by their resolution or requested in writing by one third in value of the creditors or contributories (see the amended s 183). If any person is aggrieved by any act or decision of the official liquidator he may apply to the Court for redress (s 184 (5)). The official liquidator may himself apply to the

Court for directions [s 183 (3) and Rule 12] at p 1070] But this should be done sparingly.

As to the Rules regarding the proof of debts and claims collection and distribution of assets preparation and settlement of the list of contributors calls compromise of claims sales of properties general meetings of creditors and contributories proxies dividends service of summons & attendance and adjournance of parties final account of the official liquidator payment of balance order for final dissolution of the company deposit of books etc see pp 1065-74

The official liquidator must keep proper minute books of his proceedings and any creditor or contributory is subject to the control of the Court inspect the same personally or by agent [subs (1) of s 182]

New Provisions regarding Liquidators

The obligation to furnish information and explanation relating to documents submitted to the registrar is provided in the amended s 137 applies mutatis mutandis to all liquidators also [see sub s (7) of s 137]

The new s 177B provides that the official liquidator shall as soon as practicable submit a preliminary report to the Court as to matters mentioned in clauses (a) to (c) of sub s (1) of that section. The official liquidator may also make a further report or reports stating the manner in which the company was formed and whether in his opinion any fraud has been committed by any person in the promotion or formation or by any director or other officer of the company since the formation thereof [see sub s (2) of s 177B]

The official liquidator must at least twice in each year present to the Court an account of his receipts and payments in the form prescribed by the High Court [see the new subs (2) to (4) of s 182]

Every liquidator of a company which is being wound up by the Court shall in such manner and at such times as may be prescribed by the High Court pay the money received by him into a scheduled bank as defined in clause (e) of s 2 of the Reserve Bank of India Act 1934 (for a list of the scheduled banks see pp 270-71). As to the penalty of retaining by him more than Rs 500 for more than 10 days see sub s (2) of the new s 244A. Such a liquidator must open a special banking account and pay all sums received by him as liquidator into such account [sub s (3) of s 244A]

Committee of Inspection

Following ss 198 and 199 of the English Act of 1929 the Companies (Amendment) Act of 1936 has made provisions for a committee of inspection both in the winding up by the Court and a creditors' voluntary winding up. See ss 178A and 209C.

By s 178A it has been provided that the official liquidator must convene separate meetings of the creditors and the contributories for the purpose of determining whether a committee of inspection should be appointed to act with the liquidator and who are to be the members thereof. In the event of a disagreement between the resolution of the two meetings the matter will be decided by the Court [see subs (1) (2)

and conducted in such manner as the Court directs, and may appoint a person to act as chairman of the meeting and to report the result to the Court. In the case of creditors regard must be had to the value of each creditor's debt and in the case of contributories regard is to be had to the number of votes each contributor is entitled to under the articles (see s 23⁹ and notes at p 569).

As to the meetings of creditors and contributories and proxies thereat see Rules 127 to 153 at pp 1070-73 and the forms referred to there.

As to the stamp on a proxy paper at a creditors' or contributories meetings see App 1.

Official Liquidator

For the provisions for the appointment, resignation, removal &c of an official liquidator and as to how he should be described see ss 175 to 177 and notes thereto. As to the procedure of his appointment, security to be furnished by him and his remuneration see Rules at pp 1064-1065 and 1066.

The official liquidator, whether appointed provisionally or not, should take into his custody or under his control all the property, effects &c of the company (see the amended s 178).

For the powers of an official liquidator with the sanction of the Court see ss 179 and 180 and notes thereto at pp 431-41. Subject to the control of the Court he can also exercise and perform the powers and duties of the Court in respect of—(1) holding and conducting meetings to ascertain the wishes of creditors and contributories (2) settling lists of contributories and rectifying the register of members where required and collecting and applying the assets (3) requiring delivery of property or documents (4) making calls and (5) fixing time within which debts and claims must be proved. But the official liquidator must not, without the special leave of the Court, rectify the register of members or make any call [sub s (2) of s 246]. As to the Rules regarding the official liquidator's duties, investments, books of account and records, statement of assets &c see pp 1064-67. See also the amended s 182.

The official liquidator may, with the sanction of the Court, appoint an advocate, attorney or pleader entitled to appear before the Court to assist him in the performance of his duties. But if he is himself an attorney, he cannot appoint his partner at a remuneration (s 181).

In the absence of the assets of the company, the official liquidator may, with the sanction of the Court, apply to the Court for directions. Any directions given by the creditors or contributories at any general meeting shall, in case of conflict, be deemed to override any directions given by the committee of inspection. The official liquidator may summon general meetings of creditors or contributories for ascertaining their wishes but will be bound to do so when directed by their resolution or requested in writing by one third in value of the creditors or contributories (see the amended s 182). If any person is aggrieved by any act or decision of the official liquidator, he may apply to the Court for redress [s 183 (5)]. The official liquidator may himself apply to the

The official liquidator must keep proper minute books of his proceedings and any creditor or contributory may subject to the control of the Court inspect the same personally or by agent [subs (1) of s 182]

New Provisions regarding Liquidators

The obligation to furnish information and explanation relating to documents submitted to the registrar is provided in the amended s 137 applies mutatis mutandis to all liquidators also [see subs (7) of s 137]

The new s 177B provides that the official liquidator shall as soon as practicable submit a preliminary report to the Court as to matters mentioned in clauses (a) to (c) of subs (1) of that section. The official liquidator may also make a further report or reports stating the manner in which the company was formed and whether in his opinion any fraud has been committed by any person in the promotion or formation, or by any director or other officer of the company since the formation thereof [see subs (2) of s 177B]

The official liquidator must at least twice in each year present to the Court an account of his receipts and payments in the form prescribed by the High Court [see the new subs (2) to (4) of s 182]

Every liquidator of a company which is being wound up by the Court shall in such manner and at such times as may be prescribed by the High Court, pay the money received by him into a scheduled bank as defined in clause (e) of s 2 of the Reserve Bank of India Act, 1934 (for a list of the scheduled banks see pp 270-71). As to the penalty of retaining by him more than Rs 500 for more than 10 days see subs (2) of the new s 244A. Such a liquidator must open a special banking account and pay all sums received by him as liquidator into such account [subs (3) of s 244A]

Following ss 198 and 199 of the English Act of 1929 the Companies (Amendment) Act of 1936 has made provisions for a committee of inspection both in the winding up by the Court and a creditors voluntary winding up. See ss 178A and 209C

By s 178A it has been provided that the official liquidator must convene separate meetings of the creditors and the contributories for the purpose of determining whether a committee of inspection should be appointed to act with the liquidator and who are to be the members thereof. In the event of a disagreement between the resolution of the two meetings the matter will be decided by the Court [see subs (1), (2) and (3) of s 178A] As to the composition rights proceedings &c of the committee of inspection see subs (1) to (12) of s 178A

In the administration of the assets of the company and in the distribution the coming among the creditors the official liquidator shall have regard to the directions given by resolutions of the meetings of creditors or contributories or by the committee of inspection and in case of conflict the directions given by the former will prevail [see the amended subs (1) of s 183]

Statement of Affairs to the Official Liquidator

A statement of affairs of the company verified by an affidavit and containing the particulars mentioned in clauses (1) to (d) of subs (1) of s 177A is to be submitted to the official liquidator by persons who are mentioned in subs (2) of s 177A. This is a very onerous duty cast upon the directors managers and other officers past or present of the company in respect of which an order for winding up has been made and should be carefully read

Ordinary and Extraordinary Powers of Court

As to the ordinary powers of the Court regarding settlement of list of contributories and application of assets of the company, delivery of property payment of debt by contributories calls payment into land, exclusion of creditors not proving in time adjustment of rights of contributories distribution of surplus asset payment of costs and dissolution of the company see ss 184 to 194 and notes to those sections

Private and Public Examinations

The Court has power for private examination to summon any officer of the company or any person known or suspected to have in his possession any property of the company or supposed to be indebted to the company or any person who is deemed capable of giving information concerning the trade dealings affairs or property of the company. The Court may also require him to produce any documents in his custody or power relating to the company. If any person so summoned refuses to appear the Court may cause him to be apprehended and brought before the Court for such examination. See s 195 and notes at pp 465-71. The Court can proceed under this section of its own motion.

On the application of the official liquidator the Court may direct any person who has taken part in the promotion or formation of the company, or has been a director, manager or other officer of the company, to attend before the Court for public examination regarding the promotion formation or conduct of the business of the company or as to his conduct and dealings as director manager or other officer of the company. But the official liquidator must state in his application that in his opinion a fraud has been committed by any such person in the promotion or formation of the company or by any director or other officer of the company in relation to the company since its formation. See s 196 and notes at pp 472-74. As to the mode of application who may attend the examination and the proceedings thereof see Rules 172-74 at p 1074

The Court has the further power to cause in absconding contributory or to arrested and his books, papers and moveable properties to be seized (s 147)

The above ordinary and extraordinary powers of the Court are in addition to any existing powers of instituting proceedings against any contributory or holder of the company or his estate for the recovery of any call or other sum (s 148)

Enforcement of and Appeal from Orders

As to the enforcement of the orders of the Court see ss 191 to 201 and notes and rehearings of and appeals from any order or decision in the matter of winding up of a company by the Court see ss 202 and notes at p 171-80

A company may under s 203 be wound up voluntarily in the following cases —

(1) by an ordinary resolution of the company requiring it to be wound up voluntarily when, (a) the period fixed for the duration of the company expires or (b) the event occurs on the occurrence of which the articles provide that the company is to be dissolved

(2) by a special resolution that the company be wound up voluntarily

(3) by an extraordinary resolution to the effect that the company cannot by reason of its liabilities continue its business and that it is advisable to wind it up

As to what are extraordinary and special resolutions and how they are to be passed see the amended s 81 and notes thereto

As to the form of notice of a general meeting to pass an extraordinary resolution to wind up voluntarily see Form 142 at p 1055 and for the form of notice of a meeting to pass a special resolution to wind up voluntarily see Form 143 at p 1056

A voluntary winding up is deemed to commence at the time of the passing of the resolution for voluntarily winding up (s 204). The expression resolution for voluntarily winding up means a resolution passed under clauses (1) (2) or (3) of the amended s 203. From that time the company must cease to carry on its business except so far as may be required for the beneficial winding up of the company. But notwithstanding anything to the contrary in the articles the corporate state and corporate powers of the company will continue until it is dissolved (s 205)

Within 10 days of the passing of any special or extraordinary resolution for winding up voluntarily the company must advertise the notice of such resolution as provided in s 206 (1). As to the penalty for default see s 206 (2). The form of such notice has been given at p 1056 (Form 144)

New Provisions relating to Voluntary Winding up

For the original sections 207 to 219, the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936 has reproduced ss 230 to 252 and 254 and 255 of the English Act of 1929 in the new ss 207 to 218. Two kinds of voluntary winding up have been introduced—(1) a members' voluntary winding up and (2) a creditors' voluntary winding up.

Where the directors at a meeting held before the date on which the notices of the general meeting at which the resolution for winding up is to be proposed are sent out make a declaration verified by an affidavit to the effect that upon making a full enquiry into the affairs of the company they have formed the opinion that the company will be able to pay its debts in full within a period not exceeding 3 years from the date of the passing of the resolution for winding up the company voluntarily, the winding up will be a members' voluntary winding up. The declaration must be supported by a report of the company's auditors and be delivered to the registrar for registration. Where such a declaration is not made the winding up will be a creditors' voluntary winding up [see the new s 207].

Members' voluntary winding up

The company in general meeting shall appoint one or more liquidators and may fix their remuneration. On the appointment of a liquidator all the powers of the directors shall cease except so far as the company in general meeting or the liquidator sanctions the continuance thereof (s 205A).

If a vacancy occurs in the office of liquidator the company in general meeting may subject to any arrangement with the creditors fill the vacancy (see s 205B).

As to the power of the liquidator to accept shares &c in consideration for the whole or part of the business or property of the company and the procedure for completing the transaction see s 205C.

As to the duty of the liquidator to call a general meeting at the end of each year and of laying before the meeting an account of his acts and dealings and of the conduct of the winding up see subs (1) of s 205D. For the consequences of default see subs (2).

As soon as the affairs of the company are fully wound up the liquidator shall make up an account of the winding up and call a general meeting for laying before it the account [subs (1) of s 205E]. The notice of the meeting should be given in accordance with subs (2).

Within 1 week after the meeting the liquidator shall send to the registrar a copy of the account and shall make a return to him of the holding of the meeting and in default shall be liable to penalty [see subs (3) of s 205F].

On the expiration of 3 months from the registration of the return the company will be deemed to be dissolved but the Court may on the application of the liquidator or any interested person make an order deferring the date of dissolution [see subs (4)]. The person on whose application such an order is made must within 21 days of the order deliver to the registrar a certified copy of the order and in default will be liable to a penalty [see subs (5)].

Creditors' voluntary winding up

In the case of a creditors' voluntary winding up the company is to cause a meeting of the creditors to be summoned and notices thereof sent and advertised at the time and in the manner mentioned in s 209A. As to the statement to be laid before the meeting and the procedure thereat see sub ss (3) and (4) of s 209A. For the consequences of contravention of the provisions thereof see sub s (6).

The creditors and the company at their respective meetings mentioned in s 209A will nominate a person to be liquidator and if they nominate different persons the final decision will rest with the Court (s 209B).

As to the appointment of a committee of inspection and the composition thereof see s 209C.

The committee of inspection or if there is no such committee the creditors may fix the remuneration of the liquidator and where the remuneration is not so fixed it will be determined by the Court [sub s (1) of s 209D].

On the appointment of a liquidator all the powers of the directors shall cease except so far as the committee of inspection or the creditors sanction the continuance thereof [sub s (2) of s 209D].

Any vacancy in the office of a liquidator other than a liquidator appointed by the Court may be filled by the creditors (s 209E).

The power of liquidator to accept shares to in consideration for the whole or a part of the company's business or property mentioned in s 209C shall not be exercised except with the sanction of the Court or the committee of inspection (s 209F).

As to the duty of the liquidator to call meetings of the company and of the creditors at the end of each year and of laying before the meetings an account of the dealings and of the conduct of the winding up see s 209G. As to the consequences of default see sub s (2) thereof.

The provisions for the final meeting and dissolution are similar to those in a members' voluntary winding up mentioned above (see s 209H).

Provisions applicable to either mode of winding up

As to the distribution of the company's property see s 211. For the powers and duties of a liquidator see s 212.

If from any cause whatever there is no liquidator acting the Court may appoint one. The Court may on cause shown remove a liquidator and appoint another in his place (s 213).

The liquidator must within 21 days after his appointment deliver to the registrar a notice of his appointment [see Form 67 at p 110b and sub s (1) of s 214]. For the consequences of default see sub s (2) of s 214.

Any arrangement between a company about to be or in the course of being wound up and its creditors shall, subject to the right of appeal under s 215 be binding on the company if sanctioned by an extraordinary resolution and on the company if acceded to by three fourths in number and value of the creditors [sub s (1) of s 215]. Any creditor or contributory may within 3 weeks from the completion of the arrangement appeal to the Court against it and the Court may vary or confirm the arrangement [sub s (2) of s 215].

INTRODUCTION

Where a company finds it difficult to carry on its business on account of pressure from its creditors it may proceed under s 153, s 215, s 204C or s 204F if any satisfactory arrangement is possible

Power to apply to Court

The voluntary liquidator or any creditor or contributory of the company has the right to apply to the Court to determine any question arising in the winding up or to exercise as respects the enforcing of call or any other matter all or any of the powers which the Court might exercise in a compulsory winding up (s 216)

The liquidator or any contributory or creditor may apply for an order setting aside any attachment distress or execution put into force against the estate or effects of the company after the commencement of the winding up or after the resolution for voluntary winding up is passed

Such application shall be made—(a) if the attachment &c are put into force by a High Court to such High Court (b) if the attachment &c are put into force by any other Court, then to the Court having jurisdiction to wind up the company [see sub s (2) of s 216]

Under the powers conferred by s 216 the Court can stay suits and proceedings against the company and order delivery of books and examination of persons. In short it will exercise all the powers exercisable in a compulsory winding up if it thinks that such exercise of power will be just and beneficial (see s 216 and notes at pp 511 14)

For the application of the Rules printed in App H in the case of a voluntary winding up see Rule 186 p 1076

Other Provisions

All costs, charges and expenses properly incurred in the voluntary winding up including the liquidator's remuneration are subject to the rights of the secured creditors if any payable out of the assets in priority to all other claims. Next come the debts mentioned in s 230. See s 217 and notes at pp 515 16

As to the rights of creditors and contributories to have the company wound up by the Court (but the Court must be satisfied that the rights of the contributories will be prejudiced by a voluntary winding up) see s 218 and notes thereto. Where such an order is made by the Court it may by the same or any subsequent order provide for the adoption of all or any of the proceedings in the voluntary winding up (s 220)

Winding Up subject to Supervision of Court

When a company has by special or extraordinary resolution (and not under sub s (1) of s 203) resolved to wind up voluntarily, the Court may make an order that the voluntary winding up shall continue but subject to the supervision of the Court and with such liberty for creditors, contributories or others to apply to the Court and generally on such terms and conditions as the Court thinks just (s 221). A petition therefor will for the purpose of giving jurisdiction to the Court over suits, be deemed to be a petition for winding up by the Court (s 222)

INTRODUCTION

In deciding between a winding up by the Court and that subject to its supervision and in all matters the Court may have regard to the wishes of the creditors or contributories as proved to it by any sufficient evidence (s 2-3)

As to the appointment of a liquidator or an additional liquidator the removal of a liquidator and the filling of vacancy see ss 223, 224 and 226

In a winding up under supervision of the Court the liquidator may, subject to any restrictions imposed by the Court exercise all its powers without the sanction or intervention of the Court as if the company were being wound up altogether voluntarily (s 225 (1)) Otherwise and except for the purposes of a public examination under s 196 order passed under s 221 will for all purposes including the staying of suits be deemed to be in order of the Court for winding up the company by the Court (ss s 225 (2) and (3))

General Provisions in All Modes of Winding Up.

In the case of a winding up by or subject to the supervision of the Court every disposition of property (including actionable claims) of the company and every transfer of shares or alteration in the status of the members made after the commencement of the winding up shall unless the Court otherwise orders be void. But in the case of a voluntary winding up only the latter that is the transfer of shares except with the sanction of the liquidator and every alteration of status of the members shall be void (s 227). In a winding up all debts and claims present or future certain or contingent will be admissible to proof (see s 228 and notes). But in the case of an insolvent company the law of insolvency and rules thereunder will apply. See s 229 and notes at pp 526-34

As to the debts which are payable in priority to all other debts see s 230 and notes at pp 535-38. By the addition of the new clauses (d) (e) and (f) in subs (1) of s 230 it has been provided that the compensation payable to an employee of the company under the Workmen's Compensation Act 1926 sums due to an employee from a provident pension or gratuity fund &c and the expenses of any investigation under s 138 shall also be paid in priority to all other debts. As to fraudulent preference by any transfer delivery of goods payment execution &c see s 231 and notes at pp 540-43

Where any company is being wound up by or subject to the supervision of the Court any attachment distress or execution put in force or any sale of properties held without leave of the Court in respect of the estate or effects of the company after the commencement of the winding up will be void. But this will not affect any proceedings by the Government. See the amended s 232 and notes

As to the effect of the commencement of winding up of a company upon a floating charge created by it within 6 months see s 233 and notes

Reproducing s 267 of the English Act of 1899 it has been provided in the new s 230A that the liquidator will be able with the leave of the Court to disclaim any property of the company burdened with onerous covenants notwithstanding that he has endeavoured to sell or has taken possession of the same or exercised any act of ownership in respect thereto. For the detailed provisions read s 230A

INTRODUCTION

Compromise and Arrangement

Subject to the control of the Court the liquidator may, with the sanction of the Court when the company is being wound up by or subject to the supervision of the Court and with the sanction of an extraordinary resolution of the company in the case of a voluntary winding up (i) pay any classes of creditors in full (ii) make any compromise or arrangement with the creditors and (iii) compromise all calls liabilities to calls debts &c in such terms as may be agreed (see s 234 and notes at pp 54b 51)

Misfeasance Proceedings

Where in the course of winding up of a company it appears that any promoter or any past or present director manager liquidator or officer of the company has misapplied or retained or become liable or accountable for any money or property of the company or been guilty of any misfeasance or breach of trust the Court may on the application of the liquidator or of any creditor or contributory examine into the conduct of the aforesaid persons and compel them to repay or restore the money or property with interest or to contribute such sum by way of compensation as the Court thinks fit. See s 235 and notes at pp 551 62

As to the mode of application directions for hearing and who may appear in such proceedings see Rules 175 77 at p 1015

An application for misfeasance is to be made within 3 years from the date of the first appointment of a liquidator or of the misapplication &c mentioned in the section whichever is longer [see the amended sub-s (1) of s 235]

Prosecutions for Falsification of Books &c giving False Evidence and other Offences

If any director manager officer or contributory of a company which is being wound up destroys mutilates alters or falsifies or fraudulently secretes any books papers or securities or invoices or is privy to the making of any false or fraudulent entry in any register book or document of the company with intent to defraud or deceive any person he will be liable to imprisonment for a term which may extend to 7 years and will also be liable to fine (s 236)

Following s 217 of the English Act of 1929 a new machinery has been provided in the new s 237 for the prosecution of directors managers or other officers or members (past or present) of a company if it appears to the Court in a winding up or to a voluntary liquidator that the aforesaid persons have been guilty of any offence in relation to the company for which they are criminally liable. For details of the procedure see s 237

For the penalty for giving false evidence in deposition or solemn affirmation &c see s 238

Following s 271 of the English Act of 1929 a large number of new offences have been created by the new s 239A and heavy punishments have been provided therefor. If any person being a past or present director, managing agent, manager or other officer of a company which at the time of the commission of the alleged offence was being wound up in any of the modes or is subsequently so wound up does or fails to do any of the acts mentioned in clauses (a) to (p) of sub s (1) of s 238A, he shall be punishable. Where any person pawn or pledges or disposes of any property in circumstances which amount to an offence under cl (a) referred to above every person who takes in pawn or pledge or otherwise receives the property knowing it to be pawned &c shall be punishable with imprisonment for a term not exceeding 3 years. For details read s 238A.

INTRODUCTION

Evidence Inspection and Disposal of Documents

In a winding up all documents of the company and of the liquidators are prima facie evidence as between the contributories (s 240).

After an order for a winding up by or subject to the supervision of the Court, the Court may make orders for inspection by creditors and contributories only of the documents of the company (s 241). As to the disposal of the documents of a company which has been wound up see s 242. After 3 years from the date of dissolution of a company no responsibility will rest on the company or the liquidator or any person to whom the custody of any document has been committed by reason of the same not being forthcoming [sub s (2) of s 242].

For the power of the Court to declare within 2 years the dissolution of a company to be void see s 243. The person on whose application such an order is made must within 21 days of the order file with the registrar a certified copy of the order. For the consequence of default see sub s (2) of s 243.

If the winding up of a company is not concluded within one year, the liquidator should file in Court or with the registrar once in each year and at intervals of not more than 12 months a statement in the prescribed form in respect of the proceedings in and position of the liquidation. See the amended s 244 and Rules 173 to 181 at p 1075. For the penalty for default see s 244 (3). The new sub s (4) provides that when the statement is filed in Court a copy shall simultaneously be filed with the registrar.

Affidavit

As to the Court or person before whom an affidavit for the purposes of winding up proceedings may be sworn see s 245.

Winding Up of Unregistered Companies

An unregistered company may be wound up under the present Act. All the provisions of this Act with respect to winding up will apply to an unregistered company with certain exceptions and additions mentioned in ss 271 to 276 (see notes to these sections).

For the meaning of an 'unregistered company' see s 270 and notes at p 590. Any partnership association or company consisting of more than 7 members may be wound up under the provisions of Chapter IX.

It has been provided by the new sub s (3) of s 271 that where a company incorporated outside British India ceases to carry on business in British India it may be wound up as an unincorporated company under Part IX notwithstanding that it has been dissolved or otherwise ceased to exist as a company under or by virtue of the laws of the country under which it was incorporated (see notes at p 593)

INTRODUCTION

Banking Companies

By the Companies (Amendment) Act 1963 a new Part namely, Part XX has been introduced making provisions regarding the banking companies

A banking company has been defined as a company which carries on as its principal business the accepting of deposits of money on current account or otherwise subject to withdrawal by cheque draft or order, notwithstanding that it engages in addition in any one or more of the forms of business mentioned in clauses (1) to (17) of s 277 E

After the commencement of the aforesaid Act that is after 15th January 1967 no company formed for the purpose of carrying on business as a banking company or which uses as part of its name the word bank banker or banking shall be registered unless the memorandum limit the objects of the company to the carrying on the business of a banking company as defined above [see sub s (1) of s 277 G]

No banking company shall after 15th January, 1967 employ or be managed by a managing agent other than a banking company for the management of the company (s 277 H)

No banking company shall after 15th January, 1967 commence business unless shares have been allotted to an amount sufficient to yield at least Rs 50 000 as working capital and unless a declaration verified by an affidavit signed by the directors and the manager that Rs 50 000 at least has been received by way of paid up capital has been filed with the registrar (s 277 I)

No banking company shall create any charge upon its unpaid capital and any such charge will be invalid

As to the provision for maintaining a reserve fund and the mode of its investment see s 277 K

Every banking company must maintain by way of cash reserve in cash a sum equal to at least $1\frac{1}{2}$ per cent of its time liabilities and 5 per cent of its demand liabilities and must file with the registrar before the 10th day of every month a statement of the amount so held on the Friday of each week of the preceding month with particulars of the time and demand liabilities of each such day (see s 277 I) But the provisions will not apply to a scheduled bank as defined in cl (e) of s 2 of the Reserve Bank Act 1934 [see sub s (3) of s 277 L]

For the consequences of default in complying with the requirements of ss 277 G 277 H 277 J, 277 K 277 L and 277 M (infra) see sub s (4) of s 277 L

A banking company shall not form or hold shares in any subsidiary company [for definition see sub s (2) of s 2] except a subsidiary company of its own formed for undertaking and executing trusts &c and such other purposes set forth in s 277F (RECL s 277M)

INTRODUCTION

As to the power given to the Court for staying suits and proceedings against a banking company which is temporarily unable to meet its obligations and the procedure for obtaining relief including the interim relief see s 277N

Supplemental

Legal Proceedings and Offences

No Court inferior to that of a Presidency Magistrate or a Magistrate of the first class can try any offence against the Act [s 278 (1)] All offences against the Act are non cognizable As to the power of summary conviction by a Presidency Magistrate see s 278 (2) and as to the application of the fines under the Act see s 279

Power to require Security for Costs from a Limited Company

Where a limited company is plaintiff or petitioner in a suit or other legal proceeding any Court having jurisdiction in the matter may require the company to give security for costs and may stay all proceedings until the security is given see s 280 and notes thereto

Power of Court to grant relief to Directors and others

If in any proceeding against a director, manager, managing agent, auditor or officer of a company in any Court for negligence, default, breach of duty or breach of trust it appears to such Court that such a person acted honestly and reasonably the Court may relieve him wholly or partly See the new s 281 and notes Where such a person has reason to apprehend that any claim will or might be made against him in respect of such negligence &c he may apply to the Court for relief and the Court that is, the Court having jurisdiction under s 1, shall have the same power to relieve him as the Court before whom any such suit or proceeding may be brought [sub s (2) of s 281]

Penalties for False Statements and Improper Use of "Limited"

As to the penalty for wilful false statements in any return, report, certificate, balance sheet or other documents see s 282 and notes at pp 612-14 and as to the penalty for improper use of the word "limited" by any person or persons see s 283

Penalty for Wrongful Withholding of Property

By the new s 282A severe punishment has been provided for wrongful withholding or misapplication of a company's property by any director, managing agent, manager or other officer or employee of the company and a more severe punishment for failing to deliver up or refund the same within a time to be fixed by the Court trying the offence

Penalty for Misapplication of the Employees' Securities &c

All moneys or securities deposited with a company by its employees in pursuance of their contracts of service shall be kept or deposited by the company in a special account in a scheduled bank [sub s (1) of s 282B]

Where a provident fund has been constituted by a company for its employees all moneys contributed to such fund (whether by the company or by the employees) including interest &c shall after 15th January 1947

INTRODUCTION

be invested in securities mentioned or referred to in clauses (a) to (e) of s 20 of the Indian Trusts Act 1850. An employee will be entitled on request to see the bank receipt for any money or security referred to in sub s (1) & (2) of s 252B. For the consequences of contravention of the provisions see sub s (5) of s 252F.

Table A

In the case of a company limited by shares if articles are not registered or if articles are registered in so far as they do not exclude or modify the regulations in Table A those regulations shall so far as applicable be the regulations of the company (see s 18).

The Companies (Amendment) Act 1931 has by amending sub s (2) of s 18 provided that the articles of a company shall be deemed to contain regulations 56 (1) 71 78 80 81 82 95 97 105 107, 112 113 114, 115 and 116. Thus these regulations have been made compulsory.

The regulation 78 shall not be deemed to be included in the articles of a private company except one which is the subsidiary company of a public company. Regulation 101 shall be deemed to require that a statement of the reasons why of the whole amount of any item of expenditure which may in future be distributed over several years only a portion thereof is charged against the income of the year shall be shown in the profit and loss account unless the company in general meeting shall determine otherwise [see the provisions to sub s (2) of s 17].

As to other compulsory provisions in the articles of a company see s 79.

By the Companies (Amendment) Act the following regulations of Table A have been amended namely regulations 3 4 5 20 41 44 46 49 51 60 65 77 83 97 and 107. By the same Act the new regulation 44A has been introduced and the new regulations 103 104 and 106 have been substituted for the old ones. For the amendments and alterations see all the regulations and compare them with the corresponding articles of Table A of the English Act of 1921.

TO

Mr. K. M. Ghosh's Company Law, Third Edition

(Containing all Amendments in the Act, Rules, Forms, High Court Rules, Stamp Law &c. made, and Additional Cases reported, up to the end of March, 1938).

ACT No. II OF 1913.

An Act further to amend the Indian Companies Act, 1913, for certain purposes

[Received the assent of the Governor General on the 26th February, 1938]

WHEREAS it is expedient further to amend the Indian Companies Act, 1913, for the purposes hereinafter appearing ;
It is hereby enacted as follows —

1. This Act may be called the Indian Companies (Amendment) Act, 1938.

Although the privilege of limited liability was not conferred on the members, several important provisions relating to the management of joint stock companies were, for the first time enacted i.e., provisions relating to—
Salient features of earliest company legislation holding of one or more general meetings every year, holding of extraordinary general meetings upon the requisition of seven or more members, prohibition as to purchase by the company of its own shares or grant of a loan to any person on the security of such shares, prohibition of and restriction to granting loans to the directors and officers of the company or

their becoming security or guarantee for any loan half yearly audit and report by auditors on balance sheet and profit and loss account There were provisions regarding transfer of shares Trusts were not recognized Suit by or against a company registered under the Act 1 was allowed to be instituted in its registered name The company was permitted to sue and be sued by its shareholders and thus its distinct entity was recognized Unpaid capital was a debt to the company In the case of insolvent companies there were provisions like the winding up proceedings, and the directors might be examined on oath as provided in the present Act Rateable contributions were to be realized from the shareholders for payment of the company's debts Liability of past members was indicated and finally the company was to be dissolved This the Act of 1850 may be said to be the nucleus about which subsequent Companies Acts developed though strictly speaking they were all enacted on the lines of the English Companies Acts

In 1850 an Act 2 for the incorporation and regulation of Joint Stock Companies and other Associations either with or without limited liability of the members thereof was passed but under this Act the privilege of limited liability was not extended to any company formed for the purpose of banking or insurance 3 This disability was removed by Act VII of 1850 passed on the lines of the English Act of 1857 Then following the English Act of 1862 a comprehensive Act 4 was passed in India in 1866 for consolidating and amending the laws relating to the incorporation regulation and winding up of Trading Companies and other Associations This Act was recast in 1882 5 embodying the amendments that were made in the company law in England up to that time

Between the years 1882 and 1913 the following amending Acts were passed in India

Act VI of 1882—providing for priority of debts in the winding up of a company

Act VII of 1891—making some verbal corrections and introducing the word hundi after the word bill in s 144 cl (f) of Act VI of 1882

Act VII of 1890—giving power to companies to alter their objects or forms of constitution subject to confirmation by the High Court

Act II of 1900—authorizing certain companies to keep branch register of members in the United Kingdom

Act II of 1910—authorizing payment of interest out of capital and re issue of redeemed debentures

Then following the English Companies (Consolidation) Act 1908 the present Companies Act 6 was passed in India in 1913 which is as were the previous Acts almost a verbatim re-production of the English Act 7 Some minor amendments 8 were later on effected to the Indian Act which will be mentioned in their proper places

8 Acts X & XI of 1911 Act VI of 1912, Act VII & LVII of 1910, Act XXXIII of 1912, Act XIX of 1900 and Act I of 1910.

The most extensive amendments chiefly on the lines of the new provisions introduced in the English Companies Act of 1929 have been made by the Indian Companies (Amendment) Act 1936 which received the assent of the Governor General on the 27th October 1936. The provisions of this amending Act have been incorporated in this work and have been shown in italics.

In the preamble of Act VI of 1852 after the words law relating to there occurred the words the incorporation regulation and winding up of which have been omitted in the present Act. In the English Act there is no such preamble. No doubt a preamble can be looked at when the section is ambiguous and it supplies a key to the mind of the legislature and indicates what its intention was but where the language of the section is clear a preamble cannot control its provisions 1. A preamble cannot be taken to have cut down the express provisions of a statute 2.

If it is not open to the Courts to question the right of the legislature to go beyond what was stated in the preamble as the reason for the legislation, for the legislature may very well have done actually a little more than what it started to do 3.

A consolidating Act should be construed not with reference to the circumstances existing at the time of the preceding Acts but in relation to those existing at the time of the consolidating Act. The first step taken should be to interpret the language of the statute and an appeal to earlier decisions can only be justified on some special ground 4. Lord Halsbury (Lord Chancellor) observed: It seems to me that construing the statute by adding to it words which are neither found therein nor for which authority could be found in the language of the statute itself is to go against one of the most familiar rules of construction and I am wholly unable to adopt the view that where a statute is expressly said to codify the law you are at liberty to go outside the code so created because before the existence of that code another law prevailed 5. The question is not what may be supposed to have been intended but what has been said 6.

The positive enactment in a statute cannot be qualified or neutralized by indications of intention gathered from previous legislations upon the same subject 7. Their Lordships of the Judicial Committee observed: The respondent maintained this singular proposition that in dealing with a consolidating statute each enactment must be tried to its original source and when that is discovered must be construed according to the state of circumstances which existed when it first became law. The proposition has neither law nor reason to recommend it. The very object of consolidation is to collect the statutory law bearing upon a particular subject and to bring it down to date in order that it may form a useful code applicable to the circumstances existing at the time when the consolidation

Act is passed 1 In a subsequent case 2 their Lordships indicated a modification of this principle in the following words: 'It is a sound rule of interpretation to take the words of a statute as they stand and to interpret them ordinarily without any reference to the previous state of the law on the subject or the English law upon which it may be founded, but when it is contended that the legislature intended by any particular amendment to make substantial changes in the pre-existing law, it is impossible to arrive at a conclusion without considering what the law was previously to the particular enactment and to see whether the words used in the statute can be taken to effect the change that is suggested as intended.'

The practice of referring to the proceedings of the legislature has been disapproved in the following passage 3 Their Lordships observe that the learned Judge who constituted the majority in the appellate Court, although they do not base their judgment upon them, refer to the proceedings of the legislature. Their Lordships think it right to express their dissent from that proposition. The same reason which excludes these considerations when the clauses of an Act of the British legislature are under construction are equally current in the case of an Indian statute. Reference to the report of the select committee and proceedings in the legislature is not permissible in aid of the interpretation of a statutory provision 4

A reference to the report of the Indian Law Commissioners have, however, been held to be permissible though proceedings of the Legislative Council, report of the select committee thereof, drafts of a bill and statement of objects and reasons are not permissible 5

The statement of object and reasons is not part of an Act and is not to be referred to by the Courts in its interpretation. What the Courts have to interpret is the Act as it has finally emerged from the legislature. What the authors of the bill hoped that the Act might achieve is a different matter 6

When a clause in an Act has received a judicial interpretation and is re-enacted in the same terms the legislature is deemed to have adopted that interpretation 7 In this view the decisions passed under the previous Companies Act especially under Act VI of 1902 Act V of 1906 and the English Act of 1902 are still valuable so far as the same language has been repeated in the present Act 8 The Court however is not bound to adopt a construction erroneously placed on the former Acts 9 But the application of a decision may be excluded by a change in the language of the new Act 1 The Companies Act should be construed fairly and not narrowly 2

On account of the extensive amendments made by the Companies (Amendment) Act, 1936 it is necessary to consider the effect of the amendments on the existing rights and obligations of companies as well as other persons In general it may be said that repeal or amendment of an Act does not affect a right already in existence unless a contrary intention is made out expressly or by implication 3 The application of an Act is when the parties begin to move under it 4

Unless there be something such as Lord Cranworth in the language context or objects of an Act of Parliament showing contrary intention the duty and practice of Courts of Justice is to presume in conformity with the usage of Lord Coke that the legislature enacts prospectively and not retrospectively 5

No rule of construction is more firmly established than this that a retrospective operation is not to be given to a statute so far as to impair an existing right or obligation otherwise than as regards procedure unless that effect cannot be avoided without doing violence to the language of the enactment If the enactment is expressed in language which is fairly capable of either interpretation it ought to be construed as prospectively only 6 It would be most dangerous construction to give a retrospective effect to a statute by implication 7 A statute is not to be construed to have a greater retrospective operation than its language renders necessary 8 'When you are construing an Act which makes changes in the law You will not construe the words unless they are clearly to that effect so as to upset vested rights and liabilities which have been complete in themselves' 9

But as regards procedure, no person has a vested right in any course of procedure 10 The general principle is that alteration in procedure is always retrospective unless there be some good reason against it 11 The principle which their Lordships must apply in dealing with this matter has been authoritatively enunciated by the Board in Colonial Sugar Refining Co v. Irwin 12 where it is in effect laid down that while provisions of a statute dealing merely with matters of procedure may properly unless that construction be textually inadmissible have retrospective effect attributed to them provisions which touch a right in existence at the passing of the statute are not to be applied retrospectively in the absence of express enactment or necessary intendment¹

Even where a section finds a place in a procedure code, but imposes in essence a serious restriction upon the title of a person retrospective effect will not be given to its words²

In general when the law is altered during pendency of an action, the rights of Pending the parties are decided according to the law as it existed when the action actions well as to the new statute shows a clear intention to vary such rights³

So far as the right of appeal is concerned alteration of a statute does not either give it or take it away. Where a right of appeal to the Privy Council was given by an amendment Act the Lordships of the Judicial Committee held that the amendment Act had no retrospective operation. Their Lordships can have no doubt that provisions which if applied retrospectively would deprive of their existing finality orders which when the statute came into force were final, are provisions which touch existing rights⁴. On the other hand in *Colonial Sugar Refining Co v IRC*⁵ the Lordships said: To deprive a suitor in a pending action of an appeal to a superior tribunal which belonged to him as of right is a very different thing from regulating procedure. In principle their Lordships see no difference between abolishing an appeal altogether and transferring the appeal to a new tribunal. In either case there is an interference with existing rights contrary to the well known general principle that statutes are not to be held to act retrospectively unless a clear intention to that effect is manifest⁶

In determining either the general object of the legislature or the meaning of its language in any particular passage it is of course that the intention which appears to be most in accord with convenience, reason justice and legal principles would in all cases of doubtful significance, be presumed to be the true one⁷. If there is ambiguity as to the meaning of a disabling section, e.g. provisions for registration of business names the construction which is in favour of the freedom of the individual should be given effect to⁸. A meaning cannot be attributed to a section based on the reading of a repealed section. The section must be interpreted as it stands on the relevant date⁹. Where an Act does not expressly purport to supersede an earlier one it should be interpreted so as to avoid conflict with the latter if possible 1

If a new enactment is such that certain new rights unknown previously to law are created by the new statute and certain remedies are provided for the infringement of such rights it must logically follow that it was the clear intention of the legislature that such remedies should be enforced only in the manner and by following the procedure indicated. But the Indian Companies Act must be regarded as an Act merely legislative for or regulating certain rights recognized under the common law of England 2

In considering the construction of a section in an Indian Act which is professedly based on an English enactment and which it reproduces almost word for word the language of the English enactment and which relates to a branch of the law which is entirely English law the Courts of India are in practice if not in theory bound by the decisions of the English Court of Appeal 3

As pointed out by Sulistman C J where the language of the sections of the English and the Indian Acts are identical Indian Courts would very much hesitate to depart from the view expressed by eminent Judges in England who have had great experience of company law unless there is something internal in the section itself which would justify its interpretation in a different way 4. But because a section of an Indian Act is copied from an English Act it should not be interpreted contrary to the statute law of India as contained in another Act e.g. the Provincial Insolvency Act 5. Now that the Indian legislature is gradually evolving an independent system of its own even in respect of the company law, as evidenced by the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936 the following caution of their Lordships of the Judicial Committee should be borne in mind in interpreting the company law. It has often been pointed out by this Board that where there is a positive enactment of the Indian legislature the proper course is to examine the language of that statute and to ascertain its proper meaning uninfluenced by any consideration derived from the previous state of the law— or of the English law upon which it may have been founded 6.

Whereas it is expedient to consolidate and amend the law relating to Trading Companies and other Associations, it is hereby enacted as follows:—

PART I.

PRELIMINARY

- Short title commencement and extent (1) This Act may be called the Indian Companies Act, 1913
(2) It shall come into force on the first day of April 1914; and

(3) It extends to the whole of British India including British Baluchistan and the Santhal Parganas ground that an old Regulation of Bengal was under the consideration of the Judicial Committee in the above Privy Council decision and that their Lordships' opinion was not applicable to Acts of the regular legislatures since established. The decision of Scott, C. J. however appears to be wrong as the Privy Council have recently reiterated their opinion that a Court of law is bound to read a section without the comments inserted in the print.

Definitions 2. (1) In this Act, unless there is any thing repugnant in the subject or context,—

- (1) "articles" means the articles of association of a company as originally framed or as altered by special resolution including so far as they apply to the company, the regulations contained (as the case may be) in Table B in the Schedule annexed to Act No XIX of 1857 or in Table A in the First Schedule annexed to the Indian Companies Act, 1882, or in Table A in the First Schedule annexed to this Act
- (2) "company" means a company formed and registered under this Act or an existing company
- (3) "the Court" means the Court having jurisdiction under this Act
- (4) "debenture" includes debenture stock
- (5) "director" includes any person occupying the position of a director by whatever name called
- (6) "District Court" means the principal Civil Court of original jurisdiction in a district, but does not include a High Court in the exercise of its ordinary original civil jurisdiction
- (7) "existing company" means a company formed and registered under the Indian Companies Act, 1882 or under any Act or Acts repealed thereby, or under the Indian Companies Act 1882
- (8) "Insurance company" means a company that carries on the business of insurance either solely or in common with any other business or businesses
- (9) "manager" means a person who, subject to the control and direction of the directors, has the management of the whole

Headings Headings prefixed to sections are considered as preambles to those sections. They constitute an important part of the Act itself and afford a better key to the construction of sections which follow them than preambles to the Act 1

These various headings," observed Baron Chunnell, "are not to be treated as if they were marginal notes or were introduced into the Act merely for the purpose of classifying the enactments. They constitute an important part of the Act itself. They may be read I think, not only as explaining the sections which immediately follow them as a preamble to a statute may be looked to to explain the enactments but as affording as it appears to me a better key to the constructions of the sections which follow them than might be afforded by a mere preamble."

It is now settled law that headings prefixed to the bill passed by the legislature have the force of words used in the preamble of an Act and may be used as 'a key to open the minds of the makers of the Act,' and in this respect are unlike marginal headings which have no force for the purpose of interpretation'. ■ A heading to a group of sections cannot however be pressed into a constructive limitation upon the exercise of powers given by the express word of the Act 4

Marginal notes are no part of the sections. They are merely abstracts of the clauses intended to catch the eye and to make the task of reference easier and more expeditious. In Bahay v Jagat Pal 6 their Lordships of the Judicial Committee laid down the law in the following words: 'It is well settled that marginal notes to the sections of an Act of Parliament can not be referred to for the purpose of construing the Act.' The contrary opinion originated in a mistake and it has been exploded long ago. There seems to be no reason for giving the marginal notes in an Indian statute any greater authority than the marginal notes in the English Act of Parliament.

Their Lordships think' observed the Judicial Committee, 'that it is an error to rely on punctuation in construing Acts of the legislature.' The soundness of this principle said Strachey C J 'is well illustrated in the present instance by the fact that in the original edition of the Indian Divorce Act there is not a colon at the end of the fourth paragraph of S 17, but a full stop's Scott C J in the undermentioned case, distinguished the above decisions on the

- (1) "articles" means the articles of association of a company as originally framed or as altered by special resolution, including, so far as they apply to the company, the regulations contained (as the case may be) in Table B in the Schedule annexed to Act No XIX of 1857 or in Table A in the First Schedule annexed to the Indian Companies Act, 1882, or in Table A in the First Schedule annexed to this Act;
- (2) "company" means a company formed and registered under this Act or an existing company;
- (3) "the Court" means the Court having jurisdiction under this Act;
- (4) "debenture" includes debenture stock;
- (5) "director" includes any person occupying the position of a director by whatever name called;
- (6) "District Court" means the principal Civil Court of original jurisdiction in a district, but does not include a High Court in the exercise of its ordinary original civil jurisdiction;
- (7) "existing company" means a company formed and registered under the Indian Companies Act, 1880, or under any Act or Acts repealed thereby, or under the Indian Companies Act, 1882;
- (8) "insurance company" means a company that carries on the business of insurance either solely or in common with any other business or businesses;
- (9) "manager" means a person who, subject to the control and direction of the directors, has the management of the whole affairs of a company, and includes a director or any other person occupying the position of a manager by whatever name called and whether under a contract of service or not

- (9A) 'managing agent' means a person, firm or company entitled to the management of the whole affairs of a company by virtue of an agreement with the company, and under the control and direction of the directors except to the extent, if any, otherwise provided for in the agreement, and includes any person, firm or company occupying such position by whatever name called

Explanation—If a person occupying the position of a managing agent calls himself a manager he shall nevertheless be regarded as managing agent and not as manager for the purposes of this Act

- (10) "memorandum" means the memorandum of association of a company as originally framed or as altered in pursuance of the provisions of this Act
- (11) "officer" includes any director, managing agent, manager, or secretary but, save in sections 235, 236, and 237, does not include an auditor
- (12) "prescribed" means as respects the provisions of this Act relating to the winding up of companies, prescribed by rules made by the High Court, and, as respects the other provisions of this Act, prescribed by the Governor General in Council :
- (17) "private company" means a company which by its articles—
- (a) restricts the right to transfer its shares, if any, and
 - (b) limits the number of its members to fifty not including persons who are in the employment of the company, and
 - (c) prohibits any invitation to the public to subscribe for the shares, if any, or debentures of the company,

Provided that where two or more persons hold one or more shares in a company jointly they shall, for the purposes of this definition, be treated as a single member

- (18A) "public company" means a company incorporated under this Act or under the Indian Companies Act, 1882 or under the Indian Companies Act 1866, or under any Act in force therein, which is not a private company

- (11) "prospectus" means any prospectus, notice, circular, advertisement or other invitation, offering to the public for subscription or purchase any shares or debentures of a company, but shall not include any trade advertisement which shows on the face of it that a formal prospectus has been prepared and filed
- (12) "the registrar" means a registrar or assistant registrar performing under this Act the duty of registration of companies : and

"Section 2.—After paragraph (16) insert—

"(17) 'trading corporation' means a trading corporation within the meaning of Item 33 in Part I in the Seventh Schedule to the Government of India Act, 1935".

In s 1 Act VI of 1852, which is replaced by the present section only the words 'Court, District Court and Insurance Company' were defined

In this section the following amendments have been made by the Indian Companies (Amendment) Act (No XXII of 1938) (i) The new cl (9) has been substituted for the original cl (9) thus altering the definition of "manager", (ii) by the Amendment new clause (9A) a definition of 'managing agent' has been inserted, (iii) in cl (11) the words 'managing agent' have been put in after the words 'director', (iv) the new cl (12) has been substituted for the old cl (13) thus altering the definition of private company, (v) a new cl (13A) has been inserted defining public company, (vi) the words in italics have been added to the definition of 'promoter' in cl (14) and the new sub-section (2) has been added defining subsidiary company. See notes under the respective headings

The effect of an interpretation clause is to give the meaning assigned by it to the word interpreted in all places of the Act in which that word occurs¹, unless the Effect of contrary plainly appears. Where a definition includes certain persons or things it does not therefore necessarily exclude other persons or things not so included for when a definition is intended to be exclusive, it would seem the form of words is "means and includes"². The definitions and interpretation clauses not only do not control but are controlled by subsequent and express provisions on the subject matter of the same definitions³.

In coming to a determination observed their Lordships of the Privy Council, 'as to the meaning of a particular word in a particular Act of Parliament it is permissible to consider two points: (i) the external evidence derived from extraneous circumstances such as previous legislation and decided cases (ii) internal evidence derived from the Act itself'. As was said by the Lord Chancellor in *Brophy v AG of Manitoba*⁴ the question is not what may be supposed to have been intended but what has been said⁵.

It is a sound rule of construction", said Clerk by B., 'to give the same meaning to the same words occurring in different parts of an Act of Parliament'⁶. 'We disclaim altogether', observed Lord Dunsan 'The assumption of any right to assign different meanings to the same words in an Act of Parliament on the ground of a supposed general intention'⁷.

(f) Articles — As to articles of association generally see s 19 and notes. They may be altered by special resolution⁸, see notes to s 17-22.

(g) Company — An existing company has been defined in cl (7), sub-s (1) of this section.

One of the leading differences between a company and an ordinary partnership is that in the former a member can and in the latter he cannot sell his shares without the consent of all other members 1. An unincorporated company is distinguished from a partnership means some association of members the shares of which are transferable 2. In the case of an incorporated company besides the transferability of its shares there are other important distinctions 3, while in an ordinary partnership each partner is personally liable for all debts contracted or all wrongs committed by the firm 4. In an incorporated company the members have no individual liability in these matters and their personal liability is satisfied as soon as they paid the calls 4. There are other fundamental differences between a company incorporated under this Act and a partnership. For example, in a partnership one partner cannot transfer his share without the consent of the other partners while in a limited company no such consent is necessary and they are freely transferable except so far as is restricted by the articles of association 5. In a partnership each partner is an agent of the firm to make contracts 6 while the members of a limited company are not its agents for any purpose whatsoever. Again the liability of each partner for the debts of the firm is unlimited while that of each shareholder in a limited company may be limited by shares or guarantee. A limited company cannot buy its own shares 7.

A company formed or registered under the Act is a distinct legal entity 8. It can own and deal with property, sue and be sued in its own name contract on its own behalf and the members are not personally entitled to the benefits or liable for the burdens arising therefrom. Once the company is incorporated it must be treated like any other independent person and the motives of those who promoted it are irrelevant 9. It is altogether a different person from the subscribers to the memorandum of association even if they consist of a family, only one of whom holds all the shares and the others holding one share each 10 (see notes to s 23). But it does not necessarily follow that every alleged transaction between such individual and the company would be valid or that it would represent a real transaction 11.

In order to redress a wrong done to a company or to recover moneys or damages by the company the action should be brought by the company itself 12 except where the persons against whom the relief is sought themselves hold and control the majority of the shares and will not permit an action to be brought in the name of the company. In that case the Court allows the share

1. Id. in complaining to bring an action in their own names. But this indulgence is confined to those cases in which the act complained of is of a fraudulent character or irregular. No mere informality which can be remedied by the majority will entitle the minority to sue if the act when done regularly would be within the powers of the company. Where fraud is alleged observed Morton C. J., and where consequently it is alleged that the suit is one of the recognized exceptions to the principles laid down in Foss v. Harbottle. It will I think generally be found that the case is allowed to go to trial to ascertain the fact before it is finally determined whether action of the majority can in fact bind the minority. This is because until the facts are ascertained with some degree of certainty it is difficult to say what is the precise action of the majority and whether it is confined on the one hand to those matters of internal management where the majority of the shareholders can rightly impose their will upon the minority or whether on the other hand it is one of those cases in which the assets of the company are being improperly distributed by an attempt to pay them into the pockets of the majority or into the pockets of the directors of the company or their friends at the expense of the minority. 4

Even where a minority of shareholders are alleged to have been overborne by the vote of a majority the former cannot complain of acts which are valid if done with the approval of the majority or are capable of being confirmed by the majority, mere irregularity or informality which can be remedied by the majority being insufficient. 5

Where an action is brought by shareholders the plaintiffs should distinctly allege the illegality of the act complained of and the impossibility of getting the company to impeach its validity. Mere irregularities committed by the directors cannot give a cause of action to shareholder and entitle them to challenge the validity of the resolutions passed and the aggrieved shareholder must appeal to the company. The supremacy of the majority of shareholders is subject to certain exceptions viz., (a) where the act complained of is ultra vires the company, (b) where the act complained of is a fraud on the minority and (c) where there is absolute necessity to waive the rule in order that there may not be a denial of justice. 5

The Court does not interfere for the purpose of forcing companies to conduct their business according to the strictest rules where the irregularity complained of could be set right at any moment. 5 In the last cited case the suit was a sequel to a resolution passed by the board and an extraordinary resolution passed in a general meeting and confirmed as a special resolution. In pursuance of the last two resolutions an agreement was executed by another company the effect of which was to appoint the latter as managing agent of the former company. The plaintiffs who were some of the directors brought this suit for challenging the said resolutions and the respective meetings in which they were passed and for a declaration that the said resolutions were invalid and for an injunction restraining the latter company from acting on the agreement.

5. Thaykar v. Shinkar (supra) following Foss v. Harbottle (supra).

The above are the general rules strictly adhered to but there may be exceptions where justice of the case requires it 1 But in a case where the company ought to be the plaintiff the shareholder must exhaust all reasonable means to get the suit instituted by the company before he brings the suit himself 2 In a case in which the ground of action is the fraud of the majority it is not necessary that a meeting of shareholders should first be called 3

In a case of urgency the intending plaintiff may use the company's name but at his peril In such an action the Court may give interlocutory relief taking care that a general meeting be called as early as possible to determine whether the action has really the support of the majority 4 If it appears that the company's name has been used improperly, the suit will be struck out 5 and either the solicitor 6 or the person who instructed him 7 will have to pay the company's costs as between party and party 8

A single shareholder may sue the company to enforce any individual right of his own, e.g., his right to have his vote recorded 9 or his right as a director to restrain his co-directors from excluding him from the board 10

When the company is in liquidation the only persons to whom the Court has any jurisdiction to give leave to use the company's name are the creditors and the contributories 11

As soon as the company goes into liquidation the minority shareholders are no longer at the mercy of the majority wrongly retaining the property of the company by the strength of their votes If the liquidator acting at the behest of the majority refuses when requested to take action in the name of the company against them it is open to any contributory to apply to the Court and under s 215 it is open to the Court on cause shown either to direct the liquidator to proceed in the company's name or on proper terms as to indemnity and otherwise to give to the applicant leave to use the company's name as plaintiff in any action necessary to be brought for the vindication of the company's rights Nor is the contributory confined to that form of procedure It would be open to him so far as the directors are concerned without leave from any one, and by motion or summons on the winding up jurisdiction himself to bring the directors before the Court and obtain relief on the company's account 12

Lloyd Owen v Bull (supra)

Where a dissident minority seek redress against the action of the majority, the former must show that the action of the majority is ultra vires or that the Ultra vires majority have abused the powers and are depriving the minority of their rights 1

If an act is not ultra vires the corporation and which, therefore, might be done with the approval of a majority, be done irregularly and without such approval then the majority are the only persons who can complain 2 and the Court will not entertain the complaint except at the instance of the majority and in a proceeding in which the corporation is the plaintiff 3

A single shareholder suing on behalf of himself and others or suing alone 4, may bring the company as defendant and may restrain the company and the directors from doing an act which is illegal 5, or criminal 6 or ultra vires the corporation and which the majority are consequently incompetent to affirm 7 'If one individual having an interest implies of an act of the whole company or the executive of the whole company as being illegal there is, as a general rule, no necessity for any other shareholders bringing present 8

A stranger having sustained no special damage cannot sue the company 9, nor a shareholder who has with knowledge recovered and returns part of the proceeds of the ultra vires act 10 except to restrain future ultra vires dealings 11

If the act complained of is not ultra vires, but is of a fraudulent character or in the nature of a wrong done to the company, and the wrong doers are in the majority, then a single shareholder may bring the action on behalf of himself and others 12, making one of the majority a party defendant 13

See notes to ss 6 and 23 infra

Where there is no suggestion of fraud the company is bound in a matter intra vires by the unanimous agreement of its members even at a directors meeting where all the members were present 14 But where the matter is ultra vires, it is otherwise as held by Lord Justice Lindley Individual assents given separately may preclude those who give them from complaining of what they have sanctioned but for the purpose of binding a company in its corporate capacity in individual asents given separately are not equivalent to the assent of a meeting 1

Outsiders are bound to know the external position of the company 2 but they have a right to assume that all matters of internal management have been complied with 3 1 or fuller exposition of the principle see notes to ss 17 & 23

Persons dealing with a company are deemed to have notice of its registered documents 4 A limited company can speak and act only through agents duly authorized in that behalf in accordance with its constitution and if such company by special resolution authorizes any body of officers to draw cheques sign accept or endorse bills of exchange promissory notes cheques orders for payment or other commercial papers and such resolution have been communicated to the bank with which the company deals the bank will be liable if it does not act in accordance with that resolution even if it is misled by the fraudulent misrepresentation of an officer of the company who on previous occasions has dealt with the bank as an officer of the company the bank is bound to be vigilant 5

If it is established by evidence that the duty of investigating and ascertaining facts has been delegated in the ordinary course of a company's business to a subordinate official the company will in law be bound by his knowledge in the same way as it is affected by the knowledge of the board of directors 'It is true that in the Houghton case, [1928 AC 1, 18] Lord Sumner points out that the mind so to speak of a company is not reached or affected by information merely possessed by its clerks And again, the knowledge which is relevant is that of directors themselves since it is their board that deals with the company's rights' But it must depend upon the facts of each case where the matter is not especially determined by the articles by what particular means of information and in what circumstances a company may properly be said to acquire knowledge, or have knowledge thrust upon them' 6

In Newsline Bros v Royal Transport & General Insurance Co [(1929) 2 KB 350 (374)] Scrutton LJ, quoting Lord Sumner says 'The knowledge of a person who acquires it in a breach of duty and is guilty of a breach of duty in respect to it is not to be imputed to a company to whom from the hypothesis he would be very unlikely to disclose it in fact'

Where one person is an officer of two companies, his personal knowledge is not necessarily the knowledge of both the companies The knowledge which he has acquired as officer of one company will not be imputed to the other company, unless he has some duty imposed on him to communicate his knowledge to the company sought to be affected by the notice, and some duty imposed on him by that company to receive the notice, and if the common officer has been guilty of fraud or even irregularity, the Court will not draw the inference that he has fulfilled those duties 7

As regards acquiescence and estoppel the position of a company seems to be somewhat different from that of an individual. In the case of a natural person if information is intelligibly conveyed to and received by him its source whether as servant or a stranger whether he is high or low, matters little if at all. With the artificial incorporated person it must be necessarily otherwise. For an incorporated company cannot read or hear except by the eyes and ears of others who are to be the organs by which it receives knowledge so as to affect its right. In the latter cases Lord Dunedin observed as follows: 'There can obviously be no acquiescence without knowledge of the facts to which acquiescence is said to have taken place. The person who is sought to be estopped is here a company, an abstract entity, not a human being who has eyes and ears. The knowledge of the company can only be the knowledge of persons who are entitled to represent the company. The knowledge of a mere official like the secretary would only be the knowledge of the company if the thing of which knowledge is predicated was the thing within the ordinary domain of the secretary's duties. But what if the knowledge of the directors is knowledge of a director who is himself particeps criminis that is if the knowledge of an infringement of the rights of the company is only brought home to the man who himself was the author of such infringement?' Common sense suggests the answer, but authority is not wanting. Then he cites the cases noted below where it was held that the knowledge of a director of his own fraud or breach of duty could be the knowledge of the company. Effective ratification necessarily involves knowledge of all the material facts on the part of him who ratifies. Neglect of duty does not cease by repetition to be neglect of duty and if there be any doctrine of 'lulling to sleep,' it must depend upon and can only be another way of expressing estoppel or ratification. A limited company observed Lord Tomlin cannot have a view except so far as the views of the agents by which it acts are to be deemed the views of the company.

A company may be fined for contempt of court but it cannot be convicted under a section which inflicts imprisonment or whipping only as punishment nor can it be committed for trial on an indictment. A company in liquidation is distinct from individual liquidator is incapable of committing an act of maintenance.

An incorporated company is a person within the meaning of the Acts of Parliament unless the context shows only a natural person is intended. A company may be a respectable and responsible person within the meaning of a lease.

For other cases see notes to ss 5 and 7.

General Clauses Act,

(3) The Constⁿ—See s 5 and notes thereto

(4) Debentureⁿ—A Debenture means a document which either creates or acknowledges a debt¹. It is usually associated with a corporation of some kind. Debentures are usually bonds issued by a company for sums of Rs 10 or Rs 100 or their multiples and are offered to the public by means of a prospectus in the same manner as shares.

Debenture may be for a fixed term of years or repayable on notice or irredeemable². They can be framed as payable to bearer. The custom to treat debentures to bearer as negotiable by delivery is recognized to take effect under the law merchant³ and the Court will take judicial notice thereof⁴.

If the debenture gives no security on the assets of the company the debenture-holder's position is no better than that of an unsecured creditor⁵. But generally mortgage debentures are issued which usually contain a charge upon the undertaking of the company and all its property, present and future and may or may not give a charge upon uncalled capital. The charge may either be fixed or

Fixed & Floating Charges—When the charge is fixed it affects the title to the property and the company can only deal with the property affected subject to the charge. But when the charge is a floating one the company may in the ordinary course of business deal with the property covered by the charge mortgaging, selling, disposing of it or using it up as the business requires at any time before the charge attaches⁶. It remains dormant until the undertaking charged ceases to be a going concern or until the person in whose favour the charge is created intervenes⁷. In *Hungerford v Hungerford*⁸ Lord Macnaghten said "A specific charge is one that without more fastens on ascertained or definite property capable of being ascertained and defined whereas a floating charge is ambulatory and shifting in its nature hovering over and, so to speak, floating with the property which it is intended to affect until some event occurs or some act is done which causes it to settle and fasten on the subject of the charge within its reach and grasp". As pointed out by Buckley L. J. "a floating security is not a future security it is a present security which presently affects all the assets of the company expressed to be included in it. On the other hand it is not a specific security. The holder cannot affirm that the assets are specifically mortgaged in such a way that the mortgagor can deal with them without the concurrence of the mortgagee. A floating security is not a specific mortgage of the assets plus a license to the mortgagor to dispose of them in the course of his business but is a floating mortgage applying to every item comprised in the security but not specifically affecting any item until some event occurs or some act on the part of the mortgagee is done which causes it to crystallize into a fixed security"⁹. The terms 'floating security' and 'floating charges' are synonymous¹⁰. See notes to ss 100, 126 and 129 post.

Debenture stock is of the same nature as ordinary debentures ¹ except that instead of each bond securing a definite amount the whole sum secured is treated as a single stock, and certificates are issued declaring the holder to be entitled to a definite sum part of the stock. The debenture stock may be repayable on a fixed date or may be irredeemable.

(3) Director — Director includes any person occupying the position of a director ² So it seems that a secretary or a manager occupying the position of a director is included within the term.

The true position of directors seems to be that of agents for the company with the powers and duties of carrying on the whole of its business subject however to the restrictions imposed by the articles of association and the statutory provisions ³. But the directors are not agents for the shareholders ⁴ nor are they trustees for the creditors of the company ⁵ nor are they trustees in whom the property of the company is vested in trust for any specific purpose within the meaning of s 10 Limitation Act 6.

As agents of the company they cannot make secret profits. No man can in this Court as Lord Cairns L.C. acting as an agent be allowed to put himself into a position in which his interest and his duty will be in conflict ⁷.

For the powers duties and liabilities of directors see notes to ss 83 A and 100 and Art 71 of Table A.

(9) Manager This new definition of manager has been substituted by the Amending Act (No XXII) of 1936. The old definition was no definition at all. The new definition follows the decision in Bairstow v Empress ⁸ in which it was held that unless a person is in charge of the entire business of a company he cannot be deemed to be the manager thereof. The English Act does not contain the definitions of the words 'manager' and 'officer'.

The old cl (9) ran as follows —

(9) Manager includes any person occupying the position of a manager by whatever name called and whether under a contract of service or not.

Managing agent — This definition is new and has been inserted by the Amending Act (No XXII) of 1936 on account of importance of the functions of managing agents in India. The distinction between manager and managing agent appears to be that first while the manager must be a person, the managing agent may be a person firm or company. secondly the latter is entitled as of right to the management of the company by virtue of an agreement with the company while the manager is the person who has actually the management of the company whether under an agreement or not. A director who actually manages a company without an agreement with the company for that purpose may be a manager but not a managing agent. By contrast between clauses (9) and (11) a manager cannot, it seems, be a firm or company. The General Clauses Act however says that the word person shall include any company as association or body of individuals whether incorporated or not. For the new provisions relating to managing agents see Introduction.

(11) Officer — After the word director the words managing agent have been inserted by the amending Act (XXII) of 1930. The word 'officer' has not been defined in the English Act of 1929. In the Gazette (dated 7th November 1936) in which the above amending Act was published cl (11) appears to be a mistake for cl (11)". This mistake originated in the Bill and has been perpetuated ever since.

(13) Private company — This definition has been substituted for the old one by the amending Act XXII of 1930 following the definition given in the English Act of 1929 with some modifications (compare s 26 of the English Act of 1929 printed in the Appendix). In England it was held in 1912 that a company whose articles contained the restrictions, limitations and prohibitions mentioned in sub clauses (a), (b) and (c) remained a private company even though they were not complied with 1. In 1913 an amending Act was passed by which it was provided that if a private company failed to comply with any of the foregoing provisions it ceased to be entitled to the privileges of a private company, but the Court might grant relief if the default was due to accident, inadvertence or other sufficient cause. This was reiterated in ss 26 and 27 of the English Act of 1929. In the Indian Act it was provided in sub clause (ii) that a company which did not continue to observe the restrictions, limitations and prohibitions mentioned in sub clause (i) would not be a private company. The Court had not been given the power to grant relief as in England. This has now been remedied by substituting the new s 151 (s 27 of the English Act of 1929) for the old one. The position of a private company is in most respects the same as that of a public company 2. If one member practically holds all the shares, the company is still a distinct person 3. As to the possibility of a private company being a partnership in guise of a company see the case noted below 4. In a recent case their Lordships of the Privy Council condemned the view too widely current that a private company need not be regarded as a corporation distinct from the persons composing it and that irregularities in connection with its liquidation which in the case of a public company would be most serious are venial and perhaps even permissible. "It is necessary in their Lordships' opinion, that this view should be once for all dispelled" 5.

In estimating the number of members of a private company the secretary may be, but a director or managing director may not be counted as one 'in the employ' of the company 7.

In the articles of private companies provisions are sometimes made for compelling a shareholder at any time to transfer his shares to particular persons at a particular price.

Harney v. Back [1915] 1 K B 330

They are not void as being repugnant to absolute ownership or as tending to perpetuity ¹ In the articles of association of a private company provisions are sometimes made to the following effect any member desiring to sell any of his shares must notify the board of directors of the number of shares the price and the name of the proposed transferee and the board must offer to the other shareholders the number of shares offered at the price, and if the offer is accepted the shares shall be transferred to the acceptors, and if the shares or any of them are not so accepted the holder may sell or transfer them or any of them at the same or higher price to third parties approved by the board For construction of such articles see O can Coal Co v Powell Duffryn Steam Coal Co ²

Where the articles of a private limited company provided that a member could not transfer his shares until he had given notice to the secretary offering to sell the shares at a price to be fixed by the auditor and until the secretary had offered them to the other members, one director having a right of pre-emption, it was held by the House of Lords in a recent case that there was no effective sale of the shares, as the restrictions imposed by the articles had not been observed ³ and that the shareholder was not estopped from claiming rectification of the register of members as the bankers to whom the shares had been assigned were well aware and had been informed by the former of all the restrictions upon the sale of the shares ³ 'I do not think', observed Lord Halsbury L C at p 248 in the last cited case 'that the disregard of article 17 rendered the transaction ultra vires the company or that it could not have been regularized by the assent of all the shareholders, but that assent was never obtained'

In the provisions introduced by the amending Act (XXII) of 1936 distinction has been made between an ordinary private company and a private company which is subsidiary to a public company (for the definition of a subsidiary company see sub sec (2) of s 2 supra) As regards this distinction see s 17 (2) proviso s 83A (2), s 86D (3), s 86H, s 87A (1) s 87C (4) s 87D (4) s 91B (3) proviso s 91D (1) and s 144 (1) and (5) (iii)

The following are the special privileges of a private company —

- Special privileges
- (1) It may consist of two members only (s 5)
 - (2) It is not necessary to hold a statutory meeting to forward the "statutory report to the members or file it with the registrar (s 77) Under the old s 77 the company had to hold a statutory meeting ⁴
 - (3) The directors need not file with the registrar a consent to act or sign the memorandum of association or contract for their qualification shares (s 84)
 - (4) It is not necessary to file with the registrar a 'statement in lieu of prospectus' (s 96)
 - (5) Shares may be allotted before the minimum or whole amount of the share capital has been subscribed (s 101)
 - (6) It may commence business or exercise borrowing powers as soon as it is incorporated (s 103)

(7) Holders of preference shares or debentures have not the same right to receive and inspect the balance-sheet &c. as is possessed by the holders of ordinary shares [s. 146]

(8) It is not required to send a copy of the balance sheet to the registrar's 14 or to the members [s. 131], but a private company must file with the registrar the annual list of members and summary under s. 32

(9) In the case of a private company not being a subsidiary company of a public company it is not necessary that the auditor should hold a certificate from the Governor General in Council [s. 144]. Such a company can appoint a person as its auditor who is in the employment of a director or officer of the company [s. 144 (3) (iii)]

(10) Provisions regarding the appointment of directors [ss. 83A and 83B] and restriction on appointment or advertisement of directors [s. 84] do not apply to a private company

Privileges With regard to the provisions introduced by the amending Act XXII under am- of 1936 the following privileges have been accorded to a private company ending Act. which is not a subsidiary company of a public company —

(1) Provisions of s. 54 A (2) relating to financial assistance for purchase of shares shall not apply [s. 54 A (2)]

(2) Regulation 78 of Table A relating to retirement of directors shall not apply [s. 17 (2)]

(3) S. 79 relating to provisions regarding general meeting shall not apply [s. 79 (1)]

(4) s. 86 D relating to loans of directors shall not apply [s. 86 D (3)]

(5) s. 86 H relating to restrictions on powers of directors shall not apply [s. 86 H]

(10) s. 91 D regarding contracts by agents in which the company is undisclosed principal shall not apply [s. 91 D (1)]

(11) s. 144 regarding qualifications and appointment of auditors [s. 144 (1)]

The provisions of s. 87 I, relating to the limit on the number of directors appointed by managing agents, shall not apply to any private company, subsidiary or not

In the case of a private company if not more than seven members are personally present at a general meeting, one member, and if more than seven members are personally present two members shall be entitled to demand a poll [s. 79 (1)(c)]. In any case two members personally present shall be a quorum [s. 79 (2)(b)]

A private company must send with the annual return required by sub s. (1) of s. 32 the certificates mentioned in sub s. (4) thereof. If a private company alters its articles so that they no longer include the provisions of cl (17) of s. 2 (1) (1) the New obligations must file with the registrar a prospectus or a statement in lieu of prospectus as provided by s. 151 (1). A private company is not entitled to issue share warrants to bearer [s. 43 (2)]

(13) 'private company' means a company which

(i) by its articles—

(a) restricts the right to transfer its shares and

(b) limits the number of its members (exclusive of persons who are in the employ of the company) to fifty, and

(c) prohibits any invitation to the public to subscribe for any shares or debentures of the company, and

(ii) continues to observe such restrictions, limitations and prohibi-

Provided that where two or more persons hold one or more shares in a company jointly they shall, for the purposes of this definition be considered as a single member

A private company may turn itself into a public company by complying with the provisions of s 194. Even before such conversion the position of a private company is in most respects similar to that of a public company. Neither the Indian Act nor the English Act of 1929 makes any provision for conversion of a public company into a private company. But in Palmer's Company Law 13th ed [1929] at p 392 occurs the following passage 1. Many existing public companies which can conveniently be worked as private companies have in like manner altered their regulations by special resolution. The new amending Act XXII of 1936 following s 27 of the English Act of 1929, though it re-enacts the provision regarding conversion of private companies into public companies, does not make any provision for converting public companies into private companies.

For the consequences of reduction in the number of members below two, see s 147.

(14) Prospectus —The words in italics have been inserted by amending act XXII of 1936. The word prospectus means that document by which capital is offered to the public and upon the basis of which the applicant has actually subscribed 2.

The Calcutta High Court has held that an advertisement in a newspaper offering shares to the public for sale is a prospectus within the meaning of this clause although the advertisement specifically refers to a prospectus a copy of which is available on application and a copy of which has been duly filed with the registrar 3.

In this case 3 Mr Justice Manmohan Nath Mukherji observed as follows — Our attention has been drawn to a passage in Stiebel's Company Law and Precedents 2nd ed Vol I p 258 foot note which is in these words — Sometimes one sees in newspaper advertisements issued by companies which propose to issue shares which do not contain the statutory requirements and state that the publication is for information only and that the applicants must apply to the company for the full prospectus, such advertisements should never contain an application form but they do not appear to be contrary to the Act. No authority is cited in favour of this proposition, and in any case the present prospectus does not fall within that category for it does not state that the publication is for information only nor does it say that the applicants must apply to the company for the full prospectus, but only that the prospectus may be obtained on application."

The word "public" has not been defined in the Act. It appears that the word does not include existing members and debenture holders 1. The public in the definition, observed Lord Sumner, 'is of course a general word. No particular numbers are prescribed. Anything from two to infinity may serve perhaps even one, if he is intended to be the first of a series of subscribers but makes further proceedings needless by himself subscribing the whole. The point is that the offer is such as to be open to any one who brings his money and applies in due form whether the prospectus was addressed to him on behalf of the company or not. A private communication is not thus open 2.

What is an offer to the public depends upon the circumstances of each particular 'Offer to the public'. It appears that an offer to the public means an offer by the company to any one who chooses to come in and take shares 3.

An offer of shares limited to the members of an existing company appears to be not an offer to the public 4, nor does circulation by directors amongst their own friends a number of documents in the form of an ordinary prospectus and headed 'strictly private and confidential' amount to an offer to the public 5. An offer to the public by the liquidators of a company is not equivalent to the issue of a prospectus by the company 4.

In a recent case 6 Lord Justice Scrutton observed as follows: 'In re South of England Natural Gas Co 7, where some 3000 copies of a prospectus marked for private circulation only' were printed and issued to shareholders of gas companies in which the promoter was interested, Balfour J held that the prospectus was issued to the public. On the other hand in Shericell v. Combined I. M. Syndicate 8 where some of the directors without the authority of the company sent a prospectus marked 'strictly private and confidential not for publication' to some of their friends Warrington J said that no action lay against the company, but also said that 'whether or not capital has been offered to the public was a pure question of fact.

It meant an offer of shares to any one who should choose to come in. I agree with this.' The decision in this case namely Lynde v. Nash 6 was reversed in the House of Lords which held that a prospectus is not 'issued', if it is shown to one person privately and not as a member of the public 7.

See notes to s. 92.

The word 'debenture' includes debenture stock [see cl (1) ante]. For statement in lieu of prospectus see s. 98.

(16) Share —A share in a company cannot properly be likened to a sum of money settled upon and subject to executory limitations to arise in the future, it is rather to be regarded as the interest of the shareholder in the company measured for the purpose of liability and dividend by a sum of money but consisting of a series of mutual covenants entered into by all the shareholders in accordance with the provision of the Companies Act and made up of various rights and liabilities contained in the contract including the right to a certain sum of money.

A share in such a company is a manufacturing company carrying on its business in a foreign country resembles a chose in action in this respect only that it is assignable and the assignee would be entitled to sue upon it to obtain his appropriate share of the profits just as the original holders would be.

See notes and notes thereto as well as notes to art 18 Table A as to different classes of shares see notes to arts 3 and 93 of Table A.

Sub s. 2) Subsidiary Company —Sub s. (2) reproduces s 127 of the English Act of 1908. This definition has been inserted by the Companies (Amendment) Act XXII of 1936.

The Companies (Amendment) Act XXII of 1936 has introduced two more definitions

(1) An 'investment company' has been defined as a company whose principal business is the acquisition and holding of shares, stocks, debentures or other securities.

The expression High Court has been defined in the General Clauses Act 1, as the highest Court of appeal in that part of British India in which the Act or Regulation containing the expression operates. So the Chief Commissioner of Ajmer and Merwar is the High Court for the purposes of the Companies Act for places within its jurisdiction and not the Allahabad High Court.

The High Court has jurisdiction to transfer winding up proceedings from the High Court to any Court which has jurisdiction to wind up companies.

Proviso—A District Judge who has been empowered by the Local Government under this proviso has extensive original jurisdiction, but it in no way ousts the original jurisdiction possessed by the High Court under s 115 C P C 4.

Where the registered office of a company is situated within the jurisdiction of the District Judge empowered under this proviso he is the Judge who has jurisdiction to pass orders for payment of any amount that may be due from the contributories on account of the arrears in calls under s 186 and if there is any dispute between the parties he can adjudicate on it under s 215. The fact that certain contributories reside outside British India is immaterial as by their agreeing to become members of the company they are amenable to his jurisdiction.

It has been held in England that under s 161 of the English Act of 1909 the High Court has jurisdiction to transfer to the County Court proceedings for winding up no matter what the amount of the company's capital is.

It is an elementary principle of the law relating to joint stock companies that the Court will not interfere with the internal management of companies acting within their powers and in fact has no jurisdiction to do so. But the Court will interfere—to prevent a fraudulent sale by promoters to the company to prevent fraud on a minority of shareholders, where directors are withholding payment of calls on their own shares while making calls on those of other members, where the company is existing only for being wound up and gratuities are voted to its servants and directors, where an arrangement is being carried out which is beneficial only to the majority of shareholders, where it is proposed to issue shares in satisfaction of dividends, where resolutions have been passed purporting to divide on winding up the assets in fraud of a class of shareholders, where the chairman of a meeting improperly rejects votes, where a proper notice of the purpose of a meeting involving payment to directors has not been given, where shares are being issued to secure a majority of votes, where the majority of directors exclude the minority from meeting of the board or a committee of it, or where the company is conducting its business in an illegal way. See notes under s 2 (supra).

8 Hails 289, 290 and the cases collected there

The Courts have inherent jurisdiction to compel due observance of the mandatory provisions of the Act. It is a fundamental principle of legal administration that where the law requires something to be done there must be an institution or Court that can directly order it to be done. It is well understood in all systems of civilized jurisprudence that where there is a right there is a remedy.¹

People dealing with a company are fixed with notice of any limitations of the power of the company contained in the statute under which it is incorporated or in the memorandum or articles of association but if it is shown that a particular act was ostensibly authorised by them, persons dealing with the company are not concerned to see that the company has put itself into a position to exercise its power properly. Outside parties are not concerned with the internal management of the company. They are not concerned to see that there was a proper quorum of directors present or that persons who are apparently directors had in fact been validly appointed. These are matters of internal management. If the disability of a director to vote upon a contract in which he was personally interested were imposed by the articles the question whether he was personally interested in and entitled to vote upon a particular contract would be regarded as matters of internal management with which persons dealing with the company would not be concerned.² Where the main point involved is the interpretation of a certain clause in the memorandum of association relating to the application of the assets of the company, it is not a mere matter of internal management, a single member can therefore maintain a suit against the company for a declaration as to the true construction of the article in question and the company can not be excused from being impleaded in such an action.³ As regards the future conduct of directors the Court will not interfere in the management of the company's internal affairs.⁴ "If the majority of shareholders consider that a particular contract of employment should be terminated the Court would not as a rule consider the matter at the instance of a minority."⁵

It has however been held in England that the doctrine of "internal management" may be pushed too far and it will place limited companies at the mercy of any servant or agent who may purport to contract on their behalf. Thus not only a director of a company with articles founded on Table A, but a secretary or any subordinate officer may be treated by a third party acting in good faith as capable of binding the company by any sort of contract, however exceptional, on the ground that a power of making such a contract might conceivably have been entrusted to him.⁶

Where the majority of a company propose to benefit themselves at the expense of the minority the Court may interfere to protect the minority.⁷

The High Court has jurisdiction to wind up a registered unlimited company which has no capital 1 or a guarantee company having no share capital 2

As to the Court having jurisdiction for winding up unregistered companies see s 71 [1] (i)

Sub s 2 (1) Location of the company's principal office is an important factor in determining where its residence is 3, but the question of residence is entirely distinct from domicile which is often independent of actual residence 4 Irrespective of the Act for the purposes of winding up the residence of a company is fixed by the situation of its principal place of business 5 which is to say its chief office where the central management and control are actually to be found 6

A registered company can have more than one residence for the purposes of income tax 7

To constitute residence by a British company in a foreign State or to render the company subject to the jurisdiction of the Courts of that State the company must to some extent carry on business in that State at a definite and reasonably permanent place 8 or by the individual members thereof, unless it is registered as a company under this Act, or is formed in pursuance of an Act of Parliament or some other Act of the Governor General in Council or of Royal Charter or Letters Patent.

(3) This section shall not apply to a joint family carrying on joint family trade or business and where two or more such joint families form a partnership, in computing the number of persons for the purposes of this section, minor members of such families shall be excluded.

(4) Every member of a company, association or partnership carrying on business in contravention of this section shall be personally liable for all liabilities incurred in such business.

(5) Any person who is a member of a company, association or partnership formed in contravention of this section shall be punishable with fine not exceeding one thousand rupees.

Sub-sections (3), (4) and (5) have been added by the Companies (Amendment) Act XXII of 1900. Sub-s (3) excludes individual joint families from the operation of this section. But it seems that where two or more joint families carry on joint family trade or business form a partnership and the total number of members of such joint families excluding their minor members exceeds twenty, these joint families will come within the mischief of this section. The argument that individual members of a joint family are to be considered as sub-partners and the joint family consisting of these members should be reckoned as one person does not appear to be so valid.

Sub-s (4) provides for personal liability of each member who would come within the mischief of this section.

Sub-s (5) provides that such member shall also be liable to a heavy fine.

As the Act (of its own force) does not apply to a Native State, the transactions in such a State of an association consisting of more than twenty members are not illegal.¹

The object of the Act says Lord Justice James 'was to prevent the mischief arising from large trading undertakings being carried on by large fluctuating bodies so that persons dealing with them did not know with whom they were contracting and so might be put to great expenses which was a public mischief to be repressed.'²

Where the proprietors of a Zemindary are numerous the formation of a limited company by them is beneficial not only to themselves but to those who have dealings with them.³

The maximum number of members who can carry on business for gain without registration is a company is ten in the case of banking companies and twenty in the case of any other company. But the minimum number required for the formation of a company is two in the case of a private company and seven in the case of any other company (see s 3). The company may be wound up by the Court if the number of members falls below this minimum. For consequences of carrying on business when the number of members falls below the minimum see s 11. Although the number of members of a partnership does not at its inception exceed the above maximum the company nevertheless becomes illegal if subsequently that number is exceeded. 2

An association consisting of more than the maximum number of members stated above and formed for the purpose of carrying on business with a view to gain is an illegal association. 3 Such an association cannot sue or any contract made by it. 4 and its members will be individually liable for the contract unless the person suing was aware of the illegality at the time of entering into the contract. 5

The illegality of a company does not protect its members from being sued by a stranger who was not aware of all the facts which made it an illegal association. Unless the person dealing with such an association is particeps criminis, there can be no turpis causa to bring him within the operation of the rule ex turpis causa non oritur actio. 6 In the case of an illegal association a suit can be brought against some members of the association as the liability is joint and several under s 43 of the Contract Act. 6 Such an association cannot be wound up at the instance of the association or any of its creditors or members. 7

Such an association, however, need not be registered if it does not carry on business with a view to gain, either by the individual members or by the association as a whole. 8

Where a partnership consists of more than twenty members it is an illegal association and partition suit by one partner against the remaining partners is not maintainable. 9 Illegality in the mode of formation of a partnership is not the same thing as illegality in regard to the consideration or object of the agreement. It is doubtful if a partnership agreement which has not been registered, though required by this section is void under s 23 of the Contract Act. 10 In a recent case the Allahabad High is maintainable in certain circumstances it would not be maintainable if the plaintiff was particeps criminis 1 In his recently been held by the Rangoon High Court that members of such an illegal association can bring a suit for declaring the respective shares of their association and directing that they be repaid their shares after reconverting the buildings and other property of the association into which the subscription money is changed into cash, and after payment of debts and liabilities 2 Such a suit is governed by Art 120 and not Art 62 of the Limitation Act 2

Where an association is illegal as being an unregistered association of more than twenty persons carrying on a business having for its object the acquisition of gun 3 the Court is not debarred from affording relief to the members asking for return of the money paid into the hands of agents by granting an account 4 The cause of action for the return of money paid in order to form a society or business prohibited by this section accrues as soon as the money is paid and there is no continuing cause of action in such suit 5

An association which ought to have been, but is not registered under this section is however liable to assessment to income tax on its profits 6

The expression 'carrying on business' implies some continuous control of the business by the association 7 'Carrying on business' only exists where there is a joint relation of more than twenty persons for the common purpose of performing jointly a succession of acts and not where the relation exists for a purpose which is to be completed by the performance of a single act 8 Where a business is carried on by trustees less than twenty in number, but the beneficiaries are more than twenty the association is not illegal 8 Unregistered land companies have been held to be not illegal on the ground that they were formed merely for acquiring and dividing land between the members and not for carrying on any business of land jobbing or trafficking in land 9 As to the meaning of the expression see Olura & Co v Forsbaek 10

'Business' is a wider term than 'trade' and may include hiring land and employing a manager to farm it 11 Where an association or partnership is formed for 'Business' purposes of carrying on a business what the Court has to see is whether each of the members will be liable individually upon contracts made and whether each would have rights accruing to him upon such contracts 12 A single venture where a single article or a number of articles on a single contract are purchased and sold may not amount to a business but where a number of sales are purchased at one time sales are to go on profits are to be realized and these profits are to be divided among the partners it is not a single venture in amounts to a partnership within this section 1 Business does not include the case of an association of persons who contribute sums to be applied in relieving its members in the case of sickness the balance being distributable at the end of each year 2

The word 'person' denotes an individual and does not include bodies of individuals whether corporate or not since any such extended definition would be repugnant to the subject and context of the section 3 So an association of several persons consisting of more than twenty persons formed with the object of acquiring commercial gain is essentially within the purview of this section 3 But it has been held by the Allahabad High Court that a person who holds shares in a company personally is a trustee for a number of beneficiaries or is a guardian for a minor is to be counted as one individual person on the ground that the word 'person' in this section can be used to include a collection of people e.g. an association of individuals known as a joint Hindu family or beneficiaries interested beneficially in property vested in a trustee 4 If the various individual members of one or more joint Hindu families form an agreement of partnership among themselves then each individual member must be reckoned a person for the purpose of this section If however there is merely a family partnership created by operation law, so that the individual members are governed by the principles of Hindu law and not by the Contract Act then the individual members are merely sub partners in any agreement made on behalf of the family, and the joint family consisting of these members should be reckoned as one person for the purposes of this section 5 Sub partners are not members of a firm and the existence of sub partners would not affect the number of members of a firm for the purposes of this section 6 But where persons exceeding twenty calling themselves as partners of four different unregistered firms enter into a partnership to carry on business, and each person is individually entitled to the benefit of the contracts the partnership is illegal under this section 7

On the question whether a company registered under this Act is a "person" within the meaning of this section King C.J. and Zail Hasan, J. observed "We are doubtful whether registered companies cannot be held to be persons within the meaning of s. 4 as a registered company is a corporation and for most legal purposes can be held to be a person 8 In England under the Solicitors Act 1932 [Law Society v. United Service Bureau (1934) 1 K.B. 343] the Dentists Act 1878 the Veterinary Surgeons Act 1881 and the Pharmacy Act 1868 [*Pharmaceutical Society v. Gain C un is not limited to pecuniary gain or commercial profit only, and a company is formed for the acquisition of gain when it is formed to acquire something as distinguished from a company formed for spending something¹ If one of the objects of a company be the acquisition of gain the mere fact that the members either singly or jointly propose to dispose of the gain on some charitable object will not exclude the company from the purview of this section² The primary object of the association is to be looked into and no regard should be paid to the circumstances that develop later on³

A limited company incorporated under the laws of another country may trade in this country without being incorporated according to our law⁴ The word 'formed' in this section must mean 'formed in this country'⁵ If however a company Foreign companies incorporated in the foreign country established a place of business here it must comply with the provisions of s 277⁶ A foreign company cannot be registered as an existing company under the Companies Act⁷, and cannot unless it has an office in this country be wound up here⁸

The expression 'or is formed in pursuance of some other Act' probably means formed and having existence recognized by another statute⁹

An unregistered company consisting of nine shareholders only does not require registration for its valid existence⁸

Mutual insurance associations are within the section⁹

Memorandum of Association

5 Any seven or more persons (or, where the company to be formed will be a private company, any two or more persons) associated for any lawful purpose may, by Mode of forming incorporated company subscribing their names to a memorandum of association and otherwise complying with the requirements of this Act in respect of registration, form an incorporated company, with or without limited liability (that is to say), either—

- (i) a company having the liability of its members limited by the memorandum to the amount, if any, unpaid on the shares respectively held by them (in this Act termed a company limited by shares), or
- (ii) a company having the liability of its members limited by the memorandum to such amount as the members may respectively thereby undertake to contribute to the assets of the company in the event of its being wound up (in this Act termed a company limited by guarantee), or

(iii) a company not having any limit on the liability of its members (in this Act termed an unlimited company)

As to the meaning and privileges of a private company see notes to s 2 (13)

The word persons includes a married woman a bankrupt and a foreigner residing abroad¹ but not an infant as under the Indian Contract Act a minor is incompetent to contract and a contract made by him is void²

Persons

A firm is not a person and the individual partners must subscribe³ If a firm name is with the authority of the firm subscribed to a memorandum of association and is accepted by the registrar the partners will be joint holders of the shares subscribed⁴ provided the partner subscribing has special authority from his co-partners to accept the shares⁵ The registrar's certificate of incorporation is conclusive⁶ but it will not make the illegal objects legal⁷ nor does it obviate the objection that the memorandum was not signed by seven persons⁸

The purpose for which a company is proposed to be established must be lawful It must not be in contravention of the general law of the country e.g. to run a lottery Where a scheme purports to grant interest bearing loans on personal security to persons chosen by lot it falls within s 291A of the Penal Code and as such is illegal⁹ Where the main object of a company is the conduct of a lottery the mere fact that some of its objects were philanthropic will not save the company from being unlawful The purpose would still be illegal even where the illegal business is merely annexed to the real one which is philanthropic¹⁰

In the absence of special regulations requiring the signatories to the memorandum to pay for their shares they are not liable to do so until a call has regularly been made upon them¹¹ A subscriber to the memorandum cannot however obtain rescission of his contract to take the shares subscribed on the ground of misrepresentation¹² He remains a member until such time as either the company which being authorized by its articles accepts a surrender of the shares for valid reasons or the subscriber himself pays for the shares and validly transfers them to somebody else 1

Members are deemed to be aware of the contents of the memorandum and the articles of association 2 In fact it is the duty of a person taking shares in a company to use reasonable diligence in making himself acquainted with the provisions of these documents and he must take the consequences of his neglect 3

The memorandum of association does not constitute a contract between the company and third parties who may be named therein 4 but third persons who deal with a company are also affected with notice of the provisions contained in the memorandum and the articles 5 but they are not bound to make further inquiries and they may assume that the internal management of the company has been regular 6 When an agreement on behalf of a company is entered into with a stranger by one of the directors then if it was possible under the articles of association for authority of all the directors to be delegated to one and the stranger is aware of no facts to the contrary the agreement will bind the company irrespective of whether such delegation has in fact taken place or not 7

Where a company was incorporated according to law and six of the subscribers held only one share each and the seventh held the balance of the twenty thousand shares issued the House of Lords held that the Court could not inquire whether or not such a one man company was intended by the legislature when passing the Companies Act 8 But in a later case Philmore J held that a limited company may be a mere alias of the principal members in a case where fraud is shown 9 and a sale to such a company may turn out to be fraudulent 10 But see notes to s 23

A company once brought into existence by incorporation cannot be got rid of unless by winding up even if the incorporation was an abuse of or fraud upon the Act of the legislature 11 The registrar may however under s 247 strike the name of a defunct company off the register and declare it dissolved See s 247 and notes

In England the contract of an infant being voidable and not void his signature to the memorandum of association is the signature of a person and subsequent avoidance of the infant's contract does not invalidate the registration or any intermediate acts affecting rights of third persons 1

The subscribers to the memorandum need not be beneficially interested in the shares for which they have subscribed 2. The memorandum of association has the effect of prescribing as well as limiting the liability of the members 3

The limitation of liability in respect of shares held is distinct from an obligation collaterally imposed upon a member in certain events to take up further shares which will themselves, when taken up, be entitled to similar limitations of liability. There is nothing in such collateral obligation which is ultra vires or repugnant to the system of limited liability 4

Subject to certain restrictions there would appear to be no limitation upon the purpose for which a company may be formed under the Act 5

5 Re Registrar of Companies [1914] 3 K.B. 111 Rowman & Colville [1917] A.C. 106, [1915] 2 Ch. 447

The name of a company may be changed by a 'special resolution' confirmed by the court.²

C1 (III) The objects of a company should be clearly set forth in the memorandum for a company can do only what is within or incidental to the objects stated therein. The objects as stated in the memorandum cannot be departed from except so far as permitted by s 12 of the Act. The memorandum is the charter of the company. Consequently a contract made by the directors upon a matter not included in the memorandum is ultra vires and it cannot be made binding on the company by being expressly assented to at a meeting of shareholders even by the whole body of them. 6

Wide powers taken in general words will be construed as merely ancillary to the specific objects mentioned in the earlier clauses. A mining company should take powers to construct railways, tramways, canals, roads &c. and also to acquire lands and to dispose of them. Similarly a bank or a loan company should take power to develop, turn to account or improve land that may come into its possession.

Where the memorandum of a company in its final clause took power generally to transact any business of merchant or capitalist either as principal or agent the wide power was cut down by the Court to conform with the main objects of the company.

Courts are not disposed to construe even the widest powers in such a way as to enable a company to go outside the main objects for which it was formed¹ The powers of a company however should not be construed strictly and the company may do anything that is fairly incidental to the powers specified

Construction 2 In *Egyptian Sall & Sall Co v Port Said Sall Association*³ their Lordships of the Judicial Committee observed as follows: The learned Judges say that the memorandum is to be construed strictly. If by this he meant merely that the memorandum must be construed in accordance with the accepted principles applicable to the interpretation of all legal documents, no exception need be taken to his statement, but if he meant that a specially rigid notion of construction is to be applied to the memorandum of association of limited companies, their Lordships do not agree. A memorandum of association like any other document must be read fairly and its import derived from a reasonable interpretation of the language which it employs. In the case noted below the Court of Appeal in England strongly commented upon the practice of enumerating every possible operation as an object of the company in a string of clauses with a statement that each clause is independent of and not ancillary to any other clause⁴. But it has also been held in this case that if a company state in the memorandum all the possible things the company may desire to do as independent main objects and if this is the clear intention of the document the Court will construe it in this manner⁴. Where however the main object is gone, the company will be wound up⁵. Whether any particular transaction is or is not within the powers of a company is a question of law depending on the construction of the objects clauses of the memorandum of association⁶.

Where the memorandum of association deals with the rights of various classes of shares in order to ascertain the rights attaching to particular classes of shares the memorandum must be read and given effect to as a whole unless any particular provision of the same violates an express provision of the statute in which case that particular provision will be treated as invalid⁷.

As regards the implied powers of a company Lord Selborne J C observed: "It appears to me that directors and general meetings of companies of this sort can have no powers by implication except such as are incident to, or properly to be inferred from, the powers expressed in the memorandum and articles. Their powers are entirely created by the law and by the contract founded upon the law which enables such

companies to be constituted' 1. The doctrine that a company can do nothing which is not expressly or impliedly provided by its memorandum of association must be reasonably understood and applied. A company therefore in carrying on the trade for which it is constituted and in whatever may be regarded fairly as incidental to or consequential upon that trade is free to enter into any transaction not expressly prohibited by the memorandum 2. Thus a trading company has an implied power to borrow money 3 and to sell land 4 and in the latter case it can give mortgage also 5.

It should be remembered that under this section the memorandum should state the objects of the company and not the powers. This is pointed out clearly by their Lordships in the recent case noted below 6: "As Lord Wrenbury said in Colman v Bringham 7. Powers are not required to be and ought not to be specified in the memorandum. The Act intended that the company, if it be a trading company, should by its memorandum define the trade not that it should specify the various acts which it should be within the power of the company to do in carrying on the trade. It must be borne in mind that the purpose of the memorandum is to enable shareholders, creditors and those who deal with the company to know what is its permitted range of enterprise and for this information they are entitled to rely on the constituent documents of the company. They have not access to other sources of information such as antecedent transactions."

In this connection the following observation in the speech of Lord Parker of Wadlington in Colman v Bringham 8 is instructive. The truth is that the statement of a company's objects in its memorandum is intended to serve a double purpose. In the first place it gives protection to subscribers who learn from it the purposes for which their money can be applied. In the second place it gives protection to persons who deal with the company and who can infer from it the extent of the company's powers. The narrower the objects expressed in the memorandum the less is the subscribers' risk, but the wider such objects the greater is the security of those who transact business with the company. Moreover experience soon showed that persons to transact business with companies do not like having to depend on inference when the validity of a proposed transaction is in question. Even a power to borrow money could not always be safely inferred, much less such a power as that of underwriting shares in another company. Thus arose the practice of specifying powers as objects a practice rendered possible by the fact that there is no statutory limit on the number of objects which may be specified. But even thus a person proposing to deal with a company could not be absolutely safe for powers specified as objects might be read as ancillary to and exercisable only for the purpose of attaining what might be held to be the company's prime or paramount object and on this construction no one could be quite certain whether the Court would not hold any proposed transaction to be ultra vires. At any rate all the surrounding circumstances would require investigation. Fresh clauses were framed to meet this difficulty and the result is the modern memorandum of association with its multitudinous list of objects and powers specified as objects and its clauses designed to prevent any specified object being read as ancillary to some other object.

A company cannot confirm or ratify anything which is ultra vires.¹ This term in its proper sense denotes some act or transaction on the part of a corporation which Ultra vires although not unlawful or contrary to public policy if done by an individual is yet beyond the legitimate powers of the corporation as defined by the statute under which it is formed or the statutes which are applicable to it or by its charter or memorandum of association. The term is often loosely used and applied to an act or transaction which is beyond the lawful powers of an individual.

Where an act is ultra vires of a company the consent even of every member of it cannot make it valid.² As Lord Cairns clearly stated the law in the following passage: "If every shareholder of the company had been in the room and every shareholder of the company had said that is a contract which we desire to make which we authorize the directors to make to which we sanction the plan of the seal of the company the case would not have stood in any different position from that in which it stands now. The shareholders would thereby by unanimous consent have been attempting to do the very thing which by the Act of Parliament they were prohibited from doing."³ Such an act cannot be validated by the consent of a general meeting of the shareholders⁴ or by obtaining judgment by consent⁵ or by estoppel.⁶

On the other hand a transaction which is beyond the powers of the directors only may be ratified by an ordinary resolution of a general meeting although to authorize such acts in the future an alteration of the articles by passing a special resolution is necessary.⁷ The doctrine of ultra vires as explained in the last noted case is to be maintained but is to be applied reasonably so that whatever is fully incidental to those things which the legislature has authorized ought not unless expressly prohibited to be held ultra vires.⁸

A company cannot purchase its own shares⁹ or advance capital of the company to a director to do so¹⁰ or accept surrender of its own shares except where it does not involve reduction of capital or does not amount to purchase of its own shares.¹¹ It is ultra vires of a company to issue unauthorized capital or reduce or repay capital without complying with the statutory requirements, or distribute bonus shares gratuitously.

or issue shares at a discount or pay dividends out of capital, or pay unreasonable sums for services rendered or make payments for the benefit of a section of the shareholders or subscribe to external objects 2

Apart from any statutory powers a company cannot employ its funds or assets for the purpose of any transaction which does not come within the objects specified in the memorandum of association. It cannot by its articles of association extend its powers in this respect 3. The purchase of shares of other joint stock companies unless authorised by the memorandum of association is ultra vires 4 and the contract is not binding 5. It is not sufficient for the proposed transaction to be ancillary if it is not incidental to the objects stated in the memorandum 6. But if property is acquired by ultra vires expenditure the company's rights over it may be protected 7. Where the memorandum or the articles give a limited power to borrow and mortgage its property the company cannot borrow on mortgage beyond the limits set 8. A contract which is ultra vires is not necessarily illegal. Where a bank lent money on mortgage it was held by the Madras High Court that the bank could sue on the contract although the memorandum of association of the bank prohibited the bank from lending money on mortgage on the ground that under the Indian law a mortgage is a transfer of interest in immovable property and property legally and by formal transfer is laid down by Bruce on the Doctrine of Ultra Vires or conveyance transferred to a corporation is in law duly vested in such corporation which was not empowered to acquire such property 9.

Where a deed of guarantee was entered into between a company, a guarantor and a trustee for the preference shareholders whereby it was provided in clause 7 that any sum paid by the guarantor as dividend to the preference shareholders should be forthwith repaid to him by the company on demand it was held that clause 7 was wholly ultra vires the company and void. 'The instant that any sum is paid by the guarantor to the trustee for the preference shareholders Cl 7 authorises the guarantor to commence action for repayment of the sum as if he were a creditor of the company entitled to rank in the same position as any other creditor. The capital of the company might thereby be reduced otherwise than by expenditure on the objects defined in the memorandum of association' 10.

In the absence of a special power in the memorandum it is ultra vires of a company to take shares in another company carrying on a different class of business or for one company to amalgamate with another company or for a company with powers to lend to guarantee the debts of a company promoted by it or for a railway or tramway company to carry on an omnibus business 11.

On the other hand it is not ultra vires of a company to pay pension to the family of a deceased officer or gratuities to its servants to pay a reasonable brokerage for selling its shares to take a larger house than what is necessary and sublet a portion. A trading company may borrow on or without security or accept bills of exchange or deposit its title deeds to secure an overdraft or issue debenture stock as collateral security. A colliery company can purchase a colliery or sell land to a builder for the erection of colleges. A company whose powers include that of promoting may promote another company, subscribe the shares and pay the expenses of promotion.¹

Where a company is given by its memorandum express power to purchase land it is implied that it has power to let the land and if necessary also to sell it.² A company has large powers of selling its personal property is incidental to the management of its business.³ But a power to sell or purchase the business of another company will not be implied.⁴ Although a company cannot confirm or ratify anything which is beyond its powers part of it may be valid if severable from that which is void.⁵ Negotiation of negotiable instruments is within the ordinary course of business of a company and no special power is necessary for the purpose.⁶ But a company may make bills of exchange and promissory notes for the purpose of obtaining credit if it is authorized by the memorandum of association or if its business is such as to make the use of bills necessary and not otherwise.⁷ The company is liable to a bona fide holder of the bill if it is signed by some one having apparent though not actual authority.⁸ Where a bill is made by the directors without authority they will be personally liable to a bona fide holder.⁹ A company can raise money by the issue of debentures and invest the same or any part of it if the memorandum so authorizes it.⁹

Payment to a retired secretary and member of a club by way of annuity pension or gratuity is within the powers of the club although according to the memorandum of association the club is not for gain and no dividend, bonus &c are to be paid by way of profit to the members.¹⁰ But it has been held that granting pension to the widow of a former managing director is ultra vires although the rules of the company authorized the directors to provide for the welfare of employees their widows and children.¹¹ Where a company was formed to acquire business of chemical manufacture, a large sum of money was allowed to be distributed for the furtherance of scientific education and research on the ground that such distribution was likely to lead to direct and substantial (but not speculative or too remote) advantage of the company.¹²

If the directors carry on a trade which is ultra vires of the company, they cannot bind the company by the contracts and the consignees cannot recover in respect of their shipments 1. If the directors misapply the capital of the company to a purpose which is ultra vires they are liable to replace it 2. It was held in the last noted case that s 19 of the Limitation Act does not apply to directors. A bona fide compromise of a reasonable sum in payment of a sum of money out of the company's capital is not ultra vires 3.

Unauthorised funded capital is allowable where the memorandum of association was the power and there is nothing in the articles to the contrary 4, but where the memorandum while authorizing certain charges omits to authorize a charge on the funded capital the omission may imply a prohibition 5. A reserve fund created out of undivided profits is not capital 6 and it is not ultra vires of a company to purchase thereby shares of other companies if the articles of the former so permit 7.

Where a loan is ultra vires of a company the lender whose money has been used to pay off the unauthorized loan stands in the shoes of and can enforce the remedies of those whose loans were so satisfied 8. Although the borrowing be ultra vires of a company the lender may in its voluntary winding up rank as a creditor for the amount of the loan under the equitable doctrine of subrogation if the money borrowed were applied in payment of the legitimate trading debts of the company 9. When an agent borrows money for a principal without the authority of the latter, but the principal

Borrowing takes the benefit of the money so borrowed or the money so borrowed has gone into the coffers of the principal the law implies a promise to pay. There appears to be nothing in law which makes this principle inapplicable to the case of a joint stock company when the borrowing power of the company is unlimited. The position would be that the principal (the company) through its agents (the directors or the managing agents) had borrowed money which the principal had not authorised the agents to borrow. However the money having been borrowed and used for the benefit of the principal either in paying its debts or for its legitimate business the company cannot repudiate its liability to repay on the ground that the agents had no authority from the company to borrow. When these facts are established a claim on the footing of money had and received would be maintainable 10.

Where the carrying on of a business by a company is ultra vires, that ultra vires transaction creates no debt legal or equitable and upon winding up of the company the contributories are not liable to pay such debts 11. A Company can return property

Cl (iv) This means that the liability of the members is limited to the amount payable on the shares. They are not bound to pay more even if the company contracts enormous debts.

Cl (v) The words 'share capital' is used in contradistinction to borrowed money. The capital is not a debt of the company even to its shareholders. 1 In this Act the expression 'share capital' has throughout been used instead of 'capital' used in the previous Acts.

The nominal capital is the amount which limits the potency of a company to issue the shares into which the capital is divided. When some of the 'nominal capital' is subscribed it at once becomes issued capital the residue being unissued capital. 2

The aggregate amount of payments of application moneys, allotment moneys, and calls represents the 'paid up capital'. Shares may be lawfully issued as fully paid up for consideration which the company has agreed to accept. It is representing in money's worth the nominal value of the shares whether the shares are or are not the shares subscribed for in the memorandum of association. 3

The 'fixed amount' of a share must be a monetary amount but it is not necessary that all the shares should be of the same amount. A capital of say Rs 1,00,000 may be divided into 5,000 shares of Rs 10 each and 500 shares of Rs 100 each. 4

The fixed capital of a company is what the company retains in the shape of assets upon which the subscribed capital has been expended and which assets either themselves produce income independent of any further action of the company or being retained by the company are made use of to produce income or gain profits. The circulating capital of a company is a portion of the subscribed capital intended to be used by being temporarily parted with and circulated in business in the form of using goods or other assets which, or the proceeds of which, are intended to return to the company with an increment and to be used again and again and always returned with accretions. When circulating capital is expended in buying goods which are sold at a profit or in buying raw materials from which goods are manufactured and sold at a profit the amount so expended must be charged against or deducted from receipts before the amount of any profit can be considered. 5 Lord Hanworth M R observes in a recent case 6: "It seems rather that the cases of Hanroel 7, and of Mitchell v B W Noble Ltd 8 and of Mallett v Sturley 9 give illustrations that the test of fixed and circulating capital is the true one, and where, as in this case, the expenditure is to bring back into the hands of the company a necessary ingredient of their existing business—important but still ancillary and necessary to the business which they carry on—the expenditure ought to be debited to the circulating capital, which is employed in and sunk in the permanent—even if wasting—assets of the business."

Although by this clause the memorandum of association is to state the amount of the original capital and the number of shares into which it is to be divided yet in other respects the rights of the shareholders in respect of their shares and the terms on which additional capital may be raised are matters to be regulated by the articles rather than by the memorandum of association and are therefore matters which (unless provided by the memorandum, as in Ashbury v. Watson 1) may be determined by the company from time to time by special resolution 2 But if the memorandum defines the respective rights they cannot subsequently be varied 1 without the sanction of the Court in a proceeding under s 51 or s 153 unless the memorandum also confers power to alter such rights 3 It is common to declare the rights, privileges and conditions of preference shares and founders' shares by express provisions in the memorandum of association for by so doing extra protection is secured to the holders of such shares against any alteration of their status But all this can be done and more properly done by the articles of association 4 The law in this regard has been clearly laid down by the Judicial Committee in a recent case 5 While the memorandum must state the amount of capital divided into shares of a certain fixed amount provision as to the character of the shares and the rights to be attached to them is more properly made by the articles which may be altered from time to time by special resolution If equality of the shareholders is expressly provided in the memorandum that cannot be modified by the articles If nothing is said in the memorandum the articles may provide for the issue of the authorized capital in the form of preference shares, if the articles do not so provide or do provide for equality inter socios the power to issue preference shares may be obtained by alteration of the articles If the memorandum prescribes the classes of shares into which the capital is to be divided and the rights to be attached to such shares respectively, the company has no power to alter that provision by special resolution 6 A company is entitled to exercise the powers conferred on it by the memorandum unless such right is clearly restricted by the articles 7

Specification in the memorandum of rights attached to a particular class of shares is regarded prima facie as one of the conditions referred to in s 10 and therefore made unalterable 8, but if the rights are only conditionally attached e.g. if they are accompanied by a clause providing for alteration, such specification does not take effect as an unalterable condition 9

If the memorandum is wholly silent on the point the articles as originally framed and registered can effectually divide or give power to divide, the capital into different classes of shares with preferential or other rights attached 10 If the rights of different classes of shareholders are fixed by the articles only they can be altered by special resolution without leave of the Court 1

When both the memorandum and the articles are silent a company can issue different classes of shares by taking powers on alteration of the articles 2

The holders of preference shares unless the articles expressly so provide are not entitled to more than their fixed dividend however prosperous the company may be 3 Preference shares are presumably cumulative and ambiguous or vague language in the articles will not make them non-cumulative 4 They may however be made non-cumulative if the articles so declare in clear language 5 If the shareholders are by the articles entitled only to dividends when declared a preference shareholder cannot after liquidation claim payment on the ground that a dividend might have been declared 6

Unless preference shares are made preferential as to capital they are paid off equally with the ordinary shares upon liquidation of the company 7 But if they are preferential as to capital any surplus assets after payment of the debts will apart from any special provision in the articles 8 be applied first in paying off the capital of the preference shares 9

If the memorandum or the articles declare that the preference shares shall confer a preference in the winding up or that the surplus assets 10 shall be applied first in repaying the preference shares but do not further deal with the capital there is a difference of judicial opinion in England as to whether the preference shareholders will participate in any surplus after repayment of the ordinary shares 11 If the preference capital is repayable with interest this means with interest from the date of the winding up and any surplus from the sale of assets will be treated as capital 12

Where a clause in the memorandum of association conferred on the preference shareholders "the right to a fixed cumulative preference dividend at the rate of 12 per cent per annum on the capital for the time being paid up thereon and to half the distributable surplus profits which in respect of each year shall remain after paying or providing for the payment of dividend for such year at the rate of 10 per cent per annum on the capital for the time being paid up on the ordinary shares" and provides that their "shares shall rank both as regards dividends and capital in priority to the ordinary shares but shall not confer the right to any further participation in profits or assets" it was held on the construction of the memorandum and articles that the preference shareholders were entitled, in priority to the ordinary shareholders to payment of arrears of fixed cumulative preferred dividend and to repayment of capital. Every case depends upon the particular language used.

Where the articles state that the preference shareholders are to be paid in winding up "in priority of the preference dividend" there will be no such priority if the preference dividend was payable out of the profits of each year and there were no profits before the winding up.² But the question is doubtful if the dividend is cumulative.³ It has however been held that profits earned after commencement of winding up are divisible as capital.⁴

If there are no such preference shares when there is no power to do so or in an irregular manner the subscribers are entitled to have their money paid back and are equal creditors of the company.

For forms of memorandum and articles of association of a company limited by guarantee see Forms B and C of the Third Schedule. The articles of such a company must be registered with the memorandum and must state the amount of the share capital or if the company has no share capital the number of members with which the company is proposed to be registered. As to the increase or reduction of share capital of such a company registered after the commencement of this Act see s. 46. For the liability of a member of such a company in the winding up see s. 150 (1) (2). A member may be sued for the amount for which he is liable under the articles; he is not liable as a contributory in respect of such a sum.

The amount of guarantee of a company limited by guarantee is in the nature of reserve capital and cannot be mortgaged or charged before liquidation, but remains available for paying the costs of winding up and the general liabilities of the company.

The past members of such a company are liable to be put on the "B" list.

Notice of any increase of capital or in the number of members of a company limited by guarantee must be sent to the registrar.

8. In the case of an unlimited company —

Memorandum & articles of association shall contain —

Section 8.—In paragraph (iii) of subsection (1) after "the objects of the company" insert "and, except in the case of trading corporations, the territories to which they extend."

(i) no subscriber of the memorandum shall take more than one share,

(ii) each subscriber shall write opposite to his name the number of shares he takes.

For forms of memorandum and articles of association of an unlimited company see Form D of the Third Schedule. As to what the articles of such a company should contain see s. 17.

Memorandum & articles of an unlimited company

In the case of an unlimited company, the capital being stated in the articles may be varied at any time by special resolution without the sanction of the Court; and if the articles allow it capital may be returned to the members and they may cease to be members on such terms as may be agreed upon.

As in the case of a company limited by guarantee notice of any increase of capital or in the number of members must be sent to the registrar.

As to the registration of an unlimited company see ss. 67 and 68.

9 The memorandum shall—

- (a) be printed,
- (b) be divided into paragraphs numbered consecutively, and
- (c) be signed by each subscriber (who shall add his address and description) in the presence of at least one witness who shall attest the signature

This has been substituted by the Companies (Amendment) Act XXII of 1930 for the original 9 which ran as follows—

Signature

randum

- 9 The memorandum shall be signed by each subscriber in the presence of at least one witness who shall attest the signature

In the note on clause in the statement of objects and reasons for the bill it was stated that the clause applied to memorandum the requirements laid down by s. 9 of the English Act for articles. It would however have sufficed to say that it follows the requirements for article as laid down in s. 19 of the Act.

One witness for all the subscribers will suffice 1. But the signature of a subscriber cannot be attested by himself or by another subscriber, for the word 'attest' implies presence of some person who stands by but is not a party to the transaction 2.

An agent may sign the memorandum of association on behalf of his principal and the authority to sign may be given orally 3. The execution will be good whether the agent simply writes his principal's name or adds words showing that it is signed by an attorney 4.

A signatory to the memorandum is responsible for the shares which are shown against his name in the memorandum and on liquidation he is liable to the full extent even if the shares were never formally allotted to him 5. He remains a member until such time as he validly surrenders the shares or validly transfers them 6.

After registration a subscriber to the memorandum cannot divest himself of his liability as a member although his signature may not have been properly attested, the transaction may be irregular but it is not void 14. The subscriber cannot repudiate his subscription on the ground that he was induced to sign by misrepresentation 7. 14 to the effect of registration see ss. 23 and 24.

As to the stamp on a memorandum of association see Appendix (Stamp duty). The stamp must be affixed before or at the time of signatures 8. As to the scale of fees see Table B.

10. A company shall not alter the conditions contained in its memorandum except in the cases and in the mode and to the extent for which express provision is made in this Act.

Restriction on alteration of memorandum

Provided that any provision in the memorandum relating to the appointment of a manager or managing agent and other matters of a like nature in relation or subsidiary to the main objects of the company, shall not be deemed to be such condition

The proviso has been inserted by the Companies (Amendment) Act XXII of 1938. The object appears to be to frustrate the designs of such managers, managing agents or secretaries who endeavour to perpetuate their office by inserting a clause to that effect in the memorandum. The amendment follows the recent decision of the Bombay High Court in Lutman & Shetye Spinning & Weaving Co. (infra).

As observed by Lord Justice Baggallay, the memorandum of association forms indeed the charter of the company to be modified only in the way provided by the statute.¹ A condition contained in a company's memorandum of association cannot be altered and nothing can be done in contravention thereof.² If the memorandum qualifies the provisions for instance by giving power to alter them that power may however be exercised.³ Where one of the conditions contained in the memorandum of association is that the rights and privileges given to the various classes of shares are subject to variation varying them does not amount to an alteration of the conditions contained in the memorandum.⁴ Where the articles were registered on the same day as the memorandum and the reference in a clause of the memorandum to the privileges, rights, restrictions and conditions specified in the articles obviously meant the contemporaneous articles which were registered on the same day, it was held that the rights, privileges and restrictions of the preference shareholders as defined in the articles should be treated as incorporated in the memorandum and so could not be altered.⁵

The word 'conditions' in this section is general and is not restricted to conditions required by the statute to be inserted in the memorandum. If conditions not required by the statute to be inserted but in the sense of forming part of the constitution of the company are inserted in the memorandum they are unalterable⁶, unless the memorandum reserves power to alter them.⁷ But if the memorandum appoints a director without mentioning anything about his qualification, the company may afterwards impose a share qualification.⁸

Underwood v London Mutual

Lord Claud Hamilton's case [1873] 8 Ch App 348. In this case the articles provided for the future qualification of directors and it was held that future qualification meant that of future directors and did not apply to the directors mentioned in the memorandum of association.

It sometimes happens that the managing director, secretary or managing agents of a company with a view to perpetuate their office for ever get a clause inserted in the memorandum of association fixing their tenure of office and remuneration. But it has recently been held by the Bombay High Court that such provisions are nothing more than a detail of management for the purpose of carrying on the business of the company and cannot be considered to be a valid condition. For the opposite view see the case noted below 2.

A company may alter its memorandum of association in the following respects—

- (i) by changing its name [s 11],
- (ii) by altering its objects [s 12]
- (iii) by altering its share capital by [ss 50 & 51]
 - (a) increasing its share capital
 - (b) consolidating and dividing its capital into shares of larger amount
 - (c) converting its fully paid up shares into stock and reconverting the stock into fully paid up shares
 - (d) subdividing its shares into shares of smaller amount
 - (e) cancelling shares
- (iv) by reorganizing its share capital [s 54]
- (v) by reducing its capital [s 55],
- (vi) by creating reserve liability [s 60]
- (vii) by making the liability of the directors unlimited [s 71]
- (viii) by variation of rights of holders of special classes of shares [s 60A]

11. (1) A company shall not be registered by a name identical with that by which a company in existence is already registered, or so nearly resembling that name as to be calculated to deceive, except where the company in existence is in the course of being dissolved and signifies its consent in such manner as the registrar requires.

(2) If a company, through inadvertence or otherwise, is, without such consent as aforesaid, registered by a name identical with that by which a company in existence is previously registered, or so nearly resembling it as to be calculated to deceive, the first mentioned company may, with the sanction of the registrar, change its name.

(3) Except with the previous consent in writing of the Governor General in Council, no company shall be registered by a name which—

- (a) contains any of the following words, namely, "Colon", "Imperial", "Imperial", "Imperial", "Federal", "Imperial", "King", "Queen", "Royal", "State", "Reserve"

"Bank", "Bank of Bengal", "Bank of Madras", "Bank of Bombay", or any word which suggests or is calculated to suggest the patronage of His Majesty or of any member of the Royal Family or any authority or of His Majesty's Government or any department thereof.

- (b) contains the word "Municipal" or "Municipal Corporation" or any word which suggests or is calculated to suggest connection with any municipality or other local authority or with any society or body incorporated by Royal Charter.

Provided that nothing in this sub-section shall apply to companies registered before the commencement of this Act.

meet the circumstances of the case. On the issue of such a certificate, the change of name shall be complete.

(6) The change of name shall not affect any rights or obligations of the company, or render defective any legal proceedings by or against the company, and any legal proceedings that might have been continued or commenced against it by its former name may be continued or commenced against it by its new name.

The sub-s (3) above has been substituted by the Companies (Amendment) Act VIII of 1930. The original sub-s (3) ran as follows:—

(3) A company shall not be registered by a name which contains any of the following words, namely:—Crown, Emperor, Empire, Empress, Imperial, King, Queen, Royal, Bank of Bengal, Bank of Madras, Bank of Bombay, or words expressing or implying the sanction, approval or patronage of the Crown or the Government of India or a Local Government except where the Governor-General in Council signifies his consent to the use of such words as part of the name of the company by order in writing under the hand of one of the Secretaries to the Government of India.

Provided that nothing in this subsection shall apply to companies registered before the commencement of this Act.

The amendment has been suggested by s. 17 of the English Act of 1929. It will not affect companies registered before the above amendment Act came into force.

The word company or any similar word need not form part of a company name. Company's. Such names as "Dose Brothers Ltd", "Rakha Mines Ltd", "M T Ltd", name "Canning Employees Fund Ltd", may be used.

A new company is not permitted to be registered in a name so nearly resembling the name of an existing company as to be calculated to deceive ¹, or to lead to confusion ². The registrar may refuse to register the company, and the Court generally does not interfere with his discretion unless it is exercised on a wrong principle ³ of law or the registrar was influenced by extraneous considerations ³.

A company may not get registered in a name as will lead to the belief that it is carrying on the business of an existing firm ⁴ even if it be a foreign company ⁵. The soundness as well as spelling of the name will be considered ⁶ and absence of fraud is immaterial ⁷.

If however the business is different and the name is not identical, there cannot be any objection on the ground that one of the names is identical ⁸.

The Court will grant an injunction where similarity of names may lead to confusion and to interference with the business of an existing firm or companies ⁹. An inadvertent omission of the company to publish its corporate name will not disentitle it to have the use of its name protected by injunction ¹⁰.

In the case noted below ¹¹ the defendant was restrained by injunction from using the initials "B M A" on the ground that people who might see the defendant's shops might come to the conclusion that the British Medical Association was in some way connected with those shops.

The principle on which the Court interferes is that one person is not entitled to represent the business of another as carried on by him ¹². A company cannot however incorporate a descriptive word or title so as to obtain a monopoly thereof ¹³. A person who has bona fide and without any intention to deceive adopted a name for business purposes and acquired it by reputation over a considerable period is entitled to trade under that name and cannot be restrained from so doing even though the similarity of the name to that of another firm engaged in business in the same trade may occasionally lead to confusion ¹⁴. The Court would not grant an injunction where there was no evidence that the defendants imitated the trade marks or

Labels of the plaintiffs or otherwise attempted to deceive the public although there was a probability that the public would be occasionally misled by the similarity of the names of the plaintiffs 1

The registrar has no power to refuse registration of a company upon the ground that the name of the company would be calculated to deceive people into the belief that the business was carried on by persons not registered as a company under the Act 2

A distinction must always be drawn between cases in which the words are of common ordinary meaning and cases in which the words complained of are words which more or less partake of the character of fancy words or do not primarily relate to the article but to the person who makes it. The onus of proving that words which are commonly and properly used as descriptive words have a secondary or subsidiary meaning is on the person who has used them to their exclusive use lies on that person and is not easily discharged 3. The name or statement of fact may in its primary sense be strictly true but may be otherwise in its secondary sense 4

Although in the absence of fraud or false personation a man is entitled to carry on business in his own name in competition with a similar business previously well established under the same name notwithstanding that confusion or mistake may arise in consequence yet if he has never carried on such business he cannot by promoting and registering a company with a title of which his name forms a part confer upon the company the rights which he possesses in the use of that name 5

The name of a company indicates to some extent its objects 7. When a company ceases to carry on its principal business as indicated by its name it is liable to be wound up on that ground 8

Sub s (3) This was not in the English Act of 1906

Sub s (4) If the special resolution is not duly passed the registration of the new name will be vacated 7

Sub s (5) The change of name is not complete until it has been made in the register and a new certificate of incorporation issued 8

12. (1) Subject to the provisions of this Act, a company may, by special resolution, alter the provisions of its memorandum so as to change the place of the registered office from one province to another, or with respect to the objects of the company, so far as may be required to enable it—

(a) to carry on its business more economically or more efficiently, or

- (b) to attain its main purpose by new or improved means, or
- (c) to enlarge or change the local area of its operations, or
- (d) to carry on some business which under existing circumstances may conveniently or advantageously be combined with the business of the company; or
- (e) to restrict or abandon any of the objects specified in the memorandum, or
- (f) to sell or dispose of the whole or any part of the undertaking of the company, or
- (g) to amalgamate with any other company or body of persons

(2) The alteration shall not take effect until and except in so far as it is confirmed by the Court on petition

(3) Before confirming the alteration, the Court must be satisfied—

- (1) that sufficient notice has been given to every holder of debentures of the company, and to any persons or class of persons whose interests will, in the opinion of the Court, be affected by the alteration, and
- (2) that with respect to every creditor who in the opinion of the Court is entitled to object, and who signifies his objection in manner directed by the Court, either his consent to the alteration has been obtained or his debt or claim has been discharged or has been determined, or has been secured to the satisfaction of the Court

Provided that the Court may, in the case of any person or class, for special reasons, dispense with the notice required by this section.

Clauses (f) and (g) have been added to sub-s. (1) by the Companies (Amendment) Act XXII of 1930. They reproduce clauses (f) and (k) of sub-s. (1) of S. 5 of the English Act of 1929. This removes a doubt caused by the decision in John Walker & Sons v. 1. See Mirza ul Son & Co. (infra).

This section only authorises alterations which are within the limits provided by the memorandum of association. 2 To my mind says Lord Esher M.P. it is a plain enactment that the company cannot alter anything in the memorandum which is a condition save what is expressly mentioned in that section. Now anything which is laid down as a rule in the memorandum

2 Ashbury Ry. Carriage & Co. v. Riche [1875] 1 H. 7 H. 1 633

The Court rarely refuses to confirm a resolution for alteration of the objects 1. It is now well established that the Court has jurisdiction to sanction any alteration of the company's objects even though consisting of the adoption of an entirely new object clause in modern form in substitution for an old restricted one upon its being satisfied that this is required to place the company on an equality as regards the efficient carrying on its business with more recently formed companies 2.

If the alterations are such as to render the company's name misleading the Court may require the name to be changed so as to express the alteration in its aims or sphere of action 3 unless such an alteration of the name will be very inconvenient 4.

Sub s (1) An alteration under sub s (1) cl (a) must be one which will leave the business substantially what was before with only such changes in the mode of conducting it as will enable it to be carried on more economically or more efficiently 5. Under this clause a power to borrow and give security a power to invest resources in various securities and other ancillary powers may be authorized 6.

In cl (b) it should be noted the expression is to attain its main purpose and not to attain its objects.

An instance of cl (c) will be found in the case noted below 7.

The additional business under cl (d) may be a business wholly different from and bearing no relation to the existing business of the company and yet be capable of being conveniently and advantageously combined with it provided that the new business is not destructive of or inconsistent with the existing business 8. Whether the proposed new business is one of this description is a question for the determination of the directors and shareholders 8 for the Court will not look to the wisdom or desirability of the proposed alteration. All that it has to decide is whether the alteration is fair and equitable as between the members of the company 9. In the last cited case the Court refused to sanction an alteration involving abandonment of the objects of a fundamental character.

As an illustration of cl (e) see the case noted below 9.

The alteration must be for one of the objects specified in the section which does not authorize alterations for mere amplification of the description of objects clearly comprised in the original memorandum 10 or the acquisition of a large number of general powers many of which the company does not intend to exercise 11. But an alteration is valid with respect to the objects of the company within the meaning of sub-s (1), where it was desirable for the purpose of more efficiently carrying out the main object of the company 1

The alteration of a company's objects may be confirmed wholly or in part 2 11. A company may also make the alteration to restrict or abandon any of its objects 3

Where by a clause in the memorandum a person is appointed agent, secretary or managing director, the appointment cannot be regarded as one of the objects of the company but it was held to amount to a condition, within the meaning of s 10 which could not be altered either by the company or by the Court 4 The decision of Schwabe & Co in the last cited case has however been disented from in a later case of the Bombay High Court by Beaumont C J and Rangrekar J 5, see notes to s 10 (supra) and its new proviso

In the Bombay case a clause in the memorandum of association provided that the firm of Moraji Gokuldas & Co or whatever number or members that firm may at the time being consist of shall be the agents of the company so long as the said firm shall carry on business in Bombay or until they resign It was held that the original members of the firm having died and none of the present members of the firm having been ever partners with either of those two individuals namely Moraji and Gokuldas the present members of the firm do not come under the clause The argument of the appellant really seeks" observed Beaumont C J at p 429 "to endow this firm with the attributes of a corporation having perpetual succession so far as concerns its relations with the company "

At the hearing of a petition for confirmation the original memorandum and articles of association as well as the minute book must be made exhibits to the affidavit 6 As to the sufficiency of advertisement of the special resolution see Atlantic Patent Fuel Co [1917] WN 214 253

As to what is a valid special resolution under this section see the case noted below 7 The High Court has jurisdiction to sanction an alteration of the memorandum of association of an unlimited company which has no capital 8 or a guarantee company having no share capital 9 but if an unlimited company seeks to limit its liability alter its memorandum and adopts the word limited in its name it must register itself as a limited company before applying for sanction to the alteration 10

Unless a valid special resolution has been passed the Court cannot confirm the proposed alteration of objects 7 The Court will except in special cases require advertisement of orders made under this section 11

For the mode of alteration of the form of constitution of a company which was in existence before the commencement of Act VI of 1882 see s 207

Sub s (3) applies to persons such as creditors or members of the company s 10 and notes

13 The Court may make an order confirming the alteration either wholly or in part, and on such terms and conditions as it thinks fit, and may make such order as to costs as it thinks proper

Power of Court when confirming alteration

All that the Court has to decide is whether the alteration is fair and equitable as between members of the company. It is not concerned with the wisdom or desirability of the proposed alteration which is a question for the directors and members. The Court will refuse to sanction the alteration if the wishes of the majority of shareholders cannot be ascertained. 2 In the matter of alteration the Court is however bound to exercise a discretion having regard to the interests of the various persons shareholders creditors and others 3

The Court will not as a general rule allow a company to take large additional powers which it has not any reasonable intention of using in the near future except under very special circumstances 4. The Court may also sanction the alteration with the addition of a clause to the effect that none of the additional objects should be undertaken except as additional objects unless with the sanction by a special resolution 5

14 The Court shall, in exercising its discretion under sections 12 and 13, have regard to the rights and interests of the members of the company or of any class of them, as well as to the rights and interests of the creditors, and may, if it thinks fit, adjourn the proceedings in order that an arrangement may be made to the satisfaction of the Court for the purchase of the interests of dissentient members, and may give such directions and make such orders as it may think expedient for facilitating or carrying into effect any such arrangement

Provided that no part of the capital of the company may be expended in any such purchase

15 (1) A certified copy of the order confirming the alteration together with a printed copy of the memorandum as altered, shall, within three months from the date of the order, be filed by the company with the registrar, and he shall register the same, and shall certify the registration under his hand, and the certificate shall be conclusive evidence that all the requirements of this Act with respect to the alteration and the confirmation thereof have been complied with, and thenceforth the memorandum so altered shall be the memorandum of the company.

(2) Where the alteration involves a transfer of the registered office from one province to another, a certified copy of the order confirming such change shall be filed by the company with the registrar in each of such provinces, and each of such registrars shall register the same, and shall certify under his hand the registration thereof, and the registrar for the province from which such office is transferred shall send to the registrar for the other province all documents relating to the company registered or filed in his office.

(3) The Court may by order at any time extend the time for the filing of documents with the registrar under this section for such period as the Court thinks proper.

Sub s (2) is not in the English Act

16 No such alteration shall have any operation until registration thereof has been duly effected in accordance with the provision of section 15, and if such registration is not effected within three months next after the date of the order of the Court confirming the alteration, or within such further time as may be allowed by the Court in accordance with the provisions of section 15, such alteration and order and all proceedings connected therewith shall, at the expiration of such period of three months or such further time, as the case may be become absolutely null and void.

Provided that the Court may, on sufficient cause shown, revive the order on application made within a further period of one month.

This section is not in the English Act. But there is a penalty provided if the order is not filed with the registrar.

Articles of Association

17 (1) There may, in the case of a company limited by shares, and there shall, in the case of a company limited by guarantee or unlimited be registered with the memorandum, articles of association signed by the subscribers to the memorandum and prescribing regulations for the company.

(2) Articles of association may adopt all or any of the regulations contained in Table A in the First Schedule.

Effect of failure to register within three months

Registration of articles and shall in any event be deemed to contain regulations identical with or to the same effect as regulation 56, regulation 66, regulation 71, regulations 78, 79, 80, 81 and 82, regulation 95, regulation 97, regulation 105, regulation 107 and regulations 111, 113, 114, 115 and 116 contained in that Table

Provided that regulations shall not be deemed to be included in the articles of any private company except a private company which is the subsidiary company of a public company

Provided further that regulation 107 shall be deemed to require that a statement of the reasons why of the whole amount of any item of expenditure which may in fairness be distributed over several years, only a portion thereof charged against the income of the year, shall be shown in the profit and loss account, unless the company in general meeting shall determine otherwise

(3) In the case of an unlimited company or a company limited by guarantee, the articles, if the company has a share capital, shall state the amount of share capital with which the company proposes to be registered

(4) In the case of an unlimited company or a company limited by guarantee, if the company has not a share capital, the articles shall state the number of members with which the company proposes to be registered, for the purpose of enabling the registrar to determine the fees payable on registration

The words in italics in sub s (2) have been added by the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936 The effect of the addition is that a company, whether limited by shares by guarantee or unlimited will be deemed to contain the following regulations of Table A of the Act namely —Regulations 56 66 71 78 79 80 81 82 97 105 107 and 112 to 116 (both inclusive)

Regulation 56 says how a resolution at a general meeting is to be decided by votes on a show of hand or by poll This regulation should be read with the provisions of cl (c) sub s (1) of the new section 79 which has replaced the old one

Regulation 66 provides that the instrument of proxy or power of attorney must be deposited at the registered office of the company not less than 72 hours before the time of the meeting

Regulation 71 provides that business of the company shall be managed by the directors

Regulations 78 to 82 make provisions for the rotation of directors

Regulation 95 says that the company in general meeting may declare dividends, but not exceeding the amount recommended by the directors

Regulation 65 as amended by the Companies (Amendment) Act 1911 provides that no dividend shall be paid otherwise than out of profits of the year or any other undistributed profit.

Regulation 106 relates to provision for inspection of books and accounts of the company by its members.

Regulation 107 as amended by the Companies (Amendment) Act 1911 relates to the profit and loss account of the company.

under the Act the memorandum was applied for the purposes of the company 2

The articles are subordinate to the memorandum of association. Any clause in the former at variance with the latter is to that extent inoperative. 3 The articles cannot modify the memorandum of association in any of the particulars required by the Act to be stated in the memorandum 4 which is the area beyond which the company cannot go but inside that area the shareholders may make such regulations for their own government as they think fit 5. It is forbidden by the memorandum, it cannot be done, if not it is immaterial that the change quite alters the composition of the company 6. Lord Selborne said in Dent's case 7. It is quite certain that if there be found anything in the articles limiting liability of the shareholders in a way inconsistent with the memorandum—anything tending to reduce the liability of the shareholders thereby prescribed—it is simply void 8. For further cases see notes to s. 21.

The articles cannot also extend the objects defined in the memorandum of association. Lord Justice Bowen thus distinguished the respective functions of the memorandum and the articles of association. The memorandum contains the fundamental conditions upon which alone the company is allowed to be incorporated. They are conditions introduced for the benefit of the creditors and the outside public as well as the shareholders. The articles are the internal regulations of the company 1 They are however to be read together, the articles may then explain or amplify the memorandum 2

The articles establish a contract between the members and the company 3, and although there is no contract in terms between each individual member and every other 4 the articles regulate their rights inter se 5 But this contract is not for the benefit of strangers or even of members in some other capacity for the articles are not contracts with outsiders 6 A statement in the articles that a particular person shall be the secretary, manager or other officer of the company will not amount to a contract with him 6, but where on the footing of the articles the directors are employed by the company and accept office the terms of the articles impliedly form a contract between the company and the directors 7 A provision in the articles in favour of a promoter that the preliminary expenses shall be paid by the company gives to the promoter no right of action against the company 8 Articles cannot be considered as a contract between the company and a third person e.g. a vendor 9 Where a company by its articles appointed a firm as its managing agents who acted as such pursuant to an agreement the terms of which were scheduled to the articles but the agreement was not executed and the company claimed back the moneys drawn out by the firm as their remuneration as well as the preliminary expenses it was held that the company was not entitled to recover the money although the firm could not sue for and recover it by any course of law 10

Where a company is regulated by an act of the legislature or by a deed of settlement or memorandum and articles registered in some public office, persons dealing with the company are bound to read the act or the registered documents and to see that the proposed dealing is not inconsistent with them 11, but they are not bound to do more 11 They need not inquire into the regularity of the proceedings—what Lord Hatherley called the indoor management They are entitled to assume that all is being done regularly 11 Thus where the articles give power to borrow with the sanction of a general meeting a lender need not inquire whether such sanction has in fact been obtained 11 If there is a managing director and there is authority in the articles for the directors to delegate their powers to him a person dealing with him bona fide may assume that he has power to do what he purports to do provided that it is within the company's objects 1, so too in the case of a mortgagee taking a mortgage from a company executed by such a person 2

On the same principle a person dealing with a company is entitled to assume that the de facto directors are directors de jure whether they are properly appointed or not 3 But a person who has notice of the irregularity cannot claim the benefit 4 nor does the rule apply where the requisite signatures are forged 5

A person dealing with a company may also assume that the articles registered have been duly adopted by the company 6 The company is well as the person dealing with it can equally rely upon the articles 7

A person dealing with a company must take the articles to be such as appear at the office of the registrar of companies to be in force If the directors propose to do something in excess of their powers thereunder he is not entitled to assume that their powers have been extended by a special resolution for such a resolution if passed would be registered 7

In this connection the observations of Lord Halsbury in Pacific Coast Coal Mining & Ice Co v. British Columbia 8 are instructive "No doubt where some act such as the granting of an obligation in the course of its business is put by the constitution of the company within its power and certain formalities of administration are prescribed by the articles of association which for domestic purposes regulate the duties of the directors to the shareholders the mere failure to comply with a formality such as a proper appointment or the presence of a quorum of directors will not affect a person dealing with the company from outside and without knowledge of the irregularity He is presumed to know the constitution of the company but not what may or may not have taken place within doors that is closed to him Lord Hatherley's judgment in Mahony v. East Holyford Mining Co 9 is followed by practitioners in company law the classical exposition of this principle But the courts stand quite otherwise when the act is one which has not by the constitution of the corporation been put within its power excepting on the fulfilment of a condition In that event the persons dealing with the corporation are bound to ascertain whether the condition has been fulfilled

Where the articles provide for the borrowing powers to be exercised in a particular manner, then in the absence of an express power delegating such powers to the directors the latter cannot exercise those powers 7 The articles cannot authorize the company to do anything which is expressly or impliedly forbidden by the Act, 17 to 19 dividends out of capital 9 nor can they take away from the company or its members any rights conferred by the Act 10 A clause in the

Where an article is one which the company has power to adopt, the fact that there has been a defect in the procedure of its adoption will not prevent a person dealing with the company on the faith of the article from insisting that it shall be treated as binding on the company and the company can equally insist upon such articles where they have been made the basis of a contract with a stranger ¹

The regulations of Table A will not apply to a company registered under Part VII of the Act unless such regulations are adopted by a special resolution ² nor to a company registered before 1st April 1914 Companies existing at the commencement of the Act which have adopted as their articles either the regulations contained in Table B in the Schedule of Act XIX of 1857 or those contained in Table A of the First Schedule of Act VI of 1857 will still be governed by those regulations ³

19 Articles shall—

Form and signature of articles (a) be printed,
(b) be divided into paragraphs numbered consecutively, and
(c) be signed by each subscriber of the memorandum (who shall add his address and description) of association in the presence of at least one witness who must attest the signature

In cl (c) the words in italics have been inserted by the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936

The directors have no power to remit or accept surrender of share of those who signed the articles ⁴

As to who is competent to attest the signature see notes to a 9

Every member is entitled to get on payment of one rupee or such less sum as the company may prescribe a copy of the memorandum and articles of association ⁵

For the stamp duty to be paid on the articles of a association see Art 10 of the Stamp Act as amended by the local Acts (See appendix—Stamp Duty)

20 (1) Subject to the provisions of this Act and to the Alteration of articles by special resolution conditions contained in its memorandum, a company may by special resolution alter or add to its articles, and any alteration or addition so made shall be as valid as if originally contained in the articles, and be subject in like manner to alteration by special resolution

(2) The power of altering articles under this section shall in the case of any company formed and registered under Act No XIX of 1857 and Act No VII of 1860 or either of them,

The articles must be altered in good faith and not so as to give an unfairly undue Limitation to a majority of the shareholders 1 This is the only limitation in the power of alteration to alter the articles of association 2

A company has power under this section to introduce by altering the articles a provision that shareholders who carry on business in competition with the company may be required to transfer their shares to a nominee of the directors at a price certified by the auditors to be their fair value provided that the alteration is for the benefit of the company as a whole 3, if otherwise the new provision is invalid 4

The section cannot be used to oppress or defraud a minority of the shareholders in so as to violate any statutory provision or principle of law 5 A majority will not be permitted by the Court to commit fraud on the minority 6 No majority in effect by altering the articles retrospectively affect to the prejudice of non-consenting shareholders their rights under a previous contract 7

In the case of the issue of preference shares and the like there is generally outside Alterations affecting preference shares the articles a contract conferring special rights If the original articles do not contain the power to issue preference shares the company may take the power by special resolution 8

Rights which have their origin in a contract outside the articles the terms of which contract are found in or referred to in such articles can be altered by such alteration of the articles unless it is proved that one of the terms of such contract was that such rights should not be affected 9 But the passing of a special resolution inconsistent with an existing article will not however be effective unless the special resolution has been passed at previous meetings altering that article 10

A company existing before the commencement of the present Act may adopt the Alteration in the case of existing company Table A of this Act as its regulations by passing a special resolution to the following effect The existing regulations of the company are hereby rescinded and in lieu thereof the regulations contained in Table A of the Indian Companies Act 1913 shall be the regulations for the management of the company subject to the modifications hereinafter set forth

A company will not be allowed to alter its articles in breach of contract with an outsider 11, but it is otherwise if the outsider has taken his contract subject to the risk 12 As regards contracts between a company and its members respecting their shares it should not be assumed that the contract involves as one of its terms an article which is not to be altered 1 A shareholder must be taken to know that one of the incidents of membership is that the company may, by adopting the proper method bona fide alter its articles in a way which may prejudicially affect his interest, and provided that the alteration in the articles is not inconsistent with the objects set out in the memorandum of association and is bona fide made in the interest 2 of the company, the shareholders will be bound by such alteration. But a special contract may be made with the company in the terms of or embodying one or more of the articles. In that case if an alteration of the articles so embodied is inconsistent with the real bargain between the parties, the contractee even though a shareholder will not be bound, for a company cannot break its contract by altering its articles of association 3 But a company may alter its articles so as to vary a contract with an outsider if the latter has made the contract subject to the risk of the articles being altered 4

Where the articles are altered provided that the shares of any member who became bankrupt should be sold to certain persons at a certain price and a member becomes bankrupt and his trustee claimed that he was not bound by the altered articles it was held that the articles were altered in the proper way, and a contract between the other members and the bankrupt, and his trustee was bound 5

By sub s (1) a company may subject to the provisions of the Act and to the conditions contained in the memorandum alter or add to the articles. By the general law this power must be exercised bona fide for the benefit of the company. But it is for the shareholders and not for the Court to say whether an alteration of the articles is for the benefit of the company provided that it is not of such a character as that no reasonable man can so regard it 6

Although a special resolution is the statutory mode of enacting articles of association the adoption of certain articles by a company may be proved by a long course of acquiescence as pointed out by Lord Davey 7 "It appears that these articles have been registered (without signature) and have been published and put forward as the company's articles and have been acted on amended or added to by the shareholders and the company's business has been conducted under the regulations contained therein for 19 years without any objection and the company on the record says that these articles are its articles. Their Lordships think that in these circumstances they are entitled to draw the inference that all the shareholders have accepted and adopted the articles as the valid and operative articles of the company. The articles stand on a very different footing from the memorandum and are in the power of the shareholders themselves." But see Pacific Coast Coal Mines v. Arthurnot 8

1 Per Lord Lindley M R in Allen v. Gold Reefs of W. Africa [1900] 1 Ch 626, 673

How alteration of effects contracts Rights which have their origin in a contract outside the articles the terms of which contract are found or referred to in such articles can be altered by such alteration of the articles unless it is proved that one of the terms of such contract was that such rights should not be affected by an alteration of the articles 1 The articles can be altered retrospectively unless such alteration will cause a breach of contract entered into by the company 2

New articles The Act does not contemplate new articles of association and where it purports to be so it is nothing more than a record of special resolution and as such does not require to be stamped 3

Clerical errors and mistakes Clerical errors in the articles should be set right by a special resolution and not by an action for rectification 4 The Court has no jurisdiction to rectify the articles on the ground of mistake for they have a statutory operation 4

A special resolution is defined in s. 81

20A. Notwithstanding anything in the memorandum or articles of a company, no member of the company shall be bound by an alteration made in the memorandum or articles after the date on which he became a member of it and so far as the alteration requires him to take or subscribe for more shares than the number held by him at the date on which the alteration is made, or in any way increases his liability as at that date to contribute to the share capital of, or otherwise to pay money to, the company

Provided that this section shall not apply in any case where the member agrees in writing either before or after the alteration is made to be bound thereby

This section has been inserted by the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936 It reproduces verbatim s. 22 of the English Act of 1929

General Provisions

21. (1) The memorandum and articles shall, when registered, bind the company and the members thereof to the same extent as if they respectively had been signed by each member and contained a covenant on the part of each member, his heirs, and legal representatives, to observe all the provisions of the memorandum and of the articles, subject to the provisions of this Act

(2) All money payable by any member to the company under the memorandum or articles shall be a debt due from him to the company

time, but all must be done in the way of alteration subject to the conditions contained in the memorandum of association — The memorandum of association is as it were the area beyond which the action of the company cannot go inside that area the shareholders may make such regulations for their own government as they think fit 1 But except in respect of such matters as must by statute be provided for by the memorandum of association the latter is not to be regarded as the dominant document but is to be read in conjunction with the articles In this particular case however their Lordships of the Judicial Committee were unable to read the two documents together and held that as the reserve fund was created by the memorandum for the benefit and security of the preference shareholders and as the provisions of the memorandum with regard to it were neither ambiguous nor in need of being supplemented article 119 did not empower the directors to apply the said fund for the purposes therein mentioned 2

The articles constitute a contract not merely between the company and the member — but also between each individual member and every other member 3 As between the company and its members the contract is in respect of their ordinary rights as members 4 A contract contained in the articles cannot be enforced by a person who is not a member 5 or even by a member except in so far as it relates to his position as a member 6 The rights arising out of such contracts can ordinarily be enforced through the company 7

Anything in the articles which is inconsistent with the provisions of the Act is void 8 In the last noted case at p 315 Lord Herschell observed as follows The articles constitute a contract between each member and the company and there is no contract in terms between the individual members of the company, but the articles do not any the less in my opinion regulate their rights inter se Such rights can only be enforced by or against a member through the company or through the liquidator representing the company, but I think that no member has as between himself and another member any rights beyond that which the contract with the company gives 9

Where the articles are not valid for want of registration the company may be stopped from raising the plea of their invalidity against holders of shares in due course 9

The memorandum and the articles embody only the social contract between the shareholders inter se and possibly between the shareholders and directors and do not constitute any contract between the company and its promoters 10

The purpose of the memorandum and articles is to define the position of the shareholder as shareholder, and not to bind him in his capacity as an individual 1 No article can constitute a contract between the company and a third person 2 No right merely purporting to be given by an article to a person, whether member or not, in a capacity other than that of a member e.g. as solicitor, promoter or director can be enforced against the company 3 A memorandum of association must be construed in its literal meaning 4.

Sub-s (2) Under this sub-section the liability of the shareholders in respect of the balance due on their shares is undoubtedly a debt due from them to the company, the debt accruing due from the time when their liability commenced, that is, from the time when they first took up their shares This liability is not however enforceable against the shareholders until a valid notice has been given to them in accordance with the articles 5

22. The memorandum and the articles (if any) shall be filed with the registrar for the province in which the registered office of the company is stated by the memorandum to be situate, and he shall retain and register them.

The registration of a company takes place when the memorandum and articles are accepted and retained by the registrar 6, and not on the date on which his signature is written 6 The registrar will decline registration if he considers them to be improperly stamped 7 If the certificate of registration be not forthcoming it may be proved alium le 8

The function of the registrar is quasi-judicial 9 and the Court will not interfere with his decision unless it is clearly satisfied that he has come to a wrong decision 10 If he wrongly refuse registration a mandamus may issue under s 45 of the Specific Relief Act to compel registration

For the fees payable for registration see Table B in the First Schedule.

23. (1) On the registration of the memorandum of a company, the registrar shall certify under his hand that the company is incorporated, and in the case of a limited company that the company is limited.

(2) From the date of incorporation mentioned in the certificate of incorporation, the subscribers of the memorandum, together with such other persons as may from time to time become members of the company, shall be a body corporate by the name contained in the memorandum, capable forthwith of exercising all the functions of an incorporated company, and having perpetual succession and a common seal, but with such liability on the part of the members to contribute to the assets of the company in the event of its being wound up as is mentioned in this Act.

In England a company created a corporation under the Companies Acts is not thereby created a corporation with Common Law rights 1

A company, as soon as it is incorporated becomes a legal entity distinct from its members 2 It becomes a legal persona 3 and not a mere aggregate of the shareholders 4 The incorporator, even if he holds all the shares is not a corporation and neither he nor any relation of the company has any property, legal or equitable in the assets of the corporation 5 and it follows that two companies so incorporated are not the same persons in the eye of the law even though the shareholders in both the companies are the same persons 6 It not infrequently happens in the course of legal proceedings observed Lord Buckmaster, that parties who find they have a limited company as debtor with all its paid up capital issued in the form of fully paid up shares and no free capital for working suggest that the company is nothing but an alter ego for the people by whose action it is controlled But in truth the Companies Acts expressly contemplate that people may substitute the limited liability of a company for the unlimited liability of individuals with the object that by this means enterprise and adventure may be encouraged A company therefore which is duly incorporated cannot be disregarded on the ground that it is a sham although it may be established by evidence that in its operations it does not act on its own behalf as an independent trading unit but simply for and on behalf of the people by whom it has been called into existence 7 In a public statute the word person means primarily a person in law and includes 'any company or association or body of individuals incorporated or not' 8

An incorporated company must sue and be sued in its corporate name 9 It is an elementary principle, observed Lord Davey 10 of the law relating to joint stock companies that the Court will not interfere with the internal management of companies acting within their powers and in fact this is no jurisdiction to do so Again it is clear law that in order to redress a wrong done to the company or to recover moneys or damages alleged to be due to the company

the action should in a fact be brought by the company itself. These cardinal principles are laid down in the well known cases of Joss v. Hubbottle 1 and Maxley v. Aston 2 and in numerous later cases which it is unnecessary to cite. But an exception is made to the second rule where the persons by whom the relief is sought themselves hold and control the majority of the shares in the company and will not permit an action to be brought in the name of the company. In that case the courts allow the shareholders coming to bring an action in their own names. The cases in which the minority can maintain such an action are therefore confined to those in which the acts complained of are of a fraudulent character or beyond the powers of the company. A familiar example is where the majority are endeavouring directly or indirectly to appropriate to themselves money, property or advantages which belong to the company or in which the other shareholders are entitled to participate as was alleged in the case of Meier v. Hooper & Telegraph Works 3. It should be added that no mere informality or irregularity which can be remedied by the majority will entitle the minority to sue if the act when done regularly would be within the powers of the company and the intention of the majority of the shareholders is clear. This may be illustrated by the judgment of Mellish J. in McCullagh v. Gardiner 4.

Such a company can sue for libel affecting its property or for a libel reflecting on the management of its business or attacking its financial position 5. In such cases it is not necessary to prove special damage 6. A trading company may sue in respect of a malicious and unreasonable presentation of a winding up petition against it 7.

A suit for recovery of salary or wages lies against the company and not its secretary or managing director 8. But a solicitor preparing on instruction from persons who became directors subsequently memorandum and articles of association before the formation of the company cannot sue the company although it has taken benefit of his work 9. Even the expenses of registration cannot be recovered 10.

In England a company cannot be sued by the vendor on contract made before its incorporation 11. The person who made the contract on behalf of the company remains personally liable even if it is afterwards ratified by the company 12. For a company cannot by adoption or ratification obtain benefit of an agreement purporting to be made on its behalf before its incorporation 11. In order to do so a new contract must be made with it after its incorporation on the terms of the old one 11. The new contract may however be inferred from the facts of the case 11.

The pleading should be signed and verified on behalf of the company by the secretary or by any director or other principal officer who is able to depose to the facts of the case. 1 The Court may at any stage of the suit require the personal appearance of such an officer who may be able to answer material questions relating to the suit. 2 In the case noted below 3

Signing & verification of pleadings

Buckland J of the Calcutta High Court has held that in the case of a company or corporation it must be established by an affidavit (1) that the person signing the pleading was authorized to do so and (2) that the person verifying it was fit to do so. But when a specific rule has been laid down in O 6 R 1 C P C regarding the signing and verification of pleadings in the cases of corporations the specific rule it is submitted with great respect excludes so far as it goes the general rule provided in Rules 14 and 15 of O 6 C P C. Under Rule 3 of O 6 C P C the Court may at any stage of the suit require the personal appearance of the secretary, director or other principal officer of the corporation who may be able to answer material questions relating to the suit thus providing a sufficient safeguard. Of course a company can always authorize some other person under the last part of O 6 R 14 to sign the pleading. If the company does not choose that course it can act under O 23 P 1 i.e. it can rely on that Order as in that constituting the persons named therein as agents to sign without the necessity of an express authority. 4 In a proceeding for or against a company it cannot be represented by the Registrar of Companies. 5

See notes to s. 2 (2) supra

In India too it has been held that a company cannot be bound by a contract entered into on its behalf before the company was formed and that it is not competent to bring a company into existence bound to enter into a contract with a third party the terms of which have been arranged before the company is formed. It is for the company to consider after its formation whether it will enter into the contract or not. 6 But s. 27 of the Specific Relief Act expressly provides that where the contract is made for the purpose of the company and such contract is warranted by the terms of the incorporation specific performance thereof may be obtained by the company though the contract is made before its incorporation. S. 27 of the same Act provides that when the promoters of a public company have before its incorporation entered into a contract specific performance thereof may be enforced against the company provided that the company has ratified and adopted the contract and the contract is warranted by the terms of its incorporation. These two sections however have been held to be inapplicable to contracts to take shares. 7

The Court will not make an order the effect of which is to enforce specifically any contract of personal service. 8

The date of registration of a company is the date mentioned in the certificate and not that on which the signature of the registrar was written¹ The effect of this section is that the date mentioned in the certificate is the first day of the company's corporate existence, and it is not open to any one to prove the moment of time on which a corporate act was done that day and then to say that the company was not in existence at that moment. The corporate person is to be treated as having been in existence for the whole of the day on which it was incorporated¹

As soon as a company is registered it becomes a distinct legal 'person' even if the members thereof consist of seven persons only one of whom holds all the shares and the rest are mere cestui que trust. 'If they are shareholders, they are shareholders for all purposes' and even if the statute was silent as to the recognition of trusts I should be prepared to hold that if six of them were the cestui que trust of the seventh whatever might be their rights under the statute would have made them shareholders to all intents and purposes with their respective rights and liabilities and dealing with them in their relation to the company the only relation which I believe the law would sanction would be that they were incorporators of the corporate body'²

Whether they are beneficiaries or bare trustees is a matter with which neither the company nor creditors have anything to do it concerns only them and the cestui que trust if they have any³. It may be that a company constituted like that under consideration was not in the contemplation of the Legislature at the time when the Act authorizing limited liability was passed that if what is possible under the enactments as they stand had been foreseen a minimum sum would have been fixed as the least denomination of share permissible and that it would have been made a condition that each of the seven persons should have a substantial interest in the company. But we have to interpret the law not to make it and it must be remembered that no one need trust a limited company unless he so please and that before he does so he can ascertain if he so please what is the capital of the company and how it is held⁴. See notes to s 2 [2]

In the case of a co-operative society registered under the Co-operative Societies Act [1912] as well as under the Companies Act it has recently been held by a Full Bench of the Privy Council that the effect of incorporating such a company under the Companies Act is to make the society a legal person and if a man trusts such a corporation he trusts that legal person and must look to its assets for payments and he can only call upon individual members to contribute in case the Act or charter so provides⁵.

A private company can commence business as soon as it is incorporated. As to the right of a public company in this respect see s 103.

If the original certificate of incorporation is lost or if a copy is required for any other reason another certificate may be obtained from the registrar⁵.

As to the seal see notes to art 76 Table A.

24. (1) A certificate of incorporation given by the registrar in respect of any association shall be conclusive evidence that all the requirements of this Act in respect of registration and of matters precedent and incidental thereto have been complied with, and that the association is a company authorized to be registered and duly registered under this Act

(2) A declaration by an advocate, attorney or pleader entitled to appear before a High Court who is engaged in the formation of a company, or by a person named in the articles as a director, manager or secretary of the company, of compliance with all or any of the said requirements shall be filed with the registrar, and the registrar may accept such a declaration as sufficient evidence of compliance

The certificate of incorporation is conclusive on the following points:— (1) that all the requirements of the Act in respect of registration and of matters precedent and incidental thereto have been complied with 1

(2) that the association is a company authorized to be registered under the Act (3) that it has been duly registered. Even though a company is formed for the mere purpose of being registered the question cannot be raised whether it was authorized to be registered under the Act 2 The only function of the Court therefore is to construe the memorandum of association as it stands 3

It was held in 1891 that the certificate of incorporation could not be treated as conclusive of the fact that seven persons signed the memorandum of association in that if a less number signed it the Court had no jurisdiction to make a winding up order 4 But in a later case from India the Privy Council held that the certificate is conclusive for all purposes even though the conditions of registration prescribed by the Act were not duly complied with and there were not seven subscribers to the memorandum of association 5 The certificate is conclusive but it will not make illegal objects legal 6

Although the conduct of the registrar in knowingly registering the memorandum which had been altered is most censurable, the certificate is conclusive evidence that the company was duly constituted and the requirements of the Act complied with 7

25 (1) Every company shall send to every member, at his request and within fourteen days thereof on payment of one rupee or such less sum as the company may prescribe, a copy of the memorandum and of the articles (if any)

27 (1) In the case of a company limited by guarantee and not having a share capital, and registered after the commencement of this Act, every provision in the memorandum or articles or in any resolution of the company purporting to give any person a right to participate in the divisible profits of the company otherwise than as a member shall be void.

(2) For the purpose of the provisions of this Act relating to the memorandum of a company limited by guarantee and of this section, every provision in the memorandum or articles, or in any resolution, of any company limited by guarantee and registered after the commencement of this Act, purporting to divide the undertaking of the company into shares or interests, shall be treated as a provision for a share capital, notwithstanding that the nominal amount or number of the shares or interests is not specified thereby.

As to the contents of the memorandum and articles of association of such company see s. 101 and forms B and C in the Third Schedule.

Nothing in this section affects companies registered before 1st April 1914.

PART III.

SHARE CAPITAL, REGISTRATION OF UNLIMITED COMPANIES AS LIMITED, AND UNLIMITED LIABILITY OF DIRECTORS Distribution of Share Capital

28 (1) The shares or other interest of any member in a company shall be moveable property, transferable in manner provided by the articles of the company.

(2) Each share in a company having a share capital shall be distinguished by its appropriate number.

Share means share in the share capital of the company and includes stock except when a distinction between stock and shares is expressed or implied. A share is not a sum of money but is an interest measured by a sum of money and made up of various rights contained in the contract.² Shares are goods³ within the meaning of s. 76 of the Indian Contract Act 3.

case 1 furly 2 The Court will interfere where the directors do not exercise their discretion bona fide or they act oppressively capriciously or corruptly or in some way mala fide 3

Upon a sale of shares there is an implied contract on the part of the buyer to indemnify the seller from any future call or other liabilities except the statutory ones 4 But the seller does not warrant that the company will accept the transferee 5 for it is the duty of the transferee to get himself registered

6 But it does not follow that a sale can take place even without registration 7 If after the transfer the directors acting within their powers refuse to register the transfer the transferor remains the legal holder of the shares but becomes a trustee for the transferee and must collect and pay over to the transferee the dividends as they accrue 7 If the purchaser desires to protect himself he should buy with registration guaranteed otherwise the vendor can keep the purchase money even if the transfer is not registered 8 Where the shares were not registered in the name of the transferor, there is however a failure of consideration 9

Under a contract for the sale of shares the measure of damages upon breach by the buyer is the difference between the contract price and the market price at the date of the breach 10 It is undoubted law, observed their Lordships of the Judicial Committee that a plaintiff who sues for damages owes the duty of taking all reasonable steps to mitigate the loss consequent upon the breach and cannot claim as damages any sum which is due to his own neglect But the loss to be ascertained is the loss at the date of the breach If at that date the plaintiff could do something or did something which mitigated the damage the defendant is entitled to the benefit of it 10

The deed of transfer should be signed both by the transferor and the transferee, for if the transferee does not sign it or otherwise agrees to become a shareholder the transfer will not be effectual to fasten any liability on the transferee even if the transfer is registered by the directors 11

In such a case the transfer executed by the transferor alone does not pass legal title 12 But if the transfer has been acted upon or recognized by the transferee it will be effectual 12 The object of requiring the transferee to execute the transfer is to satisfy the company that he agreed to take the shares 13 A registered transfer is however presumed prima facie to have been accepted by the transferee even where he has not executed the instrument of transfer 14

A seller of shares is bound, if the contract fixes no date, to deliver the certificate within a reasonable time 1 A contract for the sale of shares may be made orally 2 and specific performance of such a contract 3 may be obtained, even though the company pending the litigation has gone into liquidation 4

On the purchase of shares the obligation to prepare the instrument of transfer is, as a general rule, on the purchaser 5 The instrument must be in accordance with the articles and be executed in manner prescribed therein, as for instance if the articles require [as in art 18 of Table A] that the instrument shall be executed both by the transferor and the transferee the omission of execution by the latter invalidates the transfer 6 But the omission of particulars known to the directors will not invalidate a transfer 7

Where the transfer is lodged with the company and it goes into liquidation before the transfer is registered the transfer will be registered nunc pro tunc, i.e., as if it had been registered when the registration ought to have been made 8

Upon a transfer all the rights and obligations of the member in respect of the shares are transferred from the date of the transfer, but his rights to dividends &c already declared are not transferred unless expressly so provided nor are the liabilities in respect of calls already made, but the rights to future dividends and liabilities in respect of future calls are transferred 9 If the transfer is preceded by a contract the purchaser will be entitled to dividends declared after the contract 10 Ordinarily and in the absence of a contract to the contrary a purchaser of shares is entitled to all the dividends which may have been declared after the date of the purchase The general rule however may be modified by special stipulations 11 There is nothing in law observed Sen J in the last cited case to preclude a shareholder from selling the shares only and reserving the dividends to himself Where shares are sold no matter whether by private treaty or by public sale and it is definitely understood that the shares and not the dividends on the shares are the subject of bargain the purchaser cannot deprive the original owner of his right to the dividend of a period anterior to the sale even though the dividend may have been declared subsequent to the date of the purchase 12 In transactions on the stock exchange made near the time of the declaration of dividend the sale is generally expressed in the contract as ex die or cum die usually written x d and c d A slight delay in according sanction to a transfer will not justify a payment of dividends to a person not yet entered on the register as a member and such a delay will not make the company liable to an action for damages 13 Until the transferee's name is entered in the register of members the dividends on the shares are payable to the transferor for he is deemed to be the holder of the shares until the entry is made 1

Non-compliance with the rules of a company for the complete transfer of shares prevents the shares from legally vesting in the transferee though belonging to him in equity 2 Such a transfer does not absolve the transferor from his liability as a contributory 2 If the articles require a transfer to be made by a deed under seal, a blank transfer cannot be filled in without the power of attorney 3 nor are the directors at liberty to dispense with the formality 4 But if the formalities have been substantially complied with and the transferee accepted as a shareholder then after a lapse of time the transfer cannot be impeached 5

A shareholder cannot insist on registration of a transfer on the eve of liquidation, nor if the rights of creditors have intervened although a winding up has not commenced 6 Where a company has become insolvent the directors should refuse registration of transfers although the company has not actually gone into liquidation 7 A Company is not bound to send notice to the transferor of its refusal to register the transfer 8

A company is not however justified in refusing to register a transfer on the assumption that it is a breach of trust 9 The proper course for the company is to give notice that unless proceedings are taken within specified time it will proceed to register the transfer 10 A company cannot refuse to register a transfer to a bankrupt director on the ground that the shares will pass to the trustee in bankruptcy 11

Although the articles prescribe certain conditions which have to be complied with to entitle a transferee to get his name on the register those are matters which the company may or may not insist upon 12 Where shares are transferred to a firm in the firm name, the company is not bound to register the transfer as the firm is not a person 13

If the articles give the company a lien on the shares and the directors allow registration of transfer before the debt is paid the company loses the security 14 But the directors cannot by delaying registration acquire a lien which would defeat the transfer 15 A purchaser of shares subject to a lien is bound by it but he may require the company to resort first to company may recover the certificate and remove the transferee's name from the register. If the broker represents that he has authority to act for the supposed transferee he is liable upon an implied contract that he has authority to do so. A person who is a transferee is liable if it turns out that a fraud has been committed.²

Whether a transfer should or should not be registered without production of a share certificate is a matter within the discretion of the directors.³ In passing transfers the directors should not act upon undertakings or promises given to the intending purchasers but should exercise an unfettered discretion.⁴ If a director refuses to attend a board meeting to pass transfers and so makes it impossible to form a quorum the Court on being satisfied that the transfer would be passed if a directors' meeting was held will order rectification of the register of members by inserting the name of the transferee in the place of that of the transferor.⁵

The mere fact that transfers of shares are made to increase the voting power of the transferor or in his interest is no ground of objection to the transfer, for the directors have no power to refuse a transfer of shares as it is a right of property except upon personal objection to the transferee.⁶ It is no valid objection that the transfer is made to avoid a prospective call.⁷ A controlling transfer however will not discharge the transferor from liability.⁸ But the transfer of a controlling interest in a company is not a mere matter of internal management; it may involve a complete transformation of the company and consequently may in a proper case be restrained.⁹

By certification the secretary does not warrant the transferor's title or the validity of the several documents which together establish his title.¹⁰ There is no estoppel where the secretary certifies without authority.¹¹ The board of directors is generally the body which has authority to direct registration of transfers. The secretary has no implied authority from the directors or the company to register transfers.¹² If a transfer of shares purporting to be fully paid up is certified the shares being in fact only partly paid up the company will be estopped from denying that the shares are fully paid up.¹³ The receipt after lodgment of certificate does not bind the company either to recognise the transferee's title to the shares or to issue the corresponding certificate.¹⁴

In permitting the secretary to certify transfers, the company does not authorize him to do more than give a receipt for the certificate of share. If the secretary gives a receipt or an acknowledgment for certificates which have not been lodged, the company is not estopped from setting up the true facts¹ nor is the company estopped from denying the alleged transferee's title on the ground of invalidity of the forged transfer² as the certification does not guarantee the title of the person lodging the certificate³. If the secretary certifies a transfer when no certificates of the shares have in fact been lodged his statement in that behalf is not in law the statement of the company⁴.

A transfer wrongly certified confers no liability on the company⁵. If the secretary instead of cancelling the deposited certificate parts with the same, the company would be liable for any loss occasioned thereby, but would incur no liability to a third person with whom the transferor might improperly pledge the certificate (note 14, last page). After registration of the transfer the original certificate should be destroyed, otherwise in case of fraud committed by the transferor, the company may be liable to the transferee if he has suffered any damage thereby, but the company is not liable to a third party (note 14 last page).

Where a transfer in blank has been used for effecting a transfer, the transferor cannot take a technical objection as to the filling in of the consideration to defeat the object for which he gave the transfer⁶. But where a debtor delivers to his creditor a blank transfer by way of security, that does not enable the creditor to delegate to another person authority to fill it up for purposes foreign to the original contract⁷. If the owner of the certificate leaves it and an executed transfer with his broker who wrongfully pledges it with a bank, the title of the bank which had no notice of the fraud will prevail⁸. But a transfer in blank executed by an executor who has not registered himself as owner of the shares will not have this effect⁹. "Whatever may be the effect of an instrument so executed one thing is clear that it cannot be regarded as either in law or by custom equivalent to a certificate and transfer executed by the registered owner himself". In the last cited case Lord Watson observed: "Notwithstanding his having parted with the certificate and transfer, the original transferor, who is entered as owner in the certificate and register, continues to be the only shareholder recognized by the company as entitled to vote and draw dividends in respect of the shares until the transferee or holder for the time being obtains registration in his own name. It would therefore be more accurate to say that such delivery passes not the property of the shares, but a title legal and equitable which will enable the holder to vest himself with the shares without risk of his right being defeated by any other person deriving title from the registered owner"¹⁰. Where a person obtains possession by fraud of a share certificate and a transfer in blank executed by the owner, he cannot however pass a good title to a bona fide purchaser for value¹¹. But if a seller is induced to perform his part of a valid contract of sale and to deliver the goods to the buyer in performance of that contract by fraud or cheating on the part of the buyer, the property in the goods delivered passes to the buyer and it be sold and delivers the goods to a third party for value without notice it passes to such a purchaser 1

Where a transfer has been passed by mistake and the transferee's name has been entered in the register of members it may be corrected by the company or the register amended 2 The register however should not be altered on the basis of a transfer not duly stamped and the directors are entitled to go behind what appeared on the face of the document 3 A company is not bound by the consideration stated in the transfer Registration may properly be refused if the stamp is not adequate to the real consideration 3 But if a transfer is apparently stamped properly and the transferee's name is registered in objection taken subsequently will not affect the transferor's title 4 For stamp duty on transfer see Appendix—Stamp Duty

As between two persons claiming title to shares registered in the name of a third person priority of title prevails unless the claimant second in point of time can show that as between himself and the company before the company received notice of the claim of the first claimant the second claimant has acquired the full status of a shareholder or at any rate that all the formalities have been complied with and that nothing more than some ministerial acts remains to be done which the company could not refuse to do forthwith 5

If none of the transfers are registered the first in point of time has priority 6 and this priority is not lost because some ministerial act has not been done 7 The onus is on the transferee later in point of time to show that he acquired the full status of shareholder earlier 8

A transfer of shares need not be made by deed unless the articles so require it 9 [A deed means one signed sealed and delivered] 10 In such a case in the absence of conduct estopping the party from disputing that he is a shareholder in respect of the shares transferred the transfer is not valid without a deed 8 There is no estoppel where the documents are prima facie complete 11

It is not open to a shareholder to surrender his shares or to the company to accept the surrender unless the act of the company can be brought within the rules relating to forfeiture of shares 12 A surrender of shares the company releasing the shareholder from further liability in respect of the shares is equivalent to a purchase of the shares by the company and is therefore illegal and void 13

1 or other cases bearing on the question of validity of transfers and their recognition by the company see notes to s. 35

In India share certificates are movable property within s 108 of the Indian Contract Act 1 Shares are goods¹ also within the meaning of s 76 of the same Act and where the denoting numbers of the shares are not ascertained at the time of the contract but share certificates are handed with transfer executed by the transferor (even in blank) and accepted by the purchaser the shares become ascertained goods and the sale is complete 2 Title to get on the register consists in the possession of a certificate together with a transfer signed by the registered holder 2 Provisions in the articles authorizing the holders of scrips to pass shares by delivery are irregular and such a company may be ordered to be wound up 3 If a shareholder disposes of his shares by invalid transfer, he remains liable in respect of those shares ■■

In Manila v. Trinidad Spinning Co 4 and Vagahusanam v. Pamchanira 5 it was held that a purchaser of shares at a Court sale was in the same position as a transferee from a shareholder and therefore has right to have his name registered. It is subject to the discretion given to the directors to refuse registration of a transfer. But this has been doubted in a recent decision of the Madras High Court. Srinivasa Ayyangar and Anantha Krishna Ayyar JJ, have in this case held that in the absence of anything in the articles forbidding the same a sale by the Court of shares held by a member has the effect of transferring the shares to the purchaser and that the expression "transfer" is not by itself altogether appropriate to indicate a sale by the Court and therefore any provision regarding voluntary transfer in the articles will not apply to transfer by a Court sale. They have further held that O XXI R 80 C P C is only permissive and it is not necessary when a share of a company is sold in Court auction that the Court should execute a transfer before the purchaser can be entitled to such share. They are of opinion that this rule is applicable to cases where for instance specific performance of an agreement to sell shares has been decreed. But with great respect to the learned Judges it is submitted that the view taken by them of the articles in that case and of Rules 79 and 80 of Order XXI C P C do not appear to be correct. It is apprehended that to the effect of a purchase at a Court sale of shares belonging to a deceased member, the articles relating to transfer of shares are more appropriate than those relating to transmission of shares. It may also be pointed out that Rule 80 forms part of a group of Rules which come under the heading "sale of movable property", so the words "where the execution of a document is required to transfer such share" probably mean that where such execution is required by the articles of association of the company.

The true test of the situs of a share for the purpose of jurisdiction is—Where could the shares be effectively dealt with? that is where there is a branch office of registration of transfer of shares and not necessarily the head office. Following the last cited cases the Judicial Committee have held that the test which must be applied to determine the local situation of shares is where the shares can be effectively dealt with (see note 7 last page). Where a transfer of the shares must be effected by a change in the register of members the place where the register is to be kept under the law determines the locality of the shares 1

For the definition and meaning of share see s. 2 (10) and notes thereto

For other cases see notes to s. 28 and articles 15 and 20 of Table A

Shares of companies registered under Act XIX of 1857 and Act VII of 1860 were transferable in the manner then in use or in such other manner as the company might direct

29 A certificate, under the common seal of the company, specifying any shares or stock held by any member, shall be prima facie evidence of the title of the member to the shares or stock therein specified

Certificate of shares or stock

Stock is the aggregate of fully paid up shares legally consolidated and portions of which aggregate may be transferred or split up into fractions of any amount without regard to the original nominal account of shares 2. When shares have been fully paid up they may be turned into stock and notice of this must be given to the registrar 3. The issue of partly paid up stock is void 4. A forged transfer of stock does not affect the title of the stock holder 5

Meaning of stock

The certificate of shares is the documentary evidence in the possession of the shareholder 6. It is not a negotiable instrument or warranty of title by the company 7. But if a bona fide purchaser for value acquire the shares relying on a certificate the company will be estopped from denying the validity of the certificate 8 even if the transfer be a forged one 8. The measure of damages is the value of the shares at the time the company first refused to recognize him as a shareholder 8. But the payment of dividend does not estop the company from denying the purchaser's title to the shares 9. If the company authorize the issue of a certificate to a person it is however estopped from denying his title 10 and if the company is unable to give him the shares it will be liable in damages 11. On the other hand if an officer of the company issues certificates without authority there will be no estoppel 12. The company may however be liable in damages for the fraud of its officers 13

13 Floy v. Great Smith & Co. [1911] A. C. 110

The certificate is a statement ¹ against the company that the person whose name appears on it is the registered holder of the shares ¹, and in the case of a bona fide purchaser for value without notice that the amount certified to be paid has been paid ². The company is not however estopped from denying the purchaser's title by the mere fact that it has treated him as a shareholder by sending him a dividend warrant ³. Where the certificate contained a statement that the shares were fully paid up, the onus lay on the liquidator to show that the party sought to be made liable had notice that they were not so ⁴. The company will not be liable on share certificates to which the secretary has forged the directors' names ⁵.

A foot note under the share certificate to the effect that before a transfer is registered the certificate must be produced is only a warning. As it is not addressed to outsiders it does not create a contract or estoppel ⁶. A director by being merely present at a meeting at which a certificate is passed is estopped from denying its accuracy ⁷.

The mere affixing of the seal is sufficient without witnesses unless the articles of association provide otherwise. Where there is a common seal put to a deed that is title

Seal enough or itself without witness to prove it, and if it be said that it was put to by the hand of a stranger that shall be proved on the side that says so ⁸. Proof of the seal may be given by any one who knows it and it is not necessary to call a person who saw it affixed ⁹. When a deed is found to be sealed, the presumption is that the seal was regularly affixed, and the onus is on the person who alleges the contrary ¹⁰. It is not necessary, as was observed by Lawrence J., to prove the seal of a corporation in the same manner as the seal of an individual, by producing the witness who saw the seal affixed, but when an instrument having a seal affixed to it, purporting to be a corporate seal is produced in evidence it is necessary to prove that it is the seal of the corporation, if there be any doubt about it, otherwise any instrument with a seal to it might be produced in Court as an instrument sealed by the corporation ¹¹.

A person having power to manage the affairs of a trading company has implied power to affix the seal ¹². Negligence of a company in leaving the seal in the custody of a dishonest person will not preclude it from pleading that the seal was wrongfully affixed and a forgery gives not title ¹³. Where a secretary to aid his own fraud wrongfully affixed the seal to share certificates apparently in the ordinary course of business the company came under no liability to honest holders of the certificates ¹⁴. Where the certificate is not sealed by the company's authority it amounts to a forgery and is not binding upon the company 1 See art 76 of Table A and notes thereto

If it is stated in the certificate that the shares are fully paid the company or its liquidator is estopped from alleging that they are not fully paid up 2 But a person who knew that the shares were not fully paid cannot take advantage of the statement in the certificate 3 The fact that the shareholder's partner is a director of the company does not however amount to a constructive notice that the shares are not fully paid 4 Even a director may be protected by a certificate stating them to be fully paid and signed by himself if he acted in good faith 4

Delivery of the share certificate may be conditional and may take effect only upon some event happening e.g. upon the consideration being paid In that case until the condition is fulfilled the document is an escrow or scrip and has no effect as a deed 5 As to escrow generally see Knulling Hospital v Crane 6

Where a debtor assigned all his properties to trustees for his creditors but retained the share certificates and subsequently sold the shares to a purchaser for value the title of the trustees who had given notice to the company prevailed 7

The certificate of all shares must be ready for delivery within three months after allotment of shares or registration of transfers unless the conditions of issue provide otherwise 8 A shareholder is entitled to get his certificate within a reasonable time 9

Where a company having no notice of bankruptcy of a shareholder issued a duplicate certificate to his executor on the representation that the original certificate was lost while it really was in the possession of the bankrupt's assignee and then the executor transferred the shares and the transfer was registered by the company it was held that the purchaser's title was a legal title and prevailed against the assignee 10 A good equitable charge may be created by the deposit of a share certificate 11

30. (1) The subscribers of the memorandum of a company shall be deemed to have agreed to become members of the company, and on its registration shall be entered as members in its register of members

not 1 When a subscriber subsequently applies for and receives allotment of a number of shares they may be treated as a satisfaction pro tanto of his obligation under the memorandum 2

Where the memorandum and the articles of association registered are not a true copy of the original signed by a person as subscriber he is not a member of the company as a subscriber, nor is he a member under cl (2) of the section as the allotment referred to therein must be one entered into after the company has been registered 3 When a person signs a duplicate of the memorandum after the registration of the original he does not thereby become a subscriber But such signature may be equivalent to a proposal to take shares and if accepted he will be regarded as a member and will be able to call when entered on the register of members 4 He may however withdraw before his name is put on the register or an allotment is made to him 5 Acceptance in such a case may be by allotment of shares or by putting his name on the register of members it cannot be inferred from the circumstances of the case 6 The payment of fully paid up shares by the promoter does not satisfy the obligation of the subscriber nor does the issue of share certificate to the company, so long as the certificate has not been filed to a bona fide purchaser for value The company in such cases can prove non payment and claim the value of the shares 12 When there are shares available for allotment the fact that none has been allotted to the subscriber makes no difference 6

As the contract is to take the shares from the company the obligation of a subscriber is not satisfied by taking them from some one else 7 Lapse of time will not relieve the subscriber 8 An alteration in the articles made after signature and before registration may discharge the subscriber from liability 9

A subscriber remains a member of the company until such time as either he validly surrenders the shares or pays for the shares and validly transfers them to somebody else 10

Shares subscribed by the signatories to the memorandum of association are deemed to be issued when the company is registered 11 As regards other shares when a person is entered on the register of members as a shareholder the shares are regarded to have been issued to him although he has not obtained the share certificate 12 In the case of subscribers to the memorandum of association neither allotment nor entry on the register is necessary 13, the

Oral application and withdrawal An oral application for shares is as effectual as a written application 1 Withdrawal may also be made by word of mouth 2 With withdrawal by post is no effective unless it reaches the company before the notice of allotment is actually posted 3 An applicant for shares can withdraw at any time before his offer has been accepted 4 An offer is deemed to be accepted as soon as the allotment letter is posted 5 If the allotment letter contains any term which was not in the application there is no contract 6 If after the application an allotment is not made within a reasonable time the applicant is not bound to accept the shares 7 The application may be made to the company's agent 8

Authority coupled with interest
An agent is held out as having authority and he can apply for shares in the principal's name 9 and if the shares are allotted in the principal's name he becomes a shareholder 10 Where a company makes allotment of shares on the written authority of a person he may be estopped from saying that the authority was limited by private instructions 11 But an application by a person not having authority does not make the supposed principal a member 12 An authority coupled with an interest is given for valuable consideration is irrevocable and in underwriting letter containing authority for one person to apply in the name of the underwriter when duly accepted cannot be revoked 13

A person who purports to contract as agent for another not having authority does not himself become a member but is liable to the company in damages for breach of warranty of his authority 14 There is no contract where an agent applies by mistake in the name of the principal in the wrong company or where by the fraud of the company 14 or of its agent the applicant is led to believe that he is contracting with a different company 15

attaining majority 1 But if the shares are registered in his name and after attaining majority he acts as a shareholder 2 or does not within a reasonable time repudiate the shares he cannot afterwards do so 3 Under the Indian Contract Act an infant's contract is however altogether void 4 But a transfer in favour of a minor is not void 5 although a contract to take shares on behalf of a minor cannot be specifically enforced either for or against him 6 So it appears that a minor may become a shareholder if shares are transferred to him 7; but the company may refuse to accept him as a shareholder 7 Even where after the transfer the minor's name is placed on the register in ignorance of his minority, the official liquidator may refuse to accept him as a shareholder, although after coming of age the minor was willing to confirm the transfer 8 Where a director procured an allotment to his infant children who were at the time of winding up of the company still minors he was held liable to make good the loss caused to the company by its inability to enforce calls 9, for a transferee is liable for the unpaid balance of his shares 10 It has been held that a minor could be a member under Act VI of 1882 11 If he intentionally permits the company to believe him to be a shareholder and in that belief to pay him dividends since he attained majority he is estopped by his conduct from denying that he is a shareholder 11 If the minor repudiated his shares on attaining majority he could not recover any sum he had paid to the company in respect of the shares 12 but he could not even while an infant retain the shares without accepting the burdens e.g. the liability for calls 13

If a person apply for shares in a fictitious name and shares are allotted in that name he will be liable as a member 14 The same result follows where in a fictitious name the application is made in the name of a person incapable of accepting the shares 15 In these cases however there must be an intention of contracting 16 A person who agrees to place shares does not become a member 17

A company becoming member of another company payment of a debt by way of compromise 1 But a company cannot acquire its own shares even if expressly authorized to do by its memorandum 3 A partnership firm is not a person 3 In the parties have no right to be registered as members in the firm 1

A person who lends money to a company on a mortgage of its shares becomes liable as a member in respect of those shares if he takes the shares on condition that upon repayment the shares will be transferred to a nominee of the company 5

In the case of an ordinary member of the public the contract to take shares is complete when an application has been submitted and allotment on the footing of that application has been made and the notice of the allotment has been communicated to the applicant In the case of a director the company is under obligation to allot shares In such cases it often happens that the company is required to make an offer to the director to take shares the director's subsequent application for shares is an acceptance of that offer and when the application is made the contract is complete 6 A valid executory contract for the allotment of shares is constituted by offer and communicated acceptance before allotment is made If however the only facts are that there is application for shares and nothing further is done by the company but allotment there is no conclusive contract until the allotment is communicated to the applicant 7 If there was in fact no contract to take shares the supposed member can at any time (i.e. before the rights of creditors have intervened on winding up) have his name removed from the register for he was never really a member 8 Mere placing the name on the share register is not sufficient to fasten liability on a person who had no knowledge 9 A few months before the decision in Oakes v Turquand 8 it was decided by the House of Lords that where a person was induced to take shares by fraudulent misrepresentation he was never a member and was entitled to repudiate and treat as null and void all which he was induced to do 10 But this case was distinguished in Oakes v Turquand 11 on the ground that the former was a case between a shareholder and the company and it had no application to a case where the question was between a shareholder and the creditor 11

Although the contract under which a person took shares could not have been enforced against him who having with knowledge that his name was on the register dealt with them as if he had been a member and assented to keep them he was liable to pay the whole amount of the shares in cash notwithstanding his misrepresentation as to the legal effect of the contract he had originally entered into 12 A contract to take shares cannot be vitiated because a collateral agreement happens to be unenforceable in law 1 Motive can never be enquired into in considering the validity or otherwise of a contract 2 But where it is impossible to sever the contract from an illegal contract for the payment of the purchase price, the two documents in fact constituting one contract, the company is not entitled to recover the price of the shares 3

Where a person has neither a complete legal title to the shares, nor as between himself and the company an unconditional right to be registered as a shareholder, his title being inchoate only it is sufficient to defeat the pre-existing equitable title of another person 4

One partner can accept shares so as to bind the firm 5

When shares are subscribed by a person on a certain condition, if that condition is not fulfilled he cannot be regarded as a member but may be a creditor 6

No Court observed Lord Justice Lindley, 'ought to enforce an illegal contract or allow itself to be made the instrument of enforcing obligations alleged to arise out of a contract or transaction which is illegal, if the illegality is duly brought to the notice of the Court and if the person invoking the aid of the Court is himself implicated in the illegality It matters not whether the defendant has pleaded the illegality or whether he has not If the evidence adduced by the plaintiff proves the illegality the Court ought not to assist him' 7

An agreement between two or more persons to purchase shares in a company, in order to induce persons who might thereafter purchase shares in such company, to believe contrary to the facts, that there was a bona fide market for its shares and that the shares were at a real premium is an illegal transaction and may be made the subject of an indictment for conspiracy and no action can be maintained in respect of such agreement or purchase of shares 7

Cesser of membership takes place by sale of the share and entry on the register of members the name of the purchaser and valid surrender or forfeiture of the share The membership of a mutual benefit fund is not terminated by the mere appropriation of the share capital of a member towards the amount due by him to the fund in the absence of forfeiture 8 Where persons holding fully paid up shares in a bank surrendered their shares after the bank had gone into voluntary liquidation to another company and in lieu thereof received preference shares in the said company which meanwhile, by an arrangement evidenced by an instrument that had not been registered, had taken over the assets of the bank in liquidation, it was held that those persons had ceased to be members of the bank and that any meeting convened or proceedings taken by them as shareholders or contributories of the bank were invalid and inoperative 9

The rights of a member are—(1) statutory (2) given by the memorandum and articles of association and (3) given by the general law applicable to all relating to contracts and members of corporations. The statutory rights cannot be taken away or modified by any provision in the memorandum or the articles 1

A member has the right of claiming injunction to restrain the company from acting on an ultra vires resolution even if he has himself been a party to the passing of the resolution and has assented to previous illegal acts done under it 2

A minority of the members has a right to sue a shareholder for misappropriation of the company's goods even though the majority approved of his acts 3 No shareholder has however any right to any item of the company's property 4

As to the position of a person who has been induced to take shares by the misrepresentation of the company or its agents see notes to ss 9, 97 and 100

For the right of a bearer of share warrant to be regarded as a member see s 41 and 46

For cases relating to allotment of shares see notes to s 101

Register of members 31. (1) Every company shall keep in one or more books a register of its members, and enter therein the following particulars—

- (i) the names and addresses, and the occupations, if any, of the members, and, in the case of a company having a share capital, a statement of the shares held by each member, distinguishing each share by its number, and of the amount paid or agreed to be considered as paid on the shares of each member;
- (ii) the date at which each person was entered in the register as a member;
- (iii) the date at which any person ceased to be a member.

(2) If a company makes default in complying with the requirements of this section, it shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees for every day during which the default continues; and every officer of the company who knowingly and wilfully authorises or permits the default shall be liable to the like penalty.

The register of members must be kept at the registered office until the company goes into liquidation 5

The Act does not prescribe any particular system of keeping the register but only requires that it shall contain the particulars mentioned in this section 1 More than one book may be used 2 If there is a substantial compliance with the requirements of the Act, the register is not invalidated by reason of slight deviation from its directions or by unimportant omissions or defects in the particulars of information specified in the section 3 The company must not enter in the register or share certificate a statement of any lien on the shares 4 It should not put on the register anything except what is required under the Act 5 An executor is entitled to be put on the register on proof of his title and the company is not entitled to qualify the entry by showing that he holds the shares in a representative capacity 5 A partnership should not be entered in the register in the firm name 6 Two or more persons getting a transfer in their partnership name are not entitled to be entered on the register in their partnership name, for a firm is not a person 6 But the word used is 'member' and not 'person' See Hetherington's case 2

1 In a suit against a shareholder to enforce liability in respect of his shares, time runs from the date on which his name is entered on the register of members 7

Where a company has converted any of its shares into stock, the register must show the amount of stock held by each member instead of the amount of shares and the particulars relating thereto (vide s 52)

Joint holders of shares where the articles so provide, are entitled to have their names entered in the register in whatever order they choose 8

The register of members is the creditors guarantee showing them to whom and to what they have to trust and must consequently be properly kept, so that the names appearing there are all the names of the persons really for the time being liable to the creditors 9

As the Companies Act becomes applicable the moment a company is registered it is necessary that until the register of members is written up the allotment book or the list of applications should be made to serve the purpose of the register and all the necessary particulars should be shown therein 10

The register of members is prima facie evidence of any matter directed or authorized by the Act to be inserted therein 11 S 33 provides that no notice of any trust express, implied or constructive shall be entered on the register

to credit the account of that member in the register to be readily found

(3) If default is made in complying with this section, the company and every officer of the company who is knowingly and wilfully in default shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees

This section is new. It has been inserted by the Companies (Amendment) Act of 1936. It reproduces s. 96 of the English Act of 1929. See Introduction.

32. (1) Every company having a share capital shall within eighteen months from its incorporation and thereafter once at least in every year make a list of Annual list of members and summary all persons who, on the day of the first or only ordinary general meeting in the year, are members of the company, and of all persons who have ceased to be members since the date of the last return or (in the case of the first return) of the incorporation of the company

(2) The list shall state the names, addresses, and occupations of all the past and present members therein mentioned, and the number of shares held by each of the existing members at the date of the return, specifying shares transferred since the date of the last return or (in the case of the first return) of the incorporation of the company by persons who are still members and persons who have ceased to be members respectively and the dates of registration of the transfers, and shall contain a summary distinguishing between shares issued for cash and shares issued as fully or partly paid up otherwise than in cash, and specifying the following particulars —

- (a) the amount of the share capital of the company, and the number of the shares into which it is divided,
- (b) the number of shares taken from the commencement of the company up to the date of the return,
- (c) the amount called up on each share,
- (d) the total amount of calls received,
- (e) the total amount of calls unpaid,
- (f) the total amount of the sums (if any) paid by way of commission in respect of any shares or debentures, or allowed by way of discount in respect of any shares or debentures, since the date of the last return, or so much thereof as has not been written off at the date of the return,
- (g) the total number of shares forfeited,

- (h) the total amount of shares or stock for which share-warrants are outstanding at the date of the return,
- (i) the total amount of share-warrants issued and surrendered respectively since the date of the last return,
- (j) the number of shares or amount of stock comprised in each share-warrant,
- (l) the names and addresses of the persons who at the date of the return are the directors of the company and of the persons (if any) who at the said date are the managers or managing agents of the company, and the changes in the personnel of the directors, managers and managing agents since the last return together with the dates on which they took place, and
- (l) the total amount of debt due from the company in respect of all mortgages and charges which are required to be registered with the registrar under this Act

(3) The above list and summary shall be contained in a separate part of the register of members, and shall be completed within twenty-one days after the day of the first or only ordinary general meeting in the year, and the company shall forthwith file with the registrar a copy signed by a director or by the manager or the secretary of the company, together with a certificate from such director, manager or secretary that the list and summary state the facts as they stood on the day aforesaid

(4) A private company shall send with the annual return required by sub-section (1) a certificate signed by a director or other officer of the company that the company has not, since the date of the last return or, in the case of a first return, since the date of the incorporation of the company, issued any invitation to the public to subscribe for any shares or debentures of the company, and where the annual return discloses the fact that the number of members of the company exceeds fifty also a certificate signed that the excess consists wholly of persons who have not been (b) of clause 13 of sub-section (1) of section 2 of the Companies Act 1913 in complying the number of fifty and wilfully authorises or permits the default shall be liable to the like penalty

By the Companies (Amendment) Act XXII of 1926 the words in italics have been inserted in sub s (1). In sub s (2) cl (f) for the words "in respect of any debentures" the words "in respect of any shares or debentures" have been substituted and the last portion (in italics) has been added. In cl (1) for the words "the managers of the company" the words in italics have been substituted. In sub s (3) for the words "seven days" the words "twenty one days" have been substituted. The original cl (4) has been re-numbered as cl (5) and a new cl (4) imposing a new obligation on private companies has been inserted. This new obligation has it appears been suggested by the provisions in the Sixth Schedule of the English Act of 1920. See Introduction.

Sub sec (1) The word 'year' means a year reckoned according to the British Year calendar i.e. from 1st January to 31st December inclusive.

Sub sec (2) The word cash means such a transaction as would, in an action at law for calls support a plea of payment as Lord Macnaghten observed in *Laroque v Beauchemin*². If a transaction resulted in this, that there was on the one side a bona fide debt payable in money at once for the purchase of the property and on the other side a bona fide liability to pay money at once on shares so that if bank notes had been handed from one side of the table to the other in payment of calls they might legitimately have been handed back in payment for the property, it appears to me that the Act does not make it necessary that the formality should be gone through of money being handed over and taken back again. For other cases see notes to s 101.

Shares cannot be issued at a discount³ even by way of compromise⁴ or in any other indirect way⁵. If an arrangement for the issue of shares is such that in the course of its due working out there is as much as a possibility that in the result the shares will have been issued at a discount, then the issue of the shares as fully paid cannot be justified⁶.

To insert a lump sum in the summary or balance-sheet for goodwill, trade marks, machinery furniture and fixtures without giving the separate values for each class is not a compliance with the law⁷. Where the company has converted any of its shares into stock, the list must show the amount of stock held by each member instead of the amount of shares and particulars relating thereto (s 52).

Sub sec (3) It is the bounden duty of a company and its directors and managers to forward to the registrar the summary and the list specified in the section 8, and the obligation does not come to an end on the date on which by default the penalty begins.

to accrue. Therefore all persons who at any time during the default in holding of the general meeting with the provisions of this section acted as directors or managers are liable to the penalty. It is immaterial that some or all of them were not legally qualified to act as directors or managers until after the date when the penalty first accrued. The fact that the managing directors and the secretary had resigned their positions before the period for the non-compliance with the provisions of the section was started does not free them from their liability 2

Sub-s (4) It is no defence to a charge under this section that there was no general meeting held, the persons charged having been themselves parties to the default in holding the general meeting 3 But a continuing daily fine may not be imposed where owing to no meeting having been held it is not possible to remedy the default 4 If default is made in holding the general meeting and in filing the return penalties are incurred under this section as well as under s 76 5 The word default is a word of general import and includes failure or omission 6 Default implies a wilful continued neglect to do an act required to be done 4 A statutory offence is committed where the transaction is not malum in se 6

In order that a conviction under this section s 77 (6) and s 134 (4) of an officer may be sustained, the only thing the prosecution has to prove is that that particular officer knowingly and wilfully authorised or permitted these defaults. The section speaks of authorisation of those defaults but it is not necessary to prove that as the offence is also complete if the officer knew of the defaults and permitted the defaults 7

As to the penalty for wilfully making a statement which is false in a material particular see s 282

For the form in which the annual list and summary must be made see Form I in the Third Schedule

As to the right of a person to obtain copies of the list and summary see s 36 sub s (2)

The forwarding to the registrar of the list and summary which upon the face of them purport to satisfy the requirements of the Act is not a sufficient compliance with the section unless such a list and summary are in accordance with the facts and the Magistrate has jurisdiction to enquire into the truth or falsehood of the statements contained therein 8 But questions of nicety as to the title to shares and the right to be on the register cannot properly be determined by the Magistrate, and with reference to such questions he ought to accept the company's register as practically conclusive 9 A charge under this section cannot be sustained unless there is evidence that the previous return is correct because otherwise

Trusts not to be entered on register

33 No notice of any trust, expressed, implied or constructive, shall be entered on the register, or be recoverable by the registrar

Object of the section

The object of the section is (1) to relieve the company from taking notice of equitable interests in shares and (2) to preclude persons claiming under equitable titles from converting the company into a trustee for them 2

Although a member is merely a trustee to the knowledge of the company he is liable for calls and other obligations of his membership The lien of the company

will prevail over the title of the cestui que trust 3 But a company which in the face of notice that the shareholder is not the beneficial owner of the shares makes advances or gives credit to the shareholder is not protected by the section or by the provisions to that effect in the articles of association and the company cannot in such circumstances assert against the benefi ciaries a lien on the shares for the indebtedness of the member 4 The company is not relieved from the obligation of giving effect to equitable rights of which it actually has notice and its own lien will not take precedence of charges prior in date of which it has notice at the time of making the advance 5 But a company is not concerned to enquire whether trustees who are registered as shareholders are acting within their powers in dealing with the shares 6 and can enforce its own rights against the persons in whose names the shares stand 7 A company lending money on the security of its shares will however be bound by constructive notice 8

Though a company is not bound to recognize a trust in respect of its shares yet that would not prevent a Court from recognizing such a trust in a suit in which evidence of that trust is forthcoming and from considering the rights between the parties 9

As a result of this section where there are several mortgages the mortgagee first in date has priority not the person who first gives notice to the company 10

held sees fit to deal with the shares for its own benefit then that company is held to be affected with notice of the interest of a third party. 1

As between trustee and the cestui que trust the latter is the shareholder and bound to indemnify the trustee against all liabilities attached to the shares. 2 Although a company cannot put the cestui que trust in the place of contributories it may be entitled to enforce the trustee's right to indemnity. 3

The particulars of lien also may not be entered in the register. 4 and shall be deemed as if the application for registration was made by the transferee.

(2) For the purposes of sub-section (1) notice to the transferee shall be deemed to have been duly given if despatched by prepaid post to the transferee at the address given in the instrument of transfer and shall be deemed to have been delivered in the ordinary course of post.

(3) It shall not be lawful for the company to register a transfer of shares in or debentures of the company unless the proper instrument of transfer duly stamped and executed by the transferor and the transferee has been delivered to the company along with the scrip.

Provided that, where it is proved to the satisfaction of the directors of the company that an instrument of transfer signed by the transferor and transferee has been lost, the company may, if the directors think fit, on an application in writing made by the transferee and bearing the stamp required by an instrument of transfer, register the transfer on such terms as to indemnity as the directors may think fit.

(4) If a company refuses to register the transfer of any shares or debentures, the company shall, within two months from the date on which the instrument of transfer was lodged with the company, send to the transferee and the transferor notice of the refusal.

(5) If default is made in complying with sub-section (4) of this section, the company and every director, manager, secretary or other officer of the company who is knowingly a party to the default shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees for every day during which the default continues.

(6) Nothing in sub-section (3) shall prejudice any power of the company to register as shareholder or debenture holder any person to whom the right to any shares in or debentures of the company has been transmitted by operation of law.

(7) Nothing in this section shall prejudice any power of the company under its articles to refuse to register the transfer of any shares.

This section has been substituted by the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936 for the original s 31 which ran thus

Registration of transfer at request of transferor 34 On the application of the transferor of any share or interest in a company, the company shall enter in its register of members the name of the transferee in the same manner and subject to the same conditions as if the application for the entry were made by the transferee.

Object of section The Act did not lay down the procedure for the transfer of shares and this was generally provided for in the articles of a company. Undue restrictions upon transfers and undue delay in registering transfers were not uncommon. This section while leaving a discretion with the directors to refuse transfers requires for a transfer application either by the transferor or the transferee, notice to the transferee in the case of an application by the transferor, the use of the proper instrument of transfer required by the company, and notice by the company to the transferee and the transferor in case of refusal of registration. It also prescribes a penalty for default in complying with the terms of sub s (4). See Introduction.

For cases relating to transfer of shares see notes under s 28 and art 18 of Table A.

If the transferee does not apply to have the transfer registered the transferor can, or he can make an application to the Court for rectification of the register of members 1.

This section is intended for the protection of the transferor if the transferee fail to perform his duty of getting the transfer registered 2. But it is the duty of the transferor to see that all formalities necessary to complete the transfer are performed. If however the directors fail in their duty to see them performed they cannot after a lapse of time hold the transferor liable 3.

Transfer by legal representative

35. A transfer of the share or other interest of a deceased member of a company made by his legal representative shall, although the legal representative is not himself a member, be as valid as if he had been a member at the time of the execution of the instrument of transfer.

A deceased member remains a member so long as his name remains on the register without notice to the company of his death 1 The executor or administrator of a deceased member does not become a member unless he consents to be treated as such and to be entered on the register of members 2 The executor however can insist on being entered as a member in his own right without any reference to his representative capacity 3 unless the articles of association confer some authority to do so 3 The company must enter the names of the executors on the register in the order desired by the latter 3

The legal representatives of a deceased or bankrupt member are entitled to receive on behalf of the estate any dividends, bonuses or benefits attaching to the shares and are liable to be put on the list of contributories in their representative capacity 4, but they are not members unless they have become so by formal registration 5 Until they do this, they are not entitled to receive notice from the company 6

The legal representatives of a deceased member can transfer the shares before getting themselves registered as members 7 Before registration they are liable for calls only in their representative capacity but after registration they become personally liable 8 A company cannot reject the executor's claim to the shares relying upon its articles which enable it to refuse transfers 9 Articles forbidding executors to exercise the rights of a member until they have been registered have been held to refer to the exercise of rights on their own behalf and not on behalf of the testator's estate 10 As regards the executor's right to transfer the shares of the testator art 22 of Table A gives the directors the same right to decline or suspend registration as they would have had in the case of a transfer by the deceased member before his death But to exercise this right there must be a valid resolution of the board 11 See notes to art 22 Table A

On the death of a holder of partly paid shares the company cannot intervene to prevent distribution of the estate unless a call has actually been made 12 and if inspection is required after that an order of the Court must be obtained under s 241. Such an order entitles the party to inspect and take copies himself 1. He need not pay the liquidator a fee for having the copies made 2.

The result of authorities is to the nature and extent of the common law right which any member of a corporation has to inspect the documents of the corporation is that the privilege of inspection is confined to cases where the member has in view some definite right or object of his own and to those documents which would tend to illustrate such right or object 3.

It would be a breach of duty on the part of the directors to allow the register of members to be removed from the registered office of the company and a solicitor cannot have a lien on it even if the company in general meeting pass such a resolution, because there are other persons e.g., creditors who have a right to inspect it 4.

The liquidator and not the receiver for debenture holders should have the custody of the register upon a winding up 5.

37 A company may, on giving seven days' previous notice by advertisement in some newspaper circulating in the district in which the registered office of the company is situate, close the register of members for any time or times not exceeding in the whole forty-five days in each year, but not exceeding thirty days at a time.

By the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936 the words "seven days previous" have been inserted the words "forty five" have been substituted for the word "thirty" and the last portion in italics has been added. See Introduction.

Where a company keeps a British register as well under s 41, the advertisement must be in some newspaper circulating in the locality wherein the British register is kept 6.

38. (1) If—

Power of Court to rectify register (a) the name of any person is fraudulently or without sufficient cause entered in or omitted from the register of members of a company, or

(b) default is made or unnecessary delay takes place in entering on the register the fact of any person having ceased to be a member,

the person aggrieved, or any member of the company, or the company, may apply to the Court for rectification of the register.

(2) The Court may either refuse the application, or may order rectification of the register and payment by the company of any damages sustained by any party aggrieved, and may make such order as to costs as it in its discretion thinks fit.

(3) On any application under this section the Court may decide any question relating to the title of any person who is a party to the application to have his name entered in or omitted from the register, whether the question arises between members or alleged members, or between members or alleged members on the one hand and the company on the other hand, and generally may decide any question necessary or expedient to be decided for rectification of the register :

Provided that the Court may direct an issue to be tried in which any question of law may be raised, and an appeal from the decision on such an issue shall lie in the manner directed by the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, on the grounds mentioned in section 100 of that Code

Sub s (1) (a) In any case in which the company and its directors literally and bona fide carry out the provisions of the company's articles it or they cannot be said to be acting without sufficient cause. It is a misleading of those words in this section to suppose that they confer upon the Court jurisdiction to make a roving enquiry as to whether what has happened is desirable or even reasonable 1

The power to rectify the register has been exercised by the Court in the following circumstances : Where there has been misrepresentation in the prospectus where it is expedient to pass an order which will bind all the shareholders and effectually bar any subsequent application for restoration of a name struck out by the directors where shares have been improperly issued at a discount where the application for shares has been made in the name of a person without his authority where there is no valid allotment of shares where allotment is not made within a reasonable time where the allotment is irregular where transfer of shares has been improperly registered or registration of transfer has been refused where the company puts in the register matters which are not required by the statute and in order to set right allotment of shares which have been issued as fully paid up without a proper contract being filed 2

The Court has ordered rectification of the register where the allotment was irregular 3 where the company wrongfully refused to register a transfer 4 where the company has acted on a forged transfer 5 where the transfer was a colourable transaction 6 where shares have been transferred to avoid liability 7 where a person has been induced to take shares by fraud or misrepresentation 8 and where shares have the transferee it cannot be said that there has been a proper exercise of their discretion. In such cases the register would be rectified by registering the name of the transferee in of last page.

The directors can rectify the register where the Court would under similar circumstances order rectification 1. Where the directors acknowledge that a shareholder is entitled to rectification they do this without the necessity of an application to the Court 2. For the company is not bound to fight every claim 3. Cancellation of shares by directors where the shareholder has valid grounds for cancellation is good and effectual although the shareholder claimed such cancellation on invalid grounds not being at the time aware of the existence of valid grounds 3. If an officer of a company under a mistake, strikes out the name of a member properly registered this is a nullity and must be disregarded. The Court will order rectification of the register so as to 'restore and retain' the name of the shareholder 4.

Where a company refuses to register a transferee on account of his failure to comply with certain prescribed rules and formalities the latter may apply for rectification. Such rules and formalities are matters which the company may or may not insist upon and it has always the right to accept such evidence as satisfies its mind that the applicant has a right to be registered 5. When the transferee has complied with what is required of him he is entitled to assume that the company has acted in accordance with its internal regulations so far as the sanctioning of the transfer is concerned 8 of last page. But refusal by an officer who has no authority by the articles to refuse registration is no refusal by the company 6.

Where a company refuses registration of a transfer alleging that it has a lien on the shares it is estopped if it had once recognized a previous transfer 8 of last page.

Where a shareholder having sold his shares applies to the company for registration of the transfer, but before registration the company goes into liquidation the shareholder is entitled to have the transferee's name entered in his place as contributory if he shows sufficient cause or default or unnecessary delay on the part of the company in entering that fact on the register 7.

If the contract under which the shares have been taken is void and not merely voidable, the name against which the shares stand may be removed even after winding up has commenced 8. But where the removal of a member's name was in consequence of an invalid surrender, it was replaced even after a lapse of seven years 9.

A member can get his name removed from the register on the ground that he was induced to take the shares by fraud or misrepresentation in the prospectus 10 provided that the application is made within a reasonable time and before winding up has commenced 11 and proper material has been placed before the Court 1. Where a shareholder does not take action for a long time e.g. seven years to have his name expunged from the register of members his right to do so will be barred 2.

In an application under this section the company and not the directors are the necessary parties even if they have exceeded their powers in refusing to register a transfer 3. The power given to the Court by this section is discretionary and the Court will not order a transfer to be registered where the alleged transferor is not before the Court and there is any real doubt as to the validity or bona fides of the transaction 4.

In order to succeed in an application for removal of his name from the register the applicant must show that it was entered there without sufficient cause 5.

The Court will interfere and rectify the register upon a motion under this section where the error is due to the neglect or default of the company and generally where the question arises between the company and a member or an alleged member as to whether his name has been properly included or excluded 6. But where a third party is affected the Court will not exercise his jurisdiction under this section. The applicant in such a case must bring an action to which the third person may be made a party 7.

Where the Court orders the register to be rectified by removing a name from it the name should not be erased. It should be pencilled through and an abstract of the order signed by the secretary should be added 8. An order to put the transferee's name on the register is necessarily in order to take the transferor's name off 9. An order for rectification cannot be made in an action to which the transferor is not a party 9.

A company is liable to pay damages to a person for any loss he may have sustained by its neglect or refusal to do its duty in respect of the entries in the register of members 10. But if the order for rectification is refused the Court cannot give damages upon a motion under this section the proper course being for the aggrieved person to bring an action 11.

Where a person is suing for rescission the Court can on terms of giving the usual undertaking to pay damages and paying into Court the amount of the call with interest restrain the company from forfeiting the shares pending the hearing of the case 12 but this is not necessarily a condition precedent to the granting of an injunction.

of duty in removing the plaintiff's name from the register, the person whose name has been substituted need not and indeed ought not to be joined as a defendant the claim being not for rectification of the register 1

In ordering rectification of the register under this section, whether the company is in liquidation or not the Court has power in a proper case to fix a particular date at which the registration shall be operative, even to the extent of making it retrospective but subject if necessary, to conditions protecting the rights of third persons 2

Once the shares have been registered in the name of the allottee and he has done acts only consistent with his being a member he will be taken to have agreed to take the shares and will be estopped from denying that he has agreed to take the shares and will be estopped from denying that he has agreed for the law recognizes that observance of formalities may be dispensed with and irregular as distinguished from void transactions may be confirmed 3 But even where the agreement is void if the applicant's name is put on the register and he with full knowledge of all the facts does acts that are only consistent with his being a shareholder he will be bound as such In such a case the placing of the applicant's name on the register would seem to amount to an offer and the acts done to be an acceptance of the offer The position of a person who agreed to take shares upon special conditions depends upon determination of the question whether the conditions are conditions precedent or conditions subsequent In the latter case, or where the conditions precedent have been waived the applicant becomes a shareholder 3

If the allottee transfers his shares attends meetings or accepts dividends he will be bound by his acts and cannot rely upon non performance of the condition precedent 4

The section is not exhaustive and does not negative all alterations of the register except those referred to in the section Where shares stand in the name of two trustees jointly they are entitled to have their names in different orders and the register may be altered accordingly 5

Section is not exhaustive

Where in a suit for declaration to the effect that the plaintiffs were not shareholders and directors of a company it appeared that the plaintiffs substantially asked for all the reliefs to which they were entitled it was held that as no money had been paid by the plaintiffs a prayer to the effect that the register of members might be rectified by the removal of the plaintiff's name therefrom would merely be a prayer for nominal relief and hence the objection to the maintainability of the suit in a declaratory form was without any substance 6

Suit for declaration

The proviso to the section is not in the English Act The proviso should not be confined to the last clause but must be read as a general reservation imposed on all the clauses 7 Having regard to the fact that under the proviso an appeal is allowed from the decision of an issue directed to be tried it is necessary that there should be a clear direction as to the trial of an issue so that there may be no obscurity on the point and no room for the argument that there was no issue directed to be tried and consequently no right of appeal of last type. Under s. 9 of Act VI of 1882 which corresponds to this section it was held that there was no reason for confining the last sentence, et c., and an appeal in the manner directed by the Code of Civil Procedure shall lie to the case in which an issue has been directed upon a question of title. But in view of the altered language of the present section Amrit v. Shri 1 it is submitted no longer an authority for the proposition that an appeal lies although no issue has been directed upon a question of title.

In proceedings under the section the Court is not bound to decide serious questions of title, but where it elects to decide the question it may either decide it itself or send it to somebody else in the form of an issue but the decision of the issue in either case is the decision of the Court and is appealable. The jurisdiction of the Civil Court to decide the question falling within the purview of this section is not excluded. For further cases see notes to s. 25.

An application under this section in which the company is respondent is a proceeding against the company within s. 171 and requires leave of the Court but with leave the section will apply against the company after winding up. 4

For the question of rectification after winding up see notes to s. 184.

39 In the case of a company required by this Act to file a list of its members with the registrar, the Court, when making an order for rectification of the register, shall, by its order, direct notice of the rectification to be filed with the registrar within a fortnight from the date of the completion of the order.

Notice to registrar of rectification of register

The words in italics have been added by the Companies (Amendment) Act 1916. Companies referred to in this section are companies having a share capital. 5 40 The register of members shall be prima facie evidence of any matters by this Act directed or authorised to be inserted therein.

Register to be evidence

The register of members is prima facie evidence of membership and the burden of proving want of notice of allotment is on the person who alleges it. It is not conclusive especially where other papers filed by a plaintiff contradict the register even though the defendant does not adduce any evidence. If names are put upon the register without any authority the owners of those names are in no way responsible. 8

Register is prima facie evidence

The register of members is not absolutely conclusive as to the number of share held by a person but it is mere prima facie evidence not only from the point of view of law but as a matter of policy to see that it is so conclusive as it can be made consistently with a proper interpretation of the Companies Act. When a person has been treated as a shareholder and acted as such he cannot go back and deny his position to protect himself from liability especially when he has full knowledge of his real position. Cases are not unknown however where promoters put the names of persons of position on the register in the expectation that he would accept the shares without any application on the part of the latter and when the company goes into liquidation or its uncalled capital is sold to a third person the persons whose names are thus put on the register find themselves in a rather difficult position on account of the presumption arising under this section. In such case the promoter may be relied with the plea that those persons made oral application for shares. The Legislature it is submitted ought to have made written application for shares compulsory.

In Porter v. James [1] Lindley J said: The true view of the Act is we take to be as follows:—1 If a proper register is kept that register is prima facie evidence that a person whose name is on it is a shareholder. 2 If in addition it be proved that such a person has become liable subscribing to the prescribed sum or otherwise entitled to a share in the company the evidence that he is a shareholder is conclusive. 3 If there be no register or if the register be so defective as to be inadmissible in evidence other evidence must be adduced to prove that a person is a shareholder.

In proceedings before a Magistrate for penalties evidence may be given to prove entries in the register to be untrue.

41. (1) A company having a share capital may, if so authorised by its articles, cause to be kept in the United Kingdom a branch register of members (in this Act called a British register)

Power for company to keep branch register in the United Kingdom

(2) The company shall, within one month from the date of the opening of any British register, file with the registrar notice of the situation of the office where such register is kept and, in the event of any change in the situation of such office or of its discontinuance, shall within one month from the date of such change or discontinuance, as the case may be, file notice of such change or discontinuance.

(3) If a company makes default in complying with the requirements of this section, it shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees for every day during which the default continues.

Sub s (1) is not in the English Act

42. (1) A British register shall be deemed to be put to a company's register of members (in this section of this Act, be deemed to be part of the principal register.

(4) Subject to the provisions of this section with respect to the duplicate register, the shares registered in a British register shall be distinguished from the shares registered in the principal register, and no transaction with respect to any shares registered in a British register shall, during the continuance of that registration, be registered in any other register

(5) The company may discontinue to keep any British register, and thereupon all entries in that register shall be transferred to the principal register

(6) Subject to the provisions of this Act, any company may, by its articles, make such regulations as it may think fit respecting the keeping of a British register

43. (1) A company limited by shares, if so authorised by its articles, may, with respect to any fully paid-up shares, or to stock, issue under its common seal a warrant stating that the bearer of the warrant is entitled to the shares or stock therein specified, and may provide, by coupons or otherwise, for the payment of the future dividends on the shares or stock included in the warrant, in this Act termed a share-warrant

(2) Nothing in this section shall apply to a private company

By the Companies (Amendment) Act 1933 the original 1 has been re-numbered as sub-s (1) and sub-s (2) has been added. The reason for the amendment is that the issue of bearer share warrants is not compatible with the position of a private company as defined in the Act Sec. 2 (17) and notes thereto.

Amend
ment

In the case noted below it was contended that the power of a company to issue stock warrants to bearer had been impliedly repealed by the English Companies Act of 1909. Held that the Act kept alive the power to issue both classes of warrants to bearer.

44 A share-warrant shall entitle the bearer thereof to the shares or stock therein specified, and the shares or stock may be transferred by delivery of the warrant.

Effect of share warrant

Share-warrants to bearer are negotiable by mercantile usage and are transferable by delivery. So even if it has been previously stolen a subsequent innocent purchaser for value gets a good title.

45 The bearer of a share-warrant shall, subject to the articles of the company, be entitled, on surrendering it for cancellation, to have his name entered as a member in the register of members, and the company shall be responsible for any loss incurred by any person by reason of the company entering in its register the name of a bearer of a share-warrant in respect of the shares or stock therein specified without the warrant being surrendered and cancelled.

Registration of name of bearer of share warrant

46 The bearer of a share-warrant may, if the articles of the company so provide, be deemed to be a member of the company within the meaning of this Act, either to the full extent or for any purposes defined in the articles, except that he shall not be qualified in respect of the shares or stock specified in the warrant for being a director or manager of the company, in cases where such a qualification is required by the articles.

Position of bearer of share warrant

47 (1) On the issue of a share-warrant, the company shall strike out of its register of members the name of the member then entered therein as holding the shares or stock specified in the warrant as if he had ceased to be a member, and shall enter in the register the following particulars, namely:—

Entries in register when share warrant issued

- (i) the fact of the issue of the warrant,
- (ii) a statement of the shares or stock included in the warrant, distinguishing each share by its number and
- (iii) the date of the issue of the warrant.

(2) If a company makes default in complying with the requirements of this section, it shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees for every day during which the default continues, and every officer of the company who knowingly and wilfully continues or permits the default shall be liable to the like penalty

48 Until the warrant is surrendered, the above particulars shall be deemed to be the particulars required by this Act to be entered in the register of members, and, on the surrender, the date of the surrender shall be entered as if it were the date at which a person ceased to be a member

49. A company, if so authorised by its articles, may do any one or more of the following things, namely —

Power of company to arrange for different amounts being paid on shares

(1) make arrangements on the issue of shares for a difference between the shareholders in the amounts and times of payment of calls on their shares,

(2) accept from any member who assents thereto the whole or a part of the amount remaining unpaid on any shares held by him although no part of that amount has been called up,

(3) pay dividend in proportion to the amount paid up on each share where a larger amount is paid up on some shares than on others

Sub s. (3) In the absence of such a clause in the articles of association members are entitled to dividend in proportion to the nominal value of their shares and not in proportion to the amount paid thereon 1 Payment of dividend in proportion to the amount paid up on each share was for the first time authorized in Table A of the Act of 1913 2

50 (1) A company limited by shares, if so authorised by its articles, may alter the conditions of its memorandum as follows (that is to say), it may—

Power of company limited by shares to alter its share capital

(a) increase its share capital by the issue of new shares of such amount as it thinks expedient,

(b) consolidate and divide all or any of its share capital into shares of larger amount than its existing shares

1 Oklank Oil Co v Crum [1882] 8 App Cas 63

2 See art. 105 of the present Act and notes thereto of art. 111 Table A of the Act of 1882

- () convert all or any of its paid-up shares into stock and reconvert that stock into paid-up shares of any denomination,
- (d) subdivide its shares, or any of them, into shares of smaller amount than is fixed by the memorandum, so, however, that in the sub-division the proportion between the amount paid and the amount, if any, unpaid on each reduced share shall be the same as it was in the case of the share from which the reduced share is derived,
- () cancel shares which, at the date of the passing of the resolution in that behalf, have not been taken or agreed to be taken by any person, and diminish the amount of its share capital by the amount of the shares so cancelled

(2) The powers conferred by this section must be exercised by the company in general meeting

(3) A cancellation of shares in pursuance of this section shall not be deemed to be a reduction of share capital within the meaning of this Act

(4) The Company shall file with the registrar notice of the exercise of any power referred to in clause (d) in clause (c) of sub-section (1) within fifteen days from the exercise thereof

In sub s 2 The words with respect to sub division of shares after the word 'section' have been omitted and for the words by special resolution at the end the words by the company in general meeting have been substituted by the Companies (Amendment) Act of 1936 By the same Act sub sections (3) and (4) of the original section have been omitted, sub s (3) has been re numbered as sub s (3) and the new sub s (4) has been added

The original sub section (3) and (4) were as follows

(3) Where any alteration has been made under this section in the memorandum of a company, every copy of the memorandum issued after the date of the alteration shall be in accordance with the alteration

(4) If a company makes default in complying with the requirements of sub section (3) it shall be liable to a fine not exceeding ten rupees for each copy in respect of which default is made and every officer of the company who knowingly and wilfully authorises or permits the default shall be liable to the like penalty

The reason for the omission of these two sub sections appear to be that the provisions thereof have been already incorporated in the new s 2. A No provision is however made in this section for any penalty for default in complying with the new sub s (4) The alterations have been made for bringing the section into line with s 50 of the English Companies Act of 1900

The power to increase capital by the issue of new shares is a fiduciary power to be exercised by the directors in fits for the general advantage of the company and they are not entitled to use their powers merely for the purpose of maintaining their control over the affairs of the company and for defeating the wishes of the existing majority of shareholders.

Sub-s (1) The company can, if so authorized by its articles do the things authorized in the manner authorized. But if not so authorized by the articles the company may take the necessary power 2 by altering the articles in the mode provided by s 20

A suit by a shareholder for a declaration that the allotment of new shares to certain persons is not legal and that they have no powers as shareholders on the ground that the resolution authorising the increase of capital by issuing new shares was invalid and ineffective, does not lie. Where no consequential relief such as a prayer for rectification of the register of members by removing the names of new shareholders or for an injunction is sought the suit comes within the mischief of s. 12 of the Specific Relief Act and is consequently bad.

Cl (a) Where the articles provide merely that 'the company may increase its capital' without giving how and contain the general clauses (as in Table A) enabling the directors to act generally on behalf of the company the directors can exercise the power of increase. But where the articles do not contain the requisite authority to increase they should be amended by 'special resolution' and the alteration of the articles as well as that of the capital may be effected by one resolution. If the company passes a special resolution authorizing the creation and issue of new shares that will in effect not only give authority to increase, but enable the directors to exercise that authority.

Where a company has power in its articles to increase its capital without a "special" or "extraordinary" resolution it is unnecessary to do more than pass an ordinary resolution, or the company may confer on its directors the power to make the increase. But it is otherwise if other articles require the sanction of the company in general meeting. In that case a single shareholder holding all the shares of a class may constitute the meeting. The intention to make the specific increase of capital must be embodied in the resolution.

Where the articles provide that the existing shareholders should have the option of taking the shares in the increased capital ratably and in proportion to their respective shares, a deviation from the provision cannot be made unless with the consent of all the shareholders 1. On the increase of capital the new shares shall be offered to the members in proportion to their existing shares 2.

THE UNIVERSITY OF CHICAGO

Journal of Management Inquiry

In England stamp duty is to be paid on the amount by which the nominal capital is increased 3. registered capital means authorized capital. As to the fees for registration of increase of capital see Table B, No 3.

The authority to increase is to be contrasted with the authority to reduce which authority can only be exercised by special resolution 4.

Cl (b) If the alteration does not involve consolidation or division and does not involve an alteration of the memorandum of association separate meetings of the classes are not required 5. Where this is the case the rights are frequently altered by an arrangement under s 153 6. If it does not involve any alteration of the memorandum it may be done by special resolution without the sanction of the Court 7.

Cl (c) When shares have been fully paid up but not before 8, they may be turned into stock of which notice must be given to the registrar under the next following section. The issue of partly paid up stock would be a nullity 8. For distinction between share and stock see notes to s 51.

Cl (d) If no power is given either in the memorandum or the articles of association to subdivide the share capital or to create any preference between different classes of shares the company can take the power by altering the articles 9. If the articles did not contain the requisite authority to subdivide they could be amended by special resolution and then the power had to be exercised by a subsequent special resolution. The two successive resolutions might be passed in three meetings 10.

When a reduction of capital has created shares not consisting of an integral amount, such shares may be consolidated and then sub divided into shares of integral amount 11. The section permits a consolidation of shares followed by a sub division resulting from such consolidation to be carried by a single resolution 12.

In spite of the provisions of this section a scheme of reduction of capital may be sanctioned by the Court under s 50 13.

A company registered under the previous Acts may with the confirmation of the Court alter its objects or substitute a memorandum and articles for its deed of settlement without registering it under this Act 14.

All the powers mentioned in this section may be exercised continuously on the confirmation by the Court of a resolution for reduction of capital and a single resolution for consolidation and sub-division of shares resulting from such consolidation may be valid.

51. (1) Where a company having a share capital has consolidated and divided its share capital into shares of larger amount than its existing shares or converted any of its shares into stock, or re-converted stock into shares, it shall, within fifteen days of the consolidation and division, conversion or re-conversion, file notice with the registrar of the same, specifying the share consolidated and divided, or converted, or the stock re-converted.

(2) If a company makes default in complying with the requirements of this section, it shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees for every day during which the default continues, and every officer of the company who knowingly and wilfully authorises or permits the default shall be liable to the like penalty.

For the meaning of the word stock see notes to s 29. The distinction between share and stock was explained by Lord Cairns in Worcester & Lyman 3 where it was pointed out that when converted into stock the shares might be assigned in fragments, but the stock should still be the qualification of directors and that meetings should be of persons entitled to this stock who meet and vote as shareholders in the proportion of shares which would entitle them to vote before the consolidation into stock.

One of the conveniences of stock besides its divisibility is that it becomes no longer necessary in a transfer to specify all the numbers of various shares comprised in the transfer if a transfer is made of so much stock.

A bequest of shares would include stock, but a direction in a will to invest in preference stock does not justify investment in preference shares. If stock is issued as partly paid up the issue is void. But the irregularity committed by a company in issuing fully paid stock without first issuing shares is a mere irregularity which will not in equity be held to void the transaction but can be ignored.

Sub s (2) is not in the English Act.

52. Where a company having a share capital has converted any of its shares into stock, and filed notice of the conversion with the registrar, all the provisions of this Act which are applicable to shares only shall cease as to so much of the share capital as is converted into stock and the register of members of the company,

By the Companies (Amendment) Act 1930 the words "or in the case of a special resolution the confirmation after the words "passing" have been omitted the original sub s (2) has been re-numbered as sub s (3) and the new sub s (2) has been inserted

ment

54 (1) A company limited by shares may, by special resolution confirmed by an order of the Court, modify the conditions contained in its memorandum so as to reorganize its share capital whether by the consolidation of shares of different classes or by the division of its shares into shares of different classes

Reorganization of share
capital

Provided that no preference or special privilege attached to or belonging to any class of shares shall be interfered with except by resolution passed by a majority in number of shareholders of that class holding three fourths of the share capital of that class, and every resolution so passed shall bind all shareholders of the class

(2) Where an order is made under this section, a certified copy thereof shall be filed with the registrar within twenty-one has the effect of sweeping away the rights and privileges attached to ordinary and deferred shares and which leaves two classes of shares with precisely the same rights is perfectly valid and does not require the sanction of the Court. But where even after this resolution a deferred share cannot be sold as an ordinary share, a proposal to make these two classes of shares into one class involves a consolidation of the different classes of shares and such consolidation modifies the condition of the memorandum of association.

Where the section does not apply

This section does not however apply where the proposed scheme does not modify the memorandum or consolidate shares or affect preferential rights of shareholders and the section is applicable only to arrangements which have the effect specified in sub-section (1).

Where by an agreement A company was entitled to act as manager of B company and to receive in respect of each financial year of the B company 50 per cent of its net profits as well as a management share with very important rights attached to it, and B company having desirous of putting an end to the management by A company an agreement was prepared terminating the management in consideration of the payment to A company of 100,000/ to be raised by B company by the issue of debenture stock and incidentally the management share was to be converted into an ordinary share, it was held that it was not ultra vires the B company to enter into the proposed agreement, it being no objection to the agreement that it involved the redemption of the annual charge on the B company's net profits out of capital raised for the purpose.

Sub s. (1) To comply with the provisions of sub-section (1) a majority of three-fourths in value of the shareholders of that particular class must be present or represented when the resolution is passed and it must be passed at a meeting voting by proxy being allowable when such votings are allowed by the articles.

Where a company by special resolution re-organized its share capital in such a manner that the liability of the company to the shareholders was reduced, but the nominal amount of the share capital was not reduced it was held that the company had rightly adopted the procedure prescribed by this section in order to obtain confirmation of the re-organization scheme.

A resolution passed by half of the preference shareholders who represent three-fourths of the share capital of their class does not comply with the provisions of this section. Although a single member cannot constitute a "meeting" in the ordinary sense of the word, the context may show the word to be used in an unusual sense and in such a way as to include the formal consent of the sole member of that class, the consent of which is required to be obtained.

The proviso to sub s. (1) does not apply to affecting the rights of ordinary shareholders by an issue of preference shares.

The wide powers which the Court has in confirming a scheme is well shown in the case where a dissentient shareholder was compelled to accept 4½% dividends for 5½% cumulative shares 1

An alteration such as is referred to in this section cannot be carried out under s 151 above without regard to the special provisions of this section 2
Distinction between this section & s 153 But if no consolidation or division of shares into different classes is involved this section does not apply 3 A mere increase of the number of shares of any class does not alter the rights of the class within the meaning of this section or s 153 3

The various steps for reorganizing the capital and business can be taken at one and the same time and by a single resolution 4

For preference and other classes of shares and the privileges &c attached to them see notes to s 6 and arts 3 4 and 98 of Table A

It is not necessary to advertise a petition for reorganization of the share capital 5

Reduction of Share Capital

54 A. (1) No company limited by shares shall have power to buy its own shares or the shares of a public company of which it is a subsidiary company unless the consequent reduction of capital is effected and sanctioned in the manner provided by sections 55 to 66

(2) No company limited by shares other than a private company, not being a subsidiary company of a public company, shall give, whether directly or indirectly, and whether by means of a loan, guarantee, the provision of security or otherwise, any financial assistance for the purpose of or in connection with a purchase made or to be made by any person of any shares in the company

Provided that nothing in this section shall be taken to prohibit, where the lending of money is part of the ordinary business of a company, the lending of money by the company in the ordinary course of its business

(3) If a company acts in contravention of this section, the company and every officer of the company who is knowingly and wilfully in default shall be liable to a fine not exceeding one thousand rupees

(4) Nothing in this section shall affect the right of a company to redeem any shares issued under section 105 B

This section is new and has been inserted by the Companies (Amendment) Act 1916. Sub-s (1) replaces sub-s (1) of s 50 which has been omitted. Sub-s (2) and the proviso were suggested by s 45, cl (1) and proviso (a) of the English Act of 1901 and sub-s (3) is on the line of sub-s (3) of the aforesaid section of the English Act.

In a recent English case where an agreement provided that a director and manager of a company should resign and transfer his share holding in the company to another director for £501 and this sum was paid to him by a cheque drawn on the company's account it was held that if the payment for the shares by the company's cheque was such as to contravene s 40 cl (1) [corresponding to cl (2) of the present section] of the English Act of 1929 and render the company liable to a fine under sub-s (3) [which was not proved in the case] the agreement was not thereby rendered invalid.

Ultra vires In the absence of a special power of cancellation or forfeiture of shares the directors have no power to release shareholders from their liability or to cancel shares.² A resolution passed by a company authorizing the money of those shareholders who have not paid their allotment money and are not willing to remain as members to be returned ultra vires and cannot operate to relieve them of their liability as contributories.³ An article enabling members to sever all connections with the company and end all their liability being opposed to this section is ultra vires the company and the memorandum of association.⁴

Company cannot deal in its own shares A company even though it be empowered by its memorandum or articles of association to deal in the shares of companies is not thereby entitled to deal in its own shares and a purchase by the directors of its shares on behalf of the company is ultra vires.⁵ Directors have no power to cancel shares duly issued to a shareholder at his request and thus to reduce the company's capital.⁶ Provisions for option for a company to buy its own shares is ultra vires under the Acts of 1866 and 1897 as well as under the present Act.⁶

55 (1) Subject to confirmation by the Court, a company limited by shares, if so authorised by its articles, may by special resolution reduce its share capital in any way, and in particular (without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing power) may—

Reduction of share capital

- (a) extinguish or reduce the liability on any of its shares in respect of share capital not paid up, or
- (b) either with or without extinguishing or reducing liability on any of its shares, cancel any paid-up share capital which is lost or unrepresented by available assets; or

- (c) either with or without extinguishing or reducing liability on any of its shares, pay off any paid up share capital which is in excess of the wants of the company, and may, if and so far as is necessary, alter its memorandum by reducing the amount of its share capital and of its shares accordingly

(2) A special resolution under this section is in this Act called a resolution for reducing share capital.

By the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936 sub-s (1) of this section has been omitted and sub-sections (2) and (3) have been re-numbered as sub-sections (1) and (2) respectively. The provision of sub-section (1) has been transferred to s 34 A. The original sub-s (1) was as follows

55 (1) No company limited by shares shall have power to buy its own shares unless the consequent reduction of capital is effected and sanctioned in manner hereinafter provided

A company may reduce its capital without the sanction of the Court by— 1) forfeiting shares for non-payment of calls and the like 2) paying off paid up capital out of accumulated profits 3) cancelling shares by special resolution under s 50 sub sec (1) cl (e) A surrender of shares in consideration of a payment in money or money's worth by the company is a purchase by it of its own shares and is ultra vires 4 "Every surrender of shares whether fully paid up or not involves a reduction of capital which is unlawful except where sanctioned by the Court Forfeiture is a statutory exception and the only exception 5 A surrender of shares to the company not involving any reduction of capital and not amounting to a purchase of its own shares is not however necessarily ultra vires 6 It may be done where a forfeiture can be justified 7 Surrender in all other cases is illegal 8

In speaking of reduction of capital the word "capital" means neither nominal capital to the exclusion of paid up capital nor the latter to the exclusion of the former A reduction of nominal capital which is paid up must be so made as not to affect the equilibrium of the company's balance-sheet to the prejudice of the company's creditors This equilibrium is not disturbed where the reduction is effected (a) by cancelling capital lost or unrepresented by available assets or (b) by paying off capital in excess of the company's wants because in either case the balance item on the debit or credit side of the balance sheet as the case may be is unaffected, but the section implicitly forbids the writing necessary to cancel arrears of preference dividends it requires an arrangement under § 153 1, unless the memorandum or the articles vest the requisite power in a class meeting 2

A guarantor of preference dividends, who had made payments pursuant to the guarantee, can claim only to be subrogated to the rights of preference shareholders, and cannot claim to be repaid as a creditor by the company 3

A scheme for reduction comes within the operation of this section although it differentiates between the holders of the same class of shares to the extent of paying off some and not others and imposes upon the shareholders whose shares are to be extinguished the obligation to accept debenture stock in lieu of cash and also involves the advance to the company of the monies to be utilized in redemption of the share capital by the very persons whose shares are to be redeemed 4 The Court may make it a term of the confirmation that the cost of a dissentient shareholder who has insisted the Court by his criticism of the scheme shall be provided for by the company 4

A reduction of capital may with the sanction of the Court be effected in any manner even though it involve doing things which without such sanction are entirely forbidden e.g. the purchase by the company of its own shares or a re-arrangement of the rights of the members 5 or a sub division of shares in which the amount unpaid is not equally divided between the resulting shares 6

Where of the ordinary £ 5 shares of a company, there were 6,017 fully paid shares and 53,903 shares which were paid up only to the extent of £ 1 per share, and the company having accumulated a large reserve fund, passed and confirmed a special resolution for the return of £ 4 per share on the 6,017 fully paid shares it was held that the company had power to reduce the paid up capital in the manner proposed by the special resolution 7

A petition to the Court for confirmation of a scheme for reduction of capital was opposed by the deferred shareholders The scheme was that every 2/ of ordinary share should be converted into 1/ of ordinary share, but the reduction was thought advisable having regard to the conflict of interests between the ordinary and the deferred share capital on any dividend distribution Article 44 of the company's articles of association gave power to reduce the capital by paying off capital cancelling capital lost or unrepresented by available assets, or relieving the liability on the shares or otherwise as might seem expedient Arts 71 and 72 required the assent of each class of shareholders by an extraordinary resolution passed at a meeting of such class There was no suggestion of any want of good faith on the part of the directors held (1) that Art 44 was sufficient to allow reduction in the manner proposed (2) that there was a proper holding of a separate meeting of each class of shareholders though at such a meeting shareholders of other classes were present without voting (3) that the directors with the notice of the meeting was sufficient to convey all the information necessary and any imperfection

Sub s (2) The power of reduction must be exercised by passing a special resolution. If minutes are properly signed no evidence will be required to prove that the meetings were properly convened. Where of twelve shareholders present at the general meeting eight voted for and two against reduction and the remaining two did not vote, it was held that the resolution was not effective inasmuch as a majority of three-fourths of the members entitled to vote and present at the meeting had not voted in favour of the resolution. The words 'in any way' in this sub-section gives effect to the decision of the House of Lords in Pease v National Bank of China. 11

The addition of the words "and reduced" is required in order to give warning to the public of the financial position of the company 1 The fact that the company is carrying on business abroad will not necessarily induce the Court to dispense with the use of those words 2 But in a proper case where the use of the words "and reduced" has greatly prejudiced the company's credit by leading foreign customers to suppose that the company might be unable to meet its obligations the Court may limit the time for use of the words to a short time say fourteen days 3 The time usually ordered is one month 4

Where the company fails to add the words "and reduced" to its name after the confirmation of the resolution for reduction the petition for confirmation by the Court was incompetent 5 In the case noted below the Court dispensed with the use of the words on the common seal of the company but otherwise ordered the words to be used for one month from the date of the order 6 If the company is desirous of not using the words at all it should make an application to that effect at the time of presentation of the petition 7 The application must be supported by affidavit 8

58 (1) Where the proposed reduction of share capital involves either diminution of liability in respect of unpaid share capital, or the payment to any shareholder of any paid-up share capital, and in any other case if the Court so directs, every creditor of the company who at the date fixed by the Court is entitled to any debt or claim which, if that date were the commencement of the winding up of the company, would be admissible in proof against the company, shall be entitled to object to the reduction

(2) The Court shall settle a list of creditors so entitled to object, and for that purpose shall ascertain, as far as possible without requiring an application from any creditor, the names of those creditors and the nature and amount of their debts or claims, and may publish notices fixing a day or days within which creditors not entered on the list are to claim to be so entered or are to be excluded from the right of objecting to the reduction.

The Court will not readily accede to the prayer of dispensing with intimation and advertisement of the petition where the company is a private one and a family concern 1

Private company

Where a reduction of capital does not involve diminution of assets and there has been no default by the company under the provisions of its debenture deed a debenture holder or creditor and in particular a secured creditor must make out a strong case before the Court will direct that he is entitled to object to the reduction and the Court will not exercise its discretion in favour of the debenture holders where there is no evidence that the assets are an insufficient security 2

Creditors right to object

Sub-s 2 The language of sub s (2) is imperative The Court cannot dispense with the procedure even if there is no creditor 3

59 Where a creditor entered on the list of creditors whose debt or claim is not discharged or determined does not consent to the reduction, the Court may, if it thinks fit, dispense with the consent of that creditor, on the company securing payment of his debt or claim by appropriating, as the Court may direct, the following amount (that is to say),—

Power to dispense with consent of creditor on security being given for his debt

- (i) if the company admits the full amount of his debt or claim, or, though not admitting it, is willing to provide for it, then the full amount of the debt or claim,
- (ii) if the company does not admit or is not willing to provide for the full amount of the debt or claim, or if the amount is contingent or not ascertained, then an amount fixed by the Court after the like inquiry and adjudication as if the company were being wound up by the Court

Debenture holders may on receiving notice by advertisement require and claim to be entered on the list and are if they fail to do so to be excluded from the right of objecting 4 Creditors named in the list whose debts are secured, but not yet due and who have neither assented nor dissented must be taken to have assented 5

An extraordinary resolution passed by the majority at a meeting of debenture-holders is a sufficient consent of all the debenture holders 1
 Consent of creditors

60 The Court, if satisfied, with respect to every creditor of the company who under this Act is entitled to object to the reduction, that either his consent to the reduction has been obtained or his debt or claim has been discharged or has determined or has been secured, may make an order confirming the reduction on such terms and conditions as it thinks fit
 Order confirming reduction

Where debentures to be raised were outstanding and the names of the holders could not be ascertained the Court allowed unanimous resolution of a meeting of debenture holders at which 87 per cent of the issue was represented to suffice as equivalent to the consent of all 2
 Consent

If the debt is admitted or proved or is an ascertained sum the whole amount must be set aside and if the company refuses to do it, sanction to the reduction may be refused 3

The Court has an absolute discretion to confirm 4 or refuse 5 to confirm the reduction or impose such terms and conditions on the company, as it thinks fit 6 The only express statutory limitation is that certain measures must be taken for the protection of the creditors The Court cannot except in exceptional cases review the opinion of the company in regard to its domestic or commercial questions 7
 Power to confirm is discretionary

If a scheme of arrangement under s. 153 involves a reduction of capital all the requirements of the Act with regard to reduction must be complied with, and it is necessary to advertise the petition for sanctioning the scheme unless the Court has dispensed with any advertisement 8
 Scheme under s. 153

A scheme of reduction of capital is not necessarily unfair or inequitable because it involves an alteration of the rights of voting and priority as between the different classes of stock holders 9
 Scheme involving alteration of rights

The Court has power in a proper case to confirm a resolution for reduction of capital notwithstanding that the voting powers may thereby be affected 6

61. (1) The registrar on production to him of an order of the Court confirming the reduction of the share capital of a company, and on the filing with him of a certified copy of the order and of a minute (approved by the Court) showing, with respect to the share capital of the company as altered by the order, the amount of the share capital the number of shares into which it is to be divided and the amount of each share and the amount (if any) at the date of the registration deemed to be paid up on each share, shall register the order and minute

(2) On the registration, and not before, the resolution for reducing share capital as confirmed by the order so registered shall take effect

(3) Notice of the registration shall be published in such manner as the Court may direct

(4) The registrar shall certify under his hand the registration of the order and minute and his certificate shall be conclusive evidence that all the requirements of this Act with respect to reduction of share capital have been complied with, and that the share capital of the company is such as is stated in the minute

The minutes for reduction of capital must contain among other particulars the denoting numbers of the shares referred to therein the notice of registration of such minutes need not have or contain the denoting numbers but may be in such shortened form as the Court may direct 1 The minutes must contain the denoting numbers of the shares where they are not all paid up to the same extent 2 This will not be excused but if the minutes are very complicated a shortened form of advertisement may be allowed 1 For what the minutes and memoranda should contain see notes below 1 & 3

The form of minute to be registered pursuant to this section should contain a statement of subdivision of the share capital as affected by the resolution for reduction but need not contain the original numbers of the shares nor the fact that nothing has been paid up on the unissued shares 4

The registrar's certificate is conclusive evidence that the requirements of the Act have been complied with 5 though it appeared afterwards that the company had no power under the articles to reduce its capital or that the special resolution for reduction was invalid 6

For the form of the minute where the scheme for reduction involves the original sale of capital see Ex parte Bell & Co 1 of 1st 1 6c

62 (1) The minute when registered shall be deemed to be substituted for the corresponding part of the memorandum of the company, and shall be valid and alterable as if it had been originally contained therein, and shall be embodied in every copy of the memorandum issued after its registration

Minute to form part of memorandum

(2) If a company makes default in complying with the requirements of this section, it shall be liable to a fine not exceeding ten rupees for each copy in respect of which default is made, and every officer of the company who knowingly and wilfully authorises or permits the default shall be liable to the like penalty

63 (1) A member of the company, past or present, shall not be liable in respect of any share to any call or contribution exceeding in amount the difference (if any) between the amount paid, or (as the case may be) the reduced amount, if any, which is to be deemed to have been paid, on the share and the amount of the share as fixed by the minute

Liability of members in respect of reduced shares

Provided that, if any creditor, entitled in respect of any debt or claim to object to the reduction of share capital, is, by reason of his ignorance of the proceedings for reduction, or of their nature and effect with respect to his claim, not entered on the list of creditors, and, after the reduction, the company is unable, within the meaning of the provisions of this Act with respect to winding up by the Court, to pay the amount of his debt or claim, then—

- (i) every person who was a member of the company at the date of the registration of the order for reduction and minute, shall be liable to contribute for the payment of that debt, or claim an amount not exceeding the amount which he would have been liable to contribute if the company had commenced to be wound up on the day before that registration, and
- (ii) if the company is wound up the Court on the application of any such creditor and proof of his ignorance as aforesaid, may, if it thinks fit settle accordingly a list of persons so liable to contribute, and make and enforce calls and orders on the contributories settled on the list as if they were ordinary contributories in winding up

(2) Nothing in this section shall affect the rights of the contributories among themselves

64 If any officer of the company wilfully conceals the name of any creditor entitled to object to the reduction, or wilfully misrepresents the nature or amount of the debt or claim of any creditor, or if any officer of the company abets any such concealment or misrepresentation as aforesaid, every such officer shall be punishable with imprisonment which may extend to one year, or with fine, or with both

65 In any case of reduction of share capital, the Court may require the company to publish as the Court directs the reasons for reduction, or such other information in regard thereto as the Court may think expedient with a view to give proper information to the public, and, if the Court thinks fit, the causes which led to the reduction

The Court rarely acts under this section but may do so where the loss has been very large and sudden

66 A company limited by guarantee and registered after the commencement of this Act may, if it has a share capital and is so authorised by its articles, increase or reduce its share capital in the same manner and subject to the same conditions in and subject to which a company limited by shares may increase or reduce its share capital under the provisions of this Act

66A (1) If in the case of a company, the share capital of which is divided into different classes of shares, provision is made by the memorandum or articles for authorising the variation of the rights attached to any class of shares in the company, subject to the consent of a specified proportion of the holders of the issued shares of that class or the sanction of a resolution passed at a separate meeting of the holders of those shares, and in pursuance of the said provision

Rights of holders of special classes of shares

the rights attached to any such class of shares are at any time varied, the holders of not less in the aggregate than ten per cent of the issued shares of that class, being persons who did not consent to or vote in favour of the resolution for the variation, may apply to the Court to have the variation cancelled, and where any such application is made the variation shall not have effect until and until it is confirmed by the Court.

(2) In application under this section must be made within fourteen days after the date on which the consent was given or the resolution was passed, as the case may be, and may be made on behalf of the shareholders entitled to make the application by such one or more of their number as they may appoint in writing for the purpose.

(3) On any such application the Court, after hearing the applicant and any other persons who apply to the Court to be heard and appear to the Court to be interested in the application, may, if it is satisfied having regard to all the circumstances of the case that the variation would unfairly prejudice the shareholders of the class represented by the applicant, disallow the variation and shall, if not so satisfied, confirm the variation.

(4) The decision of the Court on any such application shall be final.

(5) The company shall within fifteen days after the service on the company of any order made on any such application forward a copy of the order to the registrar and if default is made in complying with this provision, the company and every officer of the company who is knowingly and wilfully in default shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees.

(6) The expression "variation" in this section includes "abrogation" and the expression "varied" shall be construed accordingly.

This new section has been inserted by the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936. It is a verbatim reproduction of s 61 of the English Act of 1929 except that for the words "liable to a default fine" in sub s (5) of the English Act the words "liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees" have been substituted. This section may come into conflict with s 51. In the English Act of 1929 s 1 of the English Act of 1926 (corresponding to s 71) was not re-enacted. See Introduction.

Sub s (1) The presence at a separate meeting of the holders of one class of shares, holders of a different class not voting either in show of hands or on a poll does not invalidate the meeting as a separate class meeting, or the poll taken thereat. [In part of Chemical Industries Ltd (1931) 1 Ch. 57 C.A.]

Registration of Unlimited Company as Limited

67 (1) Subject to the provisions of this section, any company registered as unlimited may register under this Act as limited, or any company already registered as a limited company may register under this Act, but the registration of an unlimited company as a limited company shall not affect any debts, liabilities, obligations or contracts incurred or entered into by, to, with or on behalf of, the company before the registration, and those debts, liabilities, obligations and contracts may be enforced in manner provided by Part VIII of this Act in the case of a company registered in pursuance of that Part

(2) On registration in pursuance of this section, the registrar shall close the former registration of the company, and may dispense with the delivery to him of copies of any documents with copies of which he was furnished on the occasion of the original registration of the company, but, save as aforesaid, the registration shall take place in the same manner and shall have effect as if it were the first registration of the company under this Act

68 An unlimited company having a share capital may, by its resolution for registration as a limited company in pursuance of this Act, do either or both of the following things, namely —

(a) increase the nominal amount of its share capital by increasing the nominal amount of each of its shares, but subject to the condition that no part of the amount by which its capital is so increased shall be capable of being called up except in the event and for the purposes of the company being wound up,

(1) provide that a specified portion of its uncalled share capital shall not be capable of being called up except in the event and for the purposes of the company being wound up

69 A limited company may by special resolution determine that any portion of its share capital which has not been already called up shall not be capable of being called up except in the event and for the purposes of the company being wound up, and thereupon that portion of its share capital shall not be capable of being called up except in the event and for the purposes aforesaid

After the special resolution such a capital cannot be charged by the company under a power in its memorandum and articles of association to charge its uncalled capital 1. Reserve capital cannot be turned into ordinary capital without leave of the Court and it cannot be dealt with by the directors 1. The reserve capital cannot be cancelled on a reduction of capital 2.

Unlimited Liability of Directors

70. (1) In a limited company the liability of the directors or of any director, may, if so provided by the memorandum, be unlimited

Limited company may have directors with unlimited liability

(2) In a limited company in which the liability of any director is unlimited, the directors of the company (if any) and the member who proposes a person for election or appointment to the office of director shall add to that proposal a statement that the liability of the person holding that office will be unlimited, and the promoters and officers of the company, or one of them, shall, before the person accepts the office or acts therein, give him notice in writing that his liability will be unlimited.

(3) If any director or proposer makes default in adding such a statement, or if any promoter or officer of the company makes default in giving such a notice, he shall be liable to a fine not exceeding one thousand rupees and shall also be liable for any damage which the person so elected or appointed may sustain from the default, but the liability of the person elected or appointed shall not be affected by the default.

71. (1) A limited company, if so authorised by its articles, may, by special resolution, alter its memorandum so as to render unlimited the liability of its directors or of any director.

Special resolution of limited company making liability of directors unlimited

(2) Upon the passing of any such special resolution, the provisions thereof shall be as valid as if they had been originally contained in the memorandum.

By the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936 the word 'passing' in sub s (2) has been substituted for the word 'confirmation', as under the new definition of "special resolution" [vide s E1 (2)] it is no longer required to be confirmed

Amendment

By the same Act the following words after the word "memorandum" in sub s (2) have been omitted, namely "and a copy thereof shall be embodied in or annexed to every copy of the memorandum issued after the confirmation of the resolution". These words were rendered unnecessary on account of the new s 254. By the said amending Act sub s (1) has been omitted

2. Millard Ry. Carriage Co. [1907] W.N. 175

The original sub s (3) was as follows —

(3) If a company makes default in complying with the requirements of this section it shall be liable to a fine not exceeding ten rupees for each copy in respect of which default is made and every officer of the company who knowingly and wilfully authorises or permits the default, shall be liable to the like penalty

PART IV.

MANAGEMENT AND ADMINISTRATION

Office and Name

72 (1) A company shall as from the day on which it begins to carry on business, or as from the twenty-eighth day after the date of its incorporation, whichever is the earlier, have a registered office to which all communications and notices may be addressed

Registered
company

(2) Notice of the situation of the registered office and of any change therein shall be given within twenty-eight days after the date of the incorporation of the company or of the change, as the case may be, to the registrar who shall record the same

(3) The inclusion in the annual return of a company of the statement as to the address of its registered office shall not be taken to satisfy the obligation imposed by this section

(4) If a company carries on business without complying with the requirements of this section it shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees for every day during which it so carries on business

By the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936 this section has been substituted for the original s 72 in which there was no definite time limit within which a company should have a registered office or within which the notice of its situation or change should be given to the registrar. This new section reproduces s 92 of the English Act of 1909. The old s 72 was in the following terms

72 (1) Every company shall have a registered office to which all communications and notices may be addressed

(2) Notice in writing of the situation of the registered office and of any change therein, shall be filed with the registrar, who shall record the same

(3) If a company carries on business without complying with the requirements of this section, it shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees for every day during which it so carries on business

A summons to appear before a Magistrate must be served at the registered office and appearance by a solicitor to the court is not a waiver of the objection 1 Where there is a registered office service at the office in fact used by the company will be sufficient 2 Where there is no office the company having elected to carry on business at any one of the places it may be allowed 3 Service at any other place even if the company carries on business there is insufficient 1

Where the registered office of a company still exists at the usual place but a part of the company's business has been shifted to some other place without any notification of such change to the registrar all the notices to be addressed to the usual registered office 4 In the last cited case Panchratnam J observed "I find myself unable to accept Mr S C Roy's contention that s 73 shows that a resolution to change the registered office is sufficient and that the only effect of failure to notify the change is to render the company liable to fine under sub s 3

In a suit against a corporation the summons may be served—(a) on the secretary, any director or principal officer of the corporation (b) by leaving it or sending it by post addressed to the corporation at the registered office or if there is no registered office then at the place where the corporation carries on business 5 As to the mode of service of any document on a company see s 148

73 Every limited company—

- (a) shall print or affix, and keep printed or affixed, its name on the outside of every office or place in which its business is carried on, in a conspicuous position, in letters easily legible and in English characters, and also, if the registered office be situate in a place beyond the local limits of the ordinary original civil jurisdiction of a High Court, in the characters of one of the vernacular languages used in that place ;
- (b) shall have its name engraven in legible characters on its seal ;
- (c) shall have its name mentioned in legible English characters in all bill heads and letter paper and in all notices, advertisements and other official publications of the company, and in all bills of exchange, hundis, promissory notes, endorsements, cheques and orders for money or goods purporting to be signed by or on behalf of the company, and in all bills of parcels, invoices, receipts and letters of credit of the company

The abbreviations "Ltd" or "Ld" may be used for the word "Limited" 1 If a limited company makes a contract without using the word 'Limited' the directors who make the contract on behalf of the company will be personally liable 2 For the protection of the public the strictest accuracy is to be observed in this respect 3

As to the company's seal, see notes to s 29 and art 76, Table A

74 (1) If a limited company does not paint or affix, and keep painted or affixed, its name in manner directed by this Act, it shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees for not so painting or affixing its name, and for every day during which its name is not so kept painted or affixed, and every officer of the company, who knowingly and wilfully authorises or permits the default, shall be liable to the like penalty.

Penalties for non publication of name

(2) If any officer of a limited company, or any person on its behalf, uses or authorises the use of any seal purporting to be a seal of the company whereon its name is not so engraven as aforesaid, or issues or authorises the issue of any bill-head, letter paper, notice, advertisement or other official publication of the company, or signs or authorises to be signed on behalf of the company any bill of exchange, hundi, promissory note, endorsement, cheque or order for money or goods, or issues or authorises to be issued any bill of parcels, invoice, receipt or letter of credit of the company, wherein its name is not mentioned in manner aforesaid, he shall be liable to a fine not exceeding five hundred rupees, and shall further be personally liable to the holder of any such bill of exchange, hundi, promissory note, cheque or order for money or goods, for the amount thereof, unless the same is duly paid by the company.

Where South Shields Salt Water Baths & Co was described in a bill as the Salt Water Baths Ltd it was held that the directors were personally liable on the bill 4 So it is of great importance to see that the name of the company is fully and correctly written in the bill of exchange, hundi &c Where the directors describe the company by a wrong name on a bill accepted by them on behalf of the company they will be personally liable 5

Sub s (2) The word "holder" in sub sec (2) means in the case of an order for goods the person to whom the order is given 6

75. (1) Where any notice, advertisement or other official publication of a company contains a statement of the amount of the authorised capital of the company, such notice, advertisement or other official publication shall also contain a statement, in an equally prominent position and in equally conspicuous characters, of the amount of the capital which has been subscribed and the amount paid up

(2) Any company which makes default in complying with the requirements of this section and every officer of the company who is knowingly a party to the default shall be liable to a fine not exceeding one thousand rupees

This section is new It is not in the English Act

Meetings and Proceedings

76 (1) A general meeting of every company shall be held within eighteen months from the date of its incorporation and thereafter once at least in every calendar year and not more than fifteen months after the holding of the last preceding general meeting

(2) If default is made in holding a meeting in accordance with the provisions of this section, the company and every director or manager of the company who is knowingly and wilfully a party to the default shall be liable to a fine not exceeding five hundred rupees

(3) If default is made as aforesaid, the Court may, on the application of any member of the company, call or direct the calling of a general meeting of the company

By the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936 this section has been substituted for the original s 76 This brings it into line with s 110 of the English Act of 1929

Compare the amended s 32 In sub s (1) the words eighteen months were substituted by the Select Committee for the words one year in the Bill and the word wilfully was added in sub s (2) Compare the amended ss 32 and 131

The original s 76 was in the following terms

76 (1) A general meeting of every company shall be held once at the least in every year, and not more than fifteen months after the holding of the last preceding general meeting and if not so held the company and every officer of the company who is knowingly a party to the default shall be liable to a fine not exceeding five hundred rupees

(2) When default has been made in holding a meeting of the company in accordance with the provisions of this section the Court may, on the application of any member of the company, call or direct the calling of a general meeting of the company

directors by the articles in the company in general meeting, override such powers of the directors * With all respect to the learned Judge it is submitted that the company cannot do it 1

Where a general meeting is convened with notice to all the shareholders but some of them do not choose to appear they must be held to be bound by the resolutions passed by the majority 2 Where a meeting is called as a meeting of directors all the directors are present and they are the only shareholders in the company the meeting is practically a meeting of shareholders at which resolutions may be passed which would otherwise be invalid under the articles of association 3

A meeting of shareholders cannot by a majority refuse to hear the arguments of the minority, but when such arguments have been heard it is competent for the meeting to apply the closure, i.e., to declare the discussion closed and put the motion to the vote 4

On the well known principle that the Court will not interfere with the internal management of companies, a very strong case must be made out to induce the Court to stop a general meeting of shareholders, especially on an interlocutory motion 5

The proceedings of a general meeting may be declared invalid unless such meeting has been properly convened, properly constituted and properly conducted 6 See articles 49 to 70 of Table A and notes thereto

In the absence of express authority in the articles the directors have no power to postpone a general meeting properly convened 7, but the chairman can on proper grounds adjourn the meeting 8 An adjourned meeting is merely a continuation of the original meeting 9

Where the articles provide that "the chairman with the consent of the meeting may adjourn it," he is not bound to adjourn, even though the majority desire the adjournment 10 But he cannot by leaving the chair before the business is completed, bring the meeting to a close, and if he purports to do so the meeting may elect another chairman and proceed with the business 11 See arts 52 and 54 of Table A and notes thereto

It is the duty of the chairman to preserve order, to conduct proceedings of the meeting regularly and to take care that the sense of the meeting is ascertained with regard to any question before it to be transacted the notice must specify its nature 1 A notice which stated that the object was to adopt new regulations instead of Table A, but did not set out the contents of the new regulations, was held to be good 2 A notice which states that a certain resolution will be passed "with such amendments as shall be determined at the meeting" is a good notice 3 A notice however should show substantially what is proposed to be done, e.g., a notice of a resolution to increase the capital should specify the amount of the proposed increase 4 What is sufficient notice of the general nature of the business proposed to be transacted must be determined from the particular circumstances of each case 1

As a general rule the notice of a general meeting should contain clear information as to what is proposed to be done, for an insufficient notice may invalidate the whole proceeding 5 The terms of any specific resolution to be proposed need not be set out in the notice unless in extraordinary or special resolution is intended to be passed 6 But if something is kept back or concealed it will invalidate the proceedings 7 So a notice to adopt new articles of association which might be seen at the company's office is not sufficient where the new articles increase the directors' remuneration and borrowing power and make other important changes 8 See art. 49 of Table A and notes thereto

If notice to propose a director is required to be given so many days before the day of election and the election takes place at an adjourned meeting the notice is sufficient if given at the specified time before the date of the adjourned meeting 9

Where notice of a meeting has been duly given it cannot be postponed by a subsequent notice 10 A notice to be good must be given by a person having authority to summon the meeting. A resolution passed at a meeting convened by the secretary without the authority of the board is invalid. In such a case the consent of the directors separately given will not cure the defect 11

Notwithstanding a declaration by the chairman the notice of the meeting may be looked at to see if the resolution is in order 12

A company is not corporately assembled unless all the members attend or at any rate they have got notice of the meeting. But a member who is in fact present and has acquiesced in the resolution for a long time cannot subsequently complain of any irregularity in summoning the meeting 13

Where the notice is of a resolution to appoint as directors three persons named in the notice three other names may be added by way of amendment 1 If the chairman improperly refuses to submit an amendment to the meeting the resolution actually carried will be invalidated 2

Resolutions Each resolution must if any member so requires, be put separately to the meeting 3 The poll must also be taken separately 4

A right to vote is property and the Court will interfere to protect a member from being deprived of this right 5 Where an agreement for sale of shares has been made or shares are mortgaged but the vendor or mortgagor's name remains on the register of members he alone can vote but he must do so in accordance with the directions of those entitled to the beneficial interest in the shares 6

A provision in the articles that holders of any class of shares shall not have votes in respect of those shares is good and resolutions passed by those having votes are binding even where they affect the interests of all classes 7 But one class of shareholders may not vote away the rights of another class 8

A shareholder must be present in person or by proxy before he can vote but proxies cannot be used on a show of hands 9 This principle is not overridden by a provision in the articles that if a poll is demanded it shall be taken in such manner and at such time and place as the chairman of the meeting directs 10

When properly stamped a proxy to vote at any ordinary or extraordinary general meeting is valid 11 An adhesive stamp must be cancelled by having the signature of the shareholder written across it or by being otherwise obliterated 12 For stamp on proxy paper see Appendix - 'Stamp Duty'

As to the quorum of a general meeting see art. 51, Table A and notes thereto

On the ground that members have a common interest in the affairs of the company, speeches at a meeting and circulars sent by directors or shareholders to the members are privileged, and in the absence of malice will not support in a tort for libel 13 But newspapers making a report of what passes at a meeting have not a similar privilege, nor may directors or shareholders publish to the world defamatory statements, even though contained in the report of a meeting 14 default in holding the general meeting was a fixed fine of Rs. 1 000 and the Court could not impose a lesser fine when the offence was proved.¹ This has been set right in the present section.

Sub s (2) In dismissing an application for an order directing the calling of a general meeting Buckland J observed that the section was not intended to enable the Court to make an order which would excuse persons responsible for failure to call a general meeting from the consequences of their omission.²

As to general meetings generally see notes to ss 77, 78, 79, 81 and art 43 to 70 of Table A.

77 (1) Every company limited by shares and every company limited by guarantee and having a share capital shall, within a period of not less than one month nor more than six months from the date at which the company is entitled to commence business, hold a general meeting of the members of the company, which shall be called the statutory meeting.

(2) The directors shall, at least twenty-one days before the day on which the meeting is held, forward a report (in this Act referred to as the statutory report) certified as required by this section to every member of the company.

(3) The statutory report shall be certified by not less than two directors of the company or by the chairman of the directors if authorised in this behalf by the directors and shall state—

(a) the total number of shares allotted, distinguishing shares allotted as fully or partly paid up otherwise than in cash, and stating in the case of shares partly paid up the extent to which they are so paid up, and in either case the consideration for which they have been allotted,

(b) the total amount of cash received by the company in respect of all the shares allotted, distinguished as aforesaid,

(c) an abstract of the receipts of the company and of the payments made thereout up to a date within seven days of the date of the report, exhibiting under distinctive headings the receipts of the company from shares and debentures and other sources, the payments made thereout, and particulars concerning the balance remaining in hand, and an account or estimate of the preliminary expenses of the company showing separately any commission or discount paid on the issue or sale of shares,

(d) the names, addresses and descriptions of the directors, auditors, managing agents and managers, if any, and secretary of the company and the changes, if any, which have occurred since the date of the incorporation,

(e) the particulars of any contract, the modification of which is to be submitted to the meeting for its approval, together with the particulars of the modification or proposed modification ;

(f) the extent to which underwriting contracts, if any, have been carried out ,

(g) the arrears, if any, due on calls from directors, managing agents and managers , and

(h) the particulars of any commission or brokerage paid or to be paid in connection with the issue or sale of shares to any director, managing agent or manager or a partner of the managing agent if the managing agent is a firm or if the managing agent is a private company a director thereof.

(4) The statutory report shall, so far as it relates to the shares allotted by the company, and to the cash received in respect of such shares and to the receipts and payments of the company, be certified as correct by the auditors of the company

(5) The directors shall cause a copy of the statutory report certified as required by this section to be delivered to the registrar for registration forthwith after the sending thereof to the members of the company

(6) The directors shall cause a list showing the names, descriptions and addresses of the members of the company, and the number of shares held by them respectively, to be produced at the commencement of the meeting, and to remain open and accessible to any member of the company during the continuance of the meeting

(7) The members of the company present at the meeting shall be at liberty to discuss any matter relating to the formation of the company or arising out of the statutory report, whether previous notice has been given or not, but no resolution of which notice has not been given in accordance with the articles may be passed

(8) The meeting may adjourn from time to time, and at any adjourned meeting any resolution of which notice has been given in accordance with the articles, either before or subsequently to the former meeting, may be passed, and the adjourned meeting shall have the same powers as an original meeting

(9) If a petition is presented to the Court in relation to the company, and if, after the winding up of the company, the directors are in default in filing the statutory report or in holding the statutory meeting, the Court may, instead of directing that the company be round up, give directions for the statutory report to be filed on a meeting to be held, or make such other order as may be just

(10) In the event of any default in complying with the provisions of this section every director of the company who is guilty of or who knowingly and wilfully authorises or permits the default shall be liable to a fine not exceeding five hundred rupees

(11) This section shall not apply to a private company

By the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936 this section has been substituted for the original s 77. It follows generally the lines of s 113 of the English Act of 1900. It extends the obligation to hold a statutory general meeting to all companies having a share capital. In sub s (1) not less than one month has been added. In sub s Amendment (2) twenty one days has been substituted for ten days. In sub s (3) further requirements have been added by clauses (f) (g) and (h) and in cl (d) the managing agents have been included. Provision has also been introduced authorising certification of the statutory report by the chairman of the directors. Under the old section the private companies were exempted only from forwarding and filing the statutory report with the registrar, but under the new section the exemption is extended to all the provisions of this section. The original section 77 was in these terms —

77 (1) Every company limited by shares and registered after the commencement of this Act shall within a period of six months from the date at which the company is entitled to commence business hold a general meeting of the members of the company which shall be called the statutory meeting

(2) The directors shall at least ten days before the day on which the meeting is held forward a report (in this Act called the statutory report) to every member of the company and to every other person entitled under this Act to receive it

(3) The statutory report shall be certified by not less than two directors of the company or where there are less than two directors, by the sole director and shall state—

- (a) the total number of shares allotted distinguishing shares allotted as fully or partly paid up otherwise than in cash and stating in the case of shares partly paid up the extent to which they are so paid up and in either case the consideration for which they have been allotted
- (f) the total amount of cash received by the company in respect of all the shares allotted distinguished as aforesaid,
- (c) an abstract of the receipts of the company whether from its share capital or from debentures and of the payments made thereout up to a date within seven days of the date of the report exhibiting under distinctive headings the receipts of the company from shares and debentures and other sources the payments made thereout and particulars concerning the balance remaining in hand and in account or estimate of the preliminary expenses of the company

(d) the names, addresses and descriptions of the directors, auditors (if any), managers (if any) and secretary of the company ;

(e) the particulars of any contract, the modification of which is to be submitted to the meeting for its approval, together with the particulars of the modification or proposed modification.

(4) The statutory report shall so far as it relates to the shares allotted by the company and to the cash received in respect of such shares and to the receipts and payments of the company on capital account, be certified as correct by the auditors (if any) of the company

(5) The directors shall cause a copy of the statutory report, certified as by this section required, to be filed with the registrar forthwith after the sending thereof to the members of the company

(6) Every director of the company who knowingly and wilfully authorises or permits a default in complying with the provisions of sub-section (2) or sub-section (5) shall be liable to a fine not exceeding twenty rupees for every day during which the default continues

(7) The directors shall cause a list showing the names, descriptions and addresses of the members of the company, and the number of shares held by them respectively, to be produced at the commencement of the meeting and to remain open and accessible to any member of the company during the continuance of the meeting

(8) The members of the company present at the meeting shall be at liberty to discuss any matters relating to the formation of the company, or arising out of the statutory report, whether previous notice has been given or not, but no resolution of which notice has not been given in accordance with the articles may be passed

(9) The meeting may adjourn from time to time, and at any adjourned meeting any resolution of which notice has been given in accordance with the articles either before or subsequently to the former meeting, may be passed, and the adjourned meeting shall have the same powers as an original meeting

(10) If a petition is presented to the Court in manner provided by Part V for winding up the company on the ground of default in filing the statutory report or in holding the statutory meeting the Court may, instead of directing that the company be wound up give directions for the statutory report to be filed or a meeting to be held or make such other order as may be just

(11) The provisions of this section as to the forwarding and filing of the statutory report shall not apply in the case of a private company

The notice convening the meeting should state that it is to be the "statutory meeting." 1

For the circumstances under which a compulsory winding up order may be passed for failing to file the statutory report with the registrar see the section below and s. 162 (1) (a)

78. (1) Notwithstanding anything in the articles, the directors of a company which has a share capital shall, on the requisition of the holders of not less than one-tenth of the issued share capital of the company upon which all calls or other sums then due have been paid, forthwith proceed to call an extraordinary general meeting of the company

nary general meeting on requisition

(2) The requisition must state the objects of the meeting, and must be signed by the requisitionists and deposited at the registered office of the company, and may consist of several documents in like form, each signed by one or more requisitionists

(3) If the directors do not proceed within twenty-one days from the date of the requisition being so deposited to cause a meeting to be called, the requisitionists, or a majority of them in value, may themselves call the meeting, but in either case any meeting so called shall be held within three months from the date of the deposit of the requisition

(4) Any meeting called under this section by the requisitionists shall be called in the same manner, as nearly as possible, as that in which meetings are to be called by directors

(5) Any reasonable expenses incurred by the requisitionists by reason of the failure of the directors duly to convene a meeting shall be repaid to the requisitionists by the company, and any sum so repaid shall be retained by the company out of any sums due or to become due from the company by way of fees or other remuneration for their services to such of the directors as were in default

By the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936 sub s (1) of the original section has been omitted sub s (3) has been re-numbered as sub s (4) and the new sub s (5) has been added. The reason for omission of sub s (4) is that under the new definition a special resolution [vide s 111 (2)] is not required to be confirmed at another meeting. The new sub s (5) reproduces cl (5) of s 114 of the English Act of 1929. It provides for compensation to the requisitionists and a penalty for refusing to hold the meeting. The old clause (1) ran as follows

(4) If at any such meeting a resolution requiring confirmation at another meeting is passed, the directors shall forthwith call a further extraordinary general meeting for the purpose of considering the resolution and if thought fit, of confirming it as a special resolution and if the directors do not call the meeting within seven days from the date of the passing of the first resolution, the requisitionists, or a majority of them in value, may themselves call the meeting

The word 'requisition' in sub s. (2) means requisition signed by the holders of not less than one tenth of the paid up issued capital for the time being. The one tenth referred to is that part of the issued share capital upon which all calls & have been paid and not one tenth of the issued share capital the holders of which one tenth have paid all calls &c 1

The requisition in the case of joint holders of shares must be signed by all the holders 2 It seems that the preference shareholders may join in demanding a meeting although they may not be entitled to vote at the meeting 2

A number of resolutions in the following form were deposited at the registered office of a company. We the undersigned hereby request you to call an extraordinary general meeting of the shareholders for the purpose of considering the reconstruction of the board and resolutions concerning the directorate and officers of the company. Other requisitions were deposited in the same form except that at the end there were added the words 'in addition to the affairs of the company in general'. It was held that these requisitions were in like form and that they sufficiently stated the objects for which the requisitionists desired to have the meeting called 1

The secretary however cannot on receipt of the requisition summon a meeting without the sanction of the board 3

If the directors convene a meeting to consider part only of the specific matters the requisitionists may ignore it and call their own meeting 4

The directors have a duty as well as a right to circularize the members for the purpose of advising them as to the wisdom of any proposed resolution and may use the company's money for this purpose or for procuring proxies in their own favour 5

The notice of an extraordinary general meeting must disclose all facts necessary to enable the shareholder to determine whether he should attend the meeting, and the pecuniary interest of a director in a special resolution to be proposed at the meeting is a material fact for this purpose 6

Sub s. (4) See notes to s. 32 sub s. (4) and s. 76

For other cases see notes to art. 18 Table A

As to general meetings generally see ss. 70 77 79 and 81 and arts. 45 to 70 of table A

79 (1) The following provisions shall have effect with respect to meetings of a company other than a private company not being a subsidiary of a public company and the procedure thereat, notwithstanding any provision made in the articles of the company in this behalf —

(a) a meeting of a company other than a meeting for the passing of a special resolution may be called by not less than seven directors

notice in writing; but with the consent of all the members entitled to receive notice of some particular meeting that meeting may be convened by such shorter notice and in such manner as those members may think fit,

(b) notice of the meeting of a company with a statement of the business to be transacted at the meeting shall be served on every member in the manner in which notices are required to be served by Table A and for the purpose of this clause the expression 'Table A' means that table as for the time being in force, but the accidental omission to give notice to, or the non-receipt of notice by, any member shall not invalidate the proceedings at any meeting,

(c) five members present in person or by proxy, or the chairman of the meeting, or any member or members holding not less than one-tenth of the issued capital which carries voting rights shall be entitled to demand a poll. Provided that in the case of a private company if not more than seven members are personally present, one member, and if more than seven members are personally present, two members shall be entitled to demand a poll,

(d) an instrument appointing a proxy, if in the form set out in regulation 67 of Table A, shall not be questioned on the ground that it fails to comply with any special requirements specified for such instruments by the articles, and

(e) any shareholder whose name is entered in the register of shareholders of the company shall enjoy the same rights and be subject to the same liabilities as all other shareholders of the same class.

(2) The following provisions shall have effect in so far as the articles of the company do not make other provision in that behalf —

(a) two or more members holding not less than one-tenth of the total share capital paid up on, or if the company has not a share capital, not less than five per cent in number of the members of the company may call a meeting,

(b) in the case of a private company two members and in the case of any other company five members personally present shall be a quorum,

(c) any member elected by the members present at a meeting may be chairman thereof;

(d) in the case of a company originally having a share capital, every member shall have one vote in respect of each share or each hundred rupees of stock held by him, and in any other case every member shall have one vote,

(c) on a poll votes may be given either personally or by proxy,

(f) the instrument appointing a proxy shall be in writing under the hand of the appointor or of his attorney duly authorised in writing, or if the appointor is a corporation, either under seal or under the hand of an officer or an attorney duly authorised, and

(g) a proxy must be a member of the company

(3) If for any reason it is impracticable to call a meeting of a company in any manner in which meetings of that company may be called or to conduct the meeting of the company in manner prescribed by the articles in this Act, the Court may, either of its own motion or on the application of any director of the company or of any member of the company who would be entitled to vote at the meeting, order a meeting of the company to be called, held and conducted in such manner as the Court thinks fit, and where any such order is given may give such ancillary or consequential directions as it thinks expedient, and any meeting called, held and conducted in accordance with any such order shall for all purposes be deemed to be a meeting of the company duly called, held and conducted

This section has been substituted for the original 71 by the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936. It is based on s. 115 of the English Act of 1909 but whereas that section allows its provisions being overridden by the articles the amendment makes the provisions of sub s. (1) mandatory of variation. The effect of this new section see Introduction. The old s. 71 was in these terms

71 In default of and subject to any regulations in the articles —

Provisions as to meetings and votes (i) a meeting of a company may be called by fourteen days' notice in writing served on every member in manner in which notices are required to be served by Table A in the First Schedule

(ii) five members may call a meeting

(iii) any person elected by the members present at a meeting may be chairman thereof, and

(iv) every member shall have one vote

When the section comes into operation Sub s. (2) comes into operation when under the existing regulations of a company it is impossible to convene a meeting, so if the articles provide that the power of calling meetings shall be vested in the directors, and there are no directors then any five members under this section can convene a meeting 1

adjournment of the consideration of the resolution or rejection thereof or goes beyond the scope of the subject matter of the resolution, it should be ruled out 11 of last page

At a meeting held under this section every member shall have one vote only But under art 60 of Table A on a show of hands every member present in person shall have one vote and on a poll every member shall have one vote for each share held by him

A point of order objecting to the validity of votes tendered for resolution must be handed to the chairman before he commences to take the poll, also it should be directed to the particular votes It is futile for any member to raise a general objection without indicating the nature of the objection and without any attempt to particularize the votes objected to 11 of last page The chairman may close the doors during the taking of the poll if it is advisable under the circumstances of the case 10 of last page

When the plaintiff disputes the validity of votes recorded in a meeting, he is entitled to inspection of the documents concerned But when such inspection will cause delay and when the plaintiff cannot show that the inspection would yield any result in his favour refusal of inspection is not wrong so far as to merit reversal by the superior Court 2 For other cases relating to general meetings see notes to s 70

A general meeting can be called either by the directors in accordance with the provisions of the articles of association, or by the shareholders on requisition also in accordance with the articles There is only one other way, viz by a direction of the Court Meetings called or held in any other way are not meetings of the company 1

80. A company which is a member of another company may, by resolution of the directors, authorise any of its officials or any other person to act as its representative at any meeting of that other company, and the person so authorised shall be entitled to exercise the same powers on behalf of the company which he represents as if he were an individual shareholder of that other company

A person appointed under this section as a representative can be taken into account in considering whether or not there is a quorum of shareholders present 2 A vote given by such a representative can be properly admitted by the chairman of the meeting on the evidence afforded by a copy of the authorising resolution 3

The power given by this section cannot be exercised by a foreign corporation 4 for the word company means a company formed and registered under this Act or a previous Act of the Indian Legislature 5

81. (1) A resolution shall be an extraordinary resolution when it has been passed by a majority of not less than three-fourths of such members entitled to vote as are present in person or by proxy (where proxies are allowed) at a general meeting of which notice specifying the intention to propose the resolution as an extraordinary resolution has been duly given

(2) A resolution shall be a special resolution when it has been passed by such a majority as is required for the passing of an extraordinary resolution and at a general meeting of which not less than twenty-one days' notice specifying the intention to propose the resolution as a special resolution has been duly given

Provided that, if all the members entitled to attend and vote at any such meeting so agree, a resolution may be proposed and passed as a special resolution at a meeting of which less than twenty-one days' notice has been given

(3) At any meeting at which an extraordinary resolution or a special resolution is submitted to be passed, a declaration of the chairman on a show of hands that the resolution is carried shall, unless a poll is demanded, be conclusive evidence of the fact without proof of the number or proportion of the votes recorded in favour of or against the resolution

(4) At any meeting at which an extraordinary resolution or a special resolution is submitted to be passed, a poll may be demanded

(5) In a case where, if a poll is demanded, it may in accordance with the articles be taken in such manner as the chairman may direct, it may, if the chairman so directs, be taken at the meeting at which it is demanded

(6) When a poll is demanded in accordance with this section, in computing the majority on the poll, reference shall be had to the number of votes to which each member is entitled by the articles of the company or under this Act

(7) For the purposes of this section notice of a meeting shall be deemed to be duly given and the meeting to be duly held when the notice is given and the meeting held in manner provided by the articles or under this Act

Amendment By the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936 the new sub s (2) has been substituted for the old one in sub s (3) and (4) for the words "is submitted to be passed or a special resolution is submitted to be passed or confirmed after the words 'extraordinary resolution' the words in italics have been substituted, in sub s (4) after the words "a poll may be demanded", the words "by three persons for the time being entitled according to the articles to vote unless the articles of the company require a demand by such number of such persons not in any case exceeding five as may be specified in the articles have been omitted and at the end of sub ss (6) and (7) the words in italics have been added. These amendments are on the lines of s 117 of the English Act of 1929. The new sub s (2) abolishes the necessity for the confirmation of a special resolution by a second general meeting but requires 21 days' notice to be given of the meeting at which the special resolution is passed.

The old sub s (2) was as follows—

(2) A resolution shall be a special resolution when it has been—

- (a) passed in manner required for the passing of an extraordinary resolution, and
- (b) confirmed by a majority of such members entitled to vote as are present in person or by proxy (where proxies are allowed) at a subsequent general meeting of which notice has been duly given, and held after an interval of not less than fourteen days, nor more than one month, from the date of the first meeting.

The alterations in sub-ss (3) and (4) have been necessitated by the new definition of special resolution.

A special resolution is necessary for the exercise of the following powers: to change the company's name (s 11 sub s 4), to change the place of its registered office from one province to another or alter its objects as stated in the memorandum of association (s 12), to alter or add to its articles of association (s 20), to re-organize its share capital (s 34), to reduce the share capital in any way (s 35 and s 66), to turn an existing liability on shares into a reserve liability (s 69), to alter the memorandum of association so as to make the liability of the directors or of any director unlimited (s 71), to appoint inspectors to investigate the affairs of the company (s 142), to initiate on its own account a winding up by the Court (s 102 cl (1)), to wind up voluntarily (s 201 cl (2)), to confer authority on the liquidator in a voluntary winding up to enter into any arrangement with a transferee company (s 208C) and to alter the form of constitution of a company registered under Part VIII by substituting a memorandum and articles for a deed of settlement (s 267).

A company which had not the power by its articles to reduce its capital could take the power by passing a special resolution and could exercise the power at the second meeting for confirming the resolution.¹ But a confirmatory meeting is no longer necessary.

An extraordinary resolution is necessary for the following purposes: to remove a director (s 86), to wind up voluntarily when the company cannot by reason of its liabilities continue its business (s 203 sub s (1)), to sanction an arrangement between a company and its creditors (s 21) and to sanction certain acts to be done by the liquidator in a voluntary winding up (s 212).

A special resolution passed in conformity with the provisions of this section will be a valid one even though the articles of the company contain further requirements which have not been complied with.² It should be remembered that under the old sub s (2) there must be an interval of not less than held in a recent case ¹ that the chairman's declaration on a show of hands is conclusive and the minutes of the meeting are not admissible to prove the contrary.

At common law and where the taking of a poll is not governed by statute or special rule the chairman is the proper authority to fix the time and place for the taking of a poll and a poll is properly and correctly taken immediately after the termination of the meeting ². The same rule applies to meetings of registered companies unless the articles prescribe some other procedure.

The object of a poll is to ascertain the true sense of the meeting and it is not to give the absent members a further opportunity of voting unless a contrary intention is expressly or impliedly to be gathered from the articles of association. There is no presumption for construing a doubtful article in the latter sense ³.

The chairman must not declare that the poll shall be taken in any way inconsistent with the articles e.g. by voting papers because personal attendance of the voter or his proxy is necessary ⁴. When the poll is taken each person voting signs a paper 'for or against the resolution and proxies are counted ⁵.

If after rightful demand of a poll the poll is not taken the resolution becomes void ⁶. A poll is a mere enlargement of the meeting at which it is demanded ⁷. If there are several resolutions before the meeting they must not be put en bloc; each resolution must be put separately ⁸.

(1) is not in the English Act.

Where an extraordinary resolution is proposed to be passed the notice of the general meeting must not merely indicate but must actually specify the intention to pass the resolution as an extraordinary resolution ⁹ and the exact resolution must be set out in the notice ¹⁰. But reasonable amendments within the scope of the notice are permissible.

In the case of a special resolution the notice must state that it will be a special resolution ¹¹. The notice must give sufficiently full and frank disclosure of the facts and the effect of the resolution. If that is not done the resolution is inoperative and not binding upon the company ¹².

So that the two meetings required for passing a special resolution under the old sub s (2) might be convened by one notice the articles of many companies provided as follows — Whenever it is intended to pass a special resolution the two meetings may be convened by one and the same notice and it shall be no objection that the notice only convenes the second meeting, continuously on the resolution being passed by the requisite majority at the first meeting. In such a case one notice convening the two meetings was valid 1 But a conditional notice was bad 2 The notice might however state that the second meeting would be held in any case unless notice to the contrary was given 3

A notice of two meetings to consider serialim two alternative resolutions (one at each meeting) was not rendered invalid where there was an express provision that the second meeting would be held in the event of the first resolution not being passed at the first meeting 4

At the first meeting amendments within the notice might be made, but the resolution confirmed at the second meeting must be in the same form as that passed at the first meeting. Clause (a) of old sub section (2) referred only to the passing of the resolution and not to the calling together of the meeting for the purpose of passing it.

It is competent for all shareholders acting together to waive the formalities required by this section as to notice of intention to propose a resolution as an extraordinary resolution? A company however cannot by an ordinary resolution or by conduct make good an invalid special resolution nor is it an objection to an action by a single shareholder to say that the company ought to be plaintiff on the ground that it can ratify the resolution for this is not the case.⁸

Sub s (3) Where a meeting held for the purpose of confirming a special resolution was adjourned for bona fide reasons to a date more than a month from the date of the meeting at which the extraordinary resolution was passed and the resolution was confirmed at the adjourned meeting it was a valid special resolution, for an adjourned meeting is a continuation of the previous meeting.

Notice by advertisement In the case of notice by advertisement the date on which the advertisement appears is the date from which the days are to be counted 10 The date on which the notice is given is excluded 11

Save and except in the matter of notice it is stated in sub s (7) this section seems to be self contained as regards proceedings of the general meetings, and independent of any regulations in the table A or other articles of association, but is subject to the provisions of the new s 79 For the provisions for notice of meeting see the new s 79 (1) (a) & (b)

82. (1) A copy of every special and extraordinary resolution shall, within fifteen days from the passing thereof, be printed or type-written and duly certified under the signature of an officer of the company and filed with the registrar who shall record the same

Registration and copies of special and extraordinary resolutions

(2) Where articles have been registered, a copy of every special resolution for the time being in force shall be embodied in or annexed to every copy of the articles issued after the date of the resolution

(3) Where articles have not been registered, a copy of every special resolution shall be forwarded in print to any member, at his request, on payment of one rupee or such less sum as the company may direct

(4) If a company makes default in so filing with the registrar a copy of a special or extraordinary resolution, it shall be liable to a fine not exceeding twenty rupees for every day during which the default continues

(5) If a company makes default in embodying in or annexing to a copy of its articles or in forwarding in print to a member when required by this section, a copy of a special resolution, it shall be liable to a fine not exceeding ten rupees for each copy in respect of which default is made

(6) Every officer of a company who knowingly and wilfully authorises or permits any default by the company in complying with the requirements of this section shall be liable to the like penalty as is imposed by this section on the company for that default

By the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936 in sub s (1) for the words the confirmation of the special resolution or the passing of the extraordinary resolution, as the case may be after the words fifteen days from the words the passing thereof have been substituted and after the word "typewritten" the words in italics have been inserted

In registering the alteration of articles under this section the registrar has a discretion similar to that which he has under s 22 in registering the memorandum and articles of association

Registrar's powers

So where a company by altering its articles of association proposes to carry on a business which amounts to a different one the registrar can refuse to register such alteration. It is better to stop it at the threshold rather than to allow it to proceed on the lines and then wind it up as an illegal company after several persons have put their money into the scheme

Minutes of proceedings of meetings and directors

83 (1) Every company shall cause minutes of all proceedings of general meetings and of its directors to be entered in books kept for that purpose

(2) Any such minute, if purporting to be signed by the chairman of the meeting at which the proceedings were had, or by the chairman of the next succeeding meeting, shall be evidence of the proceedings

(3) Until the contrary is proved, every general meeting of the company or meeting of directors in respect of the proceedings whereof minutes have been so made shall be deemed to have been duly called and held, and all proceedings had thereat to have been duly had, and all appointments of directors or liquidators shall be deemed to be valid.

(4) The books containing the minutes of proceedings of any general meeting of a company held after the commencement of the Indian Companies (Amendment) Act, 1936, shall be kept at the registered office of the company and shall during business hours (subject to such reasonable restrictions as the company may by its articles or in general meeting impose so that no less than two hours in each day be allowed for inspection) be open to the inspection of any member without charge

(5) Any member shall at any time after seven days from the meeting be entitled to be furnished within seven days after he has made a request in that behalf to the company with a copy of any minutes referred to in sub-section (4) at a charge not exceeding six annas for every hundred words

(6) If any inspection required under sub-section (4) of this section is refused or if any copy required under sub-section (5) of this section is not furnished within the time specified in sub-section (5) the company and every officer of the company who is knowingly and wilfully in default shall be liable in respect of each offence to a fine not exceeding twenty-five rupees and to a further fine to twenty-five rupees for every day during which the default continues

(7) In the case of any such refusal or default, the Court may by order compel an immediate inspection of the books in respect of all proceedings of general meetings or direct that the copies required shall be sent to the persons requiring them"

Sub ss (4) (5) and (6) have been added by the Companies (Amendment) Act, 1936. They reproduce the provisions of s 121 of the English Act of 1929. As to their effect see Introduction except those that fall directly within the scope of the company's business. But if an agent does in fact within the scope of his authority, it binds the principal even if the motive was wrongful and the act was done with a view to his private advantage provided the other party has no knowledge of the wrong.²

The duty of the secretary is to file, certify, transfer and receiving and registering notices on behalf of the company. But where the same man is the secretary to two companies knowledge required by him for one company is not notice to the other.

A secretary is such as has no authority to bind the company by contract or to make representations as to the company's affairs so as to induce people to take shares⁴ or to register a transfer until it is passed by the company's directors⁵. He can certify a transfer but if he does so fraudulently the company will not be liable⁶. If a secretary give untrue answers to inquiries for his own private ends the company will not be liable⁷. A secretary is a mere servant, his position is that he is to do what he is told and no person can assume that he has any authority to make representations binding on the company, nor can any one assume that statements made by him are necessarily to be accepted as trustworthy without further inquiry any more than in the case of a merchant it can be assumed that one who is only a clerk has authority to make representations to induce persons to enter into contracts⁸.

A secretary, unless authorised by the board of directors cannot convene a general meeting, ⁹ or strike a name off the register of members ¹⁰ An act done by the secretary after mentioning the matter to some of the directors but without any express approval of the directors and without a board meeting being held to consider the question will not be considered the act of the directors ¹¹

A secretary who has in fact acted as a manager is liable for negligence in preparing balance sheets and accounts whereby he has caused dividend to be paid out of capital 12

A secretary will be liable for misfeasance if he receives an improper commission ■ but he will not be personally liable for misapplication of the company's funds though he may have been aware of it 14

notice is a matter within the power of the company and the secretary cannot treat it as void.

A secretary may be paid out of profits by contract.

If the secretary having plenary powers under the articles to enter into a mortgage on behalf of the company think it advisable to take direct sanction of the directors but does not disclose to them their interest to the mortgage which he is bound to disclose he cannot afterwards take shelter in the fact that he could himself have sanctioned the mortgage.

*Directors.

83A. (1) Every company shall have at least three directors.

Directors obligatory (2) This section shall not apply to a private company except a private company being a subsidiary company or a public company.

* This heading and sections 83A and 83B were inserted by s. 2 of Act XI of 1914 sub s. (1) has been substituted for the original sub s. (1) and the words in italics have been added to sub s. (2) by the Companies (Amendment) Act 1930. The original sub s. (1) was as follows:

(1) Every company registered after the commencement of this Act shall have at least two directors.

Under the previous Acts it was not obligatory upon a company to have directors.

The number, appointment, powers and duties and the proceedings of the meetings of directors are regulated by the company's articles of association and where the articles are not registered by table A in the First Schedule of the Act. The section does not set any limit to the maximum number of directors of a company. The articles usually provide that until otherwise determined by a general meeting the number of directors shall not be less than six nor more than six or nine. In such cases it is open to the shareholders to vary the number of directors without altering the article itself.

The true position of directors seems to be that of agents for the company with powers and duties of carrying on the whole of its business subject to the restrictions imposed by the articles and the statutory provisions. But they are not agents for the shareholders.

Coxen Hardy L.J. observed: I do not think it true to say that the directors are agents. I think it more nearly true to say that they are in the position of managing partners appointed to fill that post by a mutual arrangement between all the shareholders' 1. Upon a careful consideration it will appear that the directors are strictly speaking neither agents nor trustees for the company 2

The company is bound by contracts made by the directors acting within the scope of their authority even if they are influenced by some improper motive or intention to derive profit for themselves 3. The remedy of the company in such a case is against the directors 4. If they act outside their powers but within those of the company the shareholders may ratify the action by an ordinary resolution 5. It has been held that where an agent accepts or endorses a bill or note per pro the taker is bound to inquire as to the extent of the agent's authority but where the agent has such authority his abuse of it does not affect a bona fide holder for value 6.

Persons dealing with a company are deemed to have notice of such limitation of the powers of the directors or of the company as are contained in the memorandum or the articles of association 7. So they cannot rely upon ignorance of the limitations 8. A person dealing with the directors must take the articles of association to be such as appear at the office of the registrar of companies 9.

Directors are not trustees for third parties who have made contracts with the company 10. They are however trustees for the company of their power of approving, in fact issuing and allotting shares and making calls 11. But the directors are not trustees in the strict sense of the term as observed by Lord Justice James 12. A trustee is a man who is the owner of property and deals with it as principal as owner and as master subject only to an equitable obligation to account to some persons to whom he stands in the relation of trustee and who are his cestui que trust. The same person may fill the office of director and also be trustee having property but that is rare exception and casual circumstance. The office of a director is that of a paid servant of the company. A director never enters into a contract for himself but for his principal that is for the company of which he is a director and for whom he is acting. He cannot sue on such contracts nor be sued on them (unless he exceeds his authority). This seems to me to be the broad distinction between trustees and directors 12.

Generally speaking a director stands in a fiduciary position to the company 14, and cannot retain a profit made by him 1, but the constitution of the company may permit him to do so 2 and even to override the wishes of the majority of the shareholders 3 In any event he can exercise his individual rights as a corporator 4 Directors are not trustees for individual shareholders and in the absence of unfair dealing may buy shares from or sell shares to the members without giving them information relating to the prospects of the company known to them but not to the members 5 If there is any misrepresentation in acquiring the shares or options over them the directors may be trustees of the profit they make in the transaction 6 Directors who so use their powers as to obtain benefits for themselves at the expense of the other shareholders without informing them of the facts cannot be allowed to retain those benefits and must account for them to the company 7 In the matter of disposal of shares the directors are merely trustees for the company and if they dispose of the shares at a premium they are liable to account to the company for the profits with interest They will not be allowed to retain the profits even on the ground of the acquiescence of the shareholders to be inferred from the presumed knowledge of the share book 8 But directors are not trustees in whom the property of the company has become vested in trust for any specific purpose within the meaning of s 10 of the Limitation Act 9

If the directors act outside their powers but within those of the company the members can ratify and make such act valid 10 But if they act ultra vires the company the members cannot ratify or acquiesce in such act 11 articles being a contract between the members inter se 12 When a company has delegated its powers and duties to directors and there is a deadlock which prevents the directors fulfilling their duties the company can then act 13

A company cannot take the control of its affairs out of the hands of the directors and give powers to a committee except in the manner provided in the articles so if there be no power to remove directors the company will have to wait until the articles are altered or the obnoxious directors retire in due course 14 A company is an entity' observed Lord Justice Green in a recent case distinct alike from its shareholders and its directors Some of its powers may according to its articles be exercised by directors certain other powers may be reserved for the shareholders in general meeting If powers of management are vested in the directors they and they alone can exercise these powers The only way in which the general body of shareholders can control the exercise of the powers vested by the articles declare that the fees are to be divided among the directors in such proportions as they shall determine, no director can sue for his fees until the directors have determined the proportion 1 The continuing directors may determine that a retiring director shall not receive any part of the remuneration 2 When the remuneration is by a percentage of profit it does not include a share of the profits made on the sale of the whole business of the company 3 but it will include profits which exist in specie even though not converted into cash until after liquidation 4 The sale of the bulk of the company's properties so that the directors' duties are greatly reduced does not disentitle them to their full remuneration 5

Where the articles are silent a general meeting may vote the directors' remuneration which is in the nature of a gratuity 6 This cannot however be done after the company has gone into liquidation 7 But where remuneration is allowed it may be proved as a debt on winding up in competition with the ordinary creditors 8

Where one of the objects of a company is to promote other companies a director is not entitled to claim any remuneration for performing any duties in connection with the promotion of a new company over and above what has been fixed as his remuneration by the articles 9 A resolution passed by the directors while the company is a going concern to forego or postpone their fees will be binding 5 A company cannot ratify the payment by directors of remuneration in excess of that allowed by the articles without first altering the articles or passing a special resolution 10 Directors cannot pay the remuneration on their remuneration out of the company's assets 10

If not authorized by the articles the directors cannot vote themselves remuneration or make present to themselves or to one of their body, out of the company's funds 11

Subject to the provisions in the articles a director can resign his office 12 and the resignation takes effect from the date on which notice is given which cannot be withdrawn without the consent of the company even though no acceptance has taken place 12 A company cannot be compelled to employ a director against his will 13 The remedy lies in damages for breach of contract if there be any 13 A director who is unsatisfactory may be removed by the company, but the power of removal is governed entirely by the articles and s 86C 14.

gave an undertaking in writing expressed to be made jointly and severally' for payment of salary to an employee of the company followed by the signature of the director as managing director, there was no remedy under the contract against him personally 1

1 A director can compromise an action in the interest of the company although the action may be ill founded 2 Directors cannot by a contract deprive themselves of the power Directors' to control a manager so as to confer powers on him to the exclusion of powers and themselves 3 But if they have power of delegation a stranger may assume liabilities that it has been properly exercised 4, and this applies to persons having apparent though not actual authority 5 Actual or constructive notice of the irregularity will however deprive the party dealing with the company of this protection 6

Where shareholders know that their directors have been exceeding their legal powers and take no steps in the matter, but allow the things done to remain unimpeached for years they must be taken to have retrospectively sanctioned what has been done 7 But a company is not bound by acts ultra vires of its directors unless such acts have been expressly ratified by all the shareholders or unless all with knowledge or notice have acquiesced in what has been done 8

A director is liable for misapplication of the company's money though it has not gone into his pocket But he has the protection of s 201 in case if the act is ultra vires, but done in good faith 9 Directors are not liable for fraud or misconduct (e.g. issuing fraudulent prospectus) of their co-directors or other persons employed by the company 10 unless they have expressly or tacitly permitted its commission 10

Where it is provided in the articles of association that the directors shall not be liable for 'wilful default' they must be shown to have known that they were doing wrong 11 A director is entitled to rely on his subordinates doing their duty in the absence of any ground for suspicion, and is not liable if the company sustains damage owing to the fraud and neglect of such subordinates 12

Where a director purchased property without a mandate from the company and under such circumstances as did not make him a trustee thereof for the company, and thereafter resold the same to the company at a profit it was held that whether or not the company was entitled to a rescission of the contract of resale it was not entitled to affirm it and at the same time to treat the director as trustee of the profits made 13

A Civil Court can grant an injunction on the application of a director restraining his co directors from wrongfully excluding him from acting as a director 1

As the shareholders leave all the business of the company in the hands of the directors it is highly incumbent on them that they act without raising the slightest suspicion of dishonesty 2

The manner in which the work of a company is to be distributed between the board of directors and the staff is a business matter to be decided on business lines The larger the business carried on by the company the more numerous and the more important the matters, they must of necessity be left to the managers the accountants and the rest of the staff 3

In ascertaining the duties of a director it is necessary to consider the nature of the company's business and the manner in which the work of the company is, reasonably in the circumstances and consistently with the articles distributed between the directors and the other officials of the company In discharging those duties a director (a) must act honestly (b) must exercise such degree of skill and diligence as would amount to the reasonable care which an ordinary man might be expected to take in the circumstances on his own behalf But (c) he need not exhibit in the performance of his duties a greater degree of skill than what can reasonably be expected from a person of his knowledge and experience in other words, he is not liable for mere errors of judgment He is (d) not bound to give continuous attention to the affairs of his company his duties are of an intermittent nature to be performed at periods of board meetings and at meetings of any committee to which he is appointed and though not bound to attend all such meetings he ought to attend them when reasonably able to do so, and (e) in respect of all duties which having regard to the exigencies of business and the articles of association may properly be left to some other official, he is in the absence of suspicious grounds justified in trusting that official to perform such duties honestly 4

A director who signs a cheque that appears to be drawn for a legitimate purpose is not responsible for seeing that the money is in fact required for that purpose or that the cheque comes before him for signature in the regular way, having regard to the usual practice of the company A director must of necessity trust the officials of the company to perform properly and honestly the duties allocated to them 4

Before any director signs a cheque or parts with a cheque signed by him he should satisfy himself that a resolution has been passed by the board or committee of the board authorizing the signature of the cheque, and where a cheque has to be signed between meetings he should obtain the confirmation of the board subsequently 4

The authority given to the board or committee should not be for the signing of numerous cheques to an aggregate amount, but a proper list of the individual cheques mentioning the price and the amount of each should be read out at the board or committee meetings and subsequently transcribed into the minutes of the meeting 5

It is the duty of each director to see that the company's moneys are, from time to time in a proper state of investment except so far as the articles of association may justify him in delegating that duty to others 1

Before presenting the annual report and balance sheet to the shareholders and before recommending a dividend directors should have a complete and detailed list of the company's assets and investments prepared for their own use and information and ought not to be satisfied as to the value of the company's assets merely by the assurance of their chairman however apparently distinguished and honourable, nor with the expression of belief of their auditors however competent or trustworthy 1

It is not the duty of a big insurance company to supervise personally the safe custody of the securities of the company. It would be impracticable on every purchase of securities for actual delivery thereof to be made to the directors or on every sale for the delivery to the brokers of the securities sold to wait a meeting of the board or a committee of directors. The duty of seeing that the securities are in safe custody must of necessity be left to some official of the company in daily attendance at the office of the company such as the manager, accountant or secretary 1

A director is not responsible for declaring a dividend unwisely. He is liable if he pays it out of capital but the onus of proving that he has done so lies upon the person who alleges it 1

The directors cannot be made liable for an infringement of patent by the company merely by reason of their position as directors even in a case where they are the sole directors and shareholders of the infringing company 2

An indemnity clause in the articles such as the directors or auditors shall not be answerable for any loss damage & unless they shall happen by or through their own wilful neglect or default saves them from a misfeasance summons 3

A director is not in the position of a trustee of his shares for the general body of shareholders and under ordinary circumstances he may deal with them as freely as any other shareholder provided he does not part with his qualification. But he is a trustee of making calls for the general body of shareholders and must not use it for his own benefit without regard to their interests 4

An outsider dealing with a company cannot be compelled to search the register and find for himself whether a person who was permitted to act as a director for any length of time was also its director de jure 5

The articles of association though not themselves a contract between the company and the director, must be regarded as showing the terms upon which on the one hand he agrees to act as a director and on the other hand the company agrees to pay him remuneration for his services 6. But the articles do not constitute a contract with the vendor 7

One company may be a director or manager of another company 8. A director

ment By the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936 in cl (u) of sub s (1) For the words 'a company limited by guarantee and' after the words 'in the case of' the word 'companies' has been substituted and the words in italics have been inserted, and in sub ss (2) and (3) also the words in italics have been inserted. For the effect of the amendments see Introduction

This section applies to companies which invite the public to take shares, and probably does not apply to a prospectus sent to the existing shareholders only 1

The result of non compliance of sub sec (1) is not stated. Probably the appointment is void and the person responsible is liable in damages

The shares to be taken by a director need not be paid for in cash. Any honest payment in money's worth is a good payment 2. A person who acts as a director is sometimes deemed to have agreed to take his qualification shares 3

In the corresponding section (s 140) of the English Act of 1929 the following do not occur in cl (u) "save in the case of a company limited by guarantee and not having a share capital"

Shares taken as a qualification need not be taken from the company, unless the director is named in the articles 1 It is enough if they are taken in the open market or from a friend They even need not be shares for which the qualifying director has paid 2 Even beneficial ownership is not necessary 3 The registered holder of the shares, though he has transferred them to another is eligible 3 Shares taken as a present from the promoters is a breach of trust 4 and the director must account to the company for the amount 5, but he is nevertheless qualified 6 The bearer of a share warrant may be a member, if the articles so provide but he shall not be qualified 7

The holding of shares as one of several joint holders constitutes a good qualification unless the articles require a sole holding 9 If the holding of shares is a condition precedent the election of an unqualified director is void and he may by acting incur liabilities 10 But where it is not a condition precedent, he may act before he acquires the qualification shares 11 The ceasing to hold the qualification shares involves a vacation of office 12

Holding qualification shares in trust for promoters If a director accepts and holds the necessary shares in trust for the promoters he will be liable to pay up the amount of his qualification 13 It is a misfeasance for the directors to hold such shares, as this puts them entirely at the mercy of the promoters The measure of damages in such cases will be the highest value of the shares during their holding 13

The qualification must be obtained within two months after the appointment 14

Not qualified before registration Where transfers to the directors of their qualification shares were passed at a board meeting and they were forthwith elected as directors though the transfers were actually registered on a subsequent date it was held by Astbury J that before their appointment the transferees had acquired an absolute right to registration but they were not qualified persons before actual registration and their appointment as directors was invalid 15

Increase of qualification If after a director has acquired his qualification shares the qualification is increased he does not vacate office for not acquiring it 16 A director acting without acquiring his qualification shares is however entitled to the remuneration prescribed in the articles 17

it is not open to a shareholder or any other person to challenge the appointment of such a director 1

When a defect has been discovered subsequent acts are not valid 2 The section may however validate acts of the director not only as between the company and the outsiders but as between the company and the members or between the members inter se 3 While it validates the director's acts it does not entitle him to the remuneration attached to the office 4

It has been recently held by the Lahore High Court that a director invalidly appointed cannot in the absence of a provision in the articles bind the shareholders unless the defect is unknown at the time 5

86A (1) If any person being an undischarged insolvent acts as director or managing agent or manager of any company, he shall be liable to imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years or to a fine not exceeding one thousand rupees or to both

Ineligibility of bankrupt to act as director

(2) In this section the expression "company" includes a company incorporated outside British India which has an established place of business within British India

86B If in the case of any company provision is made by the articles or by any agreement entered into between any person and the company for empowering a director or manager of the company to assign his office as such to another person, any assignment of office made in pursuance of the said provision shall, notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained in the said provision, be of no effect unless and until it is approved by a special resolution of the company

Assignment of office of directors

Provided that the exercise by a director of a power to appoint an alternate or substitute director to act for him during an absence of not less than three months from the district in which meetings of the directors are ordinarily held, if done with the approval of the board of directors, shall not be deemed to be an assignment of office within the meaning of this section

Provided always that any such alternate or substitute director shall ipso facto vacate office if and when the appointor returns to the district in which meetings of the directors are ordinarily held

Explanation — For the purposes of the provisions to this section, the presidency-towns of Calcutta and Madras shall be deemed to be part of the 24-Parganas and Chingliput districts, respectively, and the presidency-town of Bombay shall be deemed to be part of the Bombay Suburban and the Thana districts

86C Save as provided in this section, any provision, whether contained in the articles of a company or in any contract with a company or otherwise, for exempting any director, manager or officer of the company or any person (whether an officer of the company or not) employed by the company as auditor from or indemnifying him against any liability which by virtue of any rule of law would otherwise attach to him in respect of any negligence, default, breach of duty or breach of trust of which he may be guilty in relation to the company shall be void

Provided that—

(a) in relation to any such provision which is in force at the date of the commencement of the Indian Companies (Amendment) Act, 1936, this section shall have effect only on the expiration of a period of six months from that date, and

(b) nothing in this section shall operate to deprive any person of any exemption or right to be indemnified in respect of anything done or omitted to be done by him while any such provision was in force and

(c) notwithstanding anything in this section, a company may, in pursuance of any such provision as aforesaid, indemnify any such director, manager, officer or auditor against any liability incurred by him in defending any proceedings, whether civil or criminal, in which judgment is given in his favour or in which he is acquitted, or in connection with any application under section 281 of this Act in which relief is granted to him by the Court

86 D (1) No company shall make any loan or guarantee any

5 In sub section (1) of section 86D of the said Act for the words 'or to a private company of which such director is a director' the words 'or to a private company of which such director is a member or director' shall be substituted

it is not open to a shareholder or any other person to challenge the appointment of such a director 1

When a defect has been discovered subsequent acts are not valid 2 The section may however validate acts of the director not only as between the company and the outsiders but as between the company and the members or between the members inter se 3 While it validates the director's acts it does not entitle him to the remuneration attached to the office 4

It has been recently held by the Lahore High Court that a director invalidly appointed cannot in the absence of a provision in the articles bind the shareholder unless the defect is unknown at the time 5

86A (1) If any person being an undischarged insolvent acts as director or managing agent or manager of any company, he shall be liable to imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years or to a fine not exceeding one thousand rupees or to both

86C. Save as provided in this section, a provision, whether contained in the articles of a company or in its charter, with a company or otherwise, for exempting any director, manager or officer of the company or any person (whether an officer of the company or not) employed by the company as auditor from indemnifying him against any liability which by virtue of any rule of law would otherwise attach to him in respect of any negligence, default, breach of duty or breach of trust of which he may be guilty in relation to the company shall be void.

Provided that—

(a) in relation to any such provision which is in force at the date of the commencement of the Indian Companies (Amendment) Act, 1936, this section shall have effect only on the expiration of a period of six months from that date, and

(b) nothing in this section shall operate to deprive any person of any exemption or right to be indemnified in respect of anything done or omitted to be done by him while any such provision was in force, and

(c) notwithstanding anything in this section, a company may, in pursuance of any such provision as aforesaid, indemnify any such director, manager, officer or auditor against any liability incurred by him in defending any proceedings, whether civil or criminal, in which judgment is given in his favour or in which he is acquitted, or in connection with any application under section 281 of this Act in which relief is granted to him by the Court.

86 D (1) No company shall make any loan or guarantee any loan made to a director of the company or to a firm of which such director is a partner or to a private company of which such director is a director.

(2) In the event of any contravention of sub-section (1) any director of the company who is a party to such contravention shall be punishable with fine which may extend to five hundred rupees, and if default is made in repayment of the loan or in discharging the guarantee shall be liable jointly and severally for the amount unpaid.

(3) This section shall not apply to a private company (except a private company which is the subsidiary company of a public company) or to a banking company.

86 I. (1) The office of a director shall be vacated if—company in a joint meeting accepts, under the company other than that of a managing director in manner, or a legal or technical adviser or a banker, or

(f) he absents himself from three consecutive meetings of the directors or from all meetings of the directors for a continuous period of three months whichever is the longer without leave of absence from the board of directors, or

(g) he in any form of which he is a partner in any private company of which he is a director accepts a loan or guarantee from the company in contravention of section 86 D, or

(h) he acts in contravention of section 86F.

(2) Nothing contained in this section shall be deemed to preclude a company from providing by its articles that the office of director shall be vacated on grounds additional to those specified in this section.

Sections 86A to 86I are new and have been inserted by the Companies (Amendment) Act, 1936 for the better control of directors. § 86A follows § 142 of the English Act of 1929. Section 86B follows § 151 of the said Act in controlling the practice of directors assigning their responsibilities. § 86C follows § 152 of the said English Act. § 86D prohibits the making of loans &c., to directors. § 86E prevents directors from holding office of profit under the company. § 86F requires sanction of the directors for a director entering into certain contracts. § 86G provides for the removal of directors. § 86H puts restrictions on powers of directors and § 86I includes in the Act provision for vacation of office by directors instead of leaving these matters to be provided for in the articles.

In cl (a) sub-s (1) of § 86I the word "sub-section (1) of section 81" appear to be a mistake, for sub-s (1) of § 81 does not specify the time limit whereas sub-s (1) of § 85 does it.

For the effects of these new sections, see, §§ 86A to 86I see Introduction

Register of directors managers and managing

87 (1) Every company shall keep at its registered office a register of its directors, managers and managing agents containing with respect to each of them the following particulars, that is to say —

(a) in the case of an individual, his present name in full, any former name or surname in full, his usual residential address, his nationality and, if that nationality is not the nationality of origin, his nationality of origin and his business occupation, if any, and if he holds any other directorship or directorships the particulars of such directorship or directorships,

(b) in the case of a corporation, its corporate name and its principal office, and the full name, address and nationality of each of its directors, and

(c) in the case of a firm, the full name, address and nationality of each partner, and the date on which each became a partner.

(2) The company shall within the periods respectively mentioned in this sub-section send to the registrar a return in the prescribed form containing the particulars specified in the said register and a notification in the prescribed form of any change among its directors, managers or managing agents or in any of the particulars contained in the register.

The period within which the said return is to be sent shall be a period of fourteen days from the appointment of the first directors of the company and the period within which the said notification of a change is to be sent shall be fourteen days from the happening thereof.

(3) The register to be kept under this section shall during business hours (subject to such reasonable restrictions as the company may by its articles or in general meeting impose, so that not less than two hours in each day be allowed for inspection) be open to the inspection of any member of the company without charge and of any other person on payment of one rupee or such less sum as the company may impose for each inspection.

(4) If any inspection required under this section is refused or if default is made in complying with sub-section (1) or sub-section (2) of this section, the company and every officer of the company who is knowingly and wilfully in default shall be liable to a fine of fifty rupees.

(5) In the case of any such refusal, the Court on application made by the person to whom inspection has been refused and upon

notice to the company may by order direct an immediate inspection of the registers

By the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936 this section has been substituted for the original s 87. It follows the provisions of s 141 of the English Act of 1929. As to the effect of this new section see Introduction. The old s 87 was as follows

87 (1) Every company shall keep at its registered office a register containing the names and addresses and the occupations of its directors and file with the registrar a copy thereof, and from time to time file with the registrar notice of any change among its directors or managers

(2) If default is made in complying with this section, the company shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees for every day during which the default continues and every officer of the company, who knowingly and wilfully authorises or permits the default, shall be liable to the like penalty

Although sub s (1) of the old s 87 contained such vague expression as from time to time the period of 30 days prescribed in form XXVI App A of the Act was not meant to supplement it and was not mandatory hence no offence was committed if a company failed to file notice of the change among directors within 30 days from the date of occurrence 1 The company was entitled to the time until a new director had been appointed 2 But now a definite time limit has been fixed by sub s (2)

Unless a person is in charge of the entire business of a company he cannot be deemed to be the manager thereof A person in charge of a branch bank therefore does not come within the purview of the term manager as used in this section 3

Outsiders are not affected with notice of all that is contained in the register of directors kept under this section 4 Notwithstanding the provisions of this section the appointment of a director still remains part of the internal management of the company and outsiders are not bound to search the register for ascertaining whether a person acting as a director for a certain length of time is also a director de jure 4

For form of the register see Form No XXVI App A

directors
• anagers and managing

87 (1) Every company shall keep at its registered office a register of its directors, managers and managing agents containing with respect to each of them the following particulars, that is to say —

(a) in the case of an individual, his present name in full, any former name or surname in full, his usual residential address, his nationality and, if that nationality is not the nationality of origin, his nationality of origin and his business occupation, if any, and if he holds any other directorship or directorships the particulars of such directorship or directorships,

(1) in the case of a corporation, its corporate name and its principal office, and the full name, address and nationality of each of its directors, and

(i) in the case of a firm, the full name, address and nationality of each partner, and the date on which each became a partner

(2) The company shall within the periods respectively mentioned in this sub-section send to the registrar a return in the prescribed form containing the particulars specified in the said register and a notification in the prescribed form of any change among its directors, managers or managing agents or in any of the particulars contained in the register

The period within which the said return is to be sent shall be a period of fourteen days from the appointment of the first directors of the company and the period within which the said notification of a change is to be sent shall be fourteen days from the happening thereof

(3) The register to be kept under this section shall during business hours (subject to such reasonable restrictions as the company may by its articles or in general meeting impose, so that not less than two hours in each day be allowed for inspection) be open to the inspection of any member of the company without charge and of any other person on payment of one rupee or such less sum as the company may impose for each inspection

(4) If any inspection required under this section is refused or if default is made in complying with sub-section (1) or sub-section (2) of this section, the company and every officer of the company who is knowingly and wilfully in default shall be liable to a fine of fifty rupees

notice to the company may by order direct an immediate inspection of the registers.

By the Companies (Amendment) Act 1931 this section has been substituted for the original s 8. It follows the provisions of s 141 of the English Act of 1929. As to the effect of this new section see Introduction. The old s 87 was as follows:

87 (1) Every company shall keep at its registered office a register containing the names and addresses and the occupations of its directors and file with the registrar a copy thereof, and from time to time file with the registrar notice of any change among its directors or managers.

(2) If default is made in complying with this section the company shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees for every day during which the default continues, and every officer of the company, who knowingly and wilfully authorises or permits the default, shall be liable to the like penalty.

Although sub s (1) of the old s 87 contained such vague expression as 'from time to time' the period of 30 days prescribed in Form XXVI App A of the Act was not meant to supplement it and was not mandatory hence no offence was committed if a company failed to file notice of the change among directors within 30 days from the date of occurrence ¹ The company was entitled to the time until a new director had been appointed ² But now a definite time limit has been fixed by sub s (2).

Unless a person is in charge of the entire business of a company, he cannot be deemed to be the manager thereof. A person in charge of a branch bank therefore does not come within the purview of the term manager as used in this section ³.

Outsiders are not affected with notice of all that is contained in the register of directors kept under this section ⁴. Notwithstanding the provisions of this section the appointment of a director still remains part of the interior management of the company and outsiders are not bound to search the register for ascertaining whether a person acting as a director for some length of time is also a director de jure ⁴.

For form of the register see Form No XXVI App A.

Managing Agent.

87A. (1) No managing agent shall, after the commencement of the Indian Companies (Amendment) Act, 1936, be appointed to hold office for a term of more than twenty years at a time.

(2) Notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained in the articles of a company or in any agreement with the company a managing agent of a company appointed before the commencement of the Indian Companies (Amendment) Act, 1936, shall not continue to hold office after the expiry of twenty years from the commencement of the said Act unless then reappointed thereto or unless he has been reappointed thereto before the expiry of the said twenty years.

(3) A managing agent whose office is terminated by virtue of the provisions of sub-section (2) shall upon such termination be entitled to a charge upon the assets of the company by way of indemnity for all liabilities or obligations properly incurred by the managing agent on behalf of the company subject to existing charges and encumbrances, if any.

(4) The termination of the office of a managing agent by virtue of the provisions of sub-section (2) shall not take effect until all moneys payable to the managing agent for loans made to or remuneration due up to the date of such termination from the company are paid.

(5) Nothing in this section shall apply to a private company which is not the subsidiary company of a public company.

Conditions applicable to managing

57B Notwithstanding anything to the contrary contained in the articles of the company or in any agreement with the company—

(a) a company may, by resolution passed at a general meeting of which notice has been given to the managing agent in the same manner as to members of the company, remove a managing agent if he is convicted of an offence in relation to the affairs of the company punishable under the Indian Penal Code, and being under the provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, non-bailable, and for the purposes of this clause, where the managing agent is a firm or company an offence committed by a member of such firm or a director of or an officer holding a general power of attorney from such company shall be deemed to be an offence committed by such firm or company.

Provided that a managing agent shall not be liable to be removed under the provisions hereof if the offending member, director or officer as aforesaid is expelled or dismissed by the managing agent within thirty days from the date of his conviction or if his conviction is set aside on appeal.

(b) the office of a managing agent shall be vacated if he is adjudged insolvent.

(c) a transfer of his office by a managing agent shall be void unless approved by the company in general meeting.

Provided that in the case of a managing agent's firm a change in the partners thereof shall not be deemed to operate as a transfer of the office of managing agent, so long as one of the original partners shall continue to be a partner of the managing agent's firm. For the purpose of this proviso "original partners" shall mean, in the case of managing agents appointed before the commencement of the Indian Companies (Amendment) Act, 1936, partners who were partners at the date of the commencement of the said Act, and in the case of managing agents appointed after the commencement of the said Act, partners who were partners at the date of the appointment.

(d) a charge or assignment of his remuneration or any part thereof effected by a managing agent shall be void as against the company.

(e) if a company is wound up either by the Court or voluntarily, any contract of management made with a managing agent shall be thereupon determined without prejudice, however, to the right of the managing agent to recover any moneys recoverable by the managing agent from the company. Provided that where the Court finds that the winding up is due to the negligence or default of the managing agent himself the managing agent shall not be entitled to receive any compensation for the premature termination of his contract of management, and

(f) the appointment of a managing agent, the removal of a managing agent and any variation of a managing agent's contract of management made after the commencement of the Indian Companies (Amendment) Act, 1936, shall not be valid unless approved by the company by a resolution at a general meeting of the company notwithstanding anything to the contrary in section 86L.

Provided that nothing herein contained shall apply to the appointment of a company's first managing agent made prior to the issue of the prospectus or statement in lieu of prospectus where the terms of the appointment of such managing agent are there set forth.

87C (1) Where any company appoints a managing agent after the commencement of the Indian Companies (Amendment) Act, 1936, the remuneration of the managing agent shall be a sum based on a fixed percentage of the net annual profits of the company, with provision for a minimum payment in the case of absence of or inadequacy of profits, together with an office allowance to be defined in the agreement of management

(2) Any stipulation for remuneration additional to or in any other form than the remuneration specified in sub section (1) shall not be binding on the company unless sanctioned by a special resolution of the company

(3) For the purposes of this section 'net profits' means the profits of the company calculated after allowing for all the usual profits for reserve or any other special fund

(4) This section shall not apply to a private company except a private company which is the subsidiary company of a public company or to any company whose principal business is the business of insurance

87D (1) No company shall make to a managing agent of the company or to any partner of the firm, if the managing agent is a firm, or to any director of the private company, if the managing agent is a private company, any loan out of moneys of the company or guarantee any loan made to a managing agent

(2) Nothing contained in this section shall apply to any credit held by a managing agent in a current account maintained subject to limits previously approved by the board of directors by the company with the managing agent for the purposes of the company's business

(3) In the event of any contravention of sub-section (1) any director of the company who is a party to the making of the loan or giving of the guarantee shall be punishable with fine which may extend to five hundred rupees, and if default is made in repayment of the loan or discharging the guarantee shall be liable jointly and severally for the amount unpaid

(4) Nothing in this section shall apply to a private company except a private company which is the subsidiary company of a public company

(5) Except with the consent of three-fourths of the directors present and entitled to vote on the resolution, a managing agent of the company, or the firm of which he is a partner, or any partner of such firm, or, if the managing agent is a private company, a member or director thereof, shall not enter into any contract for the sale, purchase or supply of goods and materials with the company, provided that nothing herein contained shall affect any such contract for such sale, purchase or supply entered into before the commencement of the Indian Companies (Amendment) Act, 1936

87E (1) No company incorporated under this Act after the commencement of the Indian Companies (Amendment) Act, 1936, which is under the management of a managing agent shall make any loan to or guarantee any loan made to any company under management by the same managing agent, and no company shall after the expiry of six months from the commencement of the said Act except by way of renewal of an existing loan or guarantee given make any loan to or guarantee any loan made to any such company

Provided that nothing herein contained shall apply to loans made or guarantees given by a company to or on behalf of a company under its own management or loans made by or to a company to or by a subsidiary company thereof or to guarantees given by a company on behalf of a subsidiary company thereof

(2) In the event of any contravention of the provisions of this section, any director or officer of the company making the loan or giving the guarantee who is knowingly and wilfully in default shall be liable to a fine not exceeding one thousand rupees and shall be jointly and severally liable for any loss incurred by the company in respect of such loan or guarantee

87 F. A company other than an investment company, that is to say, a company whose principal business is the acquisition and holding of shares, stocks, debentures or other securities, shall not purchase shares or debentures of any company under management by the same managing agent, unless the purchase has been previously approved by a unanimous decision of the board of directors of the purchasing company.

87G A managing agent shall not exercise in respect of a company of which he is a managing agent a power to issue debentures or, except with the authority of the directors, and within the limits fixed by them, a power to invest the funds of the company, and any delegation of any such power by a company to a managing agent shall be void

Managing agent not to engage in business competing with the business of managing company

87H A managing agent shall not on his own account engage in any business which is of the same nature as and directly competes with the business carried on by a company under his management or by a subsidiary company of such company

Limit on number of directors appointed by managing agent

87I Notwithstanding anything contained in the articles of a company other than a private company the directors, if any, appointed by the managing agent shall not exceed in number one-third of the whole number of directors

Sections 87A to 87I have been inserted by the Companies (Amendment) Act, 1938 for the purpose of controlling the appointments, powers and actions of the managing agents. For a discussion of these new provisions see Introduction

88. (1) Contracts on behalf of a company may be made as follows (that is to say) —

Form of contracts

(i) any contract which, if made between private persons would be by law required to be in writing, signed by the parties to be charged therewith, may be made on behalf of the company in writing signed by any person acting under its authority, express or implied, and may in the same manner be varied or discharged,

(ii) any contract which, if made between private persons, would by law be valid although made by parol only and not reduced into writing, may be made by parol on behalf of the company by any person acting under its authority, express or implied, and may in the same manner be varied or discharged

(2) All contracts made according to this section shall be effectual in law, and shall bind the company and its successors and all other parties thereto, their heirs, or legal representatives, as the case may be

A company which has appointed a manager of its business is bound by contracts made by him in the usual course of business although sufficient powers have not been delegated to him. Where goods are supplied to the orders of unauthorized persons the company is liable if the goods are received and

Contracts made by manager

used for the purposes of its trade (see last case) Where in a suit to enforce a contract entered into by the managing agent the plaintiff joins both the managing agent and the principal only one of them can be held liable, but if the agent stands alone as agent for an undisclosed principal both would be liable 1

But as regards tort the position is different In a sense every tort is ultra vires, for no corporation is formed for the purpose of committing wrongs, but a company is not thereby exempted from liability ex delicto It is liable for torts such as for instance malicious prosecution libel or fraudulent misrepresentation committed by its agents although no express command or privity of the company is proved It may sometimes be liable for the acts of its liquidators 2

A trading or commercial company but not a literary or scientific society, has an implied power to borrow and to mortgage or charge all or any part of its property 3 and the contract need not be under seal 4 Any other company may also borrow if so authorized by its memorandum 5 If there is no power to borrow a loan is irrecoverable as a debt and any security given for the debt is void 6 But where the lender is a company without power to lend and the borrower is a company without power to borrow the latter by borrowing is a party to a breach of trust and the money lent is recoverable 6

A payment which is ultra vires is a breach of trust and the directors or other persons making the payment are liable to make good the money 7 An overdraft at a company's bankers is a loan 8

Where the borrowing powers of a company are limited any security given for any amount lent to the company beyond the limit is void even though the limit is subsequently increased 9 Where the borrowing powers of directors are limited to a certain amount they cannot borrow beyond that amount so as to bind the company 9 If however the borrowing is not in excess of the powers of the company, it may be ratified by the company in a general meeting 10 by an ordinary resolution 11

It may be generally stated that a contract ultra vires the company is wholly void and cannot be enforced 12 and a contract not ultra vires the company but ultra vires the directors may be ratified by the shareholders 13 In England a contract made before the incorporation of the company by some person professing to act on its behalf cannot be ratified by the company after incorporation 1 The Indian law is different (see notes to s 23) There is nothing, however, to prevent the company from entering into a new contract to carry into effect the terms of the pre incorporation contract 2 Mere acting on the old contract does not make it binding on the company 3 not taking benefit under the same 4 A public company cannot make a binding contract until it is entitled to commence business complying with the provisions of s 103

If the directors appoint a manager or other official he may be given authority by some resolution of the board or by an instrument under the company's seal 5 The mere appointment of a manager under a power for that purpose will only operate as a delegation to such manager of the ordinary commercial business of the company 6

This section enables a company as a general rule to make a contract without affixing the company's common seal thereto as was the case under the English Act and was the case under the Indian Act of 1882 s 67 Contract may be made without seal If a document under seal is not necessary then a mere defect in the manner of affixing the seal will not render the document invalid 7

As to the seal see notes to s 29 and art 76 of Table A

If an agent of a company other than a private company enters into a contract in which the company is the undisclosed principal he must make a memorandum in writing of the terms of the contract and other particulars and file it in the office of the company and the said memorandum shall be laid before the directors at the next board meeting 8 Where company is undisclosed principal

Once the rights of parties dealing with a company have become fixed by a contract the company cannot by a resolution subsequently passed by it alter those rights 9

There is no ground in law for saying that where a written contract has been made which required a written notice on either side before it could be terminated it cannot be terminated by word of mouth by mutual agreement between the parties, and it makes no difference if the contract of service is one between a company and its directors 10 Termination of contract

89 A bill of exchange, hund or promissory note shall be deemed to have been made, drawn, accepted or endorsed on behalf of a company if made, drawn, accepted or endorsed in the name of, or by or on behalf of or on account of, the company by any person acting under its authority, express or implied

Whether a company can make accept indorse or issue bills of exchange promissory notes and other negotiable instruments depends on its objects as stated in the memorandum of association It cannot do any such thing unless it has express or implied power under the memorandum 1 Where the memorandum of association stated that one of the objects of the company was to make promissory notes and in the articles power was given to the managing agents to make contracts and sign receipts on behalf of the company it was held that the managing agent had no power to make promissory notes on behalf of the company and that the company was not liable on such notes 2

In the case of a trading company there is an implied power to borrow 3 and accept and issue bills and notes, and there are other commercial concerns which may also have an implied power 4, but a railway company cannot accept or indorse bills of exchange 4

The question as to the liability of a company on a particular endorsement on a bill is in every case one of construction If on the true construction the bill or note is that of the company, it will be liable upon the bill, and not the individuals whose names appear on it On the other hand if on the true construction the bill or note is not the bill or note of the company, the persons whose names are on it will be liable whether they intended to be so or not 5 It is of the utmost importance that the name of a person or firm to be charged upon a negotiable instrument should be clearly stated on the face or back of the document so that the responsibility is made plain and can be instantly recognized 6 In order to make the company liable on a bill or note it must appear on the face of such bill or note that it was intended to be drawn accepted or made on behalf of the company 7

Where the endorsement was "M & Sons Managing Agents of L A Co Ltd", it was held by Sander on C J and Rankin J, that it would not necessarily be clear to any one that the responsibility of L A Co Ltd. was involved, and that L A Co Ltd. was not therefore liable 5 The words "managing director" or "director" may be

Where an agent accepts or indorses per pro the taker of the bill or note so accepted or indorsed is bound to inquire as to the extent of the agent's authority 4 Where the agent has such authority his abuse of it does not affect a bona fide purchaser for value 4

If the company is liable on a bill its authorized agents are not personally liable, although using words apparently sufficient for that purpose such as I promise or we promise 5 provided that the signatures are expressed to be on behalf of a principal or in a representative capacity 6 Words describing them as being officers of the company may not themselves exempt them from the liability 7, but where the name of the signatory appears as a director or managing director he is not personally liable 5 Directors are however personally liable on a bill which does not state the name of the company correctly 8

If the managing director could have been authorized under the articles to draw and accept a bill of exchange a holder in due course is entitled to assume that he had authority and the holder is not bound to inquire into the internal management of the company or to prove an actual authority 9

In a suit by the holders of a bill of exchange in due course it was recently held following Houghton & Co v Aitard Loue & Wills (supra) that as it did not appear that the plaintiffs knew of the existence of the power of delegation contained in the defendant's articles of association they were not entitled to rely upon its supposed exercise 11 It was further held that the bills of exchange were forgeries and therefore applying Luben v Great Fingall Consolidated 12 it was held that the plaintiffs could not in any event invoke the principle that they would not be bound to enquire into the indoor management of the defendant company

By the Companies (Amendment) Act, 1936, the words in italics have been substituted for the words "not situate in British India"

91. (1) A company whose objects require or comprise the transaction of business beyond the limits of British India may, if authorised by its articles, have for use in any territory, district or place not situate in British India, an official seal, which shall be a facsimile of the common seal of the company, with the addition on its face of the name of every territory, district or place where it is to be used.

(2) A company having such an official seal may, by writing under its common seal, authorise any person appointed for the purpose in any territory, district or place not situate in British India to affix the same to any deed or other document to which the company is party in that territory, district or place.

(3) The authority of any such agent shall, as between the company and any person dealing with the agent, continue during the period (if any) mentioned in the instrument conferring the authority, or if no period is there mentioned, then until notice of the revocation or determination of the agent's authority has been given to the person dealing with him.

(4) The person affixing any such official seal shall, by writing under his hand, on the deed or other document to which

Disclosure of interest by director Provided that a general notice that a director is a director or a member of any specified company or is a member of any specified firm, and is to be regarded as interested in any subsequent transaction with such firm or company, shall as regards any such transaction be sufficient disclosure within the meaning of this sub-section and after such general notice, it shall not be necessary to give any special notice relating to any particular transaction with such firm or company.

(2) Every director who contravenes the provisions of sub-section (1) shall be liable to a fine not exceeding one thousand rupees

(3) A register shall be kept by the company in which shall be entered particulars of all contracts or arrangements to which sub-section (1) applies, and which shall be open to inspection by any member of the company at the registered office of the company during business hours

(4) Every officer of the company who knowingly and wilfully acts in contravention of the provisions of sub-section (3) shall be liable to a fine not exceeding five hundred rupees

Amendment By the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936 in sub s (1) the words in italics have been substituted for the words 'member of any specified firm or company' after the words 'a director is'. By the same Act the new sub sections (3) and (4) have been added. For the effect of the amendments see Introduction

Principle This as well as ss 91 B 91 C and 91 D did not occur in the English Act of 1908. They were introduced by the amending Act No 11 of 1914. These sections are founded upon the principle that a director is precluded from dealing on behalf of the company with himself and from entering into engagements in which he has a personal interest conflicting or which possibly may conflict with the interest of those whom he is bound by fiduciary duty to protect, and this rule is as applicable to the case of one of several directors as to a managing or sole director 1 A director is in a fiduciary position towards the company and if he makes any profit on account of transactions of business when he is acting for the company, he must account for them to the company 2 So if acting for himself he proposes to the company a contract from the execution of which he will derive a profit, that profit belongs to the company 2

The liability of a director* observed Lord Blanesburgh in a recent case, 'in respect of profits made by him from a contract in which his company is also concerned is one thing his liability if any there be, in respect of his profits from a contract in which the company has no interest at all is quite another In the first case, unless by the company's regulations the director is permitted subject to or without conditions to retain his profit, he must account for it to the company In the second case the company has no concern in his profit and cannot make him accountable for it unless it appears—this is the essential qualification—that in earning that profit he has made use either of the property of the company or of some confidential information, which has come to him as a director of the company" 3

The interest which a director is bound to disclose is any interest which conflicts with his duty to the company Whether the interest is of such a nature or not must be a question of fact in each case and decided on a reference to the wording of each statute 4 The interest requiring disclosure is not only a pecuniary interest but every relation which can reasonably be regarded as capable of affecting the directors' decision 4 Where the real nature of the interest is known to all the directors, there is no necessity to make a formal disclosure 4

Where the articles declared that if a director had any interest in a contract proposed for acceptance by the company, he should declare his interest or his place as director should be vacated and that having declared it he should not vote on the proposal it was held first, that the expression 'declare his interest' meant declare the nature of his interest 5 and that the words were not satisfied by a mere declaration that he had an interest in the matter, and secondly that the vacating of the seat would not prevent the contract itself from being treated as one made for the benefit of the company, for the rule of equity would apply to such a case in addition to the penalty specially mentioned by the articles 2

If the words are 'if he is concerned in any contract the director will be disqualified even though he could not make any profit out of the contract 6

Unless and so far as authorized by the articles the board cannot make a finding contract with any other company in which a member of the quorum holds shares 7 This rule applies whether the shares are held in trust or beneficially If the second company has notice of the irregularity the first company may obtain rescission of the transaction even after completion provided that rescission is still possible 7

Nature of interest

Rule of equity will also apply

Directors holding shares in any other company

Where vendors become directors they usually enter into agreements to manage for a term of years and agree not to trade in competition with the company. If the company wrongfully discharges such a manager either directly or by going into liquidation he is freed from his covenant and may at once start a competing business 1

Modern articles usually authorize directors to make contracts in which they are personally interested on disclosing their interest to their fellow directors. Such a clause is valid under the English law but the terms must be strictly complied with 2 and the disclosure must be to directors who are independent and not to other directors who are equally interested in the contract in question 3

A Breach of the provisions of ss 91 A 91 B and 91 C by which a director is bound to disclose any interest he has personally in a transaction that the company is entering into does not ipso facto render the transaction void 4

91B. (1) No director shall, as a director, vote on any contract or arrangement in which he is either directly or indirectly concerned or interested nor shall his presence count for the purpose of forming a quorum at the time of any such vote and if he does so vote his vote shall not be counted :

Provided that the directors or any of them may vote on any contract of indemnity against any loss which they or any one or more of them may suffer by reason of becoming or being sureties or surety for the company

(2) Every director who contravenes the provisions of subsection (1) shall be liable to a fine not exceeding one thousand rupees

(3) This section shall not apply to a private company

Provided that where a private company is a subsidiary company of a public company, this section shall apply to all contracts or arrangements made on behalf of the subsidiary company with any person other than the holding company

By the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936 the words in italics have been inserted in sub s (1) and the new proviso in italics have been added to sub s (3) for the effect of these amendments see Introduction

Unless especially authorized by the articles, directors cannot make contracts with the company either on their own behalf or on behalf of any company or firm without the sanction of the company in general meeting 1 This does not necessarily prevent them from voting on the same question at a meeting of shareholders 2 They cannot even issue debentures to themselves as security for money advanced 3 or allot shares to themselves 4

Where the directors vote in favour of a resolution allotting shares to themselves and other persons such a resolution is bad so far as it relates to any allotment to the directors voting in respect thereof and an interlocutory injunction will be granted restraining such directors from exercising voting powers in respect of the shares so allotted to them but the resolution as a whole is not bad and the allotments to persons other than directors are valid 5 Voting by an interested director for a transaction in which he is interested will not per se render the contract either void or voidable But non-disclosure or voting when but for the vote the contract would not have been sanctioned will in all cases render the interested director liable to account for secret profits 6

In a charge of non-disclosure by a director of his interest in a particular contract or transaction the pleading must not only include allegation of existence of such interest but also the fact or allegation of non-disclosure or in other words the breach of the obligation 7

No director is entitled to join in forming a quorum for the consideration of matters in respect of which he is not entitled to vote 8

If two directors are interested in a transaction the objection will not be removed by splitting up the resolution and each director voting only on the part affecting the other 9 A resolution reducing the quorum for the purpose of enabling those not interested to pass the resolution is invalid 9

A resolution authorizing the issue of debentures in which the directors are personally interested is a nullity but the company may be stopped by circumstances from alleging the invalidity of the debentures 10

Articles under Act VI of 1882 Although this section and the previous one impose a penalty articles adopted under the Act of 1882 though unamended after the passing of the present Act are not rendered ultra vires nor the contract void thereby 11

Disclosure of interest Non-disclosure of the interest of a director or voting by him will not per se render the contract voidable but will render the interested director liable to account for secret profits 11

Where the interest of a director in the contract is such that it is likely to produce a conflict between his duty to the company and his duty or interest in the other party to the contract he is bound to disclose it but if the whole body of the directors was already aware of such interest formal disclosure is not necessary 1

The principle of the English law as to internal management applies to a case of disability of directors arising under this section The reason for the rule is that it would be disastrous in a business community if contracts made with companies would be impeached on account of matters known to the company but not known to the other contracting party 2

Sub s (3) A previous conviction under this section for voting on an arrangement in which the director was directly or indirectly concerned does not debar a subsequent trial and conviction for criminal breach of trust on the same set of facts, on the principle of in re Jain Contract is no alternative charge could be framed in the proceedings under the Companies Act 3

91C (1) Where a company enters into a contract for the appointment of a manager or managing agent of the company in which contract any director of the company is directly or indirectly concerned or interested, or varies any such existing contract, the company shall within twenty-one days from the date of entering into the contract or the varying of the contract send an abstract of the terms of such contract or variation, as the case may be, together with a memorandum clearly indicating the nature of the interest of the director in such contract, or in such variation, to every member, and the contract shall be open to the inspection of any member at the registered office of the company

(2) If a company makes default in complying with the requirements of sub-section (1), it shall be liable to a fine not exceeding one thousand rupees, and every officer of the company who knowingly and wilfully authorises or permits the default shall be liable to the like penalty

The appointment by the directors of one of their body as chairman or as managing director without remuneration is not a contract within the meaning of this section being merely a delegation of power, but where a resolution is passed at a board meeting that one of the directors be appointed managing director at a remuneration and that director is present and accepts the appointment, there is a contract between the

(2) Every such manager or other agent shall forthwith deliver the memorandum aforesaid to the company and send copies to the directors, and such memorandum shall be filed in the office of the company and laid before the directors at the next directors' meeting

(3) If any such manager or other agent makes default in complying with the requirements of this section—

- (a) the contract shall, at the option of the company, be void as against the company, and its publication, and no such prospectus shall be issued until a copy thereof has been so filed for registration.

(3) The registrar shall not register any prospectus unless it is dated, and the copy thereof signed, in manner required by this section.

(4) Every prospectus shall state on the face of it that a copy has been filed for registration as required by this section.

(5) If a prospectus is issued without a copy thereof being so filed, the company, and every person who is knowingly a party to the issue of the prospectus, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees for every day from the date of the issue of the prospectus until a copy thereof is so filed.

For the definition of "prospectus" in every part of this section the Court must go back to s 2 (14). To hold that a prospectus is a prospectus only if it conforms to the terms of s 93 would mean that in regard to s 92 the penalty for failure to file the prospectus could be avoided by allowing it to lack any of the requisites laid down by s 93 1

A circular placed in the hands of friends of the proposed directors, even to the number of forty and intended to be shown to their friends, has been held to be not an invitation to the public 2. It has also been held that printing of 200 copies of a prospectus and circulation thereof by the directors and promoters among their friends is not such an invitation 3. It has however been held that an offer to a limited class may be an offer to the public 4. A proof prospectus circulated before incorporation may not amount to an issue of the prospectus 5.

In this connection the observations of their Lordships in Nash v. Lynde 6 are interesting. "In my judgment it is sufficient in order to bring s 81 (s 92 of the Indian Act) into operation that the prospectus in question should be proved to have been shown to any person as a member of the public and as an invitation to that person to take some of the shares referred to in the prospectus on the terms therein set out" 7.

Lord Sumner however observed: "Though literally it is true that the issue is not expressly said in the section to be an issue to the public, I think that it must be so in substance, otherwise any private letter, written by a person engaged in forming a company and advising his correspondent to take shares, would become an issued prospectus if other letters were issued by him asking others to do the same" 8. Then again: "The point is that the offer is such as to be open to any one who brings his money and applies in due form, whether the prospectus was addressed to him on behalf of the company or not" 8. In the present case" observed Lord Sumner, "all that constituted the issue was that one of the directors in the course of a general conversation had money was furnished with some copies of these type-written documents and gave one of them to a friend who as requested passed it on to a friend of his own. I cannot believe that any one in business would call this the issue of a prospectus.

Lord Buckmaster made the following observations on this point: "The first thing necessary to notice is that s. 81 [s. 93 of the Indian Act] contains no reference of any issue to the public. It is sufficient that the prospectus should be issued. The question of what does or does not amount to an issue is a question of fact in each case and is not capable of a rigid and exact definition, but in my opinion it certainly does not necessarily involve a general application impartially made to all members of the public. A distribution of a prospectus among a well defined class of the public would be an issue within the meaning of s. 81."

Then again: "A prospectus the distribution of which was so limited would none the less be issued and this is the meaning of the statute. I think made plain by considering that sub s. 7 of s. 81 [sub s. 3 of s. 93 of the Indian Act] excludes from the application of the section a circular inviting existing members of a company to subscribe for shares. This would be unnecessary if an issue to such limited class were not prima facie included. The definition gives rise to greater difficulty. A document is not prospectus unless it is an invitation to the public but if it satisfied this condition it is not the less a prospectus because it is issued to a defined class of the public."

In the case of a reconstruction shares issued to the members of the old company are not in the same position as shares issued to the public. The circular offering them would appear not to be a prospectus within the meaning of this section.

In a prospectus no mis statement or concealment of any material fact or circumstance is allowed. A prospectus may be false in "material particulars" within the meaning of s. 8 of the English Larceny Act 1861, if by a number of statements a false impression with regard to the financial position of a company is intentionally conveyed, although each statement taken by itself is true.

In respect of the liability incurred by a person for issuing a prospectus, the remedies open to an allottee of shares are: (1) rescission of the contract to take shares, (2) defence of misrepresentation or fraud to an action for call, (3) rectification of the register of members and consequential relief, (4) damages in an action of deceit, (5) damages under the statutory provisions, and (6) criminal proceedings.

A person who has been misled by misrepresentation and whose shares have been forfeited for non-payment of calls ceases to be a shareholder. As a debtor to the company he stands on a different footing and may repudiate the contract and defend an action for calls on the ground of fraud.

1 "A prospectus is a document which is issued to the public for the purpose of inducing them to subscribe for shares in a company."

G.A. on appeal [1876] 38 L.T.
Rex v Lord Kylsant [1922] 1 K.R. 419 [Lord Halsbury's observations in Aaron's Reefs v. Twiss (1896) A.C. 273 at p. 274 were relied on]
Aaron's Reefs v. Twiss [1896] A.C. 273

The contract to take shares may be rescinded on the ground of misrepresentation made by the company's directors or agents acting within the scope of their authority 1. but not by unauthorized persons making promises purporting to be made on its behalf 2.

After proceedings for rescission have commenced forfeiture of the shares for non-payment of calls will be restrained until trial, on the plaintiff giving an undertaking as to damages and paying the amount of calls with interest into the Court 3.

A person may combine in the same action his claim for rescission and damages for deceit or compensation under the Act 4 against the directors and other persons 5. Where a prospectus contains a false representation as to a matter of fact made in order to induce a person to act thereon, and acting on such representation he sustains damage, it may be recovered from the directors or promoters who authorized the issue of the prospectus 6. The false statement must be as to a matter of fact and not of law 7. But a statement as to something expected to happen in the future is generally a matter of opinion 7. The plaintiff must prove that the defendant was responsible for the prospectus 8. If the false statement is made in the honest belief that it is true, it is not fraudulent and does not give ground for an action of deceit 9, but see s. 100 and notes.

A shareholder cannot retain his shares and bring an action for damages against the company 10. He must show that he has repudiated the shares and has not acted as a shareholder after discovering the misrepresentation 11. The right of rescission is lost by delay in repudiating the shares within a reasonable time as well as by the commencement of winding up 12.

The plaintiff must prove actual damage to himself 13 and the measure of damage is the difference between what the shareholder paid for the shares and what they were worth when the shares were allotted to him 14.

The right of action for deceit survives to the personal representatives of the aggrieved person 15. The compensation should be estimated with reference to the loss sustained and does not resemble a penalty 16.

A director is not liable in respect of false representations in a prospectus issued by his co-directors or any other agent of the company unless he has

- (e) the number and amount of shares and debentures which within the two preceding years have been issued, or agreed to be issued, as fully or partly paid up otherwise than in cash, and in the latter case the extent to which they are so paid up, and in either case the consideration for which those shares or debentures have been issued or agreed to be issued, and
- (ee) where any issue of shares or debentures is underwritten, the names of the underwriter, and the opinion of the directors that the resources of the underwriters are sufficient to discharge the underwriting obligations, and
- (f) the names and addresses of the vendors of any property purchased or acquired by the company, or proposed so to be purchased or acquired, which is to be paid for wholly or partly out of the proceeds of the issue offered for subscription by the prospectus, or the purchase or acquisition of which has not been completed at the date of issue of the prospectus, and the amount payable in cash, shares or debentures to the vendor, and where there is more than one separate vendor or the company is a sub-purchaser, the amount so payable to each vendor. Provided that where the vendors or any of them are a firm, the members of the firm shall not be treated as separate vendors, and
- (ff) where any property referred to in clause (f) has within the two years preceding the issue of the prospectus been transferred by sale, the amount paid by the purchaser at each such transfer so far as the information is available and, where any such property is a business, the profits accruing from such business during each of the three years immediately preceding the issue of the prospectus or during each year of the existence of the business if less than three years so far as the information is available. A balance sheet of the business concerned made up to a date not more than ninety days before the date of the issue of the prospectus shall be appended to the prospectus, and
- (g) the amount (if any) paid or payable as purchase-money in cash, shares or debentures, for any such property as aforesaid, specifying the amount (if any) payable for goodwill, and

- (h) the amount (if any) paid within the two preceding years or payable, as commission for subscribing or agreeing to subscribe, or procuring or agreeing to procure subscriptions, for any shares in, or debentures of, the company, or as discount in respect of shares issued showing separately the amount, if any, so paid to the managing agents. Provided that it shall not be necessary to state the commission payable to sub-underwriters, and
- (i) the amount or estimated amount of preliminary expenses, and
- (j) the amount paid within the two preceding years or intended to be paid to any promoter, and the consideration for any such payment, and
- (k) the dates of, and parties to, every material contract including contracts relating to the acquisition of property to which clause (f) applies, and a reasonable time and place at which any material contract or a copy thereof may be inspected: Provided that this requirement shall not apply to a contract entered into in the ordinary course of the business carried on or intended to be carried on by the company, or to any contract (except a contract appointing or firing the remuneration of a managing director or managing agent) entered into more than two years before the date of issue of the prospectus; and
- (m) the names and addresses of the auditors (if any) of the company; and
- (n) full particulars of the nature and extent of the interest (if any) of every director in the promotion of, or in the property proposed to be acquired by, the company, or, where the interest of such a director consists in being a partner in a firm, the nature and extent of the interest of the firm, with a statement of all sums paid or agreed to be paid to him or to the firm in cash or shares or otherwise by any person either to induce him to become, or to qualify him as, a director, or otherwise for services rendered by him or by the firm in connection with the promotion or formation of the company; and

- (o) where the company is a company having shares of more than one class, the right of voting at meetings of the company conferred by and the rights in respect of capital and dividends attached to the several classes of shares respectively, and
- (p) where the articles of the company impose any restrictions upon the members of the company in respect of the right to attend, speak or vote at meetings of the company or of the right to transfer shares, or upon the directors of the company in respect of their powers of management, the nature and extent of those restrictions

(11) Where the prospectus is issued by a company which has been carrying on business prior to the issue thereof, the prospectus shall set out the following reports in addition to the matters referred to in sub-section (1), namely —

- (i) a report by the auditors of the company with respect to the profits of the company including its subsidiary companies, if any, so far as the information is available in each of the three financial years immediately preceding the issue of the prospectus and with respect to the rates of the dividends, if any, paid by the company on each class of shares in the company for each of the said three years giving particulars of each such class of shares on which such dividends have been paid and the source from which the dividends have been paid and particulars of the cases in which no dividends have been paid on any class of shares for any of those years, and if no accounts have been made up for any part of a period of three years ending on a date three months before the issue of the prospectus, containing a statement of that fact,
- (ii) if the proceeds or any part of the proceeds of the issue of the shares or debentures are or is to be applied directly or indirectly in the purchase of any business, a report made by an accountant or accountants holding the certificate referred to in section 114 who shall be named in the prospectus upon the profits of the business in respect of each of the three financial years immediately preceding the issue of the prospectus

Provided that if, in the case of a company which has been carrying on business for less than three years, the accounts of the company have been made up only in respect of two years or any shorter period this sub-section shall have effect as if references to two years or such shorter period were substituted for references to three years.

(1B) The statement referred to in clause (f) of sub-section (1) and the report referred to in sub-section (1A) with respect to the profits of a company or business shall show clearly the trading results and all charges and expenses incidental thereto including income payments having no relation to the trading for the period need not and excluding also items of profit or income of a non-trading nature but including amounts appropriated for any other...

In sub-section (1) of section 93, after clause (p) the following word and clause shall be added, namely:—

(q) where any part of the sums required for the matters set out in sub-section (2) of section 101 is to be provided out of sources other than share capital particulars of the amount to be so provided and the sources thereof.”

(3) This section shall not apply to a circular inviting existing members or debenture holders of a company to subscribe either for shares or for debentures of the company whether with or without the right to renounce in favour of other persons.

(4) The requirements of this section as to the statement and the qualification, remuneration and interests of directors, the names, descriptions and addresses of proposed directors, and of managers or proposed managers, the amount or estimated amount of preliminary expenses, shall not apply in the case of a prospectus issued by a company after the date at which the company is entitled to commence business.

Provided that the said requirements, except those relating to the amount or estimated amount of preliminary expenses, shall apply to a prospectus filed in pursuance of section 93.

(5) Nothing in this section shall limit the liability which any person may incur under this Act apart from this section.

By the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936 the words in italics have been inserted in clauses (1) and (c) of sub s (1) the new clauses (e) and (f) have been introduced for the words 'or the rate of any such commission in cl (b) after the word company the words in italics have been substituted in cl (b) the words in italics have been inserted in cl (o) the words in italics have been inserted and the new cl (p) has been added By the same Act the new sub sections (1A) (1B) and (1C) have been inserted and to sub s (4) the proviso has been added Some of these amendments have been suggested by s 3, and the Fourth Schedule of the English Act of 1929 which may be compared As to the effects of these important amendments see Introduction

It is very important to remember that a prospectus should never be misleading. It should reveal the facts in their true colour as men put their money in the company on the faith of a prospectus. Where a prospectus was issued which purported to invite persons to become shareholders in an old established business but money was really being asked to feed and supply an ambitious gamble it was held that the prospectus was false in material particulars. To advertise that business observed Lord Hewart (J) as a normal business seeking development when money is really being asked to feed and supply an ambitious gamble is merely deceit. The argument is not that in this or that particular this prospectus is true, the argument is that its whole purpose and effect were to deceive.¹ For the penalty for issuing a false prospectus see s 282 post

Meaning of 'address' Sub sec 1 cl (a) Address generally means residence it is not sufficient to state the place of business 2

The founders or management shares are ordinarily deferred shares receiving no dividend until the reference and ordinary shares have been paid a fair dividend the amount varying according to agreement. These shares are generally used to remunerate the promoters or founders of the company or the underwriters of the share capital. They are few in number and when surplus profits are large these shares become very valuable 3

In the case noted below 4 there was only one management share in respect of which no dividend was payable but it gave the holder thereof a majority of one over all other votes which could on any poll be cast by all other shareholders present in person or by proxy, so that the holder of the share had complete control of the voting power. The management share also conferred a right on a return of capital in a winding up to one half of any surplus assets remaining after making provision for the claims of the preference shareholders. At a later date the management share was renamed reversionary share and its voting rights altered so that upon a poll on any special or extraordinary resolution (except a resolution for removing an elected director) the holder should have such a number of votes as should (together with any other votes exercisable by him) exceed by one-third of the total votes which could be cast by all the other shareholders present in person or by proxy.

It is not lawful to exchange the founders 5 or deferred shares for a larger amount of ordinary shares, as this may be in the nature of issuing the ordinary shares at

But the party alleging misrepresentation will be pinned down to the misrepresentations alleged in his pleadings 1

Where a person has been by the fraudulent misrepresentations of directors or by their fraudulent concealment of facts drawn into a contract to purchase shares in a company the directors cannot enforce the contract against him and he may rescind it 2 A contract induced by fraud is not void but voidable and therefore though the persons who by their fraud induced it may not enforce it other persons may in consequence of it acquire interests and rights which they may enforce against the party who has been so induced to enter into it 3 Under the exception in s 19 of the Indian Contract Act the contract even if caused by misrepresentation would not be voidable if the defendant had the means of discovering the truth with ordinary diligence The application of that exception is not restricted to cases where the party is fixed with constructive notice of the true state of affairs 4

If there is a material misrepresentation in the prospectus upon which a share holder relied when applying for shares he is entitled provided he seeks relief within a reasonable time after learning the truth and before the company is in liquidation to have his name removed from the register and the amount paid upon the shares returned with interest 5 Only original subscribers and not purchasers of shares can obtain damages 6 unless the prospectus was issued with a view to induce persons to become purchasers 7 As to what should be proved to obtain rescission of the contract to take shares and to establish the company's responsibility see the cases noted below 8 A variance between a prospectus and the memorandum of association will not necessarily and is a matter of course relieve a member from his liability as a contributor 9

The aggrieved party cannot sue against the company to return the shares and claim damages 7 The relief can be claimed even after the shares have been forfeited 8 Where the forfeiture is not complete the Court will restrain the company from forfeiting the shares pending an action for rescission usually requiring the plaintiff to pay into Court the amount of the call 9 The aggrieved party need not show that the statement in the prospectus was made fraudulently or was known to the person making it to be untrue 10

If the statement is true at the time it is made and becomes untrue before allotment of the shares as for instance if a director named in the prospectus has meanwhile resigned it will be a good ground for rescission 11

Omission of material facts may amount to a misrepresentation 1 But in an honest prospectus many facts and circumstances may be lawfully omitted although some subscribers may be of opinion that these would have been of materiality in influencing the exercise of their judgment" 2 On "the other hand, if by a number of statements you intentionally give a false impression and induce a person to act upon it it is not the less false although if one takes each statement by itself there may be a difficulty in showing that any specific statement is untrue" 3 The prospectus must be taken as a whole, for everybody knows that half a truth is no better than a downright falsehood 4

Where a party having a right to rescind his contract after having knowledge of such right does any act affirming his contract he cannot afterwards set up his right to avoid the contract 5 Therefore any act by a shareholder recognizing his position as a member after knowledge of the misrepresentation such as selling or trying to sell his shares attending meetings, signing proxies, paying calls or accepting dividends will prevent him from obtaining rescission, even though done under a mistake as to his rights 6 unless he has meanwhile definitely elected to rescind the contract as by commencing proceedings 7

The complaining party should come within a reasonable time 8, as the rights and interests of other persons may intervene 9 Where a person has contracted to take shares in a company and his name has been placed on the register, it has always been held that he must exercise his right of repudiation with extreme promptness after discovery of fraud or misrepresentation" 9 He must also seek relief while the company is a going concern for upon the commencement of liquidation, voluntary or otherwise, the creditors and other shareholders are interested in retaining his name on the register, and against them he has no claim to set aside the bargain 10

Where there is omission to state some fact which ought under this section to be stated and the omission does not falsify that which is stated, there is no right of rescission 11 Where parties are contracting with one another each may unless there is a duty to disclose observe silence in regard to facts which he believes would be operative upon the mind of the other 12 Simple reticence does not amount to legal fraud" 13 An innocent misrepresentation in a prospectus may however be a ground for rescission 14

It is not enough to serve the company with a notice of repudiation. The aggrieved party must either procure the company to remove his name from the register or commence proceedings to compel it to do so.

A person who takes shares not from the company, but from a person to whom they were allotted has no remedy against the company. But this rule does not apply where the prospectus is intended and used to induce purchasers in the market to buy the shares. The statutory liability created by this section is cumulative and not in substitution of the law of deceit.

For statement of principles as to (1) fiduciary relationship between promoters and shareholders (2) validity of contracts between a company and its directors as promoters (3) non liability of directors for losses when acting intra vires and honestly (4) voidability of a contract for misrepresentation and (5) impossibility of rescinding a contract after change of position see the case noted below.

As to a shareholder's right against the directors or other persons who have issued a false prospectus see notes to s. 100.

94. For the purposes of section 93 every person shall be deemed to be a vendor who has entered into any contract, absolute or conditional, for the sale or purchase, or for any option of purchase, of any property to be acquired by the company, in any case where—

- (a) the purchase-money is not fully paid at the date of issue of the prospectus; or
- (b) the purchase-money is to be paid or satisfied wholly or in part out of the proceeds of the issue offered for subscription by the prospectus; or
- (c) the contract depends for its validity or fulfilment on the result of that issue.

As to the circumstances in which a company may be deemed to be a sub-purchaser see Brookes v Hansen.

Where it is simply stated that the vendor is to take '£50,000 worth of fully paid up shares' this means fully paid up shares of the market value of £50,000.

95. Where any of the property to be acquired by the company is to be taken on lease, section 93 shall apply as if the expression "vendor" included the lessor, and the expression "purchase-money" included the consideration for the lease, and the expression "sub-purchaser" included a sub-lessee.

96 (1) Any condition requiring or binding any applicant for shares or debentures to waive compliance with any requirements of section 93, or purporting to affect him with notice of any contract, document or matter not specifically referred to in the prospectus, shall be void

(2) It shall not be lawful to issue any form of application for the shares or debentures of a company unless the form is issued with a prospectus which complies with the requirements of section 93

Provided that this sub-section shall not apply if it is shown that the form of application was issued either—

- (a) in connection with a bona fide invitation to a person to enter into an underwriting agreement with respect to the shares or debentures, or
- (b) in relation to shares or debentures which were not offered to the public

If any person acts in contravention of the provisions of this sub-section, he shall be liable to a fine not exceeding five hundred rupees

By the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936 the original section 96 has been re numbered as sub s (1) and sub s (2) has been added For the Amendment effect of sub s (2) see Introduction

97 (1) If a prospectus is issued which does not comply with the provisions of section 93, every person who is knowingly responsible for the issue of such prospectus shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees for every day from the day of the issue of the prospectus until a copy complying with the requirements of section 93 is filed

(2) In the event of non-compliance with or contravention of any of the requirements of section 93, a director or other person responsible for the prospectus shall not incur any liability by reason of the non compliance or contravention, if he proves that—

- (a) as regards any matter not disclosed, he was not cognisant thereof, or
- (b) the non-compliance or contravention arose from an honest mistake of fact on his part; or
- (c) the non-compliance or contravention was in respect of matters which in the opinion of the Court were immaterial, or was otherwise such as ought in the opinion of the Court having regard to all the circumstances of the case is to be excused

Saving in certain cases of non compliance with section 93

Provided that, in the event of non-compliance with or contravention of the requirements contained in clause (n) of sub-section (1) of section 93, no such director or other person shall incur any liability in respect of the non-compliance or contravention unless it be proved that he had knowledge of the matters not disclosed

By the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936 the original s 97 has been re numbered as subs (2) and the new subs (1) has been inserted. The words in italics in subs (2) have been inserted by the same Act and the new cl (c) has been added thereby. For the effect of these amendments see Introduction

The mere fact of non compliance with s 93 does not entitle a person who has taken shares on the faith of the prospectus to have a rescission or rectification of the register. His remedy is in damages against those who are responsible for the prospectus 1

98 (1) A company which does not issue a prospectus on or with reference to its formation shall not allot any of its shares or debentures unless before the first allotment of either shares or debentures there has been filed with the registrar a statement in lieu of prospectus signed by every person who is named therein as a director or a proposed director of the company or by his agent authorised in writing, in the form and containing the particulars set out in the form marked I in the Second Schedule

Obligations of companies where no prospectus is issued.

(2) This section shall not apply to a private company or to a company which has allotted any shares or debentures before the commencement of this Act or, in so far as it relates to the allotment of shares, to a company limited by guarantee and not having a share capital

By the Companies (Amendment) Act 1946 the words in italics at the end of subs (1) have been substituted for the words set out in the Second Schedule

The requirements of this section about proceeding to allotment are satisfied by the mere filing of the statement in lieu of prospectus, whether the particulars are or are not sufficiently supplied or whether it contains misstatements and omissions, and an allotment is not vitiated by the want of accuracy 2. But allotment of shares and debentures before a company has filed the statement in lieu of prospectus is not wholly illegal and void. The director may also be estopped by conduct from denying that he is a member. 2

If a person applying for shares misrepresents the statement in lieu of prospectus the statement becomes the basis of the contract and if it contains a false statement he may have a right to rescind. A person who subscribes for shares on the faith of a statement in lieu of prospectus cannot claim compensation under s. 100.

Any person who wilfully makes a false statement in a statement in lieu of prospectus is guilty of a criminal offence. 4

For form of a statement in lieu of prospectus see the Second Schedule.

The last few words "or in so far as share capital of sub s. (2) are not in the English Act."

98A (1) Where a company allots or agrees to allot any shares or debentures of the company with a view to all or any of those shares or debentures being offered for sale to the public, any document by which the offer for sale to the public is made shall for all purposes be deemed to be a prospectus issued by the company and all enactments and rules of law as to the contents of prospectuses and to liability in respect of statements in and omissions from prospectuses or otherwise relating to prospectuses shall apply and have effect accordingly as if the shares or debentures had been offered to the public for subscription and as if persons accepting the offer in respect of any shares or debentures were subscribers for those shares or debentures but without prejudice to the liability, if any, of the persons by whom the offer is made in respect of mis-statements contained in the document or otherwise in respect thereof.

(2) For the purposes of this Act it shall, unless the contrary is proved, be evidence that an allotment of or an agreement to allot shares or debentures was made with a view to the shares or debentures being offered for sale to the public, if it is shown—

- (a) that an offer of the shares or debentures or of any of them for sale to the public was made within six months after the allotment or agreement to allot, or
- (b) that at the date when the offer was made the whole of the consideration to be received by the company in respect of the shares or debentures had not been so received.

(3) Section 97 shall apply to the person or persons making the offer as though they were persons named in a prospectus as directors of a company and the provisions of section 93 shall have effect as if it required a prospectus to state, in addition to the matters required by that section to be stated in a prospectus—

- (a) the net amount of the consideration received or to be received by the company in respect of the shares or debentures to which the offer relates, and
- (b) the place and time at which the contract under which the said shares or debentures have been or are to be allotted may be inspected

(4) Where a person making an offer to which this section relates is a company or a firm, it shall be sufficient if the document is signed on behalf of the company or firm by all directors of the company or not less than half of the partners, as the case may be and any such director or partner may sign by his agent authorised in writing

This section is new. It has been inserted by the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936 and reproduces s. 38 of the English Act of 1900. For the effect of the amendment see Introduction

(1) Where a prospectus invites persons to subscribe for shares in or debentures of a company, every person who is a director of the company at the time of the issue of the prospectus, and every person who has authorised the naming of himself and is named in the prospectus as a director or as having agreed to become a director either immediately or after an interval of time, and every promoter of the company, and every person who has authorised the issue of the prospectus, shall be liable to pay compensation to all persons who subscribe for any shares or debentures on the faith of the prospectus for all loss or damage they may have sustained by reason of any misleading or untrue statement therein, or in any report or memorandum appearing on the face thereof, or by reference incorporated therein or issued therewith, unless it is proved—

- (a) with respect to every misleading or untrue statement not purporting to be made on the authority of an expert or of a public official document or statement, that he had reasonable ground to believe and did up to the time of the allotment of the shares or debentures as the case may be, believe that the statement fairly represented the facts or was true,
- (b) with respect to every misleading or untrue statement purporting to be a statement by or contained in what purports to be a copy of or extract from a report or valuation of an expert, that it fairly represented the statement, or was a correct and fair copy of or extract from the report or valuation. Provided that the director, person named as director, promoter or person who authorised the issue of the prospectus shall be liable to pay compensation as aforesaid if it is proved that he had no reasonable ground to believe that the person making the statement, report or valuation was competent to make it, and
- (c) with respect to every misleading or untrue statement purporting to be a statement made by an official person or contained in what purports to be a copy of or extract from a public official document, that it was a correct and fair representation of the statement or copy of or extract from the document or unless it is proved—

- (i) that having consented to become a director of the company he withdrew his consent before the issue of the prospectus, and that it was issued without his authority or consent, or
- (ii) that the prospectus was issued without his knowledge or consent, and that on becoming aware of its issue, he forthwith gave a reasonable public notice that it was issued without his knowledge or consent or
- (iii) that, after the issue of the prospectus and before allotment thereunder, he, on becoming aware of any misleading or untrue statement therein withdrew his consent thereto, and gave reasonable

public notice of the withdrawal, and of the reason therefor

(2) Where a company existing at the commencement of this Act has issued shares or debenture, and for the purpose of obtaining further capital by subscriptions for shares or debentures issues a prospectus, a director shall not be liable in respect of any statement therein, unless he has authorised the issue of the prospectus, or has adopted or ratified it

(3) Where the prospectus contains the name of a person as a director of the company, or as having agreed to become a director thereof, and he has not consented to become a director, or has withdrawn his consent before the issue of the prospectus, and has not authorised or consented to the issue thereof, the directors of the company, except any without whose knowledge or consent the prospectus was issued, and any other person who authorised the issue thereof, shall be liable to indemnify the person named as aforesaid against all damages, costs and expenses to which he may be made liable by reason of his name having been inserted in the prospectus, or in defending himself against any suit or legal proceedings brought against him in respect thereof

(4) Every person who, by reason of his being a director or named as a director, or as having agreed to become a director, or of his having authorised the issue of the prospectus, becomes liable to make any payment under this section, may recover contribution, as in cases of contract, from any other person who, if sued separately, would have been liable to make the same payment, unless the person who has become so liable was, and that other person was not guilty of fraudulent misrepresentation

(5) For the purposes of this section—

(a) the expression "promoter" means a promoter who was a party to the preparation of the prospectus, or the portion thereof containing the misleading or untrue statement but does not include any person by reason of his acting in a professional capacity for persons engaged in procuring the formation of the company

(b) the expression "expert" includes engineer, valuer, accountant and any other person whose profession gives authority to a statement made by him

This section reproduces the provisions of the Directors Liability Act passed in England in 1890 for the purpose of strengthening the law as enunciated by the House of Lords in Derry v Peel [1889] 14 App Cas 317 in respect of directors' liabilities. "Now the Directors Liability Act was passed in 1890 the year after Derry v Peel was decided in the House of Lords and as it seems to me for the express purpose of getting rid of the effect of that decision so far and so far only as directors and promoters issuing a prospectus on the one hand and persons taking shares and debentures on the other hand are concerned 1

For the meaning of the word prospectus see notes to s 2 (14) and s 92

A prospectus ought not to misrepresent actual and material facts or to conceal facts material to be known the misrepresentation or concealment of which may improperly influence and mislead the mind of the reader for if he is thereby deceived into becoming an allottee of shares and in consequence suffers loss he is entitled to proceed against those who thus misled him 2

But mere non disclosure of facts unless such non disclosure had the effect of making the disclosed facts absolutely false would not be sufficient to sustain a proceeding which is really in the nature of an action for misrepresentation 3 Derry cannot be set up as an answer to such a suit 3

A prospectus may be false in material particulars within the meaning of s 91 of the (English) Larceny Act 1861 if by a number of statements a false impression with regard to the financial position of a company is intentionally conveyed although each statement taken by itself is true 4 See notes to s 28² post

The proper purpose of a prospectus is to invite persons to become allottees of the shares. When the allotment is completed the office of the prospectus is exhausted and a person who has not become an allottee, but is only a subsequent purchaser of shares in the market may not be so connected with the prospectus as to render those who issued it liable to indemnify him against losses suffered in consequence of the purchase 2, for the vendor must show some direct connection between them and himself in the communication of the prospectus and its influence upon his conduct in becoming an allottee 2

Subscription means application followed by allotment and not subsequent purchase 3

An "untrue statement" is a statement in fact untrue and not a statement in the belief of the directors untrue 5 It is immaterial that the statement was not fraudulent 6

"Compensation" must be estimated and awarded with reference to the loss sustained and does not resemble a penalty 7 In the recent case of Clark v Reguhart Lord Sumner traced the history of the section from the decision of the House of Lords in Derry v Peel 8 and held that the word "compensation" had no technical significance. The word was selected because it represented the difference between the actual value of the shares or debentures taken and the sums paid for them on the face of the prospectus and at the same time avoided the mysterious association

tion of damages with dishonesty in such connection 1 On this point their Lordships reversed the judgment of the Court of Appeal in Urquhart v Stracey 2 As to the measure of damages and evidence thereof see Stevens v Hoare 3

The term 'Promoter,' says Lord Justice Bowen 4 is not a term of law but of business usefully summarising up in a single word a number of business operations familiar to commercial world by which a company is generally brought into existence 5 It is a short and convenient way of designating those who set in motion the machinery by which the Act enables them to create an incorporated company 6 It involves the idea of exertion for the purpose of getting up and starting a company or what is called 'floating' it 6 and also the idea of some duty towards the company imposed by, or arising from the position which the so-called promoter assumes towards it 7

The term is however ambiguous and it is necessary to ascertain in each case what the so called promoter really did before his legal liabilities can be actually ascertained 8 The question whether a person is or is not a promoter is a question of fact 9 A person who is principal procures or aids in procuring the incorporation of a company is generally a promoter thereof 10, and he does not escape from liability by acting through agents 11 But persons who act only professionally, such as counsel solicitors accountants printers of prospectuses and the like are not promoters 12

It is a question of fact in each case as to at what time a person begins or ceases to be a promoter 13 A promoter does not cease to be such by reason only of the formation of the company and the appointment of directors, but only when the directors take into their own hands what remains to be done in the way of forming the company 14

The principles governing the position of directors and promoters and their acts have thus been laid down by Lord Lindley 15 The first principle is that in equity the promoters of a company stand in a fiduciary relation to it and to those persons whom they induce to become shareholders in it and cannot in equity bind the company by any contract with themselves without fully and fairly disclosing to the company all material facts which the company ought to know Friar v New Sombrero Phosphate Co [1878] 3 App Cas 1218 is the leading authority in support of this proposition 1

The second principle is that a company when registered is a corporation capable by its directors of binding itself by a contract with themselves if all material facts are disclosed. Salomon v Salomon & Co 1 is the leading authority for this proposition.

The third principle is that the directors of a company acting within their powers and with reasonable care and honesty in the interest of the company may suffer by reason of their mistakes or errors in judgment. Oicerl, Gurney & Co v Gith 2 is the leading authority on this head.

A fourth principle not confined to companies but extending to them is that a contract can be set aside in equity in proof that one party induced the other to enter into it by misrepresentations of material facts although such misrepresentations may not have been fraudulent.

A fifth principle is that a voidable contract cannot be rescinded or set aside after the position of the parties has been changed so that they cannot be restored to their former position. Fraud may exclude the application of this principle but I know of no other exception.

A promoter cannot retain any profit made out of a transaction to which the company is a party without full disclosure. The company can affirm the contract and sue for an account and profit with interest 3 or bring an action for rescission of the contract where the other contracting party can be restored to his original position 4. The liability of the promoter or director may also be enforced in a winding up proceeding 5. A gift of shares by a promoter to a director must be accounted for by the director to the company and the company has the option of claiming the thing given or its highest value when held by the director 6.

A promoter may however make a profit upon a sale to the company, even if he is also a director, if he makes full disclosure to the company 7. Whether a promoter is really acquiring any assets as a trustee for the company or the intended company is a question of fact. Where the scheme has throughout been that promoters are to sell to the intended company at a profit the assets they are acquiring the natural inference of fact is that in respect of those assets he is not intending to be a trustee for the company, but is intending to occupy the position of a vendor. The relationship when completed with promoters involves certain fiduciary duties, but cannot be identified with ordinary trusteeship 8. If there is no intention of making a public issue of shares and no such issue is in fact made the knowledge by all the directors and members of the fact will exonerate the promoters even where the purchase price has been greatly inflated 9.

But promoters cannot relieve themselves of their general equitable obligations by any astuteness in the drafting of the articles 1

Their fiduciary relation Persons who purchase property and then create a company to purchase from them the property they possess stand in a fiduciary position towards that company and must fully state to the company all the facts which apply to the property and would influence the company in deciding on the reasonableness of a purchase 3

Principles of the law of agency and trustee apply Although strictly speaking a promoter cannot be considered an agent or trustee for the company the company not being in existence at the time yet the principles of law of agency and trusteeship are applicable to him and he is accountable for all moneys obtained by him from the funds of the company without its knowledge 4 The fact that the promoter is acting as agent for the vendors in getting up a company for the purchase of their property does not exonerate him from accounting to the company when formed for any secret profit made by him 4 In estimating the amount of the secret profit the promoter is however entitled to be allowed the legitimate expenses incurred by him in forming and bringing out the company such as the reports of surveyors the charges of solicitors and brokers and the costs of advertisement, but not a sum of money which he has expended in obtaining from another person a guarantee for the taking of shares 4

Promoter's liability to account Any profit which the promoter makes after he has begun to promote the company and the benefit of any contracts into which he enters during that period belongs to the company 5 Where a promoter is to account to the company for secret profits the measure of damages is the amount of profit made by the promoter 6 but he is allowed to deduct all reasonable expenses and is liable only for the net profits made 7

Immediately after registration of the company a promoter is under fiduciary obligations not only to the company as originally constituted but also to consisting of future allottees and therefore the promoters and directors will not be protected by disclosures made before the public have joined the company 8 Even if all the facts are known to all the members of the company at the time the contract is made but a misleading prospectus is subsequently issued by the promoters to the public inviting them to join the company, the promoters will be liable 9

A promoter, even though he expressly purports to act as agent or trustee, is personally liable upon all contracts made with him on behalf of the intended company 10

un if the contract has been performed or rescinded by either party under some Personal power in the contract or by the consent of all parties or until the liability of company has with the consent of the other contracting party, undertaken promoters the promoter liability.

Legitimate expenses when payable Although not uniformly so, the directors may pay a promoter legitimate expense incurred by him in forming and bringing the company out.² Even where there is a general power to pay preliminary expenses to a promoter, payment should not be made without vouchers or investigation.³ But if the memorandum or article empowers directors to pay a specific sum for the costs and expenses of promoters, payment may be made without fixation.⁴ Directors may be made personally liable for sums improperly paid to promoters.⁵

A promoter however has no right of indemnity against the company in respect of any obligation undertaken on its behalf before its incorporation stipulating that he shall be paid a certain sum as the preliminary expenses. Thus in spite of such a provision the solicitor who prepares a memorandum or articles of association cannot sue the company for his costs for doing so and the promoter or his solicitor who has paid the fees on registering the company cannot recover them from the company. 7 Nor is the promoter or any person employed by him entitled to sue the company in respect of any payment for services rendered or expenses incurred before its incorporation unless after incorporation it expressly agrees with him to make such payment or from other facts the Court can infer a new contract to reimburse him. 8 For a company cannot ratify an agreement purporting to have been made on its behalf before its incorporation 9 and its rat cannot be evidence of a new agreement to reimburse the promoter if they can be shown to have been made with reference to the obligations of the company to indemnify a third person. 10 Nor is a company bound in equity to pay the preliminary expenses because it has adopted and derived benefit from services previous to incorporation. 6 Whether there is a fresh contract between the company and the promoters after incorporation is a question of fact. 11

Remedy of aggrieved share holder To obtain damages from the directors or promoters an aggrieved shareholder may bring in action after the company has gone into liquidation, but he must show that he has suffered damage for 'fraud without damage or damage without fraud will not found an action' 12 But the Court will direct an inquiry as to damages upon proof of the falsity of material statements 13 If the company failed within a short time after the issue of the prospectus that will be taken as prima facie evidence that the shares were not worth par 14

A single debenture stock holder cannot proceed in tort against persons who have acted as directors of a debtor company or of the company which own all shares of the debtor company. In principle such an action cannot be sustained. A representative action on behalf of all the stock holders an action in the name or on behalf of the company proceedings to compel the trustees to do their duty and take steps to protect the security or proceedings against individual directors for misfeasance to the company give a sufficient well established body of remedies 1

Promoters are jointly and severally liable in respect of secret profits. Where two promoters join in the issue of a prospectus inviting subscription for shares with knowledge that a statement contained in that prospectus is untrue and damages are recovered by a person induced to take shares by that statement against one of them he is entitled to contribution from the other 2 under this section

Co promoters are not partners, nor is one promoter necessarily the agent of the others on the act and admission of one evidence against the others 4

Position of co promoters The death of a promoter does not release his estate from obligations he has undertaken to find capital 5 nor from liability in respect of breach of fiduciary duties or moneys secretly received and retained by him 6

In the absence of an express contract one of several promoters cannot sue another for remuneration for his promoting services 7 but a person assisting promoters can sue for remuneration for his services if there is a contract to pay for them 8. Promoters are not as such agents or liable for the acts of each other but an authority to act for each other may be inferred from the terms of a public prospectus or from contract 9

A man is not necessarily a promoter because at the time he acquires property he contemplates that at some future time he may form a company to purchase the property 10 and if he does not become a promoter until after the acquisition his only duty is to see that the amount of his profit is known to the purchasing company otherwise the company may rescind the contract 11. But if he has disclosed that he is making a profit and fails to make known the amount rescission is the only remedy for the company 10. If that has become impossible the profit cannot be recovered or damages paid 10

If the purchase is not completed by conveyance of the property rescission may be had whether the misrepresentation was made fraudulently or innocently 12 but where the purchase has been completed rescission can only be ordered when fraud is established 13

If at the time of acquiring the property the vendor was also a promoter the company can either rescind the contract or return it reducing the purchase money to the amount the promoter actually spent upon the purchase in relation to the property 1

If the company cannot restore the property in the same state as that in which it was bought there is no remedy against the vendors except by an action for deceit 2

Remedy against vendors Lindley M R said Fraud may exclude the operation of the principle that a voidable contract cannot be rescinded or set aside after the position of the parties has been changed so that they cannot be restored to their former position 3

In considering whether a statement is misleading the prospectus must be considered as a whole and if its tendency is to deceive there is no need to point out some one or more statement which are absolutely false 4 The motive with which the statement is made is immaterial for a man is liable for a false statement knowingly made even if he had no intent to defraud 5 'If with intent to lead the plaintiff to act upon it they put forth a statement which they knew may bear two meanings, one of which is false to their knowledge and thereby the plaintiff putting that meaning on it is misled I do not think they can escape by saying he ought to have put the other 6

Distinction between motive and intent Lord Lindley said 7 If a man uses language which taken in its natural sense conveys a wrong impression he can not be heard to say he did not intend to deceive A man is answerable for what any one might reasonably suppose to be the meaning of the words he has used 8 But the plaintiff must prove that he understood the statement in the sense in which it is false 4

Constructio of prospectus A general commendation however is not a false statement even if too highly coloured, but to say that something is expected when in reality it is not, or that the directors have an intention to do something when they have not is a misstatement of fact 9 A statement that property has been acquired which has not in fact then been acquired will be ground for an action against directors even if the property is acquired a few days after the allotment of shares 10 The speeches of a chairman of directors at a meeting of the company or reports issued to shareholders or furnished by agents of the directors are not evidence against the company 11

What is a false statement It is not necessary that the representation should be directed to the person injured It is sufficient if it be made to some one with the intent that it shall be repeated to and acted upon by the person who is subsequently injured 12 statement and if untrue a person subscribing on the faith of it is prima facie entitled to rescind 1 So if before allotment some of the directors mentioned in the prospectus untrue and the fact of reticement is not communicated to the allottee he would be entitled to rescind the contract and claim a refund of the money paid by him 2 It is misrepresentation to state in a prospectus that share capital has been subscribed when it has only been allotted in fully paid up shares 3 or that the company has contracted for purchase of a property when in fact there is no contract at all 4

A misleading statement in a prospectus is an untrue statement and the liability imposed by the section is absolute Persons issuing such statements can only escape liability under the statute by proving that they had reasonable ground for believing and did in fact believe the statement to be true The court will refuse to give effect to a defence against a shareholder, to a tricky waiver clause in a prospectus or application form 5 "I quite agree in this," observed Lord Blackburn "that whenever a man in order to induce a contract says that which is in his knowledge untrue with the intention to mislead the other side and induce them to enter into the contract that is down right fraud I further agree in this, that when a statement or representation has been made in the bona fide belief that it is true, and the party who has made it afterwards comes to find out that it is untrue and discovers what he should have said and he can no longer honestly keep up that silence on the subject after that has come to his knowledge thereby allowing the other party to go on, upon a statement which was honestly made at the time when it was made, but which he has not now retracted when he has become aware that it can be no longer honestly persevered in, that would be fraud too And I go on further still to say what is perhaps not quite so clear but certainly it is my opinion where there is a duty or an obligation to speak, and a man in breach of that duty or obligation holds his tongue and does not speak and does not say the thing he was bound to say if that is done with the intention of inducing the other party to act upon the belief that the reason why he did not speak was because he had nothing to say, I should be inclined myself to hold that that was fraud also 6

A misstatement of intention is a misstatement of fact and if the allottee was misled by it in action of deceit may be founded on it Where an allottee has been induced to take shares or debentures both by his own mistake and by a material misstatement by the directors and the former rescues injures thereby the latter may be made liable in an action for deceit 7

The provisions in the articles or in Table A apply only to notices relating to the ordinary business of the company and service in the way there pointed out is not sufficient for the purpose of fixing a shareholder with knowledge of a misrepresentation which would entitle him to repudiate his shares, unless he had been guilty of laches after notice of the misrepresentation 8

If the prospectus states the effect or terms of a document and offers it for inspection the intending subscriber is not bound to inspect it. Jessel M R observes "When men issue a prospectus in which they make statements of the contracts made before the formation of the company and state that the contracts may be inspected at the office of the solicitors it has always been held that those who accepted these false statements as true were not deprived of the remedy merely because they neglected to go and look at the contracts. 1 "It was argued for the company said Lord Watson "that in as much as the contracts for the purchase of the concession were generally referred to towards the end of the prospectus the respondent must be held to have notice of their contents. This appears to be one of the most audacious pleas that ever was put forward in answer to a charge of fraudulent misrepresentation. When analysed it means simply that a person who has induced another to act upon a statement made with intent to deceive must be relieved from the consequences of his deceit if he has given his victim constructive notice of a document the perusal of which would expose fraud." 2

In the case of non disclosure however says Eve J "there must be something more than mere non disclosure proved before misrepresentation is established. Non disclosure it must I think be shown that the non disclosure is the non disclosure of something the disclosure of which would falsify some statement in the prospectus. 3 An underwriter who takes shares relying on the names of the directors cannot obtain rescission on the ground of defects in the prospectus 4, but it is not necessary for him to show that the statement complained of was fraudulently made or was known to the directors to be untrue. 5

A director who was aware that a prospectus was being issued to the public but did not trouble to read it abstained from inquiry as to its contents and gave no notice under the Act is responsible for the contents of the prospectus 6, and a director who subsequently adopted a prospectus he had not originally approved was also held liable. 7

If the directors discover a mistake in the prospectus it is their duty to point it out in unambiguous terms and not merely to send a new prospectus correctly stating the facts. 8 As to the measure of damages see the cases noted below. 9

If the misstatement is due to a mistake of law the fact that the directors took the opinion of counsel will not protect them. 10

Where the directors make a statement to existing shareholders they have a higher duty to such shareholders than to the general public and may come under liability for dereliction of that duty in a case falling short of actual fraud. 11

Allotment

101. (1) No allotment shall be made of any share capital of a company offered to the public for subscription unless the amount stated in the prospectus as the minimum amount Restriction as to allotment which in the opinion of the directors must be raised by the issue of share capital in order to provide the sums on, if any part thereof is to be defrayed in any other manner, the balance of the sum required to be provided in respect of the matters specified in sub-section (2) has been subscribed, and the sum of at least five per cent thereof has been paid to or received in cash by the company.

(2) The matters for which provision for the raising of a minimum amount of share capital must be made by the directors are the following, namely —

- (a) the purchase price of any property purchased or to be purchased which is to be defrayed in whole or in part out of the proceeds of the issue,
- (b) any preliminary expenses payable by the company and any commission so payable to any person in consideration of his agreeing to subscribe for or of his promoting or agreeing to procure subscriptions for any shares in the company,
- (c) the repayment of any moneys borrowed by the company in respect of any of the foregoing matters, and
- (d) working capital.

(2A) The amount referred to in sub-section (1) as the amount stated in the prospectus shall be a deemed exclusively of any amount payable otherwise than in cash and is in this Act referred to as the minimum subscription.

(2B) All moneys received from applicants for shares shall be deposited and kept in a scheduled bank as defined in the Reserve Bank of India Act, 1934, until returned in accordance with the provisions of sub-section (1) or until the certificate to commence business is obtained under section 103.

(2C) In the event of any contravention of the provisions of sub-section (2B) every promoter, director or other person knowingly responsible for such contravention shall be liable to a fine not exceeding five hundred rupees.

(3) The amount payable on application on each share shall not be less than five per cent of the nominal amount of the share.

(4) If the conditions aforesaid have not been complied with on the expiration of one hundred and eighty days after the first issue of the prospectus, all money received from applicants for shares shall be forthwith repaid to them without interest and, if any such money is not so repaid within one hundred and ninety days after the issue of the prospectus, the directors of the company shall be jointly and severally liable to repay that money with interest at the rate of seven per cent. per annum from the expiration of the one hundred and ninetieth day. Provided that a director shall not be liable if he proves that the loss of the money was not due to any misconduct or negligence on his part.

(5) Any condition requiring or binding any applicant for shares to waive compliance with any requirement of this section shall be void.

(6) This section, except sub-section (3) thereof, shall not apply to any allotment of shares subsequent to the first allotment of shares offered to the public for subscription.

(7) In the case of the first allotment of share capital payable in cash of a company which does not issue any invitation to the public to subscribe for its shares, no allotment shall be made unless the minimum subscription (that is to say),—

(a) the amount (if any) fixed by the memorandum or articles and named in the statement in lieu of prospectus as the minimum subscription upon which the directors may proceed to allotment, or

(b) if no amount is so fixed and named, the whole amount of the share capital other than that issued or agreed to be issued as fully or partly paid up otherwise than in cash, has been subscribed and an amount not less than five per cent of the nominal amount of each share payable in cash has been paid to and received by the company

(8) Sub-section (7) shall not apply to a private company or to a company which has allotted any shares or debentures before the commencement of this Act

By the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936 sub sections (1), (2), (2A), (2B) and (2C) have been substituted for the original sub sections (1) and (2). This was suggested by s. 39 of the English Act of 1929. By the said amending Act in sub s. (4) for the word 'twenty' the word 'eighty' for the word 'thirty' the word 'ninety' and for the word 'thirtieth' the word 'ninetieth' have been substituted. For the effect of these amendments see Introduction.

The original sub sections (1) and (2) ran thus

101 (1) No allotment shall be made of any share capital of a company offered to the public for subscription, unless the following conditions have been complied with, namely:—

(a) the amount (if any) fixed by the memorandum or articles and named in the prospectus as the minimum subscription upon which the directors may proceed to allotment; or

(b) if no amount is so fixed and named, then the whole amount of the share capital so offered for subscription has been subscribed and the sum payable on application for the amount so fixed and named or for the whole amount offered for subscription, has been paid to and received in cash by the company.

(2) The amount so fixed and named and the whole amount aforesaid shall be reckoned exclusively of any amount payable otherwise than in cash, and is in this Act referred to as the minimum subscription.

until the acceptance is notified to the applicant 1 If the notice of allotment is sent by post the acceptance is deemed to be notified when the notice is posted, even though it never reaches the applicant 2 provided the offer is one which can be accepted by a letter sent through post 3 An allottee will not be constituted a member unless he has notice of the fact of allotment A formal notice is however not necessary if he is made aware of the fact 4 The mere entry of his name on the register of members is not sufficient for the purpose 4 Where allotment was made long after the application and notice of allotment was said to have been sent just before the company went into liquidation and it was not shown when the name of the applicant was put on the register of members it was held that the applicant was not a member of the company 5 Allotment should be made within a reasonable time and a person is not bound to accept an allotment made after the lapse of a reasonable time 6 As to the meaning of allotment see the cases noted below 7

The offer or the acceptance may be oral 7 Before notification of the acceptance is received 8 or if sent by post posted 8 the offer may be withdrawn and repayment of the deposit money claimed 9 Even if the offer is made in writing it may be withdrawn orally 10 But in withdrawal is effective only when it reaches the company and not at the time of posting 11 An allotment made without application the allotment money not being paid is illegal and the directors who make such allotment are guilty of misfeasance 12 They are also guilty of misfeasance if they are party to a calculated and deliberate fraud in the flotation of the company and in the conduct of its business 12

Effect of mistake There is no contract however where the offer to take shares is made by a man who believes it to be a totally different company 13

An allotment may be made conditionally In such a case the allottee does not become a member until the condition is performed even if his name is conditionally registered 14 But where there is a conditional application and an unconditional allotment there is no contract as the parties are not ad idem 15 Where the application is conditional the directors are not at liberty to allot unconditionally 16 An allottee may be estopped from contending that the allotment is void on the ground of non-fulfilment of condition When by his conduct that is by accepting the position as shareholder by accepting dividend by filing suit for it and by pledging the shares he has waived the condition 1

Where a person takes some shares on condition that he would be appointed chairman of the local board of directors and he is allotted shares and appointed chairman, but subsequently there is a breach of the condition by his dismissal his remedy is by an action for damages and not for getting his name removed from the register of members 2

Where an application is made before but allotment notice is sent after the incorporation of a company they constitute a complete contract 3 An agent to apply for shares will not necessarily be deemed to have authority to receive notice of allotment 4 In ordinary circumstances the application for shares is a mere proposal which may be withdrawn before acceptance is communicated to the agent through whom the application was made being sufficient 5 But where the authority given by the applicant to a person to apply for shares is a continuing and irrevocable authority coupled with an interest the former is not entitled to withdraw 6 In the case of underwriting or sub-underwriting the filling up of an application form is neither necessary nor appropriate 5

Care should be taken that nothing is introduced in the letter of allotment differing from the terms of the prospectus or the application form, for in such a case the applicant may withdraw as there is no completed contract 7 If a new term is introduced the allotment letter is no longer an acceptance but a new offer which must be accepted before there is a contract 8 Thus where a man applied for shares and got an allotment letter marked 'not transferable', it was held that there was no contract and the applicant was allowed to repudiate the shares 9

To allot less than the number of shares applied for does not constitute a binding contract unless words in the application authorize a partial allotment 10 Where the directors allotted shares on terms which were illegal it was held that they should be paid for by fees earned it was held that there was no contract and the allottee was not a shareholder 11

An allotment made on an application signed in a false name constitutes a good contract if the applicant intended to get the benefit of the shares In such a case he will be put in a winding up on the list of contributories in his true name 12 But it will be otherwise if the application was not intended to be acted upon, as in a case in which the application was sent in order to increase the supposed number of shares applied for 13

Repudiation The allotment must be made within a reasonable time of the application, otherwise the applicant may repudiate the shares 1 The Court has jurisdiction to specifically enforce a contract by a person to take and by a company to allot shares 2

Unless the articles otherwise provide, the duty of making allotment primarily falls upon the directors and it cannot be delegated to a purely ministerial officer. 3 But where the articles do not specifically make such provision and state on the other hand that the general management of the company shall be by the secretaries and treasurers subject to the supervision of the directors, it was held that allotment by the secretaries and treasurers was valid. 4 Where the power of allotment is vested by the deed of settlement in the board of directors the quorum of which is three, they have no right to delegate such powers et q. to two directors. 5

In making allotment the directors should bear in mind that they are trustees of the company and must allot the shares for its benefit. It is a breach of duty for directors to issue shares to themselves and their friends in more favourable terms than those offered to the public unless the latter are expressly informed of the arrangement.⁶ Although the directors are not bound to issue shares at a premium when they are above par in the market,⁷ they should not allot them at par to members of their own body or their friends for they should always seek to obtain the benefit of the premium for the company.⁸ If they make such allotment at par they must account to the company for the profits.⁹ Directors should not also allot shares to themselves for the purpose of obtaining control of the voting power in the company. If they do so the Court will declare the allotment invalid and rectify the register and in the meantime will restrain the allottees from voting in respect of the shares thus allotted.¹⁰ The directors may however purchase shares for the purpose of increasing their voting power.¹¹ An allotment by directors is valid even though they themselves have not paid the allotment money on the shares held by them and such objection is not open after liquidation.¹²

Remedy in case of irregular allotment

Allotment of shares by an irregularly constituted board is prima facie invalid, but if the articles validate an act done by a de facto director in a bona fide manner the Court will uphold the act 12. A person to whom shares have been irregularly allotted has the right to have his name taken off the register of members but he cannot do so after he has accepted his share certificate 13. The right to rescind an allotment on the ground of fraud and misrepre-

If allotment is made to a minor he can at any time before or on attaining majority, repudiate the transaction, but he cannot merely on the ground of infancy demand repayment of the amount paid 1

Allotment once made and communicated cannot be cancelled 2 as that would be reducing the capital of the company 3

A suit for allotment money is cognizable by a Court of Small Causes 4

102 (1) An allotment made by a company to an applicant in contravention of the provisions of section 101 ^{of the Companies Act, 1913} shall be voidable at the instance of the applicant within one month after the holding of the statutory meeting of the company and not later, or in any case where the company is not required to hold a statutory meeting or where the allotment is made after the holding of the statutory meeting within or after the date of the allotment and not later and shall be void notwithstanding that the company is in course of being wound up.

(2) If any director of a company knowingly contravenes or permits or authorises the contravention of any of the provisions of section 101 with respect to allotment, he shall be liable to compensate the company and the allottee respectively for any loss, damages or costs which the company or the allottee may have sustained or incurred thereby. Provided that proceedings to recover any such loss, damages or costs shall not be commenced after the expiration of two years from the date of the allotment.

By the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936 in sub-s (1) the words in italics have been inserted as a private company is not required to hold a statutory meeting [vide the new s 77 (11)] and there may be allotments after the statutory meeting of a public company

The Act recognizes that the observance of the formalities may be dispensed with, and irregular as distinguished from void transactions may be confirmed. Consequently a person may become shareholder to most if not all intents and purposes without complying with all the formalities prescribed in that behalf by a statute charter or constitution of the company and although there may be irregularities in the issue of shares to him 5. So where the allottee pays allotment money and subsequently acts as a shareholder without objection he will not be permitted to raise the question of validity of the allotment, for once the shares have been registered in the name of the allottee and he has done acts only consistent with his being a member he will be taken to have agreed to take the shares or at any rate he will be estopped from denying that he has so agreed 1

Where allotment was made by the managing directors by virtue of a delegated authority from two other directors who had not and then allotment money there was no valid allotment 2

It is not necessary that the dissatisfied applicant should take proceedings within the month after the statutory meeting or before liquidation is commenced if he has given notice avoiding the allotment within the month and commenced action within a reasonable time 3 But he will be precluded from avoiding the allotment if he has expressly or by conduct affirmed it with knowledge of the irregularity 4 A small amount of acquiescence after knowledge will bar an allottee's right of rescission 4

Sub s. (2) If any director knowingly contravenes or permits or authorises the contravention of any of the provisions of s. 101 he will be liable to compensate the allottee as well as the company 4a

A director who was not present at the meeting making the allotment and did not know the irregularity is not liable, even though he was present and voted at a subsequent meeting confirming the minutes regarding the allotment 5

A member cannot be relieved from the shares upon the ground of misrepresentation in the prospectus on a bill filed after the presentation of a petition for winding up on which an order was subsequently made 6

As to cost see Barnett v. Feeley Corpn 7

A special limitation of two years is prescribed by this section for instituting Limitation - proceedings for damages against directors

103 (1) A company shall not commence any business or exercise any borrowing powers unless—

Restrictions on commencement of business

(a) shares held subject to the payment of the whole amount thereof in cash have been allotted to an amount not less in the whole than the minimum subscription, and

(b) every director of the company has paid to the company on each of the shares taken or contracted to be taken by him, and for which he is liable to pay in cash, a proportion equal to the proportion payable on application and allotment on the shares offered for public subscription or, in the case of a company which does not issue a prospectus inviting the public to subscribe for its shares, on the shares payable in cash, and

- () there has been filed with the registrar a duly verified declaration by the secretary or one of the directors, in the prescribed form, that the aforesaid condition have been complied with, and
- (1) in the case of a company which does not issue a prospectus inviting the public to subscribe for its shares there has been filed with the registrar a statement in lieu of prospectus

(2) The registrar shall, on the filing of a duly verified declaration in accordance with the provisions, of this section, certify that the company is entitled to commence business, and that certificate shall be conclusive evidence that the company is so entitled

Provided that in the case of a company which does not issue a prospectus inviting the public to subscribe for its shares, the registrar shall not give such a certificate unless a statement in lieu of prospectus has been filed with him

(3) any contract made by a company before the date at which it is entitled to commence business shall be provisional only, and shall not be binding on the company until that date, and on that date it shall become binding

(4) Nothing in this section shall prevent the simultaneous offer for subscription or allotment of any shares and debentures or the receipt of any money payable on application for debentures

(5) If any company commences business or exercises borrowing powers in contravention of this section, every person who is responsible for the contravention shall without prejudice to any other liability, be liable to a fine not exceeding five hundred rupees for every day during which the contravention continues

(6) Nothing in this section shall apply to a private company, or to a company registered before the commencement of this Act, which does not issue a prospectus inviting the public to subscribe for its shares or, in so far as its provisions relate to share, to a company limited by guarantee and not having a share capital

The Court will not interfere to prevent the directors from commencing business on the ground that all the nominal capital has not been subscribed for nor on the ground that the business actually commenced is on a much smaller scale than that contemplated by the prospectus 1

Interference by Court

If a company is wound up without having become entitled to commence business persons who have supplied goods or rendered services will have no claim against the company 2 Even the bank which received the application money cannot recover for its services 3

Winding up before commencement of business

Contract made before incorporation

A contract can be made with a trustee for the company before its incorporation in which case the trustee will be personally liable unless he expressly protects himself from liability by including a power to rescind the contract 4 It is usual in such a case to make it one of the objects in the memorandum of association and also to provide in the articles that the directors shall adopt the preliminary agreement But this will not bind the company unless a new contract is entered into by which the company agrees to be bound by the terms of the preliminary agreement 5 See notes to s 23 ante

Adoption of agreement

A resolution of the board of directors adopting the agreement will not however create a contract between the company and the vendor 6 A new contract in some cases may be inferred from the circumstances and the conduct of parties 7 But the mere fact that the directors think that they are bound by the contract with the trustee and act accordingly is not enough even though large sums of money are expended and work is done in that mistaken belief 8

Agreement should be executed after incorporation

Where the contract is purported to be made with the company itself it is sometimes prepared before its incorporation and then referred to in the memorandum of association and the articles as an agreement already drawn up and intended to be executed and for identification signed or initialed by some of the subscribers to the memorandum or by a solicitor In such a case the agreement requires to be executed by the company and this must be done after due consideration by the directors who must exercise their judgment upon it and if they are not an independent body the company may repudiate the contract 9

Borrowing powers

As regards borrowing powers it should be remembered that every trading company has an implied power to borrow money and to charge its property as security for payment of the loan 10 A company which borrows money to pay off existing debts does not thereby increase its liability 11

Sub s (1) (a) & (1) In order that a transaction between a company and an allottee of shares may amount to 'payment in cash' each party must have an actual demand on the other for present payment 1 Any circumstance giving rise to a right of set off or an agreement to render services may be a good payment 2 In Fothergill's case 3 observed Lord Justice James the bargain in effect was to give paid up shares in satisfaction of the money which was to be paid for other shares But if a transaction resulted in this that there was on the one side a bona fide debt payable in money at once for the purchase of property and on the other side a bona fide liability to pay money at once on shares so that if bank notes had been handed from one side of the table to the other in payment of calls they might legitimately have been handed back in payment for the property it did appear to me in Fothergill's case 4 and does appear to me now that this Act of Parliament did not make it necessary that the formality should be gone through of the money being handed over and taken back again but that if the two demands are set off against each other the shares have been paid for in cash 4

Sub s (2) The certificate of the registrar is conclusive and the Court will not take any evidence that there have been irregularities 5 Any allotment by a public company which neither issues a prospectus nor files a statement in lieu of prospectus is altogether void but if a statement has been filed and the registrar's certificate obtained inaccurate or insufficient particulars do not render the statement a nullity or the allotment absolutely void 6

Sub s (3) The word provisional means that the contract is to be read as if it contained a provision that it shall not be binding on the company unless and until the company becomes entitled to commence business 7 so the company cannot be sued on a contract whether express or implied 7 A company does not by its adoption of a contract of purchase made before its formation by persons purporting to act on its behalf incur any contractual relation with or obligation to the vendor 8 A company cannot ratify a contract made before its incorporation for it was not in existence at the time 9

A contract made with the trustee for a company is not binding on the latter 10 unless a new contract is made after its incorporation 11 A resolution of the board adopting the contract will not suffice 12

Sub s (5) The words every person who is responsible for the contravention would include directors managers and other executive officers and possibly the secretary 13

Sub s (6) The last portion of this sub s et on namely "or in so far as its provisions relate & losses) of occur in the English Act of 1908

This section does not apply to a private company

104 (1) Whenever a company having a share capital makes any allotment of its shares the company shall within one month thereafter —

Return as to allotments

(1) file with the registrar a return of the allotment, stating the number and nominal amount of the shares comprised in the allotment, the names, addresses and descriptions of the allottees and the amount (if any) paid or due and payable on each share and

(1) in the case of shares allotted as fully or partly paid up otherwise than in cash produce for the inspection and examination of the registrar a contract in writing constituting the title of the allottee to the allotment together with any contract of sale, or for services or other consideration in respect of which that allotment was made, such contracts being duly stamped, and file with the registrar copies verified in the prescribed manner of all such contracts and a return stating the number and nominal amount of shares so allotted, the extent to which they are to be treated as paid up, and the consideration for which they have been allotted

(2) Where such a contract as above-mentioned is not reduced to writing, the company shall, within one month after the allotment, file with the registrar the prescribed particulars of the contract, stamped with the same stamp-duty as would have been payable if the contract had been reduced to writing, and the particulars shall be deemed to be an instrument within the meaning of the Indian Stamp Act, 1839, and the registrar, as a condition of filing the particulars, require that the duty payable thereon be adjudicated under section 31 of that Act

(3) If default is made in complying with the requirements of this section every officer of the company who knowingly a party to the default shall be liable to a fine not exceeding five hundred rupees for every day during which the default continues

Provided that in case of default in filing with the registrar within one month after the allotment any document required to be filed by this section, the company, or any person liable for the default, may apply to the Court for relief, and the Court, if satisfied that the omission to file the document was accidental or due to inadvertence or that on other grounds it is just and equitable to grant relief, may make an order extending the time for the filing of the document for such a period as the Court may think proper

(4) Nothing in this section shall apply to the issue and allotment by a company of shares which under the provisions of its articles were forfeited for non payment of calls

Amendment By the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936 the new sub s (4) has been added
The amendment excludes forfeited shares subsequently re issued from the purview of the section

Failure to file return of allotment Sub s 1 (a) The directors and managers are bound to furnish to the registrar the return of allotment as provided in this section and their failure to do so renders them liable to the penalties provided in sub s (3) A plea of ignorance of the law will not be accepted as an excuse but where the default is not intentional the full or a heavy penalty may not be exacted 1

Contract for fully or partly paid up shares Sub s 1 (b) In order to comply with cl (b) it is not necessary that within the four corners of the filed contract there should be a complete identification of the property other than cash which is the consideration given for the shares provided the filed contract states plainly the nature of the consideration and supplies the means of identification by reference to an unfiled contract which contains a full description of the consideration 2 Where there is a contract referred to in sub s 1 (b) but it is not filed with the registrar the only consequence of the failure to file it will be the penalty under sub s (3) and the allottee is not responsible as a contributory for calls as though the shares were unpaid shares 3 On the other hand if the consideration payable for the shares is illusory or permits an obvious money measure to be made showing that discount has been allowed filing the contract with the registrar will not relieve the allottee from the obligation to pay the nominal value of the shares or the amount of the discount in cash But the Court is not bound to inquire in each case whether the price was reasonable or whether what was given for the shares had a cash value in the market equal to the nominal value of the shares 4

Where contract for fully paid up shares is valid Although a limited company cannot release a shareholder from the obligation to pay for his shares either in money or money's worth and cannot therefore issue its shares at a discount it can provide the contract is duly registered buy property at any price it thinks fit and can pay for such property in fully paid up shares 5 The transaction will be valid and binding upon its creditors if the company has acted in it honestly and not colourably and has not been so imposed upon by the vendor as to be relieved from the claim 5

The value received by the company is measured by the price at which the company agreed to buy the property and whilst the transaction is unimpeached that is the only value which the Court can take into consideration (last para, last page)

Payment in money's worth is sufficient payment 1 so is the extinguishment of debt due from the company to the shareholder 2 even though no call has been made and no debt is presently due to the company 3 It is not material that the company has not entered the payment in its books 4

Although a company may agree to accept some other form of payment or set off an existing debt against a present liability to pay calls or a release without payment in money or money's worth or on payment of less than the full amount is ultra vires. But any circumstance creating a set off or an agreement to render service may be a good payment.

It is beyond the power of a limited company to release a shareholder from his obligation without payment in money or money's worth. It cannot give fully paid up shares for nothing in order to relieve itself from requiring payment in money or money's worth. An agreement to accept the supply of goods at a future time when it calls is not valid. An agreement by the company to pay a sum of money at once for future services e.g. erection of a building and to satisfy the amount by an issue of fully paid up shares may however be a good consideration for the issue of those shares.

If the consideration be in kind the Court will not inquire whether it was really of value equal to the nominal amount of shares issued unless the consideration is illusory or permitted of an obvious money value¹¹ but the written contract may go very far to establish that the consideration is not illusory even if there is much to point to its being excessive¹². In fact a company can agree to purchase property and pay for services at any price it thinks proper and may make the payment in shares provided that it does so honestly and not colourably and has not been so imposed upon as to be entitled to rescind the bargain¹³.

Where under the condition of a debenture deed the debenture-holder is allotted some ordinary shares on surrender of his debenture, the allotment of fully paid up shares in exchange for his debenture is an allotment of shares as fully paid up otherwise than in cash within the meaning of sub s (1) clause (b) of this section 14 but was merely a contract to sell although the parties intended that when completed it should take effect from 1st January 1920. So it was properly stamped.

Sub s (1) (b) of this section requires the particulars of a contract constituting the title of the allottee to be filed with the registrar. If this contract consists merely of an agreement to transfer properties in the future the particulars thereof cannot be treated as a transfer of the properties in present. Sub s (2) clearly lays down that the particulars would be liable to the same stamp duty as would have been payable if the contract of which the particulars are stippled had been reduced to writing. In the last cited case the contract was oral but it does not make any difference if the contract is in writing. 2 sion to any person in consideration of his subscribing or agreeing to subscribe, whether absolutely or conditionally, for any shares in the company, or procuring or agreeing to procure subscriptions, whether absolute or conditional, for any shares in the company, if the payment of the commission is authorised by the articles and the commission paid or agreed to be paid does not exceed the amount or rate so authorised, and if the amount or rate per cent of the commission paid or agreed to be paid is,—

- (a) in the case of shares offered to the public for subscription, disclosed in the prospectus, or
- (b) in the case of shares not offered to the public for subscription, disclosed in the statement in lieu of prospectus, or in a statement in the prescribed form signed in like manner as a statement in lieu of prospectus and filed with the registrar and, where a circular or notice, not being a prospectus inviting subscription for the shares is issued, also disclosed in that circular or notice

(2) Save as aforesaid and as provided in section 105A, no company shall apply any of its shares or capital money either directly or indirectly in payment of any commission, discount or allowance, to any person in consideration of his subscribing or agreeing to subscribe, whether absolutely or conditionally, for any shares of the company, or procuring, or agreeing to procure, subscriptions, whether absolute or conditional, for any shares in the company, whether the shares or money be so applied by being added to the purchase money

Allottee's liability It being ultra vires for a limited company to issue shares at a discount or by way of bonus although authorized to do so by the articles the holders of such shares are not thereby relieved from liability in a winding up to call for the amounts unpaid on their shares 1

It is beyond the powers of a limited company, observed Lord Macnaghten, to limit the liability of shareholders in a manner inconsistent with the conditions of the memorandum of association. The directors therefore had no authority from the company to issue shares at a discount or on any terms relieving the shareholder from liability to pay in full. The shareholders had no power to authorize the directors to do on behalf of the company that which the company itself could not authorize them to do. The articles of association no doubt empower the directors to issue shares on such terms as they think fit consistently with the provisions of the Companies Acts. The articles in express terms purport to authorize the directors to issue shares at a discount. That provision however is in contravention of the statute and simply void. Neither the company nor the shareholders even if they had been unanimous, could have empowered the directors to do anything of the kind 1

To pay commission to a person for taking shares is akin to issuing shares at a discount, but they are not the same things, for if the company goes into liquidation before the commission is paid the whole amount of the shares can be called up but the shareholder will be an unsecured creditor for the commission and may not get in full 2

Rate of commission and payment of a lump sum If the articles of association allow commission at a specified rate a commission consisting of a lump sum cannot be paid 3. The payment of a small commission however e.g. 2½ per cent. to the brokers for their services as such is not ultra vires 4. The Court will look at the substance of the transaction and will prohibit a pretended purchase and resale which is in fact only a device to cover payment of a commission 3. The commission may however be of any amount 3. The payment of commission must be authorized by the articles, authority in the memorandum is not sufficient 5

Disclosure of commission A private company which had powers under its articles to pay commission to any person procuring subscription for its shares offered to the plaintiff a specified commission in consideration of her being the means of procuring any sum that they might receive from her introduction. The amount or rate of this commission was not disclosed in any statement prescribed by the Act. A person introduced by the plaintiff advanced money to the company who allotted shares in respect of it and paid to the plaintiff a sum on account and in part payment of the commission. The plaintiff sued for the balance of her commission and the company counter-claimed for the payment made. It was held (1) that the commission was not brokerage within the meaning of the section, (2) that it was unlawful as not disclosed under the provisions of the statute so the plaintiff could not recover the balance claimed and (3) that the company could not recover the sum already paid 6. Where a person applies for obtaining certain shares in the expectation of obtaining some commission or special gain

An underwriter who takes up shares on the faith of a prospectus containing untrue statements has the same right to repudiate the shares as any other subscriber. But in the case noted below the Court of Appeal in England decided an important and interesting point as observed by Lord Hewart M. R. at p. 28 of the report. The plaintiff's case was that he took shares in the company through certain sub-underwriters relying on some representations in the draft prospectus which was adopted by the company after incorporation. As these representations subsequently became falsified he claimed rescission of the contract removal of his name from the register of members and return of the money paid to the company. The plaintiff was the undisclosed principal of the sub-underwriters who gave him a letter of renunciation on the strength of which the plaintiff upon payment of the allotment money got his name registered in respect of those shares.

Their Lordships discussed the rights of an undisclosed principal and held that generally speaking he is entitled to enforce the contract made by the agent on his behalf, but this rule does not apply where the agent contracts in such terms as import that he is the real and only principal. A contract to become a member of a company is, in my opinion one of that class of contracts in which an undisclosed principal cannot insist on taking the place of a party apparently contracting on his own account. [Per Lawrence L. J. at p. 36.] In such a case it is not right to treat the agent as necessarily interchangeable with his principal so as to enable the principal to come forward and seek to disaffirm the contract on the ground of a misrepresentation on which he alone had relied.

As to the letter of renunciation it was held that the acceptance at a later date of the plaintiff could not be said to be an acceptance by the company of the plaintiff on the basis of the prospectus. The letter of renunciation printed on the allotment letter was in the following form:

When the balance (if any) due on the allotment has been paid by you this letter of allotment can be renounced until January 1923 in favour of any other person provided the form of renunciation below is duly completed and signed and that the person in whose favour the renunciation is made signs the form of acceptance also below. Renounced allotment letters must be forwarded to the transfer office of the company as shown on the reverse side of this letter on or before January 21, 1923. Thereafter it will only be possible to transfer such shares by deed in the ordinary way. Then comes the form for renunciation: 'To the Directors of the Associated Greyhound Racecourse Ltd. Gentlemen I/We hereby renounce my/our right to the within named shares and nominate to have all the benefits thereof. Signature of Holder.' Then there is a form of acceptance to be signed by the nominee: 'I/we hereby accept the nomination to the rights to the within named shares and I/we authorise you to place my/our name (s) on the register of members in respect of the said shares.' 2

The contract of underwriting is enforceable against the executors of the deceased underwriter and even if there are duties of finding capital, this is not such a personal contract as to expire with the contractor.

The company should see that all the underwriters have paid their application money and that their cheques have been cashed, otherwise in the event of the issue being a failure a few underwriters by combining not to pay the application money or stopping their cheques may prevent the company from going to allotment as was done in Wear & Western Canada Pulp & Paper Co 1. It should be remembered that it is a condition precedent to a valid allotment that the whole of the application money should have been paid to and received by the company in cash. Any means by which money can be remitted may be used, but the remittances or cheques must be cleared and the actual cash received by the company before allotment 1.

Where the underwriting commission was authorized by the articles not to exceed 10 per cent in agreement for underwriting shares upon a reconstruction of the company for a commission of 10 per cent was held to be perfectly legal 2.

The words "shares offered to the public" in sub s 1 cl (a) does not mean shares offered by a promoter to a few of his friends, relations or customers 3. For the meaning of "placing" shares is distinguished from "subscribing for shares" see Gorissen's case [1883] 8 Ch App 304, 317. For other cases see notes to s 2 [14] and s 92.

The expression "statement in the prescribed form" in sub s (1) cl (b) seems to allow a second statement in lieu of prospectus to be filed where the original statement did not disclose the intention to pay commission. The statement required to be filed under this sub section with the registrar disclosing the amount or rate of commission to be paid by the company in the case of shares not offered to the public must be filed before the shares are allotted 4.

Sub s (2). In respect of the words "apply any of the shares or capital money" in sub s (2) Lord Diver has said that they naturally mean "apply its capital either in the form of shares before issue when they may be described as potential capital or in the form of money derived from the issue of shares" 5 and following this dictum Warrington J has decided that commission cannot be paid out of premium payable to the company on the issue of the shares 6. Unless it is possible to make the issue of the shares the exclusive consideration for rendering the service contemplated under sub s (2) apart from the issue of capital the transaction will be in direct contravention of the said sub-section 7.

Sub s (3). The limits within which brokerage may be paid seems to be thus as pointed out by Lord Justice Lopes: "Where it is made out that the services of the broker are reasonably necessary, that the brokers are properly employed in the issue of the capital of the company and that the payment of the commission of so much per cent is a fair and just payment for services rendered" 8. A brokerage may be paid. It would not be safe to pay more than 1 per cent.

Shares may be issued at a premium and such premium may be regarded as profit available for paying dividend.

This section applies to private as well as public companies (see last note, last page) and commissions illegally paid can be recovered.

Power to issue shares at a discount 105A (1) Subject to the provisions of this section, it shall be lawful for a company to issue at a discount shares in the company of a class already issued.

Provided that—

- (a) the issue of the shares at a discount must be authorised by resolution passed in general meeting of the company and must be sanctioned by the Court,
- (b) the resolution must specify the maximum rate of discount (not exceeding ten per cent in any case) at which shares are to be issued,
- (c) not less than one year must at the date of issue have elapsed since the date on which the company was entitled to commence business,
- (d) the shares to be issued at a discount must be issued within six months after the date on which the issue is sanctioned by the Court or within such extended time as the Court may allow.

(2) Every prospectus relating to the issue of the shares and every balance-sheet issued by the company subsequently to the issue of the shares must contain particulars of the discount allowed on the issue of the shares or of so much of that discount as has not been written off at the date of the issue of the document in question.

(3) If default is made in complying with sub-section (2), the company and every officer of the company who is in default shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees.

Issue of redeemable preference shares 105B. (1) Subject to the provisions of this section, a company limited by shares may, if so authorised by its articles, issue preference shares which are, on at the option of the company are to be, liable to be redeemed.

Provided that—

- (a) no such shares shall be redeemed except out of profits of the company which would otherwise be available for dividend or out of the proceeds of a fresh issue of shares made for the purposes of the redemption or out of sale proceeds of any property of the company ,

- (b) no such shares shall be redeemed unless they are fully paid ,
- (c) where any such shares are redeemed otherwise than out of the proceeds of a fresh issue, there shall out of profits which would otherwise have been available for dividend be transferred to a reserve fund, to be called "the capital redemption reserve fund", a sum equal to the amount applied in redeeming the shares, and the provisions of this Act relating to the reduction of the share capital of a company shall, except as provided in this section, apply as if the capital redemption reserve fund were paid-up share capital of the company ,
- (d) where any such shares are redeemed out of the proceeds of a fresh issue, the premium, if any, payable on redemption must have been provided for out of the profits of the company before the shares are redeemed

(2) There shall be included in every balance-sheet of a company which has issued redeemable preference shares a statement specifying what part of the issued capital of the company consists of such shares and the date on or before which those shares are, or are to be, liable to be redeemed or, where no definite date is fixed for redemption, the period of notice to be given for redemption

If a company fails to comply with the provisions of this sub-section, the company and every officer of the company who is in default shall be liable to a fine not exceeding one thousand rupees

(3) Subject to the provisions of this section, the redemption of preference shares thereunder may be effected on such terms and in such manner as may be provided by the articles of the company

(4) Where in pursuance of this section a company has redeemed or is about to redeem any preference shares, it shall have power to issue shares up to the nominal amount of the shares redeemed or to be redeemed as if those shares had never been issued, and accordingly the share capital of the company shall not for the purpose of calculating the fees payable under section 249 be deemed to be increased by the issue of shares in pursuance of this sub-section

Provided that, where new shares are issued before the redemption of the old shares, the new shares shall not, so far as relates to stamp duty, be deemed to have been issued in pursuance of this sub-section unless the old shares are redeemed within one month after the issue of the new shares.

(3) Where new shares have been issued in pursuance of the last foregoing sub-section, the capital redemption reserve fund may, notwithstanding anything in this section, be applied by the company, up to an amount equal to the nominal amount of the shares so issued in paying up unissued shares of the company to be issued to members of the company as fully paid bonus shares.

105C When the directors decide to increase the capital of the company by the issue of further shares such shares shall be offered to the members in proportion to the existing shares held by each member (irrespective of class) and such offer shall be made by notice specifying the number of shares to which the member is entitled, and limiting a time within which the offer, if not accepted, will be deemed to be declined, and after the expiration of such time, or on receipt of an intimation from the member to whom such notice is given that he declines to accept the shares offered, the directors may dispose of the same in such manner as they think most beneficial to the company.

Amendment By the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936 the new sections 105A, 105B and 105C have been inserted. Sections 105A and 105B are almost a verbatim reproduction of ss 17 and 46 respectively of the English Act of 1929. S 105C is new. For the effects of these new sections see Introduction.

106 Where a company has paid any sums by way of commission in respect of any shares or debentures, or allowed any sums by way of discount in respect of any debentures, the total amount so paid or allowed, or so much thereof as has not been written off, shall be stated in every balance-sheet of the company until the whole amount thereof has been written off.

Issue of debentures Debentures may be lawfully issued at a discount but a scheme under which debentures so issued gave to the holders an immediate right to exchange them at their nominal value for shares is invalid as it is capable of being used as a means of issuing shares at a discount.

Payment of Interest out of Capital construction of any works or buildings or the provision of any plant which cannot be made profitable for a lengthened period, the company may pay interest on so much of that share capital as is for the time being paid up for the period and subject to the conditions and restrictions in this section mentioned, and may charge the same to capital as part of the cost of construction of the work or building, or the provision of plant

Provided that—

- (1) no such payment shall be made unless the same is authorised by the articles or by special resolution,
- (2) no such payment, whether authorised by the articles or by special resolution, shall be made without the previous sanction of the Local Government, which sanction shall be conclusive evidence, for the purposes of this section that the shares of the company, in respect of which such sanction is given, have been issued for a purpose specified in this section
- (3) before sanctioning any such payment, the Local Government may, at the expense of the company, appoint a person to inquire and report to such Local Government as to the circumstances of the case, and may, before making the appointment, require the company to give security for the payment of the costs of the inquiry
- (4) the payment shall be made only for such period as may be determined by the Local Government, and such period shall in no case extend beyond the close of the half year next after the half-year during which the works or buildings have been actually completed or the plant provided
- (5) the rate of interest shall in no case exceed four per cent per annum or such lower rate as the Governor General in Council may, by notification in the Gazette of India, prescribe
- (6) the payment of the interest shall not operate as a reduction of the amount paid up on the shares in respect of which it is paid,

- (7) the accounts of the company shall show the share capital on which, and the rate at which, interest has been paid out of capital during the period to which the accounts relate ;
- (8) nothing in this section shall affect any company to which the Indian Railway Companies Act, 1895, or the Indian Tramways Act, 1902, applies

Interest on advance before the call is made may be paid out of capital if so authorized by the articles, provided that the directors make the payment in good faith and in the honest exercise of their discretion. The interest is due to the shareholder in the capacity of a creditor 1

In the English Act 'Board of Trade' takes the place of the Local Government in the section. The words 'which sanction shall' in this section" in sub s (2) do not occur in the English Act

Certificates of Shares, etc

108 (1) Every company shall, within three months after the allotment of any of its shares, debentures or debenture stock, and within three months after the registration of the transfer of any such shares, debentures or debenture stock, complete and have ready for delivery the certificates of all shares, the debentures, and the certificates of all debenture stock allotted or transferred, unless the conditions of issue of the shares, debentures or debenture stock otherwise provide

(2) If default is made in complying with the requirements of this section, the company, and every officer of the company who is knowingly a party to the default, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees for every day during which the default continues

The company should not enter on the certificate any statement that it has a lien on the shares 2. A certificate is prima facie evidence of title of the person named therein 3

The holder in good faith for value of an untrue certificate has a right to damages against the company but not to the shares as against the true owner 4. If the certificate is a forgery the company comes under no liability 5 even when the forgery was the act of the secretary 6

In the absence of any evidence that the company has ever held out the secretary as having authority to do any thing more than the mere ministerial act of delivering share certificates when duly made to the true owners of the shares the company is not estopped by the forged certificate from disavowing the claim of the plaintiffs or responsible to them for the wrongful action of the secretary.¹

The certificate only shows the legal title to the shares and accordingly the person who relies upon the certificate should get his title made complete by taking a transfer to his own name and getting his name registered, otherwise a previous equitable title or a mortgage may intervene.²

The statement in a bill contained in a certificate that no transfer will be registered without production of the certificate does not render the company liable for any loss arising to a person holding the certificate nor is it a contract that a transfer would not be registered without its production.³ Such a note is a mere statement of the company's practice and is not a contract.⁴ But see the new S. 31 (3).

Apert from this section the certificates should be issued within a reasonable time.⁴
See notes to S. 29 and S. 83.

ment (if any) by which the mortgage or charge is created or evidenced, or a copy thereof verified in the prescribed manner, be filed with the registrar for registration in manner required by this Act within twenty-one days after the date of its creation, but without prejudice to any contract or obligation for repayment of the money thereby secured, and when a mortgage or charge becomes void under this section, the money secured thereby shall immediately become payable.

Provided that,—

- (i) in the case of a mortgage or charge created out of British India, comprising solely property situate outside British India twenty-one days after the date on which the instrument or copy could, in due course of post, and if despatched with due diligence, have been received in British India shall be substituted for twenty one days after the date of the creation of the mortgage or charge, as the time within which the particulars and instrument or copy are to be filed with the registrar, and
- (ii) where the mortgage or charge is created in British India but comprises property outside British India, the instrument creating or purporting to create the mortgage or charge, or a copy thereof verified in the prescribed manner, may be filed for registration, notwithstanding that further proceedings may be necessary to make the mortgage or charge valid or effectual according to the law of the country in which the property is situate, and

- (iv) the holding of debentures entitling the holder to a charge on immovable property shall not be deemed to be an interest in immovable property.

(2) If any mortgage or charge or any part of a company required to be created or filed with the registrar, or any copy thereof, is not so created or filed, or any such mortgage or charge or any part of such mortgage or charge is not so created or filed, the mortgage or charge shall be void.

By the Companies (Amendment) Act, 1936, the original s. 109 has been re-numbered as sub-s. (1) in which the original cl. (c) has been re-lettered as cl. (f) and the new cl. (e) has been inserted. By the said amending Act the new sub-s. (2) has been added. Under the old provisions of the Act a charge or mortgage created over movable property of the company other than book debts or the uncalled share capital was not required to be registered. The first amendment requires such charges or mortgages to be registered with certain qualifications. The second amendment is designed to affect transferees with notice as from the date of registration. See Introduction.

The provisions of this section relating to a mortgage or charge created by a company do not apply to a charge arising by operation of law 1

A 'debenture' means a document which either creates or acknowledges a debt 2. It is usually associated with a corporation of some kind. Debentures are usually bonds issued by a company for Rs. 100, and are offered to the public by means of a prospectus in the same manner as shares. The application for and allotment of debentures are also similar to those in the case of shares 3

As to what a "charge" is, the following observation of Lord Justice Atkin should be borne in mind: "I think there can be no doubt that where in a transaction for value both parties evince an intention that property existing or future shall be made available as security for the payment of a debt and that the creditors shall have a present right to have it made available, there is a charge even though the present legal right which is contemplated can only be enforced at some future date, and though the creditor gets no legal right of property, either absolute or special or any legal right to possession, but only gets the right to have the security made available by an order of the Court. If on the other hand the parties do not intend that there should be a present right to have the security made available, but only that there should be a right in the future by agreement such as a license to seize goods, there will be no charge" 4

The charge created by a debenture may either be 'fixed' or 'floating'. When the charge is 'fixed' it affects the title to the property and the company can only deal with the property affected subject to the charge. But when the charge is a 'floating' one the company may, in the ordinary course of business, deal with the property covered by the charge mortgaging, selling, disposing of it or using it up as the business requires, at any time before the charge attaches 5. The terms 'floating security' and 'floating charge' are synonymous 6. Lord Macnaghten lays down the principle that "a floating security is an equitable charge on the assets for the time being of a going concern, it attaches to the subject charged in the varying condition it happens to be from time to time. It is of the essence of such a charge that it remains dormant until the undertaking charged ceases to be a going concern or until the person in whose favour the charge is created intervenes. His right to intervene may of course be suspended by agreement. But if there is no agreement for suspension he may exercise his right whenever he pleases (last note, last page). For the meaning of floating charge see the case noted below 1.

1. floating charge on a part of a company's property is within this section 2. The principal tests whether the charge is a floating one are first if it is a charge upon all of a certain class of assets present or future; secondly if the assets charged would in the ordinary course of business be changing from time to time and thirdly if expressly or by necessary implication the company has the power until some step is taken by the debenture holders or trustees of carrying on its business in the ordinary way so far as regards the assets charged 3. In this last cited case the House of Lords held that a general charge on book debts present or future was a floating charge although not expressed to be so and that it required registration 3.

It is not an incident of a floating charge that the company can create further floating charges ranking pari passu with or in priority to it 4. In a recent case in the Cileutta High Court Chief Justice Sir George Rankin sitting with Mr Justice Mukherji has discussed the question of floating charge elaborately and their lordships have held that where there are other elements of a floating charge but possession is given to the lender this prevents the charge being a floating one 5.

A debenture holder cannot single out and take a particular debt or piece of property while allowing the company to trade with the rest of its assets 6. If the debenture gives no security on the assets of the company the debenture holder's position is no better than that of an unsecured creditor 7. Words in a debenture prohibiting a company from creating a prior charge are to be read strictly and they do not extend to defeat the rights obtained under a guarantee order 8. The conduct of a debenture holder's action begun by a person whose transactions with the company require investigation or whose interests are shown to be adverse to the remaining debenture holders may be given by the Court to an independent party 8. Where the security of debenture holders is limited to block machinery at real and goods it does not extend to the usufruct of the property and may be realised from leases 9.

Debentures may be for a fixed term of years or repayable on notice or irredeemable 10. They can be so framed as to be payable to bearer. The custom to treat debentures to bearers as negotiable by delivery is recognised by the law merchant 11.

Mortgage debentures usually contain a charge upon the undertaking of the company and all its property real or personal whether present or future and may or may not give a charge upon uncalled capital. A specific charge is one that without more fastens on ascertained or definite property or property capable of being ascertained and defined whereas a floating charge is ambulatory and shifting in its nature hovering over and so to speak floating with the property which it is intended to affect until some event occurs or some act is done which causes it to settle and fasten on the subject of the charge within its reach and grasp.¹ Where by the debenture the company charged its undertaking all its property, present and future including its uncalled capital the property included in the charge consisted of every asset of the company including its right to the renewal of a lease.²

Registration is notice to all the world of the existence of the debentures but not of their contents.³ A bank having notice that there were debentures which required to be filed or of the existence of the debentures ranking in priority to others is not to be held to have notice of the terms of such debentures so as to preclude it from making advances on a specific mortgage.³

Where debentures have been issued but not registered the company may, at any time before liquidation by arrangement with the holders cancel the debentures and issue new series in their place registering the new issue within 21 days.⁴ A deliberate issuing of substituted debentures every 14 days to avoid registration does not invalidate the final debenture if registered within 21 days of its issue.⁴ One debenture may be issued in the place of several redeemed debentures.⁵

Where the time for registration has been exceeded the company can by agreement with the holder cancel the unregistered debentures and issue fresh ones in place of them.⁶

If several companies issue joint debentures to secure a fund advanced for their mutual benefit a valid charge will be created on the assets of each company to the extent to which the fund has been applied to the purposes of that company.⁷

Where no place for payment of a debenture is provided the company must seek out the creditors if within the reach and pay them.⁸ Where there is a condition for payment of a sum at a time and place certain, the condition is not broken by non payment at the time unless the demand for payment is made at the specified place.⁸

The right to specific performance of the terms of a debenture would be destroyed where a company having power to do so forfeited the debentures for non payment of calls.⁹

The holder of a security may fall between two stools, as when a lender had registered an agreement to give him a floating charge and subsequently obtained within three months of the winding up a debenture containing the agreed charge it was held that neither the agreement nor the debenture was enforceable 1

In the absence of a special provision in the articles a mortgage debenture does not require seal. Even if the articles require debentures to be sealed, an unsealed debenture is good as an agreement to give a debenture 2

Where debentures are redeemable at a sum in excess of the amount advanced, duty is chargeable on the additional amount also 3. But where debentures are payable on a fixed date at par and a company merely has the option of redeeming them earlier at a premium no duty is payable on the premium 4. For Stamp see Appendix—'Stamp Duty'.

The Court may appoint a manager in a debenture holders' action provided the goodwill or business of the company is charged by the debentures expressly or by implication. A charge on all the company's properties and effects whatsoever is sufficient for the purpose 5. But if the company be a statutory one and of a public nature, its undertaking cannot be ordered to be sold 6, a sale of such property even with the sanction of the Court is a nullity 7.

In construing a debenture the Court cannot refer to the prospectus pursuant to which the debenture was issued 8.

The possession of a power to modify the terms on which debentures are secured bears some analogy to such a power as that conferred by s 20 which enables a majority of the shareholders by special resolution to alter the articles. These powers conferred on a majority must be exercised subject to a general principle which is applicable to all authorities conferred on majorities of classes enabling them to bind minorities, viz. that the power given must be exercised for the purpose of benefiting the class as a whole and not merely individual members only, subject to this the power may be unrestricted 9.

The date of the creation of a mortgage or charge by a company is the date when the instrument of mortgage or charge is executed and not the date when it is issued to the incumbrancer 10 or when any money is subsequently advanced on it 11. The registration must be effected within 21 days of such date. If it is not done so the mortgage or charge is void against the liquidator and the creditors of the company 12.

The parties to the transaction cannot alter the effect of the section by adopting a form which does not accord with the real transaction for instance, by executing a deed of assignment instead of a mortgage 1 But where the agreement is for an out and out sale it does not require registration under this section 2 It is an old law, and a plain law, that in transactions of this sort the Court must consider whether or not the documents really mark the true transaction If they merely mark the transaction the Court must have regard to the true position in substance and in fact and for this purpose fair way the mark or cloak that has been put upon the real transaction In Helby v Matthews 3 Lord Herschell states the principle that we have to follow, in the opening sentences of his speech My Lords it is said that the substance of the transaction evidenced by the agreement must be looked at and not its mere words I quite agree But the substance must of course be ascertained by a consideration of the rights and obligations of the parties to be derived from a consideration of the whole of the agreement 4 A mortgage of substituted property made pursuant to the provisions of a trust deed requires registration 5 unless debentures have been registered under the next section 6

The object of registration of charge under this section is to ensure means of notice to those who contemplate giving credit to the company But where through misapprehension an earlier mortgage was not at first registered but a later mortgagee who had registered his mortgage and his assignee had notice of the earlier mortgage and also notice of the defect of registration, the equitable doctrine enunciated by Lord Eldon in Davis v Earl of Strathmore 7 that a person who registered a mortgage with notice of a prior unregistered mortgage should not be allowed to obtain priority did not apply and the later mortgagee and his assignee were not precluded from relying on the section 8

A charge created by the directors of a company on its assets when the company is still a going concern is not illegal, but a charge created in favour of its officers is void when not registered 9

A mortgagee, even though he be a director, does not lose his security by an omission to see that it is entered on the register of mortgages 10, without concealment, although he does so if the mortgage is one that requires registration under this section and is not registered The priority of mortgages is not affected by any imperfection of the register kept by the company 11

It is necessary to file with the registrar the particulars of a mortgage by deposit of title deeds, whether or not it is accompanied by a memorandum of deposit 12

An agreement to give security if expressed so as to create a present equitable right to a security creates a charge and if not registered will be void as against the liquidator and any creditor of the company 1

In default of compliance with the provisions of this section as to registration a mortgage or charge will confer no security on the company's property or undertaking as against the liquidator or any creditor. This principle applies even where a subsequent registered incumbrancer had express notice of the prior mortgage at the time when he took his own security 2. A charge which is not registered under this section is void against all the creditors of a company irrespective of the date on which their debts accrued and the fact that decrees have been obtained on such unregistered mortgages prior to the winding up application does not take it out of the operation of this section. Such a decree holder cannot stand outside the winding up and realize his security, thereby diminishing the assets divisible among the creditors 3. This section does not however avoid absolutely a mortgage not registered with the registrar of companies, but only so far as any security given thereby on the company's property or undertaking. The effect therefore is that such a mortgage is valid as an admission. The Rangoon High Court has held that such a mortgage cannot be repudiated by the company itself so long as it is a going concern though it is void against the liquidator and the creditors in a winding up 4. If however the Court extends the time for registration under the provisions of s 120 and the mortgage is registered within that time, it constitutes a valid charge ab initio, that is, from the date of execution, subject only to such conditions as are imposed by the Court which extended the time 5.

The pledge of some goods lying at the customs house and the handing over of the delivery warrant as security for a debt constitute a charge requiring registration 6. A purported assignment of so much of a debt 'as may be necessary to indemnify the assignees against an advance' is a charge and as such requires registration because the Court will look not to the form but the real transaction 7.

An assignment of a book debt as security for the purpose of securing an existing debt constitutes a mortgage of that debt and unless it is registered as required by cl (d) the assignment will be inoperative as against the liquidator and the creditors of the company 8. But where a letter is an assignment of a part of a book debt and is not 'charge' within the meaning of this section, it does not require registration 9.

Bonus certificates giving debenture holders additional benefit to be paid out of the sale of lands secured by a trust deed create charges which require registra-

By the new s. 109A heavy penalties have been provided for omission by a company to register the particulars with the registrar as required by this section 1

109A (1) Where after the commencement of the Indian Companies (Amendment) Act, 1936, a company registered in British India acquires any property which is subject to a charge of any such kind as would, if it had been created by the company after the acquisition of the property, have been required to be registered under this Part the company shall cause the prescribed particulars of the charge together with a copy (certified in the prescribed manner to be a correct copy) of the instrument, if any, by which the charge was created or is evidenced, to be delivered to the registrar for registration in manner required by this Act within twenty-one days after the date on which the acquisition is completed :

Registration of charges on properties acquired subject to charge

Provided that, if the property is situate and the charge was created outside British India, twenty-one days after the date on which the copy of the instrument could in due course of post, and if despatched with due diligence, have been received in British India shall be substituted for twenty-one days after the completion of the acquisition as the time within which the particulars and the copy of the instrument are to be delivered to the registrar.

(2) If default is made in complying with this section, the company and every officer of the company who is knowingly and wilfully in default shall be liable to a fine of five hundred rupees.

This section is new. It has been inserted by the Companies (Amendment) Act, 1936. It is a reproduction of s. 81 of the English Act of 1929. See Introduction.

110 *Where a series of debentures containing, or giving by reference to any other instrument, any charge to the benefit of which the debenture-holders of that series are entitled pari passu is created by a company, it shall be sufficient for the purposes of section 109 if there are filed with the registrar within twenty-one days after the execution of the deed containing the charge or, if there is no such deed, after the execution of any debentures of the series, the following particulars —*

*Particulars in case of series of debentures entitling holders *pari passu

- (a) the total amount secured by the whole series ; and
- (b) the dates of the resolutions authorising the issue of the series and the date of the covering deed (if any) by which the security is created or defined ; and

- (c) a general description of the property charged, and
 (d) the names of the trustees (if any) for the debenture-holders, together with the deed or a copy thereof verified in the prescribed manner containing the charge or if there is no such deed, one of the debentures of the series, and the registrar shall, on payment of the prescribed fee, enter those particulars in the register

Provided that, where more than one issue is made of debentures in the series, there shall be filed with the registrar for entry in the register particulars of the date and amount of each issue, but an omission to do this shall not affect the validity of the debentures issued

The registration of a series of debentures protects not only debentures of that series properly issued but also documents purporting to be debentures of that series which owing to some technical defect can only be upheld as agreements for those debentures and it is not necessary to register the agreements separately 1

Protection of debentures
 Debentures ranking pari passu
 as a general rule debenture holders of the same series are entitled to rank pari passu inter se If such a debenture holder gets judgment, it counts for the benefit of all the debenture holders 2 If he obtains collateral security he holds it as a trustee for all 2

Where debentures are issued creating a charge it is usual to declare expressly that the charges created by all the debentures of the series are to rank equally and without priority of one over another If it is not so declared each debenture creates a charge ranking in priority to all others issued subsequently, but postponed to all issued before it 3

If there is a series entitled in one event to rank pari passu but not in another event and the registrar registers it under this section and certifies it as a series entitled pari passu that will not make the series rank pari passu 4 But this certificate will be conclusive under s 114 that the requirements of the section as to registration have been complied with 4 The certificate is also conclusive although some required particulars have not been given to the registrar or entered on the register 5

This section provides for an alternative mode of registration 6 and it is applicable both to debentures and debenture stock 7

Book debts means debts arising in a business in which it is the proper and usual course to keep books and which ought to be entered in such books and are not confined to debts which are actually entered in the books—per Esher M R in Official Receiver v. Taylor 1 As to how a charge may be created in book debts see Gormage v. I cell India Rubber Works 2 Where a bill of exchange has actually been entered in the books of the company it is a book debt [Du sor v. Isle] 3 Future book debts can be charged [Taylor v. Official Receiver] 4

111 Where any commission, allowance or discount has been paid or made either directly or indirectly by the company to any person in consideration of his subscribing or agreeing to subscribe, whether absolutely or conditionally, for any debentures of the company, or procuring or agreeing to procure subscriptions, whether absolute or conditional, for any such debentures, the particulars required to be filed for registration under sections 109 and 110 shall include particulars as to the amount or rate per cent of the commission, discount or allowance so paid or made, but an omission to do this shall not affect the validity of the debentures issued

Provided that the deposit of any debentures as security for any debt of the company shall not for the purposes of this provision be treated as the issue of the debentures at a discount

This section recognizes the legality of issuing debentures at a discount

112 (1) The registrar shall keep with respect to each company, a register in the prescribed form of all mortgages and charges created by the company after the commencement of this Act and requiring registration under section 109, and shall, on payment of the prescribed fee, enter in the register, with respect to every such mortgage or charge, the date of creation, the amount secured by it, short particulars of the property mortgaged or charged, and the names of the mortgagees or persons entitled to the charge

(2) After making the entry required by sub-section (1), the registrar shall return the instrument (if any) or the verified copy thereof, as the case may be, filed in accordance with the provisions of section 109 or section 110, to the person filing the same

(3) The register kept in pursuance of this section shall be open to inspection by any person on payment of the prescribed fee, not exceeding one rupee for each inspection

Sub s (2) does not occur in the English Act

113 The registrar shall keep a chronological index, in the prescribed form and with the prescribed particulars, of the mortgages or charges registered with him under this Act

Index to register of mortgages and charges

114 The registrar shall give a certificate under his hand of the registration of any mortgage or charge registered in pursuance of section 109, stating the amount thereby secured, and the certificate shall be conclusive evidence that the requirements of sections 109 to 112 as to registration have been complied with

Certificate of registration

Where the certificate identified the instrument of charge and stated that the mortgage or charge thereby created had been duly registered it must be understood as certifying the due registration of all the charges created by the instrument including that of chattels and it is conclusive evidence of the due registration of the chattels notwithstanding the omission to mention them is not merely defective but misleading. If after the issue of debentures a certificate of registration is obtained under this section nothing done subsequently by way of alteration by the registrar of his own accord affects the validity of the documents as between the company and the debenture holder.

Certificate conclusive

Where motor cars were garaged at the factory and loaded there with products of the factory they were held to be plants used in or about the premises within the meaning of the word of charge.

For other cases see notes to s 110

115 The company shall cause a copy of every certificate of registration, given under section 114, to be endorsed on every debenture or certificate of debenture stock which is issued by the company, and the payment of which is secured by the mortgage or charge so registered

Endorsement of certificate of registration on debenture or certificate of debenture stock

Provided that nothing in this section shall be construed as requiring a company to cause a certificate of registration of any mortgage or charge so given to be endorsed on any debenture or certificate of debenture stock which has been issued by the company before the mortgage or charge was created.

116 (1) It shall be the duty of the company to file with the registrar, for registration, the prescribed particulars of every mortgage or charge created by the company and of the issues of debentures of a series requiring registration under section 109, but registration of any such mortgage or charge may be effected on the application of any person interested therein

Duty of company and right of interested party as regards registration

(2) Where the registration is effected on the application of some person other than the company, that person shall be entitled to recover from the company the amount of any fees properly paid by him to the registrar on the registration

(3) Whenever the terms or conditions or extent or operation of any mortgage or charge registered under this section are modified, it shall be the duty of the company to send to the registrar the particulars of such modification, and the provisions of this section as to registration of mortgage or a charge shall apply to such modification of the mortgage or charge as aforesaid

for its effect see Introduction

117 Every company shall cause a copy of every instrument creating any mortgage or charge requiring registration under section 109 to be kept at the registered office of the company. Provided that, in the case of a series of uniform debentures, a copy of one such debenture shall be sufficient

Copy of instrument creating mortgage or charge to be kept at registered office

118 (1) If any person obtains an order for the appointment of a receiver of the property of a company, or appoints such a receiver under any powers contained in any instrument, he shall, within fifteen days from the date of the order or of the appointment under the powers contained in the instrument, file notice of the fact with the registrar, and the registrar shall, on payment of the prescribed fee, enter the fact in the register of mortgages and charges

Registration of appointment of receiver

(2) If any person makes default in complying with the requirements of this section, he shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees for every day during which the default continues

A receiver will be appointed if the company's business is practically at an end and the only asset remaining is a reserve fund created out of profits earned at an earlier date 1, or if the business is about to be shut down 2. When a receiver has been appointed and any application to the Court becomes necessary it should be made by the person who has appointed or procured the appointment of the receiver 3.

A receiver who has been appointed under the terms of a mortgage debenture issued by a company is the agent of the company and not of the debenture holders, and in the absence of a notice of a claim against the company, he is under no personal liability to refund moneys which he has paid into a receivership account 4. Where after the appointment of a receiver by the debenture holders in exercise of the power conferred by the debenture the company goes into liquidation, the receiver is entitled to enforce the right to obtain renewal of a lease notwithstanding the liquidation 5. "It is perfectly true (and it has been laid down over and over again)", observed Romer L. J. "that where, as happened in this case, the debenture or trust deed securing the debentures contains the usual clause that the receiver appointed under the deed shall be deemed to be the agent of the company, that the winding-up of the company or the compulsory liquidation of the company puts an end to the agency. But it does not put an end in any way to the powers of the receiver. In my opinion when this liquidation order was made, the right of the receiver to proceed in the name of the company in the County Court was in no wise affected" 6.

As to a receiver's power to make contracts and his personal liability in this respect see Moss Steamship Co v Wharvey 7. A receiver and manager when duly appointed by the lender under the terms of a debenture has an implied power to sue in the company's name for the purpose of getting in any property charged or for rescission of a contract or alternatively for specific performance 8.

The receiver will not be personally liable for loans made in pursuance of leave given to him by the Court to borrow money unless he has taken that liability upon himself by the terms of the loan 9. Where a receiver has not applied to the Court for leave to employ an agent the latter is not entitled to any commission, but the Court has a discretion to award him such compensation for his efforts as the Court considers just in the circumstances of the particular case 10.

The Court has no jurisdiction to appoint a receiver except in a debenture holder's action. If it is necessary to protect the assets other means must be sought which are provided in the Companies Act 11.

If the debentures confer on a named debenture holder the power to appoint a receiver of the property charged the power is fiduciary and must be exercised for the benefit of the debenture holders generally 1 Such an appointment does not oust the jurisdiction of the Court to appoint a receiver 2 On the other hand a winding up by the Court does not take away the right of the debenture holders to have a receiver but in the absence of special circumstances the official liquidator should be appointed receiver to avoid expense and conflict 3

A receiver appointed by the Court is its officer and any interference with his possession is a contempt of Court 4 He may be discharged if his appointment has been procured by means of a misleading affidavit 5

The action for a receiver may be commenced before there is any default and if default occurs before the hearing the appointment may be made 6 A receiver may be appointed even before the principal or interest is in arrears if the assets are in danger 7 or a sale will be necessary in the near future 8 or in a case of jeopardy 9

The publication of injurious misrepresentations concerning parties to proceedings such as a receiver in a debenture holders action in relation to those proceedings may amount to contempt of Court because it may cause those parties to discontinue or to compromise and because it may deter persons with good causes of action from coming to Court and is thus likely to affect the course of justice 10

119 (1) Every receiver of the property of a company who has been appointed under the powers contained in any instrument, and who has taken possession, shall once in every half-year while he remains in possession, and also on ceasing to act as receiver, file with the registrar an abstract, in the prescribed form of his receipts and payments during the period to which the abstract relates and shall also on ceasing to act as receiver file with the registrar notice to that effect and the registrar shall enter the notice in the register of mortgages and charges

(2) Where a receiver of the property of a company has been appointed, every invoice, order for goods, or business letter issued by or on behalf of the company, or the receiver of the company, being a document on or in which the name of the company appears, shall contain a statement that a receiver has been appointed

(3) If default is made in complying with the requirements of this section, the company and every director, manager, managing agent, secretary or other officer of the company and every receiver who knowingly and wilfully authorises or permits the default, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding two hundred rupees.

Amend- By the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936 sub sections (2) and (3) have been substituted for the original sub s (2). These two new sub sections have been taken from s 108 of the English Act of 1900. See Introduction. The original sub s (2) was as follows —

(2) Every receiver who makes default in complying with the provisions of this section shall be liable to a fine not exceeding five hundred rupees.

120 Rectification of register of mortgages (1) The Court, on being satisfied that the omission to register a mortgage or charge within the time required by section 109, or that the omission or misstatement of any particular with respect to any such mortgage or charge, or the omission to give intimation to the registrar of the payment or satisfaction of a debt for which a charge or mortgage was created was accidental, or due to inadvertence or to some other sufficient cause, or is not of a nature to prejudice the position of creditors or shareholders of the company, or that on other grounds it is just and equitable to grant relief, may, on the application of the company or any person interested, and on such terms and conditions as seem to the Court just and expedient, order that the time for registration be extended, or, as the case may be, that the omission or misstatement be rectified, and may make such order as to the costs of the application as it thinks fit.

(2) Where the Court extends the time for the registration of a mortgage or charge, the order shall not prejudice any rights acquired in respect of the property concerned prior to the time when the mortgage or charge is actually registered.

Amend- By the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936 the original s 120 has been renumbered as sub s (1) and the words in italics have been inserted therein. By the same Act the new sub s (2) has been added. For the effect of the amendments see Introduction.

An accident is a mishap or untoward event not expected or intended while the word inadvertence includes ignorance of the provisions requiring registration. Here the words accidental or due to inadvertence have a very wide meaning.

1 Fenton v. Thorley & Co [1903] 1 A.C. 413.

3 Tuckson & Co [1911] 1 Ch. 318.

The order under this section is usually expressed to be without prejudice to the rights of parties acquired prior to the time when such charge shall be a fully registered 1, but the Court will not necessarily impose any terms for the protection of the un-secured creditors 2. The usual proviso, namely, that the order will be without prejudice to the rights of parties acquired prior to the date of actual registration only protects creditors who have acquired a security on the property the subject matter of the charge the Court will not insert in the order any terms for the protection of un-secured creditors of the company 3.

If the debentures are registered under an order such as the above before the company goes into liquidation an ordinary un-secured creditor at the date when the debentures are registered is not entitled to rank pari passu with the holders of such debentures unless he has taken steps to enforce his claim 4.

When an order extending the time is made in the usual terms as stated above and before actual registration a winding up commences the mortgage or charge, if subsequently registered will not be effective against the general body of creditors 5.

The last words of sub-s (1) and may make things fit are not in the English Act.

Sub-s (2) The new sub-section (2) makes it clear that the extension of time will not prejudice any right acquired before the actual registration within the extended time. But even before the amending Act it was held that the subsequent registration of a mortgage by leave of the Court could not affect the position in which that mortgage stood or in other words a mortgage registered within 21 days of its execution had priority over a mortgage of an earlier date which was subsequently registered after an extension of time 6.

121 (1) It shall be the duty of the company to give intimation to the registrar of the payment or satisfaction of any charge or mortgage created by the company and requiring registration under section 109 within twenty-one days from the date of the payment or satisfaction thereof.

(2) The registrar shall on receipt of such intimation cause a notice to be sent to the mortgagee calling upon him to show cause, within a time (not exceeding fourteen days) to be fixed by such notice, why the payment or satisfaction of the charge or mortgage should not be recorded.

(3) The registrar shall, if no cause is shown, order that a memorandum of satisfaction be entered on the register and shall if required furnish the company with a copy thereof

(4) Where cause is shown, the registrar shall record a note of that effect in the register and shall inform the company that he has done so

This section is new By the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936 this section has been substituted for the original section 121 which empowered the registrar on proof of satisfaction of a mortgage or charge to record the satisfaction in the register It was not obligatory on a company or the mortgagee to have such satisfaction recorded and the records of the registrar might accordingly remain incomplete The amendments were designed to remedy this defect

The original s 121 was as follows

121 The registrar may on evidence being given to his satisfaction that the debt for which any registered mortgage or charge was given has been paid or satisfied order that a memorandum of satisfaction be entered on the register and shall if required furnish the company with a copy thereof

Where a memorandum of satisfaction is executed by the company under a misapprehension, it may be ordered by the Court to be cancelled 1 When once a certificate of registration has been given by the registrar it is unnecessary for the secured creditors to take any steps to rectify the register however defective or misleading it may be 2

Relief has been granted where there was delay owing to misunderstanding as to the documents requiring registration where the secretary bona fide believed that owing to the date of the resolution allotting the debentures the Act did not apply to them where a deed had been sent to India before the Act came into force for execution and registration there but was not executed until after the Act came into force where the secretary was imperfectly acquainted with the Act and where there was a difficult question whether registration was necessary or not 3

122 (1) If any company makes default in filing with the registrar for registration the particulars—

- (a) of any mortgage or charge created by the company, or
 (b) of the payment or satisfaction of a debt in respect of which a mortgage or charge has been registered, or
 (c) of the issues of debentures of a series requiring registration with the registrar under the foregoing provisions of this Act, then, unless the registration has been effected on the application of some other person, the company, and every officer of the company or other person who is knowingly a party to the default, shall on conviction be liable to a fine not exceeding five hundred rupees for every day during which the default continues

(2) Subject as aforesaid, if any company makes default in complying with any of the requirements of this Act as to the registration with the registrar of any mortgage or charge created by the company, the company, and every officer of the company who knowingly and wilfully authorises or permits the default shall without prejudice to any other liability, be liable on conviction to a fine not exceeding one thousand rupees

(3) If any person knowingly and wilfully authorises or permits the delivery of any debenture or certificate of debenture stock requiring registration with the registrar under the foregoing provisions of this Act without a copy of the certificate of registration being endorsed upon it, he shall, without prejudice to any other liability, be liable on conviction to a fine not exceeding one thousand rupees

Amendment By the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936 in sub s (1) the original cl (b) has been relettered as cl (c) and the new cl (b) has been inserted. For the effect of the amendments see Introduction

Meaning of knowingly and wilfully authorising or permitting a party Where directors instruct the secretary to register the security and he omits to do so they are not knowingly and wilfully authorising or permitting the omission

Meaning of issued Debentures sealed but not delivered are not issued. 2. Debentures agreed to be issued will be treated as issued.

123 (1) Every company shall keep a register of mortgages and enter therein all mortgages and charges specifically affecting property of the company, and all floating charges on the undertaking or on any property of the company giving in each case a short description of the property mortgaged or charged, the amount of the mortgage or charge and (except in the case of securities to bearer) the names of the mortgagees or persons entitled thereto

(2) If any director, manager or other officer of the company knowingly and wilfully authorises or permits the omission of any entry required to be made in pursuance of this section, he shall be liable to a fine not exceeding five hundred rupees.

By the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936 the word 'limited' in the first line after Amendment the word 'Every' has been omitted and the words in italics have been inserted. For the effect of the amendment see Introduction. The amendment makes it clear that the provisions of the section apply to floating charges as well.

A company has no power to borrow money unless the memorandum or articles of association so provide, but it can do so if such borrowing is incidental to the course of the company's business. The ordinary trading company has an implied power to borrow money for the purposes of its business and to give security for its repayment even though no power to do so has been conferred by the memorandum or the articles. Where the memorandum mentions as a purpose of the company the disposing of its landed property the company can mortgage it unless expressly prohibited from doing so. In the absence of any prohibition a company may secure a past debt by deposit of title deeds.

A company having power to borrow can give a mortgage or charge over all its property including book debts not yet due or on its uncalled capital except that capital which can be called up only in the event of a winding up. A power to mortgage the property of the company or its 'property and effects' or its 'undertaking and property present and future' does not however authorize a charge on the uncalled capital. But if the company is authorized to mortgage its assets or its property and rights or its 'property and effects' or in such other manner as the company may determine it can create a charge over its uncalled capital. If the company has only a limited power to borrow a loan beyond the limit and all securities for it are void.

A charge created by the directors on the assets of the company when it is still a going concern is not illegal, but a charge created in favour of the officers of the company is void if it is not registered under this section. A person who ceases to hold any office at the time of creation of the charge is however not an officer of the company within the meaning of this section.

It should be noted that in the corresponding section (s 68) of the Indian Act VI of 1882 there occurred the following explanation: Omission to register under the section a mortgage or charge does not render the same invalid. But the officers of the company cannot avail themselves as such of a mortgage or charge specifically affecting property of the company and not so registered. This has been omitted in the present Act.

Non registration does not affect the validity of the charge the only penalty being the statutory fine 1

Right to inspect copies of instruments creating mortgages and charges and company's register of mortgages

124 (1) The copies kept at the registered office of the company in pursuance of section 117 of instruments creating any mortgage or charge requiring registration under this Act with the register, and the register of mortgages kept in pursuance of section 123 shall be open at all reasonable times to the inspection of any creditor or member of the company without fee, and the register of mortgages shall also be open to the inspection of any other person on payment of such fee, not exceeding one rupee for each inspection, as the company may prescribe.

(2) If inspection of the said copies or register is refused, the company shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees and a further fine not exceeding twenty rupees for every day during which the refusal continues and every officer of the company who knowingly authorises or permits the refusal shall incur the like penalty, and in addition to the above penalty, the Court may by order compel an immediate inspection of the copies or register.

The right given to the holders of stock and debentures of inspecting the registers is not confined to an inspection of the names and addresses only it may be exercised without assigning any reason and can be enforced by an injunction 2. The right to inspect the register of mortgages involves a right to take copies of the same 3. But as the section does not give the person inspecting a right to have a copy supplied on payment the case seems to be different from that of the register of members 4. The person inspecting the register of the holders of debentures cannot however take a copy himself 5.

In the case noted below 6 income stock certificates were held to be debentures and the holders of those certificates were held to be entitled to inspection of the register.

thereof. The register of mortgages should be open to inspection by any creditor or member of the company or his solicitor or agent 1

Effect of winding up of the Court 2. Upon a winding up the register cannot be inspected without an order of the Court 2. The word books in s 156 of the English Act of 1862 which corresponds to s 241 post includes the register of mortgages 2

125 (1) Every register of holders of debentures of a company shall, except when closed in accordance with the articles during such period or periods (not exceeding in the whole thirty days in any year) as may be specified in the articles be open to the inspection of the registered holder of any such debentures and of any holder of shares in the company, but subject to such reasonable restrictions as the company may in general meeting impose, so that at least two hours in each day be appointed for inspection, and every such holder may require a copy of the register or any part thereof on payment of six annas for every one hundred words or fractional part thereof required to be copied

(2) A copy of any trust-deed for securing any issue of debentures shall be forwarded to every holder of any such debentures at his request on payment in the case of a printed trust-deed of the sum of one rupee or such less sum as may be prescribed by the company or, where the trust-deed has not been printed, on payment of six annas for every one hundred words or fractional part thereof required to be copied

(3) If inspection is refused, or a copy is refused or not forwarded, the company shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees, and to a further fine not exceeding twenty rupees for every day during which the refusal continues, and every officer of the company who knowingly authorises or permits the refusal shall incur the like penalty and the Court may by order compel an immediate inspection of the register

Right to inspect. The right to inspect the register does not include the right to take extracts from or to take copies of the entries in the register (see note in margin) but a copy may be obtained on payment of the prescribed fee

Debtors and the register

126 A condition contained in any debentures or in any deed for securing any debentures whether issued or executed before or after the passing of this Act, shall not be invalid by reason only that thereby the debentures are made irredeemable or redeemable only on the

happening of a contingency, however remote, or on the expiration of a period, however long

This section provides that a condition which would be a clog on the equity of redemption in the case of a mortgage given by an individual shall not be invalid in the case of debentures issued by a company. But it has been held that under the ordinary law any provision in a debenture or trust deed which amounts to a clog or fetter upon the company's power to redeem the property charged whether specifically or by way of floating charge is void in the case of a company as completely as in the case of an individual. Subject to this section the equitable principle that a mortgage cannot be made irredeemable seems to apply to other mortgage transactions of companies. 3

Where the debenture becomes enforceable on the happening of certain events the debenture holders have a right to require payment on the happening of those events but they do not put the debenture holders in a position of being compelled to accept payment. Where the events are entirely within the control of the company it cannot by determining the event compel the debenture holders to accept his money at a moment's notice. 4 But debenture holders cannot refuse to accept payment in the company being compulsorily wound up. 5

Where debentures become enforceable on the happening of certain events but can only be compulsorily redeemed by the company by payment of a premium thereon, the grantors of the interest of such debentures can give the usual notice to such debenture holders and pay them off their principal and interest but without being under the necessity to pay them the premium that the company would have had to pay, if they had wished to pay off the debentures before the security became enforceable. 6

The death of a registered holder of debentures does not relieve the company of the obligation to seek out its creditors the company having been informed before who the person was to whom a tender should be made. 7

The condition of debentures issued by a private company made the principal money thereby secured immediately payable in certain events and provided that no action shall be taken under this debenture except with the consent in writing of a majority of the debenture-holders, the meaning of the terms being defined. The principal money secured by some of the debentures became payable under the conditions and an action was brought to recover the principal with interest. The consent in writing mentioned above had not however been obtained. It was held (1) that there is nothing illegal in a restriction in a debenture deed on the rights of a debenture holder, so that a provision that a majority of the debenture holders may by resolution modify the terms of the debentures or fetter or restrict the rights of the debenture holders is legitimate provided that the majority act in good faith and not by way of oppressing any individual debenture holder, (2) that the condition under consideration was not repugnant to the previous condition making the principal money immediately payable in certain events and as it was a condition precedent which had not been fulfilled judgment must be given for the defendant.

Restriction on rights of debenture holder—not illegal
Constructive of debenture deed
 A company issued debentures which it covenanted to pay off on or after January 1st 1898 the debentures to be paid off being selected by ballot, and six months notice being given to the holders thereof. The company contended that the debentures were repayable after the above date only after a ballot had been held and six months notice had been given to the holders of the drawn debentures. It was held that inasmuch as the covenant created a liability to pay off on or after the date specified upon demand the clause seeking to limit its operation to such debentures as should be drawn by ballot was void for repugnancy.

Where the combined effect of the debentures and trust deed executed by a company was to give a floating charge on its assets and it was provided therein that the principal money thereby secured should become immediately payable if an order was made or an effective resolution passed for winding up the company it was held that when the business of the company came to an end by winding up the security ceased to be a floating one and the debentures became immediately payable and the security became enforceable. As to how the amount due to each debenture holder for interest and principal should be calculated in a case where a series of debentures are issued to rank pari passu as a floating charge see the case noted below.

Stock which is expressed to be redeemable at the option of the company is not repayable on the demand of the holder.

Power to modify terms
 To give a power to modify the terms on which debentures in a company are secured is not uncommon in practice. The business interests of the company may render such a power expedient even in the interest of the class of debenture holders as a whole. The provision is usually made in the form of a power conferred by the instrument constituting the debenture security upon the majority of the class of holders. It often enables them to modify by special resolution properly passed the security itself. The provision of such a power to a majority bears some analogy to such a power as that conferred by s. 13 of the English Companies Act of 1908 (s. 20 of this Act) which enables a majority of the shareholders by a special resolution to alter the articles of association. See notes to s. 109.

127. (1) Where either before or after the commencement of this Act a company has redeemed any debentures previously issued, the company, unless the articles or the conditions of issue expressly otherwise provide, or unless the debentures have been redeemed in pursuance of any obligation on the company so to do (not being an obligation enforceable only by the person to whom the redeemed debentures were issued or his assigns), shall have power, and shall be deemed always to have had power, to keep the debentures alive for the purposes of re-issue, and where a company has purported to exercise such a power, the company shall have power, and shall be deemed always to have had power, to re-issue the debentures, either by re-issuing the same debentures or by issuing other debentures in their place, and upon such re-issue, the person entitled to the debentures shall have, and shall be deemed always to have had, the same rights and priorities as if the debentures had not previously been issued

(2) Where with the object of keeping debentures alive for the purpose of re-issue, they have, either before or after the commencement of this Act, been transferred to a nominee of the company, a transfer from that nominee shall be deemed to be a re-issue for the purposes of this section

(3) Where a company has, either before or after the commencement of this Act, deposited any of its debentures to secure advances from time to time on current account or otherwise, the debentures shall not be deemed to have been redeemed by reason only of the account of the company having ceased to be in debit whilst the debentures remained so deposited

(4) The re-issue of a debenture or the issue of another debenture in its place under the power by this section given to, or deemed to have been possessed by, a company, whether the re-issue or issue was made before or after the commencement of this Act, shall be treated as the issue of a new debenture for the purposes of stamp-duty, but it shall not be so treated for the purposes of any provision limiting the amount or number of debentures to be issued.

Provided that any person lending money on the security of a debenture re-issued under this section, which appears to be duly stamped, may give the debenture in evidence in any proceedings for enforcing his security without payment of the stamp-duty or any penalty in respect thereof, unless he had notice or, but for his negligence, might have discovered, that the debenture was not duly stamped, but in any such case the company shall be liable to pay the proper stamp-duty and penalty.

(5) Nothing in this section shall prejudice—

- (a) the operation of any decree or order of a Court of competent jurisdiction pronounced or made before the twenty-fifth day of February, 1910, as between the parties to the proceedings in which the decree or order was made, and any appeal from any such decree or order shall be decided as if this Act had not been passed ; or
- (b) any power to issue debentures in the place of any debentures paid off or otherwise satisfied or extinguished, reserved to a company by its debentures or the securities for the same.

Effect of sub s (1) Sub sec (1) nullifies the effect of the decision of the Court of Appeal in George Routledge & Sons 1 which declared that a company could not re-issue any debenture which it had paid off unless it was a condition of the original issue that the company should have such power

In sub-sec (1) the word "always" means "before the passing of this Act" 2

Effect of sub-s (1). Sub sec. (1) counteracts the effect of London Petroleum & Trust v Russian Petroleum Co 3 which held in a case where debentures were deposited to secure advances on current account and the advances were repud while the debentures remained so deposited, that the debentures had been redeemed and the security was gone

Section is retrospective The section is retrospective except as to cases decided by a Court of competent jurisdiction before 25th February, 1910. A winding up order made before that date is not an "order" within the meaning of sub sec (3) 4

128. A contract with a company to take up and pay for any debentures of the company may be enforced by a decree for specific performance

Specific performance of contract to subscribe for debentures

Specific performance In the case of debentures issued by a company this section relieves the rule that specific performance cannot be granted in respect of a contract to lend money even to a company as was held in South African Territories v. Wallington 1 Where a loan has been made the Court will however decree specific performance of an agreement to give security 2

Where it will not be granted A company after forfeiting debentures for failure to pay calls is not entitled under this section to an order for specific performance of a contract to take an issue for debentures notwithstanding the articles of association containing a stipulation purporting to be applicable to such debentures that a shareholder after forfeiture of shares shall still be liable for calls as if the shares had not been forfeited 3

129 (1) Where either a receiver is appointed on behalf of the holders of any debentures of a company secured by a floating charge, or possession is taken by or on behalf of those debenture-holders of any property comprised in or subject to the charge, then, if the company is not at the time in course of being wound up, the debts which in every winding up are under the provisions of Part V relating to preferential payments to be paid in priority to all other debts, shall be paid forthwith out of any assets coming to the hands of the receiver or other person taking possession as aforesaid in priority to any claim for principal or interest in respect of the debentures.

(2) The periods of time mentioned in the said provisions of Part V shall be reckoned from the date of the appointment of the receiver or of possession being taken as aforesaid, as the case may be.

(3) Any payments made under this section shall be recouped, as far as may be, out of the assets of the company available for payment of general creditors.

The debts entitled to preferential payment in the winding up are specified in s 201 in cases see notes to that section

Preferential payments Where a receiver is appointed or takes possession of property as mentioned in this section the right of preferential payment of one year's assessment of income tax remains notwithstanding that the assessment is not made until after the date of appointment of the receiver or of his taking possession 4 A receiver and manager appointed by the debenture-holders who after notice of any claim that is preferential under the section pays away the company's assets to ordinary creditors in the process of carrying on its business without making or attempting to make any

provision for the preferential claim, is guilty of a breach of the provisions of this section and is liable in damages 1

Where in a debenture holder's action the assets prove insufficient they are applicable in the following order (1) costs of realization, (2) costs including remuneration of the receiver (3) costs charges and expenses of debenture trust deed including the trustees remuneration (4) plaintiff's costs of action, (5) preferential creditors and lastly (6) the debenture holders 2 For what has been held to be preferential payments under this section see the cases noted below 3

When the receiver is appointed by a debenture-holder whose debenture is secured by both a fixed and floating charge, the priority given to the preferential debts applies only in respect of assets subject to the floating charge 4 In the last noted case at p 12 Lawrence LJ observes 'S 107 (s 129 of the Indian Act) is directed specifically to debentures secured by a floating charge and to those only and intended to provide for the payment out of the assets subject to the floating charge of those debts which under the provisions of s 200 (s 230 of the Indian Act) would be entitled

Priority to priority in the case of a winding up in priority to the claims of the debenture-holders under the floating charge In my judgment the fact that the debenture in the present case is one which combines with the floating charge a fixed charge, does not bring the section into operation as against the assets comprised in the fixed charge 5

A receiver appointed at the instance of a debenture holder cannot be allowed to disregard the former contracts entered into by the company before the appointment of the receiver 5

The security of the debenture holders cannot be said to be 'in jeopardy' unless there is a risk of some portion of it being seized or taken to pay claims which are not really prior to the claims of the debenture holders The Court refused Jeopardy to appoint a receiver on the ground of jeopardy where the debenture holders merely showed that their security if realized would be insufficient to pay principal and interest in full but could not show any damage to outside creditors seizing the assets 6

There is jeopardy where practically the only assets of a company consists in its reserve fund and the company proposes to distribute that among its shareholders without making provision for the debenture holders In such a case where nothing has otherwise occurred to make the debenture security enforceable the Court appointed a receiver and thus ex facto made the debenture security enforceable 7

The jeopardy must be from some act which would be wrongful as against the debenture holder, or which amounts to a destruction of his security If there is a specific charge on part of the assets and a floating charge on the rest and execution

Specific performance In the case of debentures issued by a company this section relaxes the rule that specific performance cannot be granted in respect of a contract to lend money even to a company as was held in South African Territories v. Wullington 1. Where a loan has been made the Court will however decree specific performance of an agreement to give security 2.

Where it will not be granted A company after forfeiting debentures for failure to pay calls is not entitled under this section to an order for specific performance of a contract to take and pay for debentures notwithstanding the articles of association containing a stipulation purporting to be applicable to such debentures that a shareholder after forfeiture of shares shall still be liable for calls as if the shares had not been forfeited 3.

129 (1) Where either a receiver is appointed on behalf of the holders of any debentures of a company secured by a floating charge, or possession is taken by or on behalf of those debenture-holders of any property comprised in or subject to the charge, then, if the company is not at the time in course of being wound up, the debts which in every winding up are under the provisions of Part V relating to preferential payments to be paid in priority to all other debts, shall be paid forthwith out of any assets coming to the hands of the receiver or other person taking possession as aforesaid in priority to any claim for principal or interest in respect of the debentures.

(2) The periods of time mentioned in the said provisions of Part V shall be reckoned from the date of the appointment of the receiver or of possession being taken as aforesaid, as the case may be.

(3) Any payments made under this section shall be recouped, as far as may be, out of the assets of the company available for payment of general creditors.

The debts entitled to preferential payment in the winding up are specified in s. 30. In cases see notes to that section.

Preferential payments Where a receiver is appointed or takes possession of property as mentioned in this section the right of preferential payment of one year's assessment of income tax remains notwithstanding that the assessment is not made until after the date of appointment of the receiver or of his taking possession 4. A receiver and manager appointed by the debenture-holders who after notice of any claim that is preferential under the section pays away the company's assets to ordinary creditors in the process of carrying on its business without making or attempting to make any

provision for the preferential claim, is guilty of a breach of the provisions of this section and is liable in damages 1

Where in a debenture-holder's action the assets prove insufficient they are applicable in the following order (1) costs of realization, (2) costs including remuneration of the receiver (3) costs charges and expenses of debenture trust deed including the trustees remuneration (4) plaintiff's costs of action (5) preferential creditors and lastly (6) the debenture holders 2 For what has been held to be preferential payments under this section see the cases noted below 3

When the receiver is appointed by a debenture-holder whose debenture is secured by both a fixed and floating charge the priority given to the preferential debts applies only in respect of assets subject to the floating charge 4 In the last noted case at p 312 Lawrence LJ observes "S 107 (s 129 of the Indian Act) is directed specifically to debentures secured by a floating charge and to those only and intended to provide for the payment out of the assets subject to the floating charge of those debts which under the provisions of s 209 (s 230 of the Indian Act) would be entitled to priority in the case of a winding up in priority to the claims of the debenture-holders under the floating charge In my judgment the fact that the debenture in the present case is one which combines with the floating charge a fixed charge, does not bring the section into operation as against the assets comprised in the fixed charge"

A receiver appointed at the instance of a debenture holder cannot be allowed to disregard the forward contracts entered into by the company before the appointment of the receiver 5

The security of the debenture holders cannot be said to be "in jeopardy" unless there is a risk of some portion of it being seized or taken to pay claims which are not really prior to the claims of the debenture holders The Court refused to appoint a receiver on the ground of jeopardy where the debenture holders merely showed that their security if realized would be insufficient to pay principal and interest in full but could not show any damage or outward risk of seizing the assets 6

There is jeopardy where practically the only assets of a company consist in the reserve fund and the company proposes to distribute that among its shareholders without making provision for the debenture holders In such a case where it is proved otherwise occurred to make the debenture security enforceable the Court may appoint a receiver and this ipso facto made the debenture security enforceable 7

The jeopardy must be from some act which would be wrongful as to a debenture holder, or which amounts to a destruction of his security by a specific charge on part of the assets and a floating charge on the residue 8

(4) In the case of a company managed by a managing agent the managing agent, or where the managing agent is a firm or company, the partner or director of such firm or company and in any other case the director or directors who have knowingly by their act or omission been the cause of any default by the company in complying with the requirements of this section, shall in respect of such offence be liable to a fine not exceeding one thousand rupees.

This section is new and is on the lines of s 192 of the English Act of 1920. It has been substituted for the original section 130 by the Companies (Amendment) Act, 1936. For the effect of the amendment see Introduction. The original section 130 was as follows —

130 Every company shall keep proper books of account in which shall be entered full true and complete accounts of the affairs and transactions of the company.

Company to keep proper books of account

The accounts of a company should be kept in a manner which prudent business people would adopt. A company is entitled to charge to capital account the interest on the borrowed money during the period of construction.

131 (1) The directors of every company shall at some date not later than eighteen months after the incorporation of the company and subsequently once at least in every calendar year lay before the company in general meeting a balance-sheet and profit and loss account or in the case of a company not trading for profit an income and expenditure account for the period, in the case of the first account since the incorporation of the company and in any other case since the preceding account, made up to a date not earlier than the date of the meeting by more than nine months or in the case of a company carrying on business or having interests outside British India by more than twelve months.

Annual balance sheet

Provided that the registrar may for any special reason extend the period by a period not exceeding three months.

(2) The balance-sheet and the profit and loss account or income and expenditure account shall be audited by the auditor of the company as hereinafter provided, and the auditor's report shall be attached thereto, or there shall be inserted at the foot thereof a reference to the report, and the report shall be read before the company in general meeting and shall be open to inspection by any member of the company.

(3) Every company other than a private company shall send a copy of such balance-sheet and profit and loss account or income and expenditure account so audited together with a copy of the auditor's report to the registered address of every member of the company at least fourteen days before the meeting at which it is to be laid before the members of the company, and shall deposit a copy at the registered office of the company for the inspection of the members of the company during a period of at least fourteen days before that meeting

By the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936 the new sub s (1) on the lines of sub s (1) of s 123 of the English Act of 1929 has been substituted for the original sub s

Amendment (1) in sub s (2) the words in italics have been inserted in sub s (3) for the words 'such balance sheet so audited' after the words 'and a copy of', the words in italics have been substituted and for the words 'seven days' in two places the words fourteen days have been substituted. By the said amending Act sub s (4) has been omitted as provision for penalty for default has been made in the new sub s (3) of s 133. For the effect of these amendments see Introduction

The original sub s (1) was as follow —

131 (1) Every company shall once at least in every year and at intervals of not more than fifteen months cause the accounts of the company to be balanced and a balance sheet to be prepared

Annual balance sheet

The original sub s (4) was as follows —

(4) If a company makes default in complying with the requirements of this section, it shall be liable to a fine not exceeding one thousand rupees, and every officer of the company who knowingly and wilfully authorises or permits the default shall be liable to the like penalty

As to what is a general meeting see notes to s 7¹

A company is under a statutory duty to issue proper balance sheet and the existence of some disputes regarding amounts due to the company does not relieve the company from such duty 1

When a company fails to get its accounts balanced and a balance sheet prepared and to make a list of its members it should be convicted under this section rather than under s 134 (4). That the accounts had been called for by various criminal Courts in connection with other cases is no defence 2

section

A provision in the articles of association that the directors may form an internal reserve fund on the terms that it need not be disclosed in the balance sheet, nor shall the auditors disclose the same to the shareholders, is ultra vires and inconsistent with the provisions of this section 3

Internal reserve fund

As to the powers and duties of auditors see s 115 and notes thereto. The auditor will be liable for improper payments made by the directors and naturally resulting from his breach of duty 1. Where the auditor's certificate of the net profits of the company has been given on a wrong principle it is not conclusive and the Court is not bound by it 2 & 3. Auditors signing the auditors' report in a false balance sheet which is to the effect that in their opinion the balance-sheet is drawn up in conformity with law and exhibits a true and correct view of the company's affairs wilfully makes a false statement in the report and are liable to prosecution under s 282 3.

The opinion of an accountant or an auditor that a balance sheet which does not disclose the true state of affairs of a company has been properly drawn up is of no value and no opinion expressed by an auditor or accountant can turn a false balance sheet into a true one 4.

The duty of an auditor is to give information in direct and express terms 5 and not merely to arouse inquiry 6. To insert a lump sum in a balance sheet for goodwill, trade mark, machinery, furniture and fixtures without giving separate values for each class is not in compliance with the law 7. For fuller notes see those to ss 111 and 145 in Part 108 Table A. For form of a balance sheet see Form I of the Third Schedule.

A Magistrate has jurisdiction to entertain a complaint against a director for failure to comply with the provisions of this section. But ordinarily a Magistrate should be chary of proceeding on a complaint of this kind except after reference to the registrar or on the complaint of a responsible person 8.

It was however held by the Punjab Chief Court that the registrar being the only person authorized by the Local Government under s 270 (b) [s 248 (2) of the present Act] of Act VI of 1882 for instituting and conducting all prosecutions under the Act especially where the prosecutions were in connection with a breach of the rules relating to submission of the balance sheet and other periodical returns a complaint for wilful default in filing a balance sheet not brought by the registrar but by a clerk of his office and countersigned by the Public Prosecutor was bad in law and not entertainable by a Criminal Court 9. But in a later case the same Court held otherwise 10 and so did the Nagpur Court 11.

In the corresponding section (s 71) of the Act of 1882 every director and manager of the company was liable, but this has been changed to 'every officer in this section' which has thus been made more comprehensive 10.

I. C. 57.

Director's plea A person who acts as a director or manager cannot set up in answer to prosecution that he was not legally a director or manager. Every person who at any time during the default in complying with the provisions of this section acted as a director or manager is liable to be convicted 1

If a person joins a board of directors of a bank and allows his name to be used as a bait to induce the public to deal with the bank, he must take the consequences if he does not exercise due care and attention in signing a false balance sheet and the fact that he did not attend the meetings of the board or had no knowledge of banking and accounts will not exonerate him from his liability though he may be entitled to some sympathy on that account (see note 3 last page)

Where the balance sheet is not made out and filed with the registrar in time the chairman of the board of directors cannot escape liability on the ground that he depended upon the managing agents to take proper steps and on several occasions asked them to do so 1. In such a case the fact that one of the members of the firm who acted as managing agents was also punished in his individual capacity as a director is no reason for not punishing him as a member of the firm 1

Punishment provided for false return &c In addition to the penalties imposed in this section if any person in any return report certificate balance sheet or other document required by or for the purposes of this Act wilfully makes a statement false in any material particular knowing it to be false he shall be liable to be punished with imprisonment for a term which may extend to three years and shall also be liable to fine 2

Sub s (4) The charge of non filing of the balance sheet receives a complete reply if the accused can show that the balance sheet was not due it is altogether immaterial whether it has or has not been prepared 3

Contents of balance sheet A balance sheet must not be a mere inventory but must be in the nature of a pictorial representation of the trading position of the company easily appreciated by persons reasonably able to understand commercial expressions and commercial conditions 4. A banker in drawing up a balance sheet is as much bound to disclose an overdraft as a loan. Consequently where there has been non disclosure of an advance it is immaterial whether it was a loan or an overdraft 4

Overdraft Overdrafts are the usual accompaniments of current accounts. Overdrafts based on a deposit account is unknown 4

Balance sheet when fraudulent The balance sheet of a company engaged in a hazardous trade will not be considered delusive and fraudulent merely because an estimated value was put upon assets which were then in jeopardy and were subsequently lost or because the company was obliged to borrow money to pay the dividend provided the fact fairly appeared on the balance-sheet and the balance fairly represented profits 5

Where the conviction is not of the managing director but of the company an appeal by the former is incompetent. The appeal in such a case is not properly instituted unless it is by the company through some authorised agent.

131A (1) The directors shall make out and attach to every balance-sheet a report with respect to the state of the company's affairs, the amount, if any, which they recommend should be paid by way of dividend and the amount, if any, which they propose to carry to the Reserve Fund, General Reserve or Reserve Account shown specifically on the balance-sheet or to a Reserve Fund, General Reserve or Reserve Account to be shown specifically in a subsequent balance-sheet.

(2) The report referred to in sub-section (1) may be signed by the chairman of the directors on behalf of the directors if authorised in that behalf by the directors.

(3) The provisions of sub-section (3) of section 130 shall apply to any person being a director who is knowingly and wilfully guilty of a default in complying with this section.

This section is new. It has been inserted by the Companies (Amendment) Act 1930. It was suggested by sub s (2) of s 123 of the English Act of 1929. For a discussion on this new provision and the amendments made in s 131 see Introduction.

132 (1) The balance-sheet shall contain a summary of the property and assets and of the capital and liabilities of the company giving such particulars as will disclose the general nature of those liabilities and assets and how the value of the fixed assets has been arrived at.

(2) The balance-sheet shall be in the form marked F in the Third Schedule or as near thereto as circumstances admit.

(3) The profit and loss account shall include particulars showing the total of the amount paid whether as fees, percentages or otherwise to the managing agent, if any, and the directors respectively as remuneration for their services and, where a special resolution passed by the members of the company so requires, to the manager, and the total of the amount written off for depreciation. If any director of the company is by virtue of the nomination whether direct or indirect, of the company, a director of any other company, any remuneration or other emoluments received by him in his own use, whether as a director of, or otherwise in connection with the management of, that other company shall be shown in a note at the foot of the account or in a statement attached thereto.

Amendment By the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936 the new sub s (3) has been inserted. It has introduced a provision requiring disclosure in the profit and loss account now made compulsory under the amended s 131, certain informations of importance to the shareholders.

A statement which lumped together assets valued on one principle with assets valued on another and tangible with intangible assets is not a compliance with the provisions of this section 1.

All debts which are entered in the current books of the company should be included under the head of book debts. A debt is none the less a debt though there may be little prospect of its recovery and the company may have means of covering the deficit if it is not paid. It is always open to a company to write off debts that in its opinion are entirely irrecoverable and on that being done such debts would cease to be book debts. Therefore all genuine book debts must be covered by the entry against this item whether they are considered good, doubtful or bad debts, and the clear provision of the form F cannot be whittled down by general considerations as to the object of a balance sheet 2.

Balance sheet of banks Immediately after the decision in Sian lasan v Pochanicalla 2 the Governor General in Council made important exceptions with regard to the balance sheets of banks by altering form F (Sch III) under the power vested in him by s 151. The effect of these alterations was that in the case of banks (1) provision for bad and doubtful debts was not requisite, (2) bad and doubtful debts were not required to be mentioned where provision for them had been made to the satisfaction of the auditors. Now for this form F the new form F has been substituted by the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936 which should be carefully studied.

Secret reserve If any part of a secret reserve is availed of to meet bad and doubtful book debts (it is doubtful whether any secret reserve fund is permissible) it must be revealed in the balance sheet and not concealed 3.

As to profit and loss account see notes to Art 9 Table A.

132A (1) Where a company, in this Act referred to as the holding company, holds shares, either directly or through a nominee, in a subsidiary company or in two or more subsidiary companies, there shall be annexed to the balance-sheet of the holding company the last audited balance-sheet, profit and loss account and auditors' report of the subsidiary company or companies, and a statement signed by the persons by whom, in pursuance of section 133 the balance-sheet of the holding company is signed stating how the profits and losses of the subsidiary company, or, where there are two or more subsidiary companies, the aggregate profits and losses of those companies, have been dealt with in or for the purposes of the accounts of the holding company, and in particular how and to what extent—

- (a) provision has been made for the losses of a subsidiary company either in the accounts of that company or of the holding company or of both, and
- (b) losses of a subsidiary company have been taken into account by the directors of the holding company in arriving at the profits and losses of the company as disclosed in its accounts.

Provided that it shall not be necessary to specify in any such statement the actual amount of the profits or losses of any subsidiary company or the actual amount of any part of any such profits or losses which has been dealt with in any particular manner.

Provided further that for the purposes of this section an investment company, that is to say, a company whose principal business is the acquisition and holding of shares, stocks, debentures or other securities, shall not be deemed to be a holding company by reason only that part of its assets consists in 51 per cent or more of the shares of another company.

(2) If, in the case of a subsidiary company, the auditor's report on the balance-sheet of the company does not state without qualification that the auditors have obtained all the information and explanations they have required and that the balance-sheet is properly drawn up so as to exhibit a true and correct view of the state of the company's affairs according to the best of their information and the explanations given to them and as shown by the books of the company, the statement, which is to be annexed as aforesaid to the balance-sheet of the holding company, shall contain particulars of the manner in which the report is qualified.

(3) For the purposes of this section the profits or losses of a subsidiary company mean the profits or losses shown in any accounts of the subsidiary company made up to a date within the period to which the accounts of the holding company relate or, if there are no such accounts of the subsidiary company available at the time when the accounts of the holding company are made up the profits or losses shown in the last previous accounts of the subsidiary company which are available within that period.

(4) If for any reason the directors of the holding company are unable to obtain such information as is necessary for the preparation of the statement aforesaid the directors who sign the balance-sheet shall so report in writing and their report shall be annexed to the balance-sheet in lieu of the statement

(5) The holding company may by a resolution authorise representatives named in the resolution to inspect the books of account kept in accordance with section 130 by any subsidiary company, and on such resolution being passed those books of account shall be open to inspection by those representatives at any time during business hours

(6) The rights conferred by section 138 upon members of a company may be exercised in respect of any subsidiary company by members of the holding company as if they were members of that subsidiary company

This section is new. It has been inserted by the Companies (Amendment) Act

Amendment

1936. It is a reproduction with certain modifications, of s. 126 of the English Companies Act of 1929. Compare that section with this section. For a discussion as to its effect see Introduction.

Authentication of balance sheet

133 (1) Save as provided by sub-section (2) the balance-sheet and profit and loss account or income and expenditure account shall—

- (i) in the case of a banking company, be signed by the manager or managing agent (if any) and, where there are more than three directors of the company, by at least three of those directors and, where there are not more than three directors, by all the directors,
- (ii) in the case of any other company, be signed by two directors or, when there are less than two directors, by the sole director and by the manager or managing agent (if any) of the company.

(2) When the total number of directors of the company for the time being in British India is less than the number of directors whose signatures are required by sub-section (1), then the balance-sheet and profit and loss account or income and expenditure account shall be signed by all the directors for the time being in British India, or, if there is only one director for the time being in British India, by such director, but in such a case there shall be subjoined to the balance-sheet and profit and loss account or income and expenditure account a statement signed by such directors or director explaining the reason for non-compliance with the provisions of sub-section (1).

(3) If any default is made in laying before the company or in issuing a balance-sheet and profit and loss account or income and expenditure account as required by section 131 or if any balance-sheet or profit and loss account or income and expenditure account is issued, circulated or published which does not comply with the requirements laid down by and under section 131, section 132, section 132A and this section, the company and every officer of the company who is knowingly and wilfully a party to the default shall be punishable with fine which may extend to five hundred rupees.

By the Companies (Amendment) Act, 1936 the words in italics have been inserted in sub sections (1) and (2) and the new sub section (3) has been substituted for the original sub section (3). The new sub s (3) is a comprehensive clause. See Introduction.

(3) If any copy of a balance sheet which has not been signed as required by this section is issued, circulated or published the company and every officer of the company who is knowingly a party to the default shall be punishable with fine which may extend to five hundred rupees.

The mere signing a balance sheet by a director does not make it an account stating involving a fresh promise by the director to pay the amount debited to him therein inasmuch as a director signs the balance sheet not as a contractant but in performance of his duties as director. Similarly balance sheets including fees due to directors and signed by directors are not acknowledgements or written promise to pay those fees by the company.¹

134 (1) After the balance-sheet and profit and loss account have been laid before the company at the general meeting a copy of the balance-sheet signed by the manager or secretary of the company shall be filed with the registrar at the same time as the copy of the annual list of members and summary prepared in accordance with the requirements of section 32.

(2) If the general meeting before which a balance sheet is laid does not adopt the balance-sheet, a statement of that fact and for the reasons therefor shall be annexed to the balance-sheet and to the copy thereof required to be filed with the registrar.

(3) This section shall not apply to a private company.

(4) If a company makes default in complying with the requirements of this section, the company and every officer of the company who knowingly and wilfully authorise or permits the default shall be liable to the like penalty as is provided by section 32 for a default in complying with the provisions of that section.

By the Companies (Amendment) Act, 1936, in sub- (1) the words in italics in the Amendment. beginning have been substituted for the words "After the balance-sheet has", and the words "of the balance-sheet" (in italics) have been substituted for the word "thereof".

In answer to a charge under sub-sec (3) in respect of default made in filing the balance-sheet for a certain year it is not open to a director to plead that a no general meeting was called in that year and no balance-sheet was laid before the company at any such meeting it was impossible for him or the company to comply with the requirements of the section. But in order to bring the case within the rule laid down in Parl v. Lorton 1, a person whose defence to a charge under sub-sec (3) is that compliance on his part with the requirements of the section was impossible on account of no general meeting having been held it is necessary in the first instance to show with reference to s 76 that the accused officer of the company was knowingly a party to the default in holding the general meeting and when the question has not been enquired into at all the case has not been properly tried and the conviction will not stand 2

Where a fine is imposed upon a company under this section the fine must be recovered from the property of the company and cannot be recovered from the directors individually 3

The default under s 32 and this section must be intentional and not merely inadvertent 4 See notes to s 32 4)

The Presidency Magistrate in Calcutta possesses jurisdiction to try charges under this section even where the company is situate outside Calcutta, as the office of the registrar with whom the balance-sheet is to be filed is in Calcutta 5

135. Save as otherwise provided in this Act, any member of a company shall be entitled to be furnished with copies of the balance-sheet and the profit and loss account on the income and expenditure account and the auditor's report at a charge not exceeding six annas for every hundred words or fractional part thereof.

Statement to be published by Banking and certain other Companies

136. (1) Every company being a limited banking company or an insurance company or a deposit, provident or benefit society shall, before it commences business, and also on the first Monday in February and the first Monday in August in every year during which it carries on business make a statement in the form marked G in the Third Schedule, or as near thereto as circumstances will admit

(2) A copy of the statement together with a copy of the last audited balance-sheet laid before the members of the company shall be displayed and, until the display of the next following statement, kept displayed in a conspicuous place in the registered office of the company, and in every branch office or place where the business of the company is carried on

(3) Every member and every creditor of the company shall be entitled to a copy of the statement on payment of a sum not exceeding eight annas

(4) If a company makes default in complying with the requirements of this section, it shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees for every day during which the default continues, and every officer of the company who knowingly and wilfully authorises or permits the default shall be liable to the like penalty.

(5) This section shall not apply to a life insurance company or provident insurance society to which the provisions of the Indian Life Assurance Companies Act, 1912, or of the Provident Insurance Societies Act, 1912, as the case may be, as to the annual statements to be made by such company or society, apply with or without modification, if the company or society complies with those provisions

In sub s (1) the words in italics have been inserted by the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936

The omission of a limited banking company to publish the statements specified in sub sec (1) on the dates indicated in the section cannot be justified by the fact that the omission was due to a change in the closing date of the financial year of the company and that the officers of the company made in good faith that this justified a change in the dates on which the statements were required to be published

Investigation by the Registrar

137 (1) Where the registrar, on perusal of any document which a company is required to submit to him under the provisions of this Act, is of opinion that any information or explanation is necessary in order that such document may afford full particulars of the matter to which it purports to relate, he may, by a written order, call on the company submitting the document to furnish in writing such information or explanation within such time as he may specify in his order.

(2) On the receipt of an order under sub-section (1), it shall be the duty of all persons who are or have been officers of the company to furnish such information or explanation to the best of their power.

(3) If any such person refuses or neglects to furnish any such information or explanation, he shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees in respect of each offence, and the Court may on the application of the registrar and upon notice to the company make an order on the company for production of such documents as in its opinion may reasonably be required by the registrar for his investigation and allow the registrar inspection thereof on such terms and conditions as it thinks fit.

(4) On receipt of such information or explanation the registrar may annex the same to the original document submitted to him, and any additional document so annexed by the registrar shall be subject to the like provisions as to inspection and the taking of copies as the original document is subject to.

(5) If such information or explanation is not furnished within the specified time, or if after perusal of such information or explanation the registrar is of opinion that the document in question discloses an unsatisfactory state of affairs, or that it does not disclose a full and fair statement of the matters to which it purports to relate, the registrar shall report in writing the circumstances of the case to the Local Government.

(6) If it is represented to the registrar in materials placed before him by any contributory or creditor that the business of a company is carried on in fraud of its creditors or in fraud of persons dealing with the company or for a fraudulent purpose, he may after giving the company an opportunity of being heard by him or by call on the company for information or explanation on matters specified in the order within such time as he may specify in the order and the provisions of sub-sections (2), (3) and (5) of this section shall apply to such order. If upon investigation the registrar is satisfied that any representation on which he has taken action under this sub-section is frivolous or vexatious, he shall disclose the identity of the informant to the company.

(7) The provisions of this section shall apply mutatis mutandis to documents which a liquidator is required to file under this Act.

By the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936 to sub s (3) the words in italics have been added. By the same Act the new sub sections (6) and (7) have also been added. The first amendment provides for intervention by the Court to secure production of documents for the information of the registrar, the second amendment extends the powers of the registrar and also makes the section applicable to documents which a liquidator is required to file under the Act. See Introduction.

Inspection and Audit

138 The Local Government may appoint one or more competent inspectors to investigate the affairs of any company and to report thereon in such manner as the Local Government may direct—

Investigation of affairs of company by inspectors

(i) in the case of a banking company having a share capital, on the application of members holding not less than one-fifth of the shares issued;

(ii) in the case of any other company having a share capital, on the application of members holding not less than one-tenth of the shares issued;

(iii) in the case of a company not having a share capital, on the application of not less than one-fifth in number of the persons on the company's register of members;

(iv) in the case of any company, on a report by the registrar under section 137, sub-section (5).

In the corresponding section 33 of the English Act of 1909 the expression "Board of Trade" occurs in place of "Local Government".

The Local Government on a report from the registrar under s 137 (5) took action under this section and appointed a certain person to investigate the affairs of a bank and passed an order directing that the expenses of the investigation amounting to Rs 1000 should be paid by the bank. The Local Government itself paid the amount to the inspector and when subsequently the bank went into a voluntary liquidation submitted its claim to the voluntary liquidator who registered it as a preferential claim. But the official liquidator appointed on compulsory winding up refused to recognize the claim as a preferential claim. The Lahore High Court held that the claim could not be recognized as a preferential claim.¹

(4) The registrar shall keep the copy of the report sent to him with the records of the company in his custody

Amendment By the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936 the words in italics have been inserted in sub s (1) the proviso to sub s (3) has been added and the new sub s (4) has also been added. See Introduction

The report of the inspectors is not evidence of the matters contained in it it is evidence of their opinion 1

As to the payment of expenses by the Local Government see notes to s 138 ante

141A (1) It from any report made under section 138 it appears to the Local Government that any person has been guilty of any offence in relation to the company for which he is criminally liable, the Local Government shall refer the matter to the Advocate General or the Public Prosecutor

Institution of prosecution
(2) If the officer to whom the matter is referred considers that the case is one in which a prosecution ought to be instituted, he shall cause proceedings to be instituted, and it shall be the duty of all officers and agents of the company, past and present (other than the accused in the proceedings), to give to him all assistance in connection with the prosecution which they are reasonably able to give

(3) For the purposes of subsection (2), the expression "agents" in relation to a company shall be deemed to include the bankers and legal advisers of the company and any persons employed by the company as auditors, whether those persons are or are not officers of the company

(4) Any director, manager or other officer of the company convicted as the result of a prosecution initiated under this section shall not without the leave of the Court be a director of or in any way whether directly or indirectly be concerned in or take part in the management of a company for a period of five years from the date of such conviction

Amendment This section is new. It has been inserted by the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936. It is based upon the provisions of s 136 of the English Act of 1929 and provides a machinery for institution of proceedings against persons who have committed criminal offences in relation to a company. See

142 (1) A company may by a special resolution appoint inspectors to investigate its affairs

Power of company to appoint inspectors
(2) Inspectors so appointed shall have the same powers and duties as inspectors appointed by the Local Government, except that, instead of reporting to the Local Government, they shall report in such manner and to such persons as the company in general meeting may direct

(3) All persons who are or have been officers of the company shall incur the like penalties in case of refusal to produce any book or document required to be produced to inspectors so appointed or to answer any question, as they would have incurred if the inspectors had been appointed by the Local Government

143 A copy of the report of any inspectors appointed under this Act, authenticated by the seal of the company whose affairs they have investigated, shall be admissible in any legal proceeding as evidence of the opinion of the inspectors in relation to any matter contained in the report

Report of inspectors to be evidence

144 (1) No person shall be appointed or act as an auditor of any company other than a private company including its subsidiary company of a public company unless he holds a certificate from the "Governor General in Council" entitling him to act as an auditor of companies

Qualifications and appointment of auditors

Provided that a firm whereof all the partners practising in India hold such certificates may be appointed by its firm name to be auditor of a company, and may act in its firm-name

(2) The Governor General in Council may, by notification in the Gazette of India and after previous publication, make rules providing for the grant, renewal or cancellation of such certificates and prescribing conditions and restrictions for such grant, renewal or cancellation

Provided that nothing contained in such rules shall preclude any person from being granted a certificate merely by reason that he does not practise as a public accountant

(2A) In particular, and without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing power, such rules may—

- (a) provide for the maintenance of a Register of Accountants entitled to apply for such certificates,
- (b) prescribe the qualifications for enrolment on the Register and the fees therefor
- (c) provide for the examination of candidates for enrolment and prescribe the fees to be paid by examinees,

- (d) prescribe the circumstances in which the name of any person may be removed from or restored to the Register,
- (e) provide for the establishment, constitution and procedure of an Indian Accountancy Board, consisting of persons representing the interests principally affected or having special knowledge of accountancy in India, to advise him on all matters of administration relating to accountancy, and to assist him in maintaining the standards of qualification and conduct of persons enrolled on the Register, and
- (f) provide for the establishment, constitution and procedure of local accountancy boards at such centres as the Governor General in Council may select, to advise him and the Indian Accountancy Board on any matter that may be referred to them

(2B) The holder of a certificate granted under the section shall be entitled to be appointed and act as an auditor of companies throughout British India

(1) [“All certificates granted by Local Governments before the commencement of this Act entitling the holders, and all declarations made before the commencement of this Act by the Governor General in Council entitling the members of any specified institution or association, to be appointed and to act as auditors of companies throughout British India shall be deemed to be cancelled on the expiry of one year from the commencement of this Act

Certificates granted before the commencement of this Act

Provided that the Governor General in Council may direct that any such certificate or declaration shall remain in force for a further period not exceeding one year

Provided further that any person who—

- (a) was entitled immediately before the commencement of this Act by reason of any such certificate or declaration to be appointed and to act as an auditor of companies throughout British India and
- (b) has at any time after he became so entitled and before the commencement of this Act resided in India, shall, if he possesses such qualification and good character and on payment of such fee as may be prescribed under clause

(b) of sub-section (2 f) of section 144 of the Indian Companies Act, 1913, be entitled to be enrolled on the Register of Accountants referred to in that sub-section.

(2) Persons holding restricted certificates granted by Local Governments before the commencement of this Act entitling them to act as auditors within a province may continue so to act, on such conditions as may be prescribed by the Governor General in Council in rules made by notification in the Gazette of India and after previous publication"]

(3) Every company shall at each annual general meeting appoint an auditor or auditors to hold office until the next annual general meeting.

(4) If an appointment of an auditor is not made at an annual general meeting, the Local Government may, on the application of any member of the company, appoint an auditor of the company for the current year, and fix the remuneration to be paid to him by the company for his services.

(5) The following persons—that is to say,

- (i) a director or officer of the company; and
- (ii) a partner of such director or officer; and
- (iii) in the case of a company other than a private company not being the subsidiary company of a public company, any person in the employment of such director or officer; and
- (iv) any person indebted to the company, shall not be appointed auditors of the company, and if any person being appointed auditor becomes indebted to the company his appointment shall thereupon be terminated.

(6) A person, other than a retiring auditor, shall not be capable of being appointed auditor at an annual general meeting unless notice of an intention to nominate that person to the office of auditor has been given by a member of the company to the company not less than fourteen days before such annual general meeting, and the company shall send a copy of any such notice to the retiring auditor, and shall give notice thereof to its members either by advertisement or in any other mode allowed by the articles not less than seven days before the annual general meeting.

Provided that, if after notice of the intention to nominate an auditor has been given to the company, an annual general meeting is called for a date fourteen days or less after the notice has been given, the requirements of this section as to time in respect of such notice shall be deemed to have been satisfied, and the notice to be sent or given by the company may, instead of being sent or given within the time required by this section, be sent or given at the same time as the notice of the annual general meeting

(7) The first auditors of the company may be appointed by the directors before the statutory meeting, and if so appointed shall hold office until the first annual general meeting, unless previously removed by a resolution of the members of the company in general meeting, in which case such members at that meeting may appoint auditors

(8) The directors may fill any casual vacancy in the office of auditor, but while any such vacancy continues, the surviving or continuing auditor or auditors (if any) may act

(9) The remuneration of the auditors of a company shall be fixed by the company in general meeting, except that the remuneration of any auditors appointed before the statutory meeting, or to fill any casual vacancy, may be fixed by the directors

By s 2 of the amending Act No XIV of 1930 the following amendments were made (1) for the words 'Local Government' in sub s (1) the words 'Governor General in Council' were substituted (2) for the proviso in the same sub section the new proviso was substituted and (3) for sub s (2) the new sub sections (2) (2A) and (2B) were substituted By s 3 of the aforesaid amending Act of 1930 the new sub sections (1) and (2) put after the new sub s (2B) were enacted but their exact place in the Act was not indicated

The words 'practising in India' in the new proviso to sub section (1) were substituted by a further amending Act namely Act No 1 of 1937 for the words 'where of the partners all, which is current in the amending Act of 1930

Amend By the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936 in sub-s (2) the words in italics have been inserted and sub sections (2A) (4) and (5) have been added. For the effect of the amendments see Introduction

Onus Company auditors are bound to know or make themselves acquainted with the duties under the Companies Act for the time being in force and also under the company's articles of association 1 If the audited balance-sheet do not show the true financial condition of the company and damages is thereby caused the onus is on the auditors to show that the damage is not the result of any breach of duty on their part 2

Where payment of commission for placing shares is authorized by the memorandum of association and by a resolution of the directors but not by the articles the auditors ought to point that out 3

Auditors are prima facie responsible for ultra vires payments made on the faith of their balance sheet, but whether and to what extent they are responsible for not discovering and calling attention to the illegality of payments made prior to the audit must depend on the special circumstances of each case 10

An auditor who commits a breach of duty may be sued by the company in an action or may be proceeded against under s 235; but an auditor who is merely called in to audit the accounts pro hoc vice is not an officer 1. An auditor may set up the statute of limitation 2

The auditing of a company's accounts does in the absence of proof of fraud or mistake in connection with the audit close the accounts as between the shareholders and the directors, but it does not preclude the company from calling upon its agents for rendition 3

Sub s (2) The auditors' duty to make a report to the members is confined to forwarding their report to the secretary of the company leaving the secretary or the directors to perform the duties which the statute imposes of convening a general meeting to consider the report 4. It is not enough for the auditors merely to report that the balance sheet does not exhibit a true view of the accounts. They must report generally on the state of the accounts their duty is to call attention to what is wrong 5. Lord Lindley specified the duties of an auditor in a case 6 where the auditors and the directors were held to be jointly and severally liable to repay the amount of dividend improperly declared and paid

It was held in a recent case that an auditor is only bound to be reasonably cautious and careful and that it is not his duty to take stock 7. There are many matters in which the auditor must rely on the honesty and accuracy of others and he does not guarantee the discovery of fraud 7. Farnell L J said that the business of an auditor 'is to ascertain and state the true financial position of the company at the time of the audit and nothing more' 8

Directors are entitled to presume that the auditors like other officers of the company are doing their duty and are not bound to supervise or test the auditors' work 9. Auditors are prima facie responsible for ultra vires payments made on the faith of their balance sheet but whether and to what extent they are responsible for not discovering and calling attention to the illegality of payment depends on the special circumstances of each case 10

Auditors are agents for the shareholders but the latter are not necessarily bound by notice of every thing of which notice is given to the shareholders 11

Auditor's responsibility
Closing of accounts
Sub s (2)
Auditor's report
Directors are not bound to supervise auditor's work
Agents for shareholders

It is the duty of the auditor not to confine himself to verifying the arithmetical accuracy of the balance sheet but to inquire into its substantial accuracy and ascertain that it contained the particulars specified in the articles of association and was properly drawn up so as to contain a true and correct representation of the company's state of affairs 1. If improper payments by the directors are the natural and immediate consequence of breach of duty on the part of the management and the auditor they are liable in damages to the amount so paid 1.

An auditor is not justified in omitting to make personal inspection of securities that are in the custody of a person or company with whom it is not proper that they should be left whenever such personal inspection is practicable. A stock broker of a company however respectable and responsible he may be is not the proper person to have the custody of its securities except on such occasions when for short periods securities must of necessity be left with him but immediately such necessity ceases the securities should be lodged in the company's strong room or with its bank or placed in other proper and usual safe keeping 2.

Whenever an auditor discovers that securities of the company are not in proper custody it is his duty to require that the matter be put right at once or if his requirement is not complied with to report the fact to the shareholders and this whether he can or cannot make a personal inspection 3.

The measure of the auditor's responsibility depends upon the terms of his engagement. There may be a special contract defining duties and liabilities of the auditor. If there is such a contract then that contract governs the question. The articles will however be looked at if there is no special agreement because the auditor will presumably have taken their duties upon the terms inter alia set out in the articles. That is not to say that the auditors can set aside a statutory obligation. No agreement or articles of association can remove an imperative or statutory duty 3.

This section does not lay down a rigid code. The duty imposed on auditors by it is not absolute but depends upon the information given and explanations furnished to them so that there is abundant scope for discretion. The onus lies upon the auditors who would not be excused for total omission to comply with any of the requirements of the section or for any consequences of deliberate or recklessly indifferent failure to ask for information on matters which call for further explanation 3.

Auditors should not be content with a certificate that securities are in the possession of a particular company, firm or person unless the latter are trustworthy or respectable and further are such as in the ordinary course of business keep securities for their customers. In all these cases the auditors must use their judgment. Whether an auditor did in fact entertain the opinion he reported is a question of fact 3.

It is not the duty of auditors to make themselves familiar with the obligations imposed upon them by the company's articles 4. An article exempting auditors from liability for losses not happening by or through their own wilful neglect or default is valid and effective 4. But if any loss arises to the company from neglect of duty on the part of the auditors they may be held personally liable 5.

have effect as if enacted in this Act, but no alteration made by the Governor General in Council in Table A in the First Schedule shall affect any company registered before the alteration, or repeal, as respects that company, any portion of that table.

(4) In addition to the powers heretofore conferred by this section, the Governor General in Council may make rules providing for all or any matters which by this Act are to be prescribed by his authority.

(5) Every such rule shall be published in the Gazette of India, and on such publication shall have effect as if enacted in this Act.

The forms given in the Third Schedule shall be generally followed.

Arbitration and Compromise

152. (1) A company may by written agreement refer to arbitration, in accordance with the Indian Arbitration Act, 1899, an existing or future difference between itself and any other company or person.

Power for companies to refer matters to arbitration

(2) Companies, parties to the arbitration, may delegate to the arbitrator power to settle any terms or to determine any matter capable of being lawfully settled or determined by the companies themselves, or by their directors or other managing body.

(3) The provisions of the Indian Arbitration Act, 1899, other than those restricting the application of the Act in respect of the subject-matter of the arbitration, shall apply to all arbitrations between companies and persons in pursuance of this Act.

This section is merely an enabling section. The real object of this section is to extend the operation of the Arbitration Act even to cases in which the subject-matter of disputes could not be made subject of arbitration under the Arbitration Act. This section is subject to the applicability of the Arbitration Act to the local area in which the Court in which the suit has been instituted is situate. Where the Arbitration Act has not been made applicable as for instance the Derojore District in the Punjab Civil Courts cannot proceed with reference to arbitration under that Act. It is not the intention of the Legislature to make the Arbitration Act applicable to the whole of British India with regard to disputes between companies or between a company and other persons.

2. Sunder Mal v Paris Business Co-operation Ltd [1931] 1 S.W. 1210 (S.C.), Bhimkund v Punjab National Bank [1930] L. 1 F.R.

Although a living company is allowed to refer matters in difference to arbitration, an official liquidator may not be allowed to make a reference to private arbitration 1

Where an agreement is made with a company to refer to arbitration under certain contingencies a Court has no jurisdiction to file the agreement as s 2 of the Arbitration Act excludes Sch 2, para 17 from operation of the Act 2

Where the articles of association provide for arbitration of a dispute between the company and its members the latter can validly refer to arbitration a dispute relating to the question whether he was a member of the company in respect of some further shares for which he was registered as a member 3

The proceedings for enforcement of an award under s 15 of the Arbitration Act are governed by s 17 C P C and an appeal is competent from an order rejecting such application. The fact of an objection being raised that the award was given without jurisdiction does not preclude the application of s 47 8

153. (1) Where a compromise or arrangement is proposed between a company and its creditors or any class of them, or between the company and its members or any class of them, the Court may, on the application in a summary way of the company or of any creditor or member of the company or, in the case of a company being wound up, of the liquidator, order a meeting of the creditors or class of creditors, or of the members of the company or class of members, as the case may be, to be called, held and conducted in such manner as the Court directs.

(2) If a majority in number representing three-fourths in value of the creditors or class of creditors, or members or class of members, as the case may be, present either in person or by proxy at the meeting, agree to any compromise or arrangement, the compromise or arrangement shall, if sanctioned by the Court, be binding on all the creditors or the class of creditors, or on all the members, or class of members, as the case may be, and also on the company, or, in the case of a company in the course of being wound up, on the liquidator and contributories of the company.

(3) An order made under subsection (2) shall have no effect until a certified copy of the order has been filed with the registrar, and a copy of every such order shall be annexed to every copy of the memorandum of the company issued after the order has been made, or in the case of a company not having a memorandum, of every copy so issued of the instrument constituting or denoting the constitution of the company.

3. Kanhu Lal v People's Bank of N. India [1931] L. 49

(4) If a company makes default in complying with sub-section (3) the company and every officer of the company who is knowingly and wilfully in default shall be liable to a fine not exceeding ten rupees for each copy in respect of which default is made.

(5) The Court may, at any time after an application has been made to it under this section, stay the commencement or continuation of any suit or proceeding against a company on such terms as it thinks fit and proper until the application is finally disposed of.

(6) In this section the expression "company" means any company liable to be wound up under this Act and for the purposes of this section unsecured creditors who may have filed suits or obtained decrees shall be deemed to be of the same class as other unsecured creditors.

(7) An appeal shall lie from any order made by the Court exercising original jurisdiction under this section to the authority authorised to hear appeals from the decisions of the Court.

Amendment By the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936 the original sub s (3) has been re-numbered as sub s (6) and the new sub sections (3), (4) and (5) have been inserted. By the same Act to sub s (3) re-numbered as sub s (6) the words in italics have been added and a further sub s (7) has also been added. As to the effects of these amendments see Introduction.

Construction This section should be carefully construed. "It makes the majority of the creditors, as observed by Lord Justice Bowen, or class of creditors bind the minority; it exercises a most formidable compulsion upon dissentient creditors, and it therefore requires to be construed with care as not to place in the hands of some of the creditors the means and opportunity of forcing dissentients to do that which it is unreasonable to require them to do or of making a mere jest of the interest of the minority."

Principle The principle upon which this section is based has been laid down in a recent case¹ by Paine C J and Cunliffe J in the Pangoon High Court. It is true that as between a creditor and the company as his debtor, the creditor who proves insolvency is entitled ex debito justicie to a winding up order. But the right ex debito justicie is not his individual right but his representative right. If the majority of the class are opposed to his view and consider that they have a better chance of getting payment by abstaining from seizing the assets, then upon general grounds, the Court should give effect to such right as the majority of the class do are to exercise.²

It is not the function of the Court to substitute its own scheme for the scheme presented to it for sanction and if the Court is of opinion that unless some radical amendment is effected or the scheme is fundamentally altered, it ought not to be sanctioned, it is the duty of the Court to reject the scheme. The Court must look at the scheme and see whether the Act has been complied with whether the majority are acting bona fide and whether they are concerning the minority in order to promote interests adverse to those of the class whom they purport to represent and then see whether the scheme is a reasonable one or whether there is any reasonable objection to it or such an objection to it as that any reasonable man might say that he could not approve of it [per Lindley L J in English, Scottish & Bank (1893) 3 Ch 38.] The Court must be satisfied that the scheme is not only reasonable but also practicable. It is neither the duty nor the business of the members of the Court to express their own opinion as to whether if they happened to be creditors of the bank they could not or would not have voted in favour of the scheme. It is enough that the Court should hold that the view taken by the creditors as to the feasibility of the scheme is one as to which persons acting honestly and viewing the scheme laid before them in the interests of those whom they represent take a view which can be reasonably taken by business men.

The first thing that the Court has to see is whether the provisions of the statute have been complied with. Secondly, the Court has to see that the persons present at the meetings have acted bona fide and that they have done nothing which in the circumstances is injurious to the interests of the classes whom they represented. But the Court does not sit merely to register the decree of the majority of the creditors or shareholders present at the meeting. It has to look at the arrangement and see that it is such that a man of business would reasonably approve and further that it is fair and reasonable as regards the interests of all concerned. If the creditors are acting on sufficient information and with time to consider what they are about and are acting honestly, they are I apprehend much better judges of what is their commercial advantage than the Court can be. While therefore I protest that we are not to register their decisions but to see that they have been properly convened and have been properly consulted and have considered the matter from a point of view that is with a view to the interests of the class to which they belong and are empowered to bind the Court ought to be slow to differ from them. But as regards the capacity of creditors to safeguard their own interests in such cases the following observations of Vaughan Williams J apply with greater force to this country. I confess that I have very little belief in creditors of a company being able to look after their own interests. It is a matter of history that never mind what safeguards may be suggested never mind what statutory precautions may be given the creditors of an individual bankrupt have never been roused to look after their interests. Experience shows that creditors whether of a company or of an individual man never can be trusted to take care of themselves. The disjunct forces of individual creditors are a mere nothing as against the consolidated forces of those who are often deeply interested in bringing about an adoption of the scheme which is presented to the creditors. 4

4 English, Scottish & Australian Chartered Bank (1893) 3 Ch 38, per Vaughan Williams J at 139.

The Court should always prefer a living scheme to a compulsory liquidation bringing about the end of a company and usually without any hope of payment in full (1 of last page) The onus of showing that any scheme is unreasonable is on the objectors 1

This section is applicable in the case of a going company as well as a company in liquidation whereas s 213 applies only in or in view of winding up of a company

All reorganization may be effected All modes of re-organizing the share capital even when involving an interference with preference or other special rights attached to shares can be effected as part of an arrangement with the members under this section 2

Court's jurisdiction The power given to the Court to sanction a scheme of arrangement between a company and its creditors or between the company and its members extend to debenture-holders and other creditors and enables the Court to sanction a scheme although it deprives the debenture holders of their security wholly or in part 3 The Court may also sanction an arrangement whereby terminable debenture or debenture bonds are converted into perpetual debenture stock 4

The Court has a wide discretion in the matter 5 though it will reject the scheme only where it is shown that there has been something wrong but where the creditors acting in good faith and on sufficient information and with time to consider what they are about have pronounced that a particular scheme is to their commercial advantage the Court will be slow to differ from them 6

Where an application was made for the sanction of a scheme under which the liabilities of a company were to be paid up in full by a new company which was to take over the assets and liabilities of the old company and the shareholders in the existing company were to receive shares of the new company as provided by the scheme, and meetings were held and the requisite resolutions of the different classes of shareholders and debenture-holders passed in favour of the scheme it was held by the Court of Appeal that there was no jurisdiction under the section to compel the ordinary shareholders to take shares in the new company 7

The Court sanctioning a scheme has jurisdiction to entertain an application for an order modifying the scheme so as to expunge from the scheme certain words preventing the decree holder from executing his decree 8

Compromise & arrangement A power to compromise rights pre-supposes some dispute about them or difficulty in enforcing them 9 A proposed scheme for amalgamation of two companies though not a compromise may be an arrangement within this section and there is no ground for limiting the meaning of the word to the question of some dispute or difficulty to be resolved by a compromise or arrangement 10 A reasonable compromise must be observed Lord Justice Bowen

'a compromise which can by reasonable people conversant with the subject be regarded as beneficial to those on both sides who are making it. I have no doubt at all that it would be improper for the Court to allow an arrangement to be forced on any class of creditors if the arrangement cannot reasonably be supposed by sensible business people to be for the benefit of that class as such. 1

The word arrangement as used in this section means something analogous in some sense to a compromise. In any arrangement which can fairly be called a compromise or considered as analogous to a compromise there must be both give and take. Where the directors are authorised to manage the company a proposal made by them under this section in the name of the company is valid and proper. 2

A meeting of the company is not a condition precedent to proposal under this section. 3 and the directors may initiate such proposals. 3 The company need not take proceedings to alter the memorandum and the articles before the Court can sanction such an alteration. 4

The reconstruction of an existing company by winding up and sale of its entire undertaking and assets for shares in a new foreign company though outside the scope of a reconstruction under the old s. 213 may be effected as an arrangement under this section. 5 In the last noted case the Court's jurisdiction and duty under the section were explained by Astbury J. 5

It is the Court's duty carefully to scrutinise complicated schemes. 6

If a proper provision is made for dissentient members reconstruction of an existing company by winding up and sale of the entire assets for shares in a new company may be effected under this section. 7

A mere agreement on the part of the shareholders is not enough for the acceptance of a scheme. It is ultimately for the Court to sanction it or not. It is no doubt open to a party to withdraw his offer before the scheme is put before the shareholders and sanctioned by the Court but he may be estopped by his action or conduct. 8

Under ss. 113 and 114 of the English Act of 1929 corresponding to this section and s. 153A Bennett J. sanctioned a scheme of arrangement by which the company was allowed by its directors and liquidators to enter into an agreement with another company for adoption of the scheme by the latter and for transfer of the business and assets of the company to the other company. 9

In exercising the power under this section the Court will consider whether the class summoned to a meeting was fairly represented by those who attended and whether the statutory majority who approved the scheme acted bona fide or were seeking to promote interests adverse to those of the class whom they professed to represent. 10 The procedure is to apply to the Court by summons in the first instance to direct meetings of the different classes of the creditors and contributories and take directions from the Court 1 After the proposed scheme has been passed by the requisite majority a petition is presented to the Court for sanctioning the scheme 1

In exercising its power of sanction the Court will also see that the provisions of the statute have been complied with 2 The Court will see that the majority are acting bona fide and then only give effect to the decision of the meeting 3, but at the same time the Court will be slow to differ from the meeting unless either the class has not been properly consulted or the meeting has not considered the matter with a view to the interests of the class which it is empowered to bind or some defect is found in the scheme 4

When the scheme contemplated the formation of a new company to take over the assets of the liquidating company and shareholders in the old company are allowed to take shares not fully paid up in the new company in respect of shares as to which they are liable in the winding up the Court may as a condition of sanctioning the scheme, require the insertion in the memorandum of association of the new company of a clause preventing them from escaping liability by transferring their new shares 5

In sanctioning a scheme to alter the memorandum of a company under this section the Court will also see that the minority is not being over ridden by a majority having interests of its own clashing with those of the minority whom they seek to coerce Further the Court has to look at the scheme and see whether it is one as to which persons acting honestly and viewing the scheme laid before them in the interest of those whom they represent take a view which can be reasonably taken by business men 6

It is usual for the scheme of arrangement between a company and its creditors to contain a provision empowering some one be he a liquidator or some other officer of the company to assent to any such modification as the Court may think fit to impose In the absence of any such person, it is not open to the Court suo motu to impose on a creditor any condition which will operate by way of modification of the scheme, especially in the absence of the consent of the persons who have entered into the arrangement 7 In the last cited case the creditors were unrepresented before the Court and could not give their assent to the modification So Costello and Lort-Williams JJ set aside the order of Ametullah J

As a general rule the Court would not sanction an arrangement if it would prejudice a creditor whose rights would have been preferential if the winding up petition had been carried on 8 nor would it sanction an arrangement which did not provide that the new company should undertake to obey the order of the Court as to any proceedings which the Court might think it right to have taken against officers of the old company 9

Every person having a pecuniary claim against a company whether actual or contingent is a creditor within this section 1, but holders of debentures payable to bearer are not entitled to vote unless they produce their debentures at or before the meeting 2

Creditors casting their votes at a meeting of creditors under this section for or against a scheme of arrangement are entitled to have the result of the poll recorded 3 Where certain scrutineers were appointed by the Court to assist the chairman under order of the Court the decision of the chairman as to the admissibility of any proxy was held to be final subject to the Court's order of revision 4 The scrutineers have no locus standi to file a petition for direction as to the validity of proxies used at the meeting and the Court ought not to exercise its powers of revision unless and until the chairman has given his decision as to the admissibility of the proxies 5

Sub s (2) If the votes cast be a multiple of three or some such number will the fraction be taken into computation? It appears that the maxim de minimis non curat lex is not applicable to such a case and the fraction must be taken into account in computing the majority In construing a trust deed which required a majority of three fourths for passing a certain resolution the Bombay High Court held that the above maxim is applicable only to the computation of time in which the law neglects a fraction and that in computing the majority of votes a fraction cannot be disregarded 6

If a person is a member of more than one class he may attend and vote at meetings of each class of which he is a member 7 The scheme need not be approved by a majority in value of all the creditors or members provided that the requisite majority of those present in person or by proxy sanction it 5

This section gives a general right to vote by proxy using any proper form of proxy and the proxies need not be sent to the company's office before the meeting 6 Directors who pursuant to the Court's order receive proxies for or against a scheme must use them 6 As to the form of proxy the form given in art 67 of Table A may be a useful guide until rules are framed by the High Courts unless the amended s 24C and definite direction from the Court may be taken 7 Where the company is being wound up the provisions in the rules made by the High Courts under s 24D 8 may be followed 9

Meetings of each class of creditors or shareholders must be held separately each class being confined to those persons whose rights are not dissimilar to make it impossible for them to consult together with a view to their common interest 10

At a meeting held under this section the written acceptance of the arrangement by those shareholders and creditors who are not present, either in person or by proxy cannot be taken into consideration to make up the requisite majority 1

If in a company different amounts are paid on shares or some shareholders have paid amounts in advance of calls this makes various classes of shareholders and separate meetings must be called 2

In the Calcutta High Court there is a conflict of decisions on the question whether unsecured creditors, e.g., depositors who have already obtained a decree, belong to a class different from that of those who have not obtained a decree for their money In one set of cases it was held that the decree-holders belonged to a different class and as such were not bound by the scheme when a separate meeting of their class was not held 3, while in another set of cases it was held that they did not belong to a different class 4 The question has however been set at rest by the amended sub s (6) which says that for the purposes of this section unsecured creditors who may have filed suits or obtained decrees shall be deemed to be of the same class as other unsecured creditors

Before ordering a meeting of the class of creditors with whom it is proposed to make an arrangement it is not necessary that the Court should first have issued notices where the chairman of the meeting is careful to satisfy himself and to certify to the Court that notice of the application and of the meeting ordered had been sent to and acknowledged by all creditors 5

The section does not expressly give the Court control over the proceedings at the meeting But it seems to have an inherent power to give directions 6 Though Court meetings are subject to the direction of the Court where no express direction is given the articles must be looked to as far as they are applicable 7

I think the Court has, says Vaughan Williams J an inherent power to direct the mode in which meetings shall be held and the mode in which proxies shall be evidenced and to determine all such questions as whether it is necessary that the proxy shall be produced at the meeting 8 Proxies on which the day of the meeting was not named were held to be good if properly stamped 8

The sanction of three fourths in value of the members of the class present in person or by proxy is sufficient although it may not be three fourths in value of the total class 9

The terms of the section are wider than those of s 120 of the English Act of 1908 (s 153 of the English Act of 1929). Under this section the Court has ample power to settle a form of proxy and any substantial failure to comply with the Court's direction will invalidate the proxy.¹

Meeting of the shareholders not convened exactly in accordance with the directions of the Court may be held good if in the result a sufficient number of shares is accounted for.²

A scheme under this section is an alternative mode of liquidation which by the operation of law relieves the company and its contributories from liability further than that which is contemplated or imposed by the scheme any express words staying proceedings by creditors being unnecessary.³ Failure of a scheme for resuscitation of a company is not by itself sufficient to justify a winding up order being made. This section makes provision not merely for schemes for the resuscitation or reorganisation of companies but it also provides for scheme of arrangement an alternative mode of liquidation which the law allows the statutory majority of creditors to substitute for winding up whether voluntary or under the Court.⁴ But under this section the Court could not restrain suits or proceedings against the company as under s 169⁵. The Act was defective in this respect. The difficulty could be got over by presenting a winding up petition in the first instance getting stay of proceedings under s 169 and asking the Court for an order to allow the petition for winding up to stand over till the preparation and sanction of a scheme under this section.⁶ But now the defect has been removed by the new sub s 5.

If the scheme of arrangement involves a reduction of capital all the requirements of the Act with regard to reduction must be complied with.⁷ It is necessary to advertise the petition for sanctioning the scheme unless the Court dispenses with a advertisement.⁸ Members or creditors who do not appear at the hearing of the petition cannot appeal without leave.⁹ A company having power under its articles of association to reduce its capital by paying off capital cancelling lost capital reducing the liability on its shares or otherwise is in any case expedient is entitled to reduce its capital in any manner authorised by statute. The scheme for reduction of capital having been fully and properly explained to the shareholders without concealment of any relevant facts and approved on a poll being taken by the requisite majorities of each class it ought properly to be approved by the Court 5a : The directors are not under any duty to the shareholders to disclose to them in the circular explaining the scheme their holdings or respective proportional interests in ordinary and deferred shares 1

The order sanctioning the scheme becomes binding not only on the creditors but also on the liquidators and contributories so that whether the scheme be a valid one or not a shareholder cannot afterwards question it 2 The creditor being bound under this section by an arrangement between the company and its creditor the omission of the company to raise a plea to this effect at the original trial is not a bar to its being raised in the execution proceedings 3

When a scheme of composition under this section has been sanctioned by the High Court and it has further been decided that a particular decree holder is bound by it the High Court has power to restrain by injunction proceedings in execution started by the decree-holder in a maffasil Court after getting the decree transferred there 4

The agreement or compromise referred to in this section becomes binding from the date when it is arrived at, subject to subsequent sanction by the Court 5 It is the proceeding of the meeting that is to be binding provided only that it does not fail to be subsequently sanctioned 6

If some of the classes of persons have no interest because the whole value of the assets is exhausted by those who have priority over them, the assent of that class at a meeting is not necessary and the Court can sanction the arrangement in spite of their opposition 7

Where the directors of a company induced some of the shareholders to give their options to purchase their shares for securing consent of the majority to an amalgamation and upon amalgamation the directors made profits it was held that they were trustees of this profit for the benefit of those shareholders 8

If upon a reconstruction special privileges are made for the benefit of the directors they must be disclosed, otherwise sanction of the members to the scheme will be inoperative 9

The Privy Council has held in a recent case 10 that where a proposal scheme accepted by a meeting of shareholders and approved by the Court was subsequently altered by changed circumstances a meeting of shareholders should again be summoned to consider the amended scheme, and the Court has power to approve of the modification

There was no appeal under s 202 from an order made under this section on an application by a company which was not in the course of being wound up. But now a right of appeal has been given by the new sub s (7).

Where the Court orders that proxy forms used at a meeting of creditors should be rejected and another such meeting should be held such an order is a judgment within the Letters Patent and is appealable since the effect of the order is to determine finally that the decision of the creditors who had duly voted for or against the scheme should not be ascertained or recorded and to render inoperative the poll of a mere stranger who would be benefited by the scheme cannot appeal.

Compare s 51 and see notes thereon and the new s 66A.

153A (1) Where an application is made to the Court under section 153 for the sanctioning of a compromise or arrangement proposed between a company and any such persons as are mentioned in that section, and it is shown to the Court that the compromise or arrangement has been proposed for the purposes of or in connection with a scheme for the reconstruction of any company or companies or the amalgamation of any two or more companies, and that under the scheme the whole or any part of the undertaking or the property of any company concerned in the scheme (in this section referred to as a 'transferor company') is to be transferred to another company (in this section referred to as 'the transferee company'), the Court may, either by the order sanctioning the compromise or arrangement or by any subsequent order, make provision for all or any of the following matters —

- (a) the transfer to the transferee company of the whole or any part of the undertaking and of the property or liabilities of any transferor company,
- (b) the allotting or appropriation by the transferee company of any shares, debentures, policies or other like interests in that company which under the compromise or arrangement are to be allotted or appropriated by that company to or for any person
- (c) the continuation by or against the transferee company of any legal proceedings pending by or against any transferor company
- (d) the dissolution without winding up of any transferor company,

- (e) the provision to be made for any persons who, within such time and in such manner as the Court directs, dissent from the compromise or arrangement,
- (f) such incidental, consequential and supplemental matters as are necessary to secure that the reconstruction or amalgamation shall be fully and effectually carried out

(2) Where an order under this section provides for the transfer of property or liabilities, that property shall, by virtue of the order, be transferred to and vest in, and those liabilities shall by virtue of the order, be transferred to and become the liabilities of the transferee company, and in the case of any property, if the order so directs, freed from any charge which is by virtue of the compromise or arrangement to cease to have effect

(3) Where an order is made under this section, every company in relation to which the order is made shall cause a certified copy thereof to be delivered to the registrar for registration within fourteen days after the completion of the order, and if default is made in complying with this sub-section, the company and every officer of the company who is knowingly and wilfully in default shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees

(4) In this section the expression 'property' includes property, rights and powers of every description, and the expression 'liabilities' includes duties

(5) Notwithstanding the provisions of sub-section (4) of section 153, the expression 'company' in this section does not include any company other than a company within the meaning of this Act

(1) Where a scheme or contract involving the transfer of shares or any class of shares in a company (in this section referred to as 'the transferor company') to another company, whether a company within the meaning of this Act or not (in this section referred to as the 'transferee company'), has within four months after the making of the offer in that behalf by the transferor company been approved by the holders of not less than three-fourths in value of the shares affected, the transferee company may, at any time within two months after the expiration of the said four months, give notice in the prescribed manner to any dissenting shareholder that it desires to acquire his shares, and where such a notice is given the transferee company shall, unless on an application made by the dissenting shareholder within one month from the date on which the notice was given the Court thinks fit to order otherwise, be entitled and bound to acquire those shares on the terms on which under the scheme or contract the shares of the approving shareholders are to be transferred to the transferee company.

Provided that, where any such scheme or contract has been approved at any time before the commencement of the Indian Companies (Amendment) Act, 1936, the Court may by order, on an application made to it by the transferee company within two months after the commencement of that Act, authorise notice to be given under this section at any time within fourteen days after the making of the order, and this section shall apply accordingly except that the terms on which the shares of the dissenting shareholder are to be acquired shall be such terms as the Court may by the order direct instead of the terms provided by the scheme or contract.

(2) Where a notice has been given by the transferee company under this section and the Court has not, on an application made by the dissenting shareholder, ordered to the contrary, the transferee company shall, on the expiration of one month from the date on which the notice has been given, or, if an application to the Court by the dissenting shareholder is then pending, after that application has been disposed of, transmit a copy of the notice to the transferor company and pay or transfer to the transferor company the amount in other consideration representing the price payable by the transferee company for the shares which by virtue of this section that shareholder is entitled to acquire, and the transferor company shall be deemed to be the transferee company as the holder of those shares.

the transferor company under this section shall be held by that company in respect of the shares in respect of which the notice was given.

(3) In this section "shareholder" includes a shareholder who has transferred his shares to the transferee company in pursuance of a scheme or contract.

S 153A and s 153B are new. They have been inserted by the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936 and reproduce ss 154 and 155 respectively of the English Companies Act of 1909. See Introduction.

It has been held in England that upon a petition to sanction a scheme of arrangement under s 153 of the English Act (corresponding to s 103B) the Court has power to determine the terms upon which the shares of shareholders who have dissented from the scheme approved by the majority shall be acquired notwithstanding that since the original offer was made the scheme has been superseded by a later amalgamation which has absorbed the transferee company and the fact that the petitioners cannot offer to the dissentients the original shares accepted by the majority makes no difference to the jurisdiction of the Court which is only bound to decide whether the terms offered are adequate and reasonable and if not to substitute such other terms of purchase as in its discretion are fair and just ¹

Where not less than nine tenths of the shareholders in the transferor company approve a scheme involving the transfer of the company's shares to a transferee company, prima facie the offer must be taken to be a fair one and the Court will not "order otherwise unless it is affirmatively established that notwithstanding the views of a very large majority of shareholders the scheme is unfair" ²

Conversion of private company into public company

154 (1) If a company, being a private company, alters its articles in such manner that they no longer include the provisions which under the provisions of clause (18) of sub-section (1) of section 2, are required to be included in the articles of a company in order to constitute it a private company, the company shall, as on the date of the alteration, cease to be a private company and shall, within a period of fourteen days after the said date, file with the registrar a prospectus or a statement in lieu of prospectus in the form and containing the particulars set out in the form mailed II in the Second Schedule

(3) Where the articles of a company include the provisions aforesaid but default is made in complying with any of those provisions, the company shall cease to be entitled to the privileges and exemptions conferred on private companies under the provisions contained in this Act, and thereupon the provisions of this Act shall apply to the company as if it were not a private company

Provided that the Court, on being satisfied that the failure to comply with the conditions was accidental or due to inadvertence or to some other sufficient cause, or that on other grounds it is just and equitable to grant relief, may, on the application of the company or any other person interested and on such terms and conditions as seem to the Court just and expedient, order that the company be relieved from such consequences as afore said

For s 134 this new section has been substituted by the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936 in the terms of s 2ⁿ of the English Act of 1929 For the effect of this new section see Introduction The original s 134 was as follows

154 (1) A private company may subject to anything contained in its memorandum or articles by a special resolution and by filing with the registrar a copy of such resolution and also such a statement in lieu of prospectus as the company, if a public company would have had to file before allotting any of its shares or debentures together with such a duly verified declaration as the company if a public company would have had to file before commencing business, turn itself into a public company

(2) Upon the filing of the documents mentioned in sub section (1) the registrar shall record the change in his books relating to the company

A company whose articles contained the restrictions and provisions mentioned in s 2 cl (13) remained a private company even though they were not in fact observed or complied with 1 But now see sub s (3)

By complying with the provisions of this section a private company can be converted into a public company But there is no corresponding provision for converting a public company into a private company either in this Act or in the English Act. In England, it appears a considerable number of existing companies have by altering their articles become private companies under the statute 2 In order to convert an existing company into a 'private company' it is necessary to pass a special resolution altering the company's articles so as to limit the number of members to prohibit any invitation to the public to subscribe for its shares debentures or debenture stock, and impose restrictions on the transfer of its shares These alterations will satisfy the statutory definition, but they are not the only alterations requisite The articles generally must be considered for there may be other provisions inconsistent with those indicated, and they must be altered accordingly For example power to issue share warrants to bearers must be struck out 3 But it is significant first that there is no express provision for this either in the Indian or in the English Act, secondly the new English Act of 1929 (a consolidating Act), although it recasts the provisions of the Act of 1908 in this respect, does not make any provision for converting a public company into a private company See s 2 (13) and notes thereto

PART V.

WINDING UP

Preliminary

- 155 (1) The winding up of a company may be either—
 (i) by the Court; or
 (ii) voluntary, or
 (iii) subject to the supervision of the Court.
- Mode of winding up (2) The provisions of this Act with respect to winding up apply, unless the contrary appears, to the winding up of a company in any of these modes.

Meaning of winding up Winding up is a proceeding by means of which the dissolution of a company is brought about and in the course of which its assets are collected and realized and applied in payment of its debts and when these are satisfied returning to its members the sums which they have contributed to the company or paying them other moneys due to them in their character of members. The proceeding is not confined to cases where a company is insolvent but, may be adopted as a means of enabling the corporations or members to re-incorporate with extended object or further powers or more efficient means of management.

It differs from bankruptcy Winding up differs from bankruptcy in this respect that in bankruptcy the whole estate both legal and equitable is taken out of the bankrupt and is vested in his trustee, whereas on a winding up the estate, legal or equitable then in the company still remains in it until its dissolution, unless disposed of in due course of winding up. A corporation does not become dissolved at the commencement of either a voluntary or compulsory winding up.

A company once incorporated under the Act cannot be put an end to except through the machinery of winding up proceeding 4 or by removal from the register as a defunct company under s. 247.

Where a company cannot be wound up by Court If a company is not duly incorporated or is an illegal association 5, the Court has no jurisdiction to wind it up 6. But companies having no capital are subject to the Court's jurisdiction 7.

If an order to wind up is made without jurisdiction, it is not a judgment in rem so as to bind strangers, e.g., purchasers of property of the company 8.

Contributories

156 (1) In the event of a company being wound up, every present and past member shall subject to the provisions of this section be liable to contribute to the assets of the company to an amount sufficient for payment of its debts and liabilities and the costs, charges and expenses of the winding up and for the adjustment of the rights of the contributories among themselves with the qualifications following (that is to say) —

Liability as contributories of present and past members

- (i) a past member shall not be liable to contribute if he has ceased to be a member for one year or upwards before the commencement of the winding up
- (ii) a past member shall not be liable to contribute in respect of any debt or liability of the company contracted after he ceased to be a member,
- (iii) a past member shall not be liable to contribute unless it appears to the Court that the existing members are unable to satisfy the contributions required to be made by them in pursuance of this Act
- (iv) in the case of a company limited by shares no contribution shall be required from any member exceeding the amount (if any) unpaid on the shares in respect to which he is liable as a present or past member,
- (v) in the case of a company limited by guarantee no contribution shall be required from any member exceeding the amount undertaken to be contributed by him to the assets of the company in the event of its being wound up,
- (vi) nothing in this Act shall invalidate any provision contained in any policy of insurance or other contract whereby the liability of individual members on the policy or contract is restricted or whereby the funds of the company are alone made liable in respect of the policy or contract,
- (vii) a sum due to any member of a company in his character of a member by way of dividend, profit or otherwise, shall not be deemed to be a debt of the company payable to that member in a case of competition between himself and any other creditor not a member of the company, but any such sum may be taken into account for the purpose of the final adjustment of the rights of the contributories among themselves

(2) In the winding up of a company limited by guarantee which has a share capital, every member of the company shall be liable, in addition to the amount undertaken to be contributed by him to the assets of the company in the event of its being wound up, to contribute to the extent of any sums unpaid on any shares held by him

Formerly in the cases of partnerships as well as joint stock companies there was a direct relationship between the creditor and the individual shareholder

By the Act of 1867 said Lord Cairns that state of things is entirely swept away A capital is created, sometimes limited sometimes without a limit but that capital

Principle is to be made good in the shape of a common fund and that common fund it is which is to be the source of the payment of every creditor of the company And although it is quite true that members and ex members of the company are placed by the Act under liability that liability is a liability not to make payments to creditors but it is liability to contribute to and make good what should be the proper amount of the common fund Then having got into the common fund every sum which ought to be contributed to it by every person whomsoever the Legislature takes possession of that common fund and proceeds to distribute it amongst the creditors of the company 1

Liability to contribute Sub s (1) Before a company goes into liquidation the liability to contribute is measured by the contractual obligation arising from membership But after liquidation this section imposes new liabilities on the shareholders in respect of unpaid calls made before or after the winding up, and such calls can be recovered though barred by limitation before the order for winding up was made 2 The liability under this section in respect of the shares is absolute and flows from the fact of his being on the register of members in respect of those shares The original contract may supply the reason for his name having been placed there but after the winding up his liability arises ex lege and not ex contractu 3

It is a mistake observed Jessel M R to call that a debt due to the company It is no such thing It is not as has been supposed in any shape or way a debt due to the company but it is a liability to contribute to the assets of the company and when we look further into the Act it will be seen that it is a liability to contribute to be enforced by the liquidator It is quite true that a call made before the winding up—and in the case before me a call was made before the winding up—is a debt due to the company, but that does not affect the new liability to contribution 4

The section proceeds upon the assumption that the contributories are all innocent parties and whatever may be the effect of plea of fraud or misrepresentation as against the managing agents it does not affect the liability of the contributories as contributories in a winding up 1

As to the adjustment of the rights of the contributories among themselves see s 192 and 212 (2) For the meaning of the term contributory see s 158

Members include persons to whom shares have been validly transferred after the winding up commenced 2

By mere death a member does not become a past member within the meaning of this section his estate continues to be liable 3

In most cases past members are not liable to contribute at all for the present members are primarily liable to make all contributions required and it is only when they are unable to make such contributions that any past member is liable 5 Where existing members on list A are not called upon to contribute to the full extent of the unpaid amounts of their share money a past member on the list B cannot be made liable to contribute till list A is exhausted 4 In the case of a limited company if the present members have contributed to the full extent of their limited liability but their contributions are insufficient to discharge the company's liabilities the past members are not liable to contribute because the liability on the shares which they held has been discharged by the payments made by their present holders 5

Past members or B contributories are liable to contribute to the assets of the company to an amount sufficient for the payment of its debts and liabilities and the costs of winding up subject (inter alia) to the qualification that they shall not be liable in respect of any debt or liability contracted after they ceased to be members 6 The call must first be enforced against all B contributories who have not paid it so as to produce equality of contribution and distribution 6 If calculating the debts and liabilities of the company as they stood at the date when the B contributories ceased to be members a surplus is found that must be refunded to the B contributories 6 So long as, pointed out Eve J there are assets undistributed in the liquidation it remains open to the Court to correct any mistakes or injustice due to falsified estimates or other unforeseen incidents arising in a prolonged and difficult administration 7

The past members of a company limited by guarantee as well as that limited by shares who have ceased to be members within a year before the commencement of the winding up are not liable to contribute to the assets of the company unless it appears to the Court that the existing members are unable to satisfy contributions required to be made by them in pursuance of the Act 8 A former member will not however escape liability if the transfer of his shares has been merely colourable 9 or if he has transferred his shares to an infant 10 But where shares were transferred to two infants successively

and then to an adult, all the transfers having been registered, it was held that once the company had obtained an adult shareholder on its register, the intermediate transfers could not be avoided and the transferor could not be put on the list of past members although the company was ordered to be wound up less than a year after the last transfer, but more than a year after the first transfer 1 If shares have been transferred and owing to default on the company's part the transfer has not been registered, the transferor is entitled to have his name removed from the register 2 A past member cannot be called upon to make contributions for the adjustment of the rights of the present members 3

A deceased member or his estate remains a member for the purpose of this section so long as his name remains on the register without notice to the company of his death 4 When shares are registered in joint names, and one of the shareholders dies before winding up, his estate is not liable if the articles are silent on the point, only the survivor is liable 5 The liability of personal representatives placed on the list in their representative capacity is limited to the assets in their hands 6

Persons whose names are entered in the register as holders of shares as trustees are contributories in their own right and their liability is not limited to the amount of the trust estate 7 It being ultra vires of a limited company to issue shares at a discount or by way of bonus although authorized to do so by the articles persons to whom shares have been issued at a discount may be called upon in a winding up to pay in cash for their shares not only to meet the claims of outside creditors but also to adjust the rights of the contributories inter se 8

Persons signing the memorandum of association purely on the understanding that they would be given a certain number of shares as fully paid up in consideration of assets transferred to the company are not liable as contributories even though the contract regarding such shares is subsequently cancelled 9

If shares have been validly forfeited more than a year before the commencement of the winding up the member cannot be placed on the list of contributories 10, even if owing to the neglect of the company his name has not been removed from the register 11, but he may remain liable as a debtor to the company for the calls made before the forfeiture 12 If the forfeiture is invalid the member will however be placed on the list of contribu-

tories 1 A person who claims damages for an improper forfeiture of his shares claims not as a member but as a non-member 2

In the case of a forfeiture made less than a year before the commencement of the winding up the person whose shares have been forfeited will be liable to be placed on the list as a past member 3

Where a person has been induced to take shares by fraud in the prospectus he will be liable to be placed on the list of contributories unless he applies to have his name removed from the register of members before the commencement of the winding up 4 Where a contract is rescinded for misrepresentation it is rescinded ab initio and accordingly the shareholder cannot in a winding up be placed on the list of contributories even as a past member 5 But where a person applies for shares in expectation of some commission or special gain, and an arrangement is made therefor and the application is granted the applicant on allotment becomes a shareholder absolutely and the breach or unenforceability of the latter arrangement being a collateral agreement does not interfere with his liability as a contributory 6.

Meaning of 'commencement of the winding up' Cl (1) 1 winding up by the Court commences at the time of the presentation of the petition for winding up 7 and a voluntary winding up commences at the time of the passing of the resolution authorizing the winding up 8

Cl (1v) Notwithstanding these words a contract contained in the articles extending the member's liability beyond that under the memorandum for satisfaction of particular debts may be enforced 9 by a separate suit 10 The qualification in this clause that a member shall not be liable to pay more than the unpaid amount of his share does not make him the less a contributory where the amount of the share money has been paid up and a petition for winding up under s 166 made by him is maintainable 11

Cl (v) A member of a company limited by guarantee and having a share capital can be sued for the amount unpaid on his shares, but he cannot be placed on the list of contributories for a larger amount than what is prescribed by the memorandum 10

Cl (vi) This enables the liability of members of an unlimited company to be limited by special contract 12

and then to an adult, all the transfers having been registered, it was held that once the company had obtained an adult shareholder on its register, the intermediate transfers could not be avoided and the transferor could not be put on the list of past members, although the company was ordered to be wound up less than a year after the last transfer, but more than a year after the first transfer 1 If shares have been transferred and owing to default on the company's part the transfer has not been registered the transferor is entitled to have his name removed from the register 2 A past member cannot be called upon to make contributions for the adjustment of the rights of the present members 3

A deceased member or his estate remains a member for the purpose of this section so long as his name remains on the register without notice to the company of his death 4 When shares are registered in joint names, and one of the shareholders dies before winding up, his estate is not liable if the articles are silent on the point, only the survivor is liable 5 The liability of personal representatives placed on the list in their representative capacity is limited to the assets in their hands 6

Persons whose names are entered in the register as holders of shares as trustees are contributories in their own right and their liability is not limited to the amount of the trust estate 7 It being ultra vires of a limited company to issue shares at a discount or by way of bonus although authorized to do so by the articles persons to whom shares have been issued at a discount may be called upon in a winding up to pay in cash for their shares not only to meet the claims of outside creditors but also to adjust the rights of the contributories inter se 8

Persons signing the memorandum of association purely on the understanding that they would be given a certain number of shares as fully paid up in consideration of assets transferred to the company are not liable as contributories even though the contract regarding such shares is subsequently cancelled 9

If shares have been validly forfeited more than a year before the commencement of the winding up, the member cannot be placed on the list of contributories 10, even if owing to the neglect of the company his name has not been removed from the register 11, but he may remain liable as a debtor to the company for the calls made before the forfeiture 12 If the forfeiture is invalid the member will however be placed on the list of contribu-

tories 1 A person who claims damages for an improper forfeiture of his shares claims not as a member but as a non member 2

In the case of a forfeiture made less than a year before the commencement of the winding up the person whose shares have been forfeited will be liable to be placed on the list as a past member 3

Where less than a year Where a person has been induced to take shares by fraud in the prospectus he will be liable to be placed on the list of contributories unless he applies to have his name removed from the register of members before the commencement of the winding up 4 Where a contract is rescinded for misrepresentation it is rescinded ab initio and accordingly the shareholder cannot in a winding up be placed on the list of contributories even as a past member 5

Where induced to take shares by fraud But where a person applies for shares in expectation of some commission or special gain, and an arrangement is made therefor and the application is granted the applicant on allotment becomes a shareholder absolutely and the breach or unenforceability of the latter arrangement being a collateral agreement does not interfere with his liability as a contributory 6.

Meaning of commencement of the winding up Cl (i) A winding up by the Court commences at the time of the presentation of the petition for winding up 7 and a voluntary winding up commences at the time of the passing of the resolution authorizing the winding up 8

Cl (iv) Notwithstanding these words a contract contained in the articles extending the member's liability beyond that under the memorandum for satisfaction of particular debts may be enforced 9 by a separate suit 10 The qualification in this clause that a member shall not be liable to pay more than the unpaid amount of his share does not make him the less a contributory where the amount of the share money has been paid up and a petition for winding up under s 166 made by him is maintainable 11

Cl (v) A member of a company limited by guarantee and having a share capital can be sued for the amount unpaid on his shares, but he cannot be placed on the list of contributories for a larger amount than what is prescribed by the memorandum 10

Cl (vi) This enables the liability of members of an unlimited company to be limited by special contract 12

Q (cont.) Where the directors are employed by the company on the footing of articles which entitle them to remuneration the remuneration is not due to them in their character of members but they are ordinary creditors. If a member is entitled to prove for damages in respect of the issue to him of shares not fully paid when he contracted to take fully paid shares, such a proof will fall within the words "or otherwise."

Provided that—

- (i) a past director shall not be liable to make such further contribution if he has ceased to hold office for a year or upwards before the commencement of the winding up ,
- (ii) a past director shall not be liable to make such further contribution in respect of any debt or liability of the company contracted after he ceased to hold office ,
- (iii) subject to the articles a director shall not be liable to make such further contribution unless the Court deems it necessary to require that contribution in order to satisfy the debts and liabilities of the company, and the costs, charges and expenses of the winding up

158 The term “contributory” means every person liable to contribute to the assets of a company in the event of its being wound up, and, in all proceedings for determining and in all proceedings prior to the final determination of the persons who are to be deemed contributories, includes any person alleged to be a contributory.

Meaning of contributory

A contributory is a person who has agreed to become a member and whose name is upon the register 1 Every holder of fully paid shares is a contributory 2 as he is entitled to share in the adjustment of the rights of the contributories among themselves, though he will not be placed on the list of contributories except at his own desire 3 He may present a petition for winding up the company 4 and he is not liable to make any contribution to the assets 5 A fully paid shareholder who has received moneys from the liquidator upon a distribution of surplus assets with notice that the liquidator had not provided for payment of a debt due by the company, is a contributory and will be ordered to pay the amount to the credit of the liquidator 6 A person who is merely a debtor to the company is not a contributory 7

A winding up order has been made on the petition of persons alleging themselves to be contributories and being past members who had transferred their shares and who under the deed of settlement were as between themselves and the other proprietors discharged from liability. In general an application by an alleged contributory will not be entertained unless he will admit himself to be a contributory 1

Once a member is on the list of contributories unless he succeeds in showing that he should not have been placed on the list he is liable to the extent of the original share which remains unpaid 2. On the death of a contributory his personal representatives automatically become liable instead of the deceased contributory. No application for the purpose is necessary and consequently no question of limitation arises 3.

159 (1) The liability of a contributory shall create a debt payable at the time specified in the calls made on him by the liquidator

(2) No claim founded on the liability of a contributory shall be cognizable by any Court of Small Cause sitting outside the Presidency-towns

By the Companies (Amendment) Act 1976 the new sub s (1) has been substituted for the original sub s (1). As to the effect of the amendment see Introduction. The original sub s (1) was as follows

(1) The liability of a contributory shall create a debt accruing due from him at the time when his liability commenced but payable at the times when calls are made for enforcing the liability

The liability of a contributory began at the date when the contract was entered into whereby he became a member 4. It is a debt by specialty in which the heirs are bound. The same legal obligation binds members and contributories 5. But where the carrying on of a business is ultra vires of the company, the ultra vires transactions create no debt either legal or equitable and the contributories are not liable to pay such debts 6.

This section creates a debt 4 but it does not accrue due till the call is made. In any question, therefore, of set off between the company and a member who is also a creditor of the company no account will be taken of the liability of the member in respect of future calls not due at the date at which the right of set off arises 7.

In this case

long [1867]

When a call is made it is owing from the day on which it is made although it be payable on a subsequent day 1. Provisions in the articles payable as to interest on calls do not necessarily apply to calls made in the winding up 2.

When the contributory will not pay the call the liquidator may proceed either by an application for a balance order or by an order upon the contributory to pay or by an action in the name of the company. An action is more appropriate when questions of difficulty are involved but the liquidator will be required to give security for the defendant's costs under section 280 3.

Another method by which calls in a voluntary liquidation may be enforced is by the sale and forfeiture of the shares which must be carried through by the directors under the powers conferred by the articles with the sanction of the liquidator or of the company in general meeting. If there are no directors the liquidator may convene a general meeting which can then elect a sufficient number of directors for the purpose 4. After winding up a suit for allotment money or call money does not lie in a Court of Small Causes situate outside the Presidency towns 5.

This section is by virtue of s. 271 applicable to unregistered companies. Sub s. (2) does not occur in the English Act.

160 (1) If a contributory dies either before or after he has been placed on the list of contributories, his legal representatives and his heirs shall be liable in due course of administration to contribute to the assets of the company in discharge of his liability and shall be contributories accordingly.

(2) If the legal representatives or heirs make default in paying any money ordered to be paid by them, proceedings may be taken for administering the property of the deceased contributory, whether moveable or immoveable, or both, and of compelling payment thereof of the money due.

(3) For the purposes of this section the surviving coparceners of a contributory who is a member of a Hindu joint family governed by the Mitakshara School of Hindu Law shall be deemed to be his legal representatives and heirs.

By the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936 the new sub s. (3) has been added. For the effect of the amendment see Introduction.

The official liquidator need not take out letters of administration to the estate of a deceased shareholder before settling the list of contributories 6. There is nothing in the section requiring the official liquidator to place on the list all persons who may, as representatives be liable to contribute nor can the liability of a person who has been placed on the list as representative be affected by the official liquidator doing so (last case last page) Under Mitakshari law a son is liable as a representative of his father as a contributory in due course of administration only to the extent of the separate property of his father in which no other person had any interest in the life time of the father when the joint family is constituted by members other than father and sons 1 The son's share in the joint family property is not liable under the doctrine of pious obligation as the doctrine applies in cases where the family consists of only father and sons 1 But under the new sub s (3) the surviving coparceners of a contributory will be deemed to be his legal representatives and heirs

Upon the death of a member his estate remains liable to pay any calls until some person is put upon the register as holder of the shares 2 but his personal representatives do not incur any personal liability even if the company places their names upon the register unless they take the shares into their own names 3 Where the name of a deceased shareholder is put on the list of contributories the company not being aware of the death the proceeding is not a nullity as would otherwise be under the ordinary law for until the company is informed of the death of the contributory the deceased continues to be liable as a member and the company is not bound to take notice of the death otherwise 4

If the executors pay a legacy without making provision for the contingent liability on the shares they will be personally liable 5 but they may be entitled to call upon the residuary legatees to refund for the purpose of indemnifying them the capital sum paid to them but not the intermediate income 6 An order against a deceased contributory is a nullity, those persons who represent his estate should be brought on the record before an effective order can be made 7

An executor whose testator held shares in a joint stock company has generally one of two courses open to him He may have the shares transferred to his own name and become to all intents and purposes a partner in the company He may on the other hand not wish to have the shares transferred to his own name and he ought in that case to have a reasonable time allowed him to sell the shares and to produce a purchaser who will take a transfer of them 8

The case of trustees who take a transfer of shares in their names differs in principle from that of executors who merely intimate their title as executors to the company in order to claim and exercise the rights which belong to them as the legal representatives of their testator. Trustees have not in any proper sense of the word a representative character but executors have. Having representative rights it is impossible that they should not be entitled to produce the legal evidence of them to the company for the purpose of having their title in some way recorded and recognized without making them personally liable 1

A Balance order against the personal representatives is not a judgment so as to constitute the liquidator a judgment creditor and to exclude the executor's right of retention 2

Executors can challenge the validity of a purported resolution for winding up and appointment of a liquidator 3

Persons registered as joint holders of shares are joint tenants, and upon the death of one of them his liability ceases 4

161. If a contributory is adjudged insolvent either before or after he has been placed on the list of contributories, then—

(1) his assignees shall represent him for all the purposes of the winding up, and shall be contributories accordingly, and may be called on to admit to proof against the estate of the insolvent, or otherwise to allow to be paid out of his assets in due course of law, any money due from the insolvent in respect of his liability to contribute to the assets of the company, and

(2) there may be proved against the estate of the insolvent the estimated value of his liability to future calls as well as calls already made

A debt due from a company to a contributory cannot be set off against a call payable in the liquidation 5, otherwise members will be entitled to satisfaction of their debts pari passu with the rest of the creditors 6. But where the contributory is bankrupt the two liabilities can be set off 7, unless the contributory is a company in liquidation 8

Winding up by Court

162 A company may be wound up by the Court—

Circumstances in which company may be wound up by Court

- (i) if the company has by special resolution resolved that the company be wound up by the Court
- (ii) if default is made in filing the statutory report or in holding the statutory meeting
- (iii) if the company does not commence its business within a year from its incorporation, or suspends its business for a whole year
- (iv) if the number of members is reduced, in the case of a private company, below two or, in the case of any other company, below seven
- (v) if the company is unable to pay its debts
- (vi) if the Court is of opinion that it is just and equitable that the company should be wound up

If the Court makes an order to wind up a company without having jurisdiction the order cannot be treated as a nullity and unless and until it is discharged on appeal it is binding on the creditors and contributories but not on strangers *

A limited company formed in England under the English statute and having its registered office in England but which has its principal place of business in Calcutta and is managed exclusively by directors in Calcutta, and the business of which is carried exclusively in India can be wound up by the Calcutta High Court 3

There is nothing in the Act or in the Rule which deprives the Court of the discretion which it has in every case so that the Court may if it thinks fit refuse to admit a petition or as an alternative course give the company notice that a petition for winding up has been presented so that it may take steps to restrain the petitioner from proceeding with the petition 4

The Court is not bound to make a winding up order 5 If the application is made by a shareholder the Court will exercise a judicial discretion 6 The case of unlimited companies is open to other consideration 7 A petition presented in bad faith will be dismissed 8

Under s. 174 the Court may, as to all matters relating to a winding up, have regard to the wishes of the creditors or contributories. It has to see whether the other shareholders and creditors agree in thinking that winding up is the best course. If they oppose the Court will not make an order unless injustice is being done to the petitioner which can only be avoided by making an order for winding up 1

It is particularly the duty of the Courts in India to see that directors and other officers of companies carry out their duties honestly and to punish them if they do not. Compulsory liquidation affords the best opportunity of performing this duty when there is a prima facie case of dishonesty against the officers of a company 2

Where the number of shareholders is small and there are no difficulties in the way of a voluntary winding up the Court may refuse an order on a shareholder's petition 3. Although there may be a suspension of the business of the company for the space of a whole year, the Court will not make an order to wind up the company unless it is satisfied that there has been an intention on the part of the company to abandon its business or inability to carry it on, and upon the question of such intention the Court will have regard to the opinion and wishes of the majority of the shareholders whose names are on the register 4. But in a proper case as where there was no bona fide intention on the part of the directors to carry on business properly 5 and where there were matters to be investigated and there was overwhelming influence of one director 6 an order would be made though the number of shareholders were small 7. The Act affords in liquidation proceedings a much easier and less expensive way of collecting debts: a liquidator under orders of the Court is much more likely to collect the balances of the debts due to the company than the directors 2

An order for winding up may be made, although nothing has been paid on the shares and there are no debts 8

Although the Court has power to make an order for compulsory winding up at the instance of a shareholder there must be strong ground for exercising the power. Compulsory winding up is a very serious thing for the company and those connected with it and the company is entitled to have fair notice of the allegations which are going to be made against it. Therefore in dealing with an application by a shareholder it is essential that the petitioner should be confined to the allegations he has made 9. The Court ought not to make a compulsory winding up order on the petition of a shareholder, unless the company has wholly failed to carry out its objects 9. In a case where the Court is satisfied that there is a good ground for making a compulsory order, it may direct a meeting to ascertain the wishes of the contributories as to how the same is to be wound up (last note). It is not however right for the Court even if it has power to make a compulsory order on the ground that there was a majority of shareholders who voted at a meeting directed to be held by the Court in favour of winding up by the Court or under its supervision in the absence of any finding by the Judge of any other ground or of any valid resolution for voluntary winding up (last note). Where the petition by a shareholder contains allegations which all relate to the internal management of the company's affairs it is a matter for the shareholders themselves to deal with and not one that would call for interference by the Court.

Authority of general meeting is necessary Cl (i) Without the authority of a general meeting the directors are not entitled to present a winding up petition in the name of the company, but where the directors have presented such a petition it is open to a general meeting of shareholders to ratify their action. Under this clause it is necessary that a special resolution should be passed.

Cl (ii) For default in filing the statutory report an order under the sub-section was passed in Acet Outcrop Coal Co 3. See the provisions of s 77 (9) s 163 proviso (b) and s 170 (?).

Power of Court is discretionary Cl (iii) If a company does not commence business within a year of its incorporation or suspends business for a year the Court may order the company to be wound up. But the power of the Court is discretionary and an order will not be made against the wishes of a majority of the contributories if the Court is satisfied that business will be commenced or resumed or if the past delay is sufficiently accounted for. Commencement within a year of business refers to actually setting to work and not merely allotting shares.

If the Court is satisfied that no business has been or will be commenced an order will be passed on a shareholder's petition notwithstanding that the company has never received any money and has no debts. If a majority of shareholders unreasonably refuse to pass resolutions for voluntary winding up of a company which never has done nor ever will do any business a shareholder is entitled to an order.

To abandon one or more of the purposes and continue the others is not ceasing to carry on business provided the principal object of the company is not abandoned.

A shareholder of a company which has become amalgamated with another company is not entitled to an order to wind up the first company on the ground that it has ceased to carry on business as a separate company.

The matter of granting or refusing an application for winding up rests entirely in the discretion of the Court. In the case of a company which has suspended business for a whole year the power will be exercised when there is a fair indication that there is no intention to carry on the business if on the other hand suspension is satisfactorily accounted for and appears to be due to temporary causes the order will be refused 1

III (iv) The word members in this clause means actual members and does not include past members or representatives of deceased members or trustees of bankrupt members 2

The inclination of the Court is against applying the expensive machinery of a winding up order to a company with a very few shareholders unless there be substantial reason for it 3 In such cases a winding up order with its consequent costs is justified by suspicion of fraud which a winding up may succeed in detecting 4

CI (v) A creditor who cannot obtain payment of his debt is entitled as between himself and the company ex debito justitiae to an order if he brings his case within the Act 5 He is not bound to give time 6 Although a creditor of a company which is unable to pay its debts 7 is as between himself and the company entitled ex debito justitiae to a winding up order 8 he is not so entitled as between himself and other creditors 9

The Court is not bound by the wishes of the majority of creditors and it will disregard them where for example a single person has a controlling interest 10 or the majority is composed of persons whose conduct requires investigation 11

For a winding up order the debt must be presently payable and the title of the petitioner complete The law requires that a demand must be made for a debt that is due and it is not permissible to support a petition by alleging that something else is due 12

In a petition under this section the Court has to see whether the company is commercially insolvent i.e. whether it is unable to meet its current demand although the assets when realized may exceed its liabilities If the company is commercially insolvent it may be wound up 13 As observed by Lord Wrenbury In such a case it is useless to say that if the assets of the company are realized there will be ample to pay 20 shillings in the pound this is not the test A company may be at the same time insolvent and wealthy It may have wealth locked up in investment not presently realizable but although this be so yet if it have not assets available to meet its current liabilities it is commercially insolvent winding up order if the company bona fide disputes the existence of the debt. To make an order for winding up in such a case would deprive the company of its rights to have the question decided in the normal way by the Civil Court and this would be opposed to public policy. An application for winding up in such a case must be regarded as a vehicle of oppression and an abuse of the process of the Court and must be dismissed. An order for the compulsory winding up of a company is a very extreme step to take and such order ought not to be lightly passed.¹

When a debt is bona fide disputed by the company no order for winding-up will be made and the petition will be dismissed.² Where a petition against a company is presented ostensibly for a winding up order but really for another purpose such as putting pressure on the company³ the Court has an inherent jurisdiction to prevent such an abuse of process and will do so without requiring an action to be commenced by restraining the advertisement of the petition and staying all proceedings upon it.⁴ But if the debt is not disputed on some substantial ground the Court may decide it on the petition and make the order.⁵ Where a company has a bona fide defence the petition should be dismissed,⁶ but it is otherwise if the petitioner would in the circumstances be left without a remedy.⁷

Where the action of the petitioning creditor in making the application for the winding up of a company and in insisting upon further proceedings in liquidation is not bona fide he should be saddled with the entire cost of the liquidation, and in the absence of a clear provision in the Companies Act dealing with a case of this kind the matter is governed by s. 30 C P Code.⁸

Where a judgment has been obtained against a company for debt the judgment creditor cannot be called upon on an allegation that it was obtained by fraud, to go into further evidence in support of his claim.⁹ But upon the respondent undertaking to bring an action to set aside the judgment the petition may be ordered to stand over.¹⁰ If however the judgment be shown to have been obtained by collusion, the petition for winding up may be dismissed although the judgment has not been impeached in an action.¹⁰

An order will not be refused on the ground that the judgment is under appeal unless a stay of execution be obtained 1 But if the judgment be reversed on appeal before the petition for winding up is heard the petition will be dismissed, although a further appeal may be pending 2

A debenture holder or a debenture stock holder to whom a company is indebted in a sum presently payable can demand payment and if default be made a petition for winding up the company 3 The mere fact that he has obtained the appointment of a receiver does not preclude him from applying for a winding up order 4 As against the company he is entitled to a winding up order ex debito justitiæ, but not so as against the whole of the majority of the creditors 5 The holder of a mortgage debenture who applies for a winding-up order is not bound to give up his security 6

A debenture holder however is not bound to come in and enforce his rights in a winding up He may exercise such powers of realization as are given him by his securities 7 Appointment of a receiver or sale, and where it is necessary to bring an action he can apply to the Court and the Court will give liberty to bring or proceed with the action as a matter of course, the winding up notwithstanding 7 Debenture holders and debenture stock holders are entitled as against their securities whether the company is solvent or insolvent to take principal interest and costs 8

A petition for winding up made by a shareholder however stands on a different footing It will be more fully scrutinized Where the petition proceeds on the ground that the company is unable to pay its debts, it must pay the debt or submit to a winding up order If the petition alleges one of the grounds under clauses (i), (ii) (iii) (iv) and (vi) the Court will under ordinary circumstances, admit the petition If any other grounds are alleged the petition does not satisfy the requirements of the law 9

A contributory in order to obtain an order for winding up, must make out a special case e.g. that the substratum of the company is gone The substratum is held to be gone where the main object for which the company was formed has become impracticable 10

The holders of fully paid shares may apply for winding up as a contributory But the Court will not be satisfied with the bare statement of a director that the company is unable to pay its debts 11 See notes to ss 163 and 166

III (vi) It was formerly held that the words in this clause should be read as being ejusdem generis with the words in the preceding clauses 1. The words are not to be read *ejusdem generis Now it has been authoritatively laid down by the Judicial Committee that the power of the Court under this clause is not confined to cases in which there are grounds analogous to those mentioned in the other parts of the section 2. Thus it is just and equitable to wind up a company when its substratum is gone 3 although the majority of the shareholders desire to continue to carry on the business 3 or where the company is a bubble company 4 or where there is a complete deadlock in the management of the company's business 5 unless the deadlock is only temporary 6 or where the company was formed to carry on an illegal business 7 or where the company was conceived and brought forth in fraud 8 or if the particular circumstances of a case require it 9. For other cases see Hals pp. 97-98. The corresponding clause of Act VI of 1892 is s. 128 and is as follows: (e) whenever for any other reason of a like nature the Court is of opinion &c. The change in the present section is in accordance with the later English decisions.

The position of the Court in determining whether it is just and equitable to wind up the company requires a full consideration of all the circumstances connected with the formation and the carrying on of the company and the common misfortune which has befallen some shareholders in the company does not involve the consequence that the ultimate desires and hopes of the ordinary shareholders should be disregarded simply because there is a strong interest in favour of liquidation naturally felt by the preference shareholders 10. No general rule can be laid down as to the nature and circumstances which have to be borne in mind in considering whether the case comes within the phrase just and equitable for purposes of winding up. The decisive question must be the question whether at the date of the presentation of the winding up petition there is any reasonable hope that the object of trading at a profit, with a view to which the company has been formed can be attained. In considering that question the guarantee of the preference shares should be left out of sight except in so far as it may have biased the evidence on either side 10.

There is a great difference between a question of positive fact such as the pecuniary position of a trading company at a particular date and a question of the prospects of such a company in the future a matter which must depend on all sorts of views as to the state of world trade the confidence of the public, the price at which articles can be sold a matter which depends very largely upon the number of such sales and an infinity of other considerations, very difficult either to summarise or to define. of a Court to determine such a matter on its own views as to the probable success or failure but to form the best opinion it can upon the evidence given by persons with a practical knowledge of the trade in question and the local conditions where these affect the matter (last note last page)

Where there were only three directors and shareholders of a private company and one of them left the country and the remaining two quarrelled among themselves, and there was a deadlock it was just and equitable that the company should be wound up ¹ Where a private limited company is in substance a partnership, circumstances which would justify dissolution of a partnership will induce the Court to exercise its jurisdiction under this clause ²

Where the capital of a private company is so owned as to make the company in substance a partnership and one director has purposed by means of irregularities to acquire complete control of the company and to exclude the other director or directors from the management it may be just and equitable that the company should be wound up ³

Where a company was formed to carry out a contract which it had no reasonable probability of carrying out and the moneys of the company had been misapplied by the directors and the company was so constituted that it was deprived of its usual remedies it was held that the substratum of the company was gone, and that it was just and equitable that the company should be wound up ⁴

Where the managing director of a company had in a chancery action been adjudged to be personally largely indebted to the company and had entered into large contracts with the company but the company not only neglected to enforce payment but continued him as managing director passed a vote of confidence in him immediately after the aforesaid judgment and passed another resolution approving of the directors opposing the winding up petition it was held that the company had so identified and associated itself with the managing director in his misconduct that it was just and equitable that it should be wound up ⁵

Where the directors were able to exercise a dominating influence on the management of the company and the managing director could outvote the minority and retain the profits between the members of his family and there were several complaints of irregularity and the rate of dividend was steadily diminishing there were sufficient grounds for entertaining a winding up petition and for calling upon the directors to enter upon their defence ⁶

It is just and equitable to wind up a company when there is a justifiable lack of confidence in the conduct and management of the company's affairs owing to the management being held in one family which is in a position to dominate the other shareholders and monopolize the company's affairs for their own individual benefit ⁷ But the fact that one of the shareholders has a preponderating voice in the company by reason of his owning or controlling a large number of shares is of itself no reason for winding up the company under this section 1 nor is the fact that dividends have not been paid regularly a ground for such a winding up 1 It is well settled that an ultra vires transaction on the part of the directors is of itself no ground for a winding up order a shareholder having his complete remedy in other directions 1 So where there was no question of deadlock nor was there any question of shareholders using their voting power for their own commercial interests outside the company in disregard of the interests of a minority nor again was there any question involved of an improper management of the company by the directors who were in control and the problem involved was of the nature of a business problem held that if there was at the relevant time a reasonable hope of tiding over the period of deep depression and of emerging into a region in which the company might reasonably expect to carry on at a profit there could seem to be no sufficient reason why the Court should wind up the company under the "just and equitable" clause 2

Where a person who had been adjudicated insolvent transferred his estates to a private limited company in which he had 90 per cent shares it was held to be just and equitable that the company should be wound up 3

Where a petition is presented for winding up of a company on the ground that it is Onus just and equitable to do so the onus is on the petitioner 2

The Court has ample jurisdiction to order the winding-up of a company where it thinks that it is just and equitable to do so although the assets would be entirely absorbed in paying off debentures 4 But the power given in cl (vi) to the Court should not be exercised unless there is a very strong ground for acting upon it, because companies are governed by a majority of their own members and where there is a domestic tribunal which has powers to decide upon a question it should if possible, be left to the domestic tribunal 5 Thus in the case of a company which is not shown to have been conceived and brought forth in fraud or to be one whose substratum is gone the mere fact that the applicants apprehend that the assets of the company will be frittered away and that losses would result from the company continuing to work is no

ground for winding it up under cl (vi) 6 In spite of heavy losses if under a new management a company showed reason to believe that it would shortly be in a sounder position the Court will not order a winding up 6 So the Court will not order a company to be wound up under this clause by reason of any liabilities not immediately payable unless it is reasonably certain that the existing and probable assets will be insufficient to meet the existing liabilities and the Court will not in any case take into account the possible liabilities or profits which may accrue in respect of future business 7

companies are governed by a majority of their own members and where there is a domestic tribunal which has powers to decide upon a question it should if possible be left to the domestic tribunal 5 Thus in the case of a company which is not shown to have been conceived and brought forth in fraud or to be one whose substratum is gone the mere fact that the applicants apprehend that the assets of the company will be frittered away and that loss would result from the company continuing to work is no

The fact that the firm of the managing agents of a company have been dissolved but steps have been taken to appoint new managing agents is no indication of a complete deadlock which can only be removed by winding up the company 1 In the absence of proof that the objects of a company is set out in the memorandum cannot be fulfilled in other ways or by the employment of other agents the principle of "substratum gone" cannot be applied 1 The substratum is gone when the main purpose has become impossible" 2

The distinction between failure of substratum of a company and an ultra vires act was pointed out by Lord Parker of Waddington in the following words "The question whether or not a company can be wound up for failure of substratum is a question of equity between a company and its shareholders The question whether or not a transaction is ultra vires is a question of law between the company and a third party 3 Where a private company has been formed to pay off the family debts the shareholders mainly being the members of that family, to bring the company within the just and equitable clause it must be shown that the substratum of the company that is the family estate, has gone or that a deadlock has arisen in the sense that it is now impossible for the company to carry out the objects for which it was formed 4

If it appears to the Court on a general perusal of the balance sheet that the assets of the company are insufficient to satisfy its liabilities, that will enable the Court to order its winding up 5 Where a bill is dishonoured this may be a sufficient proof of insolvency 6 although the petitioner had not served a demand requiring payment 6

Where the whole object of a company is fraudulent it may be wound up 7, but fraud must be specifically alleged and proved 8 and it is not sufficient that it should be stated in the statutory affidavit alone 9 Fraud towards outside public is however no ground for compulsory winding up 10 The mere fact that there was fraud in the promotion or fraudulent misrepresentation in the prospectus is not of itself sufficient for a winding up order 11

A company has been wound up under this clause for the purpose of defeating a reconstruction scheme prejudicial to the shareholders 12 or in the case of a deadlock 13

If a company proceed to do something which is ultra vires, a shareholder has a right in an action on behalf of himself and all other shareholders to restrain it but has no right to come for a winding up order under this clause 14

- (ii) If execution or other process issued on a decree or order of any Court in favour of a creditor of the company is returned unsatisfied in whole or in part, or
- (iii) if it is proved to the satisfaction of the Court that the company is unable to pay its debts, and, in determining whether a company is unable to pay its debts, the Court shall take into account the contingent and prospective liabilities of the company.

(2) The demand referred to in clause (i) of sub-section (1) shall be deemed to have been duly given under the hand of the creditor if it is signed by an agent or legal adviser duly authorised on his behalf or in the case of a firm if it is signed by such agent or by a legal adviser or any one member of the firm on behalf of the firm

Amendment By the Companies (Amendment) Act 1930 the original s 163 has been re-numbered as sub s (1) in cl (i) thereof for the words 'by leaving the same after the words on the company' the words in italics have been substituted and the new sub s (2) has been added For the effect of the amendments see Introduction

This section is explanatory to cl (v) of the last section

Meaning of creditor The term creditor is not limited to one to whom a debt is due at the date of the petition and who can demand immediate payment 1 It includes any contingent and prospective creditor 2 It was held under the former Acts that a garnishee order against a company did not make the garnishee a creditor 3 A person who had a claim against a company for unliquidated damages was not a creditor within this section 4 nor a person who had guaranteed the payment of a debt from the company but had not paid such debt 5 The law was changed by s 137 of the Act of 1908 corresponding to s 166 of the present Act which says that "creditor includes any contingent or prospective creditor"

Meaning of assignment The word assignment includes an equitable assignment including an assignment of part of a debt 7 Such an assignee can present a petition for winding up but if he does so he must establish the company's insolvency otherwise than by a demand for payment under this section 7 The assignee of part of a debt cannot serve an effective demand under cl (i) in the absence of the person entitled to the remainder of the debt 7 But such an assignment does operate in equity to transfer the part assigned and it constitutes the assignee = creditor in equity of the original debtor and as such he can when the debtor is a company, present a winding up petition under s. 166 1

Omission by a company bona fide disputing the debt is not neglecting to comply with the statutory demand 2 In such a case if it is not shown that the company will be unable to pay the debt when it has been established by judgment the Court may dismiss the petition 3 or may order it to stand over until the debt has been so established 4 but if the petitioner has already obtained judgment hearing of the petition will not be stayed unless the company undertakes to bring an action to set aside the judgment In the case of London & Paris Banking Corporation 2 Sir G. Jessel M.R. said If the debt is bona fide contested and there is no evidence other than non-compliance with the statutory notice to show that the company is insolvent and the company denies its insolvency I ought to dismiss the petition

If the creditor relies upon neglect of a statutory notice he must prove it and prove that it took place before the petition was presented but may show insolvency in any other way 5 Thus dishonour of the company's acceptance 4 or the fact that he being a judgment creditor the company has informed him that he had better not levy for it has no asset, is enough 6

Default in complying with the demand of a creditor gives not only him but other creditors and contributors the right to petition for winding up 7 Where the statutory demand has not been complied with, the company is unable to pay its debts and there is no reasonable chance of the company resuming its work in the near future petitioning creditors are prima facie entitled to a winding up order 8

The principle upon which a company is to be wound up on the petition of a creditor is simply its inability to pay after proper demand made and the lapse of three weeks Any such neglect must be judged by reference to the facts of each particular case and when the defence is that the debt is disputed all that the Court will first see is whether the dispute is on the face of it genuine or merely a cloak of the company's real inability to pay its just debts 9

Where the object of the petition is to put pressure on the company to accept terms of settlement in a litigation pending between the company and the creditor, the proper order is to stay the winding up proceeding until the determination of the suit 9, for it is a well established principle that the Court has inherent jurisdiction to stay proceedings when they amount to an abuse of its process 10

It seems that a creditor for less than Rs 500 can present the petition under s 166 where no limit is fixed 1 But generally the Courts treat the Rs 500 limit as a guide to the stake which the petitioner ought to have 2 But where the petition is supported by creditors of more than Rs 500 the usual order may be made 3

The statutory notice under this section is a highly formal and important document and the provision of the Act as to its service upon the company must be strictly complied with 4 Where the registered office of a company still exists at the usual place but a part of the company's business has been shifted to some other place without any notification of such change to the registrar of companies the statutory notice must be served at the registered address 4

An advocate's notice 5 of demand or that of any other agent 6 did not before the amendment satisfy the requirements of this section 6 Under the new sub = (2) an agent or a legal adviser's notice is sufficient

(1) (i) of sub = (1) means that the company to be served must at the time of the service be in default and that being in default it is to be served with a demand under rather special precautions so that if it makes further default for a period of three weeks the question of its inability to pay the debt is set at rest 7 A demand by the solicitors of the creditor not being under his hand was not before the amendment sufficient for the purposes of this section 7 The general common law principle qui facit per alium facit per se in accordance with the decision in in re Whitley Partners 8 did not apply 7 In the last cited case 7 Sir George Rankin C J observed "The effect of the statutory notice is that unless the debt is paid within three weeks or some arrangement is made with the creditors the company is in the position of being conclusively estopped from denying that it is unable to pay its debts It is a highly formal and important document although it is perfectly true that the demand may be made in any terms It has to be served on the company by leaving the same at its registered office and it has to be a demand under the hand of the creditors I think that those words must be taken to have a special intention The intention must be that there can be no doubt at all about such a notice as this being recognized as a notice directly authorized by the creditors and as one to which will attach or may attach the very serious consequences which the Companies Act imposes

Judgment debt Cl (1) is general in its terms and has application to all sorts of debts be it a simple money debt a mortgage debt or a judgment debt. In the case of a judgment debt if execution for the recovery of that debt has been taken and has remained unsatisfied the Court is in accordance with cl (11) bound to presume that the company is unable to pay its debts. Nevertheless the decree holder is not debarred from making a demand for the payment of the judgment debt by a notice under cl (1) without having recourse to execution proceedings. In such a case if the demand remains unsatisfied for three weeks the presumption enjoined by this section necessarily follows 1

Time limit The petition must not be presented until after the expiration of 21 days from the service of the demand 2. If the company has no registered office service of the demand may be made at its unregistered office 3. As to the registered office see notes to ss 3 and 2.

Where appeal is pending Where a judgment has been passed against a company the Court will not stay proceedings on a winding up petition or refuse order because an appeal is pending but will usually allow the petition to be suspended if security is given by the company for the amount of the debt and costs 4.

Sub s 2 A limited liability company must necessarily act through its officers and authorized agents. The manager of a company must unless the contrary is proved be deemed to have the authority to demand and receive payment of the debts due to the company 5.

See notes to s 162 cl (7) and s 161.

164 Where the High Court makes an order for winding up a company under this Act, it may, if it thinks fit, direct all subsequent proceedings to be had in a District Court, and thereupon such District Court shall, for the purpose of winding up the company, be deemed to be "the Court" within the meaning of this Act, and shall have, for the purposes of such winding up, all the jurisdiction and powers of the High Court.

Under this section the District Judge has the jurisdiction and powers of the High Court and therefore he has power to order attachment before judgment of property beyond his ordinary jurisdiction 6.

This section does not occur in the English Act.

165 If during the progress of a winding up in a District Court it is made to appear to the High Court that the same could be more conveniently prosecuted in any other District Court having jurisdiction to wind up companies, the High Court may transfer the same to such other Court, and thereupon the winding up shall proceed in such other District Court.

166 An application to the Court for the winding up of a company shall be by petition presented, subject to the provisions of this section, either by the company, or by any creditor or creditors (including any contingent or prospective creditor or creditors), contributory or contributories, or by all or any of those parties, together or separately, or by the registrar

Provisions
as to applications for winding up

Provided that—

- (i) a contributory shall not be entitled to present a petition for winding up a company unless—
 - (i) either the number of members is reduced, in the case of a private company, below two, or, in the case of any other company, below seven, or
 - (ii) the shares in respect of which he is a contributory or some of them either were originally allotted to him or have been held by him, and registered in his name, for at least six months during the eighteen months before the commencement of the winding up, or have devolved on him through the death of a former holder,
- (aa) the registrar shall not be entitled to present a petition for winding up a company—
 - (i) except on the ground that from the financial condition of the company as disclosed in its balance-sheet or from the report of an inspector appointed under section 138 it appears that the company is unable to pay its debts, and
 - (ii) unless the previous sanction of the Local Government has been obtained to the presentation of the petition

Provided that no such sanction shall be given unless the company has first been afforded an opportunity of being heard

- (b) a petition for winding up a company on the ground of default in filing the statutory report or in holding the statutory meeting shall not be presented by any person except a shareholder, nor before the expiration of fourteen days after the last day on which the meeting ought to have been held,
- (c) the Court shall not give a hearing to a petition for winding up a company by a contingent or

1 a voluntary winding up 1 But the holder of a share warrant to bearer cannot contri year or upwards before the commencement of the winding up proceed butory ings are contributories within the meaning of this section and are entitled to present a petition for winding up if their shares are held by them and registered in their names for more than six months preceding the commencement of the winding up 3

Where the application is made by a contributory who is in arrears in the payment of his call the Court will not as a rule hear the application until the arrears Application have been paid either to the company or to the Court 4 by contri
 butory

Where a contributory makes the application on the ground that the company is insolvent he must allege and prove that there will be a substantial surplus for the shareholders otherwise he has no interest which the Court should take into account 5
 The Court may also make a compulsory order on the petition of a fully paid share holder if satisfied that the voluntary winding up is likely to prejudice the shareholder 6
 But the shareholder must show that he will derive some real benefit from a compulsory order 7

Where the petition is presented by a shareholder and the allegations made therein all related to the internal management of the company's affairs it is a matter for the shareholders to deal with and not a matter that will call for interference Share by the Court 8 The fact that a voluntary winding up is in progress is holder a prima facie a bar to the winding up on a shareholder's petition 9 because petition the shareholder is bound by the wishes of the majority But the Court has a discretion and if it sees cause will examine the composition of the majority passing the resolution to make sure that it represents the real wishes of the shareholders 10 Prima facie a petition by a shareholder alleging that the company has no assets will be dismissed with costs 11

In a shareholder's petition for winding up the omission to make the statement that the petitioner has held the shares for 6 months before filing the petition does not make the petition demurrable 12 But the registered name of the company must be accurately stated in the advertisement otherwise the advertisement would be invalid 12 Where the date fixed for hearing is advertised was a holiday the Court has discretion to dis-pensate with the necessity of publishing fresh advertisement 13 In the last cited case the Court of Appeal discharged the order for winding up to enable the shareholders to meet and decide whether the company should be wound up voluntarily

A creditor who has presented a petition cannot sell his debt and the right to proceed with the petition, for it is opposed to public policy 1 The executor of a creditor can make the petition before obtaining probate 2 A creditor cannot utilize his petition for obtaining some pecuniary benefit for himself alone 3

A third party can have no right of action in respect of a contract unless he possesses an actual beneficial right which places him in the position of cestui que trust under the contract 4

There is no obligation whatever on the Court to admit a petition for winding-up merely because it is presented The petitioner must allege facts which if proved would justify an order for winding up But if a petition does not allege such facts, the Judge has a discretion (since the admission of the petition must inevitably damage the company's credit) to consider whether the petition is really a longa fide one, otherwise the door will be laid open to unlimited opportunities for blackmail especially in times of financial panic 5

An action for damages will lie for presenting a winding up petition maliciously and without reasonable cause, though no special damage can be proved 6

The Court will restrain the issuing of advertisements and will not allow the name of the company to transpire when the petition is an abuse of the process of the Court and is made from improper motives 7 On application made in time the Court will restrain the presentation of the petition 8

In estimating the number of members for the purpose of cl (a) sub cl (i) neither past members nor representatives of deceased or bankrupt members should be taken into account 9

In cl (a) sub cl (ii) the words 'or have been held by him' means standing in the name of the contributory petitioner 10

In petitioning for the winding up it is important to state correctly the name of the company Even a slight error will render it necessary for the petition to be amended, re-served, re-advertized and again brought before the Court 11

The petition must be supported by an affidavit made by the petitioner or in a proper case by his solicitor 12

Only the petitioner, the company, the creditors and the contributories supporting and opposing are entitled to appear on the petition 1 Where several petitions are presented they rank according to the date of presentation and not according to their dates of advertisement 2 A fully paid shareholder is entitled to be heard 10 but in these matters it is improper to allow the company to fight the battle or the grievances of an individual shareholder 3

Debenture holders usually do not appear to oppose the petition, for they have another remedy but if a winding up would prejudicially affect them, this may be a ground for refusing to make the order for winding up 4

A creditor who has presented a petition for winding up being dominus litis is entitled on receiving payment of his debt to dismiss his petition at the hearing but creditors who have appeared in consequence of the advertisement of the petition are entitled to their costs 5

A petitioner cannot take his case out of the list for hearing without leave of the Court 6 Where a petitioner withdraws his petition he will be ordered to pay one set of costs to those supporting and one to those opposing the petition 7 For further cases regarding costs see Gore Browne 30th ed pp 492-93

The right to petition for winding up a company being a statutory right cannot be excluded by provisions in the articles of association 8

While a petition for compulsory winding up is pending, it is a contempt of Court to obtain by improper means a resolution for voluntary winding up with a view to mislead the Court as to the real views of the shareholders and thereby induce the Court to abstain from making a compulsory order 9

The Court will also punish as a contempt an abuse of the occasion of an advertisement at length of a petition containing charges of fraud 10 or comments on the conduct of the directors published in the public press during the pendency of the petition 11 But it is not contempt to circulate among persons interested arguments of statements regarding the matter before the Court 12

A winding up order operates in favour of all the creditors and contributories. Where a sum was recovered by the liquidator from a director for fraudulent trading under s 27 of the English Act of 1929 it was held that the money formed part of the general assets of the company and was not restricted to those creditors with whom debts were contracted during the period of fraudulent trading 1

When a depositor in a company applies for its winding up and other creditors and contributories are allowed by the Court to join with him in prosecuting the case the petition of the depositor should be considered as a joint petition of all the persons allowed to join and his withdrawal from the case does not operate as a withdrawal of the whole case. If the original petition is duly verified and signed the co-petitioners are not debarred from proceeding with the case on account of omission to verify their petitions 2

The effect of the winding up order is to stop the running of the statute of limitations in the company's favour 3. It does not however bring the company's business to an end and if the liquidator carries out a contract on the company's behalf he can recover the consideration 4. If the liquidator has declared his inability to perform the company's contracts other contracting parties may treat this as an immediate breach of contract and claim damages 5. A manager who having a contract for a term of years has covenanted not to trade in competition with the company is freed from his obligation by the breach of contract caused by the liquidation 6.

The winding up order puts an end to the directors' powers e.g., as to making calls 7 but they do not cease to be officers of the company 8. As to the effect on the directors' remuneration see the case noted below 9.

An agreement that an agent shall receive commission upon the sales of the company for a period of years will not however give the agent a right to damages by reason of the company going into liquidation 10. But an agreement that the company shall accept and pay commission upon such orders as the agent shall introduce will give a right to damages for this amount to an express agreement to continue the business 11.

On an order for winding up a company's debentures and other debts payable at a future date become immediately payable and ceases to be forfeitable in the event of a winding up are determined 12.

The liquidators in a voluntary winding up recovered a sum of money alleged to have been paid to a creditor by the company by way of fraudulent preference 13.

persons who, in the opinion of the Court, are responsible for the default

(3) When the Court makes an order for the winding up of a company it shall, except where a liquidator is appointed simultaneously, forthwith cause intimation thereof to be sent to the official receiver

The new sub s (3) has been added by the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936
 Amendment For the object of the amendment see the new s 171 A and Introduction

The object and effect of an order for the compulsory winding up of a company is the closing down of its business. No doubt in order that the assets of the company should be distributed among those entitled to them in the most efficient and fair manner the Court in some cases may permit the realization of the assets to be suspended temporarily, but for no other purpose. The reason why an order is made that the affairs of a company should be wound up by the Court is because it is deemed expedient that the company should come to an end as a business undertaking. If the general body of creditors are of opinion that it will best serve their interest that an order for compulsory liquidation should be made and the company closed down, their views are entitled to respect. On the other hand if the creditors think that it will be more to their interest that the company should go into voluntary liquidation again it is primarily a matter for them to decide. But the wishes of the majority of the creditors are not binding upon the Court, though in every case the Court might try to give them serious consideration. It is true as between creditor and the company as his debtor the creditor who proves insolvency is entitled ex debito justitiae to a winding up order. But the right ex debito justitiae is not his individual right but his representative right. If majority of the creditors are opposed to his view and consider that they have a better chance of getting payment by abstaining from seizing the assets then upon general grounds the Court should give effect to such right as the majority of the creditors desire to exercise 1

Formerly a winding up order was not, as a rule, made where there were no assets or where all the assets would be taken by the debenture holders 2. But this section recognizes 3 and gives effect to the decision in Crygglesstone Coal Co [1906] 2 Ch 327. A fully paid shareholder is entitled to an order where the company has no assets and is insolvent 4.

Where it appears that a winding up order will not benefit the petitioner, that nearly all the other creditors oppose the petition and the company is trying to arrange a scheme for reconstruction, the Court will refuse to allow the petition to stand over and may dismiss it with costs 5. Where creditors to a very considerable amount proposed a compulsory winding up and wished it to be voluntarily wound up, Sir John Romilly M R said - 'I will explain the principle on which I proceed in these cases. Where a creditor applies to wind up one of those companies, especially a limited one and the company says if you allow this to stand over we will supply funds to pay the debt, I am disposed to grant that indulgence. So where a shareholder who applies for the order and the company says 'if you allow it to stand over the remaining shareholders are ready to advance the necessary money', I allow it to stand over. But here it is admitted that the company must be wound up and the only question is whether it is to be voluntarily or under the Court. I do not know what advance of money can be obtained. I do not know how money can be advanced if the company is to be wound up. The case is very different where it is to be carried on. 1. In Western of Canada Co 2. Lord Selborne L.C. observed "A very large majority of the debenture holders think that their interests would be better promoted by delay and the delay appears to me in the circumstances reasonable."

A winding up order will not be made on a debt which is bona fide disputed by the company³ but the Court will see that the dispute is based on substantial grounds. If the petition has been actually presented it may be either dismissed or stayed⁴ and an injunction may be granted restraining the advertisement of the petition.⁵ If the petition is ordered to stand over at the request of the company it will be required to give an undertaking that it will not consent to a winding up order on the petition of another person or to a voluntary liquidation.⁶

A petition will not be adjourned on the ground that an order if made will relate back to the presentation of the petition, and affect acts done in the interval. But if the petitioner may by reason of the petition standing over get paid earlier than he would under a winding up order an immediate order will be refused.

Second Petition When a creditor is aware that a petition to wind up has been presented, he cannot present a second petition without the risk of having to pay costs even if the first petition be of the company 10 As regards costs 11 see Buckley 10th Ed pp 349-50

The only persons entitled to be heard are the company its creditors and the contributories 12 The Court may in its discretion hear other persons who have an interest in order to learn what public grounds there are in favour of or in opposition to the winding up 13 but such persons cannot appeal 12 There can be no doubt really as observed by Sir George Rankin in a recent case 14 whether or not the wording of the Companies Act uses the word contributory in all cases with exactness that a fully paid up shareholder has the right to appear and to be heard upon the application to wind up the company. That has been the settled practice of great many years and we have been referred to the cases re Inglesby Colliery Co 1 and re Rica Gold Washing Co 2 which say that a fully paid up shareholder has the right to present a winding up petition. The Companies Act does not it appears to me deal directly with the question of who shall be heard at the time when a winding up petition is being tried. If one goes on the ordinary principles it seem to me manifest that a shareholder has an interest in the questions whether the company should be wound up and a receiver appointed over all the assets its goodwill brought to nothing, and its capital as it very often happens sold at a ruinous loss.

Procedure As the advertisement of the petition is an invitation to the creditors and contributories to appear 3 if the petitioner wants to get his petition dismissed he must pay the costs of the former 4. For this reason the petitioner will not be allowed to take his petition out of the list 5 and if when it is called on he elects to get it dismissed it will be dismissed with costs including those of the creditors who appear 6 whether the persons supporting or opposing the petition are in the right or not 7.

Effect of the order Where a winding up order is made on a petition it is an order for the benefit of all the creditors and contributories 8 and the petitioner's costs including those of establishing his debt if disputed are a first charge on the estate and must be paid in full in priority to any costs of the liquidator 9.

A winding up order is not a judgment in rem and a stranger, e.g. a purchaser from the liquidator may dispute its validity 10.

Petition of holder of fully paid share An order to wind up a company compulsorily will be made on the petition of a holder of paid up shares notwithstanding that an extraordinary resolution has been passed to wind it up voluntarily 11.

Two companies cannot for the sake of convenience be included in one winding up order 12.

Appeal It has been held in England that any person who appeared at the hearing can appeal 13 and persons who did not appear at the hearing must obtain leave before they can appeal 14.

Sub s (2) As regards the obligation of a company to hold the statutory meeting and to file the statutory report see s 77.

171. When a winding up order has been made or a provisional liquidator has been appointed, no suit or other legal proceeding shall be proceeded with or commenced against the company except by leave of the Court, and subject to such terms as the Court may impose.

The words in italics have been inserted by the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936.

The object of the section is to prevent all litigation against a company which is being wound up except with the consent of the Court and all proceedings in which the company is either a defendant or a respondent are proceedings against the company. Therefore a revision petition against a company cannot be proceeded with after the winding up order without leave of the Court in which the winding up proceeding is going on. But an appeal or application for revision arising out of an action brought by the company does not come within the purview of this section 2.

Where a company is being wound up by or subject to the supervision of the Court any attachment, sequestration distress or execution put in force against the estate or effects of the company is, unless leave to proceed is given by the Court, voided altogether 3 so that no interest in any goods seized is acquired even against third persons 4. The Court will set aside a judgment obtained without leave after the winding up order 5. The provision applies to distress for rent 6 or rates 7. A suit or application can only be instituted or made with the leave of the Court 8.

If execution or process of the nature has been duly levied or put in force before the winding up commenced so as to make the creditor a secured creditor, a stay will be refused or leave to proceed and to sell given 9, unless the liquidator pays the debt 10 or there are special circumstances. Service of a garnishee order nisi is for this purpose, equivalent to execution 11, but an order appointing a receiver by way of equitable execution does not per se make the judgment creditor a secured creditor 12. If the writ has merely reached the hands of the sheriff, but he has not seized at the commencement of the winding up, the Court will not, in the absence of special circumstances, allow execution to be levied 12, for an execution is not put in force unless possession is taken under it 13. As to a mortgagee submitting to have his rights determined see the case noted below 14.

The leave of the Court is essential for the purpose of proceeding to execution even in the case of a decree obtained by the Government, there is no exception to this section 1

This section is not meant to override an express enactment in s 145, Criminal Procedure Code by which a Magistrate if satisfied that a dispute likely to cause a breach of the peace exists, is bound to call on the parties to attend his Court and put in their claims as regards actual possession 2

Proceedings will be allowed to continue where they are to enforce a mortgage or security upon the company's property, or where the company is a necessary party to an action against other persons, or where an action is the most convenient method of trying a question, or where a shareholder has commenced proceedings for rescission and rectification of the register before the winding up or where the claim is for specific performance or for recovery of possession 3 Leave to continue a suit against the company should be given where some question arises which cannot be satisfactorily determined in the winding up proceeding 4

Where the decree sought to be executed is one assigned by the company since gone into liquidation the judgment debtor cannot maintain the objection that the execution proceedings are incompetent for the reason that no leave of the Court was obtained when the company presses no such objection and the judgment debtor did not take the objection in the Court of first instance 5

The liquidation Court will restrain a person within its jurisdiction from taking, or continuing actions or proceedings out of the jurisdiction 6 Where a company was being wound up by the Court of Chancery in England all actions brought against it in India were ordered to be stayed in the case noted below 7 But a suit may be brought in the Court of this country against a company that is being wound up in England without leave of the Court of Chancery The High Court will however in the exercise of its general power stay the proceedings where the circumstances are such as to render it proper to do so 8 Parliament never legislates, unless expressly so mentioned in the statute, respecting colonial or Indian Courts 9 But the fact that the property is out of the jurisdiction does not prevent the application of the Act 10 Where a company has in England been ordered to be wound up judgment creditors who have proved will not be allowed to attach property in India belonging to the company 9

The Court has jurisdiction to restrain a British subject from taking proceedings in a foreign Court 11, but it cannot take away from a creditor the fruits of judgment in rem (e.g., against a ship) obtained by him in a foreign Court, a judgment in rem being final against every one including the liquidator 12 This section does not apply to proceedings pending in a foreign Court, the Court can

however, in the exercise of its equitable jurisdiction in personam, restrain a respondent properly served in this country from proceeding with an action brought in a foreign Court to enforce a liability incurred abroad but as against a respondent domiciled abroad a substantial justice is more likely to be attained by allowing the foreign proceedings to continue and in such a case the Court will not as a rule exercise that jurisdiction 1

Under this section leave to proceed with a pending legal proceeding can only be granted where that proceeding has been initiated prior to the winding up order; the Court has no jurisdiction to give the plaintiff leave to continue a suit instituted without leave subsequent to the winding up order 2

A regular suit brought by an unsuccessful claimant of attached property against a company in liquidation is not a part of the proceedings of execution and therefore cannot be commenced without leave of the liquidation Judge 3 On the other hand leave given to proceed with a suit does not extend to execution 4

Under this section the Court has a wide discretion in the matter of granting leave. It may grant leave unconditionally, it may grant it on terms or it may refuse it absolutely. But in the exercise of this discretion the Court cannot act arbitrarily or capriciously 5 Where leave had been given to certain creditors to proceed to execution while the winding up proceedings were pending but before winding up order had been made it was held that the leave to proceed was not affected by the winding up order 6

When leave has been granted pending the suit the leave is not to be treated as a nullity and the suit cannot be dismissed on the ground that before it commenced no leave has been obtained 7

The authority who is responsible to see whether winding up proceedings would be properly safeguarded or not by the granting or withholding of leave is the Company Judge. If he thinks that leave may be granted it is not the business of anybody else except the Court of Appeal to say that the leave should not have been granted 8

A sale of the assets of a company after winding up order in execution of a decree passed before the date of that order without the permission of the Court is voidable at the instance of the liquidator. Want of knowledge of the winding up order does not validate such a sale 9 When the execution Court becomes aware of the winding up, it should refuse to confirm the sale 9

Persons alleged to be contributories cannot after the winding up order be allowed to have recourse to an action for the purpose of having an adjudication upon their liability to pay calls on their shares. Such matters are peculiarly within the jurisdiction of the Court conducting the liquidation and cannot be decided by any other Court 10 But a creditor to a company who is not a member is entitled in an action by the liquidator to recover the amount due from the former to plead by way of set off that an ascertained sum of money is then due to him and to claim that only such balance if any as is due to the company is recoverable from him 1

An application by a transferee of a decree obtained against a company which has since gone into liquidation for substitution of his name as decreeholder for substitution under s 47 (3) C P C must in spite of the provisions of this section be made to the execution Court and not the winding up Court After that the decreeholder is to make his claim to the liquidator 2

A person claiming to be a secured creditor cannot be forced to prove his debt in liquidation but he can stand outside the winding up proceedings and rely upon his security for whatever it is worth When such a person asks for leave to sue the prayer should ordinarily be granted unless there are special grounds to support the contrary course But where he stands by for a pretty long time after the accrual of the cause of action and takes no step to enforce his security, leave should be granted on terms 3

Although the winding up Judge has jurisdiction to refuse leave absolutely, it can not under colour of refusing leave or otherwise annul or modify a secured creditor's security of decree The winding up Judge should refuse leave absolutely only in exceptional cases Ordinarily he should refuse leave only for such time as may be necessary to enable him in the particular circumstances of each case to determine whether he will direct the liquidator to pay off the claim and thus save unnecessary costs to the estate or whether he will give leave to proceed or whether he will direct the liquidator to take such steps as may be open to him to get the decree set aside 4 Upon a winding up a debenture holder is entitled to enforce his charge even though his debenture has not matured 5 Where properties are ordered to be sold by the winding up Court without prejudice to the rights of the secured creditors to proceed in the usual way the secured creditor's suit previously permitted to be prosecuted would not be stayed 6 Leave under this section is not given on an ex parte application 7

Where a decree has been obtained under a charge which has not been registered under s 100 even prior to the winding up application, an application for leave to proceed with the execution thereof will be refused 8

It is competent for a company or its liquidator to waive a plea founded on this section and in such circumstances it is no part of the duty of the Court to put the section into operation 9 But a liquidator cannot waive the bar created by this section in such a way as to require him to admit a claim under a decree rendered inoperative by that bar 10 A decree obtained against a company after a voluntary winding up has been superseded by a winding up order under supervision of the Court is invalid as it contravenes this section 10

In the case of a compulsory winding up a creditor is debarred from proceeding by way of action unless he can show special grounds for granting him leave to do so, but in the case of a voluntary liquidation the onus is on the liquidator to show that an order should be made staying an action, for prima facie the ordinary tribunal is the proper one to decide upon a claim against the company 1

Where a company has gone into voluntary liquidation it can be sued for debts due by it incurred prior to the liquidation although the fact that there are liquidators may be material if execution of the decree is sought 2 Under s 136 of Act VI of 1882 it was held that the language showed that the proceedings in execution were regarded as distinct from the suit for the purposes of that section, therefore the leave given to proceed with a suit was not authority for proceedings taken in execution of the decree in the suit authorized 3

After a bank had been ordered by the Court to be wound up a person sued both the voluntary and the official liquidators of the bank for recovery of his pay for his employment by the voluntary liquidators for the period prior to the winding up order, it was held that this section applied to the case and that the suit could not be entertained without the Court's leave 4

The passing of resolutions for a voluntary winding up does not like an order for winding up by or under the supervision of the Court stay any proceedings or invalidate executions or distresses or prevent actions or other proceedings being brought or continued against the company without the leave of the Court But on an application being made the Court has jurisdiction to stay any action proceeding attachment distress or execution against the company or its estate and effects on such terms as it thinks fit Until a stay is granted a creditor may commence or continue any such proceedings and the liquidator may obtain a supervision order to protect himself against actions threatened and so save the expenses of applying for the stay of proceedings against the company 5

In the case of a voluntary winding up although the commencement of the winding up does not automatically stay proceedings 6 the Court has power under s 213 (now s 216) on the application of the liquidator or a creditor or contributory to order a stay 7 But if in an action against a company in voluntary liquidation the liquidator denies liability but shows no special reason why a stay should be granted the action will be allowed to proceed 8 If an order is made staying an action brought against a company which is already in voluntary liquidation the plaintiff may be ordered to pay the costs of the application 9 If a distress has been levied by a debtor before the commencement of a voluntary winding up but has not been completed by sale the Court will not at the instance of the liquidator restrain further proceedings under the distress unless there are special reasons which render it inequitable to allow the distress to go on 10

The practice is that a heavy contested money claim against a company and its agents where the allegations are that the debt was really a personal debt of the agents which they fraudulently attempted to foist on to the company is usually left to be decided by a suit 1

An unsecured creditor cannot be turned into a secured creditor after winding up by granting him specific performance of an agreement to create a charge 2 And hence is disallowed the winding up and creditors should not be allowed to change their position after the date of commencement of the winding up 3

The effect of this section is not to restrict any of the rights to recover debts due to the Crown which it may possess by virtue of its prerogative 3 but the Patna High Court in a later case has held that there is no exception to this section and the leave of the Court is essential for the purpose of proceeding to execution even in the case of a decree obtained by the Government 4 See notes to s 230

The liquidator being a trustee for the creditors time to recover a debt due from the company does not run after an order or resolution for winding up The date for testing the liability is the commencement of the winding up 5

This section applies to liquidation under the Court's supervision as well as to liquidation by the Court 5 The liquidators cannot waive the bar created by this section in such a way as to require them to admit a claim under a decree rendered inoperative by that bar 6

An appellate Court does not ordinarily interfere with the discretion of a Court in the matter of granting leave to continue in action against a company which is being wound up but where the order of the Court is wholly wrong it will not be sustained 7

171A (1) For the purposes of this Act, so far as it relates to the winding up of companies by the Court, the term "official receiver" means the official receiver attached to the Court, or, if there is no such official receiver, then such person as the Local Government may, by notification in the local official Gazette, appoint for the purpose

(2) On the making of a winding up order, the official receiver shall become the official liquidator of the company and shall continue to act as such until his further continuance is terminated by an order of the Court

(3) The official receiver shall as such official liquidator forthwith take into his custody and control all the books, documents and the assets of the company

(4) The official receiver shall be entitled to such remuneration as the Court shall fix

This section is new. It has been introduced by the Companies (Amendment) Act 1930. An inconvenience was experienced through the office of official liquidator remaining vacant after a winding up order had been made. This section is designed to secure that a public official shall automatically become the liquidator until some other person is appointed by the Court and can undertake the work.

172 (1) On the making of a winding up order it shall be the duty of the petitioner in the winding up proceedings and of the company to file with the registrar a copy of the order within a month from the date of the making of the order.

(2) On the filing of a copy of a winding up order, the registrar shall make a minute thereof in his books relating to the company, and shall notify in the local official Gazette that such an order has been made.

(3) Such order shall be deemed to be notice of discharge to the servants of the company, except when the business of the company is continued.

By the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936 for the original sub s (1) the new sub s (1) has been substituted. For object of the amendment see Introduction. The original sub s (1) was as follows:

172 (1) On the making of a winding up order it shall be the duty of the company forthwith to file with the registrar a copy of the order and the petitioner in the winding up proceedings may so file a copy.

Sub s (3) An order for compulsory winding up has the same effect as a notice of discharge given on the day when the winding up order was made and servants are not entitled to payment in full in priority of other creditors. The order however operates as a writ of habeas corpus for the servants of the company and damages are allowed in respect of injury to servants.

The reason for holding such an order to operate as a notice of discharge is that it changes the personality of the employer i.e. substitutes the liquidator for the company.²

² Milford & Co, D. Bank v. Attwood [1885] 12 Ch 1. But see Fagge & Union Manufacturing Co [1915] 1 K.B. 59.

The decisions as to whether a voluntary winding up operates as a dismissal of servants are conflicting, but the better opinion is that it does not 1
 In voluntary winding up is to the priority of payment of the servants' wages or salaries in liquidation see s 230 and notes

173 The Court may at any time after an order for winding up, on the application of any creditor or contributory, and on proof to the satisfaction of the Court that all proceedings in relation to the winding up ought to be stayed, make an order staying the proceedings, either altogether or for a limited time, on such terms and conditions as the Court thinks fit.

The power to make an order for the stay of proceedings under a voluntary winding up has been given to the Court by this section read with s 216 2 The winding up proceeding will not be stayed on the application of the company alone 3 or of an alleged contributory who does not admit himself to be a contributory 4 In dealing with such an application for stay of proceedings the Court has to see whether a stay will be conducive or detrimental to commercial morality and to the interests of the public at large 5

An application for stay is frequently made when a reorganization under s 130 1 or a reconstruction is contemplated 6, but the Court will refuse consent, if the directors conduct require investigation 7

In exercising its jurisdiction to stay proceedings the Court would so far as possible act upon the principles which are applicable in exercising jurisdiction to rescind a receiving order or annul an adjudication in bankruptcy against an individual in which case the Court refuses to act upon the mere assent 8 of the creditors and considers not only whether what is proposed is for the benefit of the creditors but also whether the rescission or annulment will be conducive or detrimental to commercial morality or to the interest of the public at large 7

In refusing or postponing a stay of winding up proceedings the Court will have regard to the following facts —(a) That the directors have not complied with their statutory duties as to giving information to the official receiver or furnishing a statement as to the affairs of the company, (b) that there has been an undisclosed agreement between the promoter and the vendor as to the participation by the former in fully paid up shares forming the consideration for the purchase of property by the company on its formation, (c) that the promoter has made gifts of fully paid shares to the directors, (d) that there are any other matters connected with the promotion, formation or failure of the company or the conduct of its business or affairs which appear to the Court to require investigation 8

The jurisdiction may be used to allow under proper circumstances a resumption of business 1 or for continuing the liquidation for certain purposes only 2

Where time is running under s 217 (now ss 208E and 209H) towards the moment when the company will be dissolved and there is good reason for preventing dissolution, the result may be achieved by an order under this section 3

174 The Court may, as to all matters relating to a winding up, have regard to the wishes of the creditors or contributories as proved to it by any sufficient evidence

Court may have regard to wishes of creditors or contributories serious consideration 4

Court's power when exercised

The section applies as soon as a petition for winding up has been presented 5 The wishes of the majority of the creditors are not binding upon the Court, though in every case the Court might try to give them serious consideration 6 The Court may disregard them where a single person has a controlling interest 7 or where the majority consist of persons whose conduct is impugned 8 or where the scheme of reconstruction suggested by the creditors is entirely illusory and impractical and is in essence but a scheme for the voluntary liquidation of the company 9 The rule that the opinion of the creditors and shareholders regarding carrying on the liquidation should be followed as generally applied in England should not apply so strictly to India Limited liability companies in India are in their infancy Shareholders and creditors are easily misled Fraudulent directors have no difficulty in this country in deceiving shareholders and creditors While the opinion of the latter undoubtedly ought to be taken into consideration these classes of persons in India at present require to be protected against themselves Hence even though the creditors and shareholders agree that the liquidation should be carried on by certain directors who themselves are indebted to the company, the Court can order compulsory liquidation where it finds that the directors are not doing their work of collecting debts properly 10 In other cases see notes to s 183

The word creditors does not necessarily mean a majority of the creditors and in very exceptional cases a creditor's right to a winding up order may be displaced by special circumstances urged by a minority of creditors 11 The Court will have regard to the wishes of the majority in value of the creditors and if for some good reason they object to a winding up order the Court in its discretion may refuse the order 12 But if the facts disclose a strong prima facie case for investigation into the formation or promotion of the company or the issue of debentures by it the Court will make a compulsory order irrespective of the creditor's opposition 13

If the company is solvent the wishes of the contributories as the persons chiefly interested in the assets carry most weight and if the company is insolvent the wishes of the creditors 1 In the case of a company whose assets are entirely covered by debentures, the wishes of the unsecured creditors must be regarded in preference to those of the secured creditors 2

The section may be used for the purpose of re-summoning the statutory 'first meeting' of creditors and contributories 3 It is not confined to questions where the section will arise after the winding up order, nor to the manner in which, or the terms upon which, an order shall be made, but is equally applicable before the order when the petition is before the Court 4 It gives the Court complete direction to refuse an order 5 or to direct the petition to stand over 6 upon terms 7 and to exercise its discretion with reference to all the surrounding circumstances 8 and the Court may disregard the result of the meeting 8 For the purposes of this section a fully paid up shareholder is in an entirely different position from a creditor or a contributory who is still liable for calls For the purpose of giving value to a mere desire of a contributory or shareholder the position of fully paid up shareholder may be one of comparative unimportance 9

The wishes of the creditors and contributories are ascertained in the manner laid down in s 239

Cases in which the question arose of giving weight to the wishes of the creditors and contributories have been collected in Buckley, 10th ed pp 362 G

(3) If more persons than one are appointed to the office of official liquidator, the Court shall declare whether any act by this Act required or authorised to be done by the official liquidator is to be done by all or any one or more of such persons.

(4) The Court may determine whether any, and what, security is to be given by any official liquidator on his appointment.

(7) The acts of an official liquidator shall be valid notwithstanding any defect that may afterwards be discovered in his appointment. Provided that nothing in this sub-section shall be deemed to give validity to acts done by an official liquidator after his appointment has been shown to be invalid.

(6) A receiver shall not be appointed of assets in the hands of an official liquidator.

By the Companies (Amendment) Act, 1930 the words in italics have been inserted in the section

What the Court will have regard to The Court in appointing a liquidator will have regard to the wishes of the creditors 1 Where a majority in number vote one way and a majority in value the other way the Court will decide the question 2

Who may be appointed liquidator The liquidator should be a disinterested person. As a general rule the appointment of a shareholder or a creditor would be improper. The secretary of the company being cognizant of its affairs is however a proper person. But where there are matters requiring investigation an independent person will be appointed.

Where a mortgagee has obtained an order for a receiver it is not reasonable that there should be two persons each of them responsible to the Court the one as receiver and the other as liquidator the practice in such cases is to appoint the liquidator receiver or allow him to act as receiver even though a receiver has been appointed before.⁵ But where there are substantially no out-standing assets the mortgagee's receiver will not be displaced.⁶ On the other hand if the mortgagee appoints his own receiver under the power in his security he is entitled to possession and the Court cannot interfere with his possession. In such a case the Court would under proper safeguards direct the liquidator to give possession to the mortgagee's receiver.⁷

Where the memorandum of association of a company shows that one of the objects of the company is to manage estates it entitles the company to act as liquidator of

[illegible]

order for compulsory winding up being made. If no such order is made the appointment ought not to interfere with the rights of third parties 1

The liquidator is occupying a fiduciary position must not make any secret profit
Fiduciary position out of his office 2

After the winding up order the directors cease to be such and the managing director has no locus standi to appeal against an order appointing an official liquidator or an order refusing rehearing of the appointment proceeding 3
Directors right to appeal

176 (1) Any official liquidator may resign or be removed by the Court on due cause shown
Resignations removals filling up vacancies and compensation

(2) Any vacancy in the office of an official liquidator appointed by the Court shall be filled up by the Court and until the vacancy is so filled up the official receiver shall be and act as the official liquidator

(3) There shall be paid to the official liquidator such salary or remuneration, by way of percentage or otherwise, as the Court may direct, and, if more liquidators than one are appointed, such remuneration shall be distributed amongst them in such proportions as the Court directs

The words in italics have been inserted by the Companies (Amendment) Act 1931
Though the Court may have a general discretion of removing the liquidator its jurisdiction is not confined to cases where there is personal unfitness in the liquidator but it extends to cases where the unfitness is occasioned by his connection with other parties or by circumstances of the particular case 4
Removal of liquidators Whenever the Court is satisfied that it is for the general advantage of those interested in the assets of the company that a liquidator should be removed it has power to remove him and appoint a new one 5

As to what is due cause in subsec (1) see W. H. Mutton & Sons v. Co. 6 where the liquidator became insane. *Scott v. proceedings at the wish of the contributories after it had appeared that only the creditors were interested. The measure of "due cause" in this section is the real, substantial and honest interest of the liquidation. Where the circumstances suggested that it was not in such interest of the liquidation that the present liquidator should be removed, the Court declined to make the order even if the liquidator was clearly guilty of neglect in carrying out the specific orders of the Court and the specific rules which have been laid down by the High Court 1

A contributory or creditor can apply for the removal of a liquidator, but not an outsider 2. A contributory in a case as to his calls cannot however apply for a liquidator's removal 3.

If a supervision order is made and the company is insolvent the Court may give effect to the wishes of the creditors by removing a voluntary liquidator 4.

In case of supervision order: A liquidator may appeal from an order for his removal 5.

As a general rule when the liquidator applies for exceptional remuneration the registrar should see that the creditors of the company have specific notice of the application so that the circumstances may be discussed and the figures properly checked 6. The practice as to the remuneration is generally to adopt as a guide the scale applicable to trustees in bankruptcy which is on a percentage basis 7. But the remuneration is to be considered in each case according to its particular circumstances 8. It has been held that the Court will not interfere to determine the proportion in which the remuneration ascertained to be due to joint liquidators shall be divided between them 9.

The official liquidator is not entitled to receive anything out of the assets of the company by way of remuneration until all the costs of the winding up including the solicitor's bill has been paid in full 10.

177 The official liquidator shall be described by the style of the official liquidator of the particular company in respect of which he is appointed, and not by his individual name.

177A (1) Where the Court has made a winding up order in respect of a company and has appointed an official liquidator provisionally, there shall, unless the Court thinks fit to order otherwise and so orders, be made out and submitted to the official liquidator a statement as to the affairs of the company verified by an affidavit and containing the following particulars, namely —

1. The name of the company 857

2. The date of the winding up order L. I. Ch. 187

3. The date of the appointment of the official liquidator

4. The date of the first meeting of the contributories

9. The date of the first meeting of the contributories and creditors

10. The date of the first meeting of the contributories and creditors

- (a) the assets of the company, stating separately the cash balance in hand and at the bank, if any,
- (b) the debts and liabilities,
- (c) the names, residences and occupations of the creditors stating separately the amount of secured debts and unsecured debts, and in the case of secured debts particulars of the securities, their value and the dates when they were given,
- (d) the debts due to the company and the names, residences and occupations of the persons from whom they are due and the amount likely to be realised therefrom.

(2) The statement shall be submitted and verified by one or more of the persons who are at the relevant date the directors and by the person who is at that date the secretary, manager or other chief officer of the company, or by such of the persons hereinafter in this sub-section mentioned as the official liquidator, subject to the direction of the Court, may require to submit and verify the statement, that is to say, persons—

- (a) who are or have been directors or officers of the company,
- (b) who have taken part in the formation of the company at any time within one year before the relevant date,
- (c) who are in the employment of the company, or have been in the employment of the company within the said year, and are in the opinion of the official liquidator capable of giving the information required,
- (d) who are or have been within the said year officers of or in the employment of a company, which is, or within the said year was, an officer of the company to which the statement relates.

(3) The statement shall be submitted within twenty-eight days from the relevant date, or within such extended time as the official liquidator or the Court may for special reasons appoint.

(4) Any person making or concurring in making the statement and affidavit required by this section shall be allowed and shall be paid by the official liquidator or provisionally liquidator, in the case may be, out of the assets of the company all costs and expenses incurred in and about the preparation and verification of the statement and affidavit as the official liquidator may think reasonable, subject to an appeal to the Court.

(5) If any person, without reasonable excuse, knowingly and wilfully makes default in complying with the requirements of this section, he shall be liable to a fine not exceeding one hundred rupees for every day during which the default continues.

(6) Any person stating himself in writing to be a creditor or contributor of the company shall be entitled by himself or by his agent at all reasonable times, on payment of the prescribed fee, to inspect the statement submitted in pursuance of this section, and to a copy thereof or extract therefrom.

(7) Any person untruthfully so stating himself to be a creditor or contributor shall be guilty of an offence under section 182 of the Indian Penal Code and shall, on the application of the liquidator or of the official receiver, be punishable accordingly.

(8) In this section the expression "the relevant date" means, in a case where a provisional liquidator is appointed, the date of his appointment, and, in a case where no such appointment is made, the date of the winding up order.

177B. (1) In a case where a winding up order is made, the official liquidator shall, as soon as practicable after receipt of the statement to be submitted under section 177A, and not later than four, or with the leave of the Court, six months from the date of the order, or in a case where the Court orders that no statement shall be submitted, as soon as practicable after the date of the order, submit a preliminary report to the Court—

Statement by
liquidator

(a) as to the amount of capital issued, subscribed, and paid up, and the estimated amount of assets and liabilities, giving separately under the heading of assets particulars of—

- (i) cash and negotiable securities;
- (ii) debts due from contributors;
- (iii) debts due to and securities, if any, available to the company;
- (iv) moveable and immovable properties belonging to the company;
- (v) unpaid calls; and

(b) if the company has failed, as to the causes of the failure, and

(c) whether in his opinion further inquiry is desirable as to any matter relating to the promotion, formation, or failure of the company, or the conduct of the business thereof

(2) The official liquidator may also, if he thinks fit, make a further report, or further reports, stating the manner in which the company was formed and whether in his opinion any fraud has been committed by any person in its promotion or formation, or by any director or other officer of the company in relation to the company since the formation thereof, and any other matters which in his opinion it is desirable to bring to the notice of the Court

Sections 177A and 177B are new and have been introduced by the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936. They reproduce ss 181 and 182 respectively of the English Companies Act of 1929. For the effects of the amendments see Introduction.

178 (1) The official liquidator whether appointed provisionally or not shall take into his custody, or under his control, all the property, effects and actionable claims to which the company is or appears to be entitled.

(2) All the property and effects of the company shall be deemed to be in the custody of the Court as from the date of the order for the winding up of the company.

By the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936 in sub s (1) after the word 'liquidator' the words in italics have been inserted and the new sub s (2) has been substituted for the original sub s (2) which ran thus:

(2) If no official liquidator is appointed or during any vacancy in such appointment all the property of the company shall be deemed to be in the custody of the Court.

The official liquidator is a trustee of the company's property for the creditors and the statute of limitation ceases to run against them as soon as the winding up order is made.¹ Thus Lord Selborne said: "The hand which receives the calls necessarily receives them as a statutory trustee for the equal and rateable payment of all the creditors."² and James J J spoke of the assets as being fixed by the Act of Parliament with a trust for equal distribution among the creditors.³ and Lord Curzon observed: "There is by this section imposed upon the assets of the company whatever they may be at the time of the winding up a trust to be applied in discharge of the liabilities of the company."⁴ But the liquidator is not a trustee in the full sense of the word for the property in the assets remains vested in the company⁵ and when he makes contracts he does so in the company's name.⁶ The liquidator is not a trustee for each creditor and contributor so as to be liable in his capacity of trustee for negligence 1. The liquidator is only the company's agent appointed by the Court and there is no parallel between his position and that of the trustee of a bankrupt or of the sheriff as to property taken in execution, for the purpose of dealing with the company's property 2. See notes to s 173.

Although the liquidator is substituted for, and enforces the rights of, the creditors in right of the company yet the winding up order calls into existence new rights and liabilities and equities which though they might have been set off against the company cannot prevail against the liquidator as representing the creditors 3.

If money has been paid to a liquidator under mistake of law he, being an officer of the Court, would be ordered to refund 4.

The property of the company attached before the liquidation does not however vest in the liquidator. The powers of the liquidator differ in this respect from those of the receiver of an insolvent's estate in whom the property vests under the provisions of the Insolvency Act 5.

A solicitor engaged by the company is bound to make over to the liquidator any document that has come into his possession since, but not prior to, the winding up order 6.

As between the liquidator and the company's mortgagees the former is entitled to the custody of books and documents which are not necessary to support the mortgagee's title 7.

As to the resemblances and distinctions between bankruptcy and winding up see cases collected in Buckley 10th ed p 374.

178A (1) The official liquidator shall within a month from the date of the order for the winding up of a company convene a meeting of the creditors of the company (as ascertained from the books and documents of the company) for the purpose of determining whether or not a committee of inspection shall be appointed to act with the liquidator, and who are to be members of the committee, if appointed.

(2) The official liquidator shall within a week from the date of the creditors' meeting convene a meeting of the contributors to consider the decision of the creditors and to accept the same with or without modifications.

(3) If the contributories do not accept the decision of the creditors in its entirety, it shall be the duty of the official liquidator to apply to the Court for directions as to whether there shall be a committee of inspection and, if so, what shall be the composition of the committee, and who shall be members thereof.

(4) A committee of inspection appointed under this section shall consist of not more than twelve members being creditors and contributories of the company or persons holding general or special powers of attorney from creditors or contributories in such proportions as may be agreed on by the meetings of creditors and contributories, or as, in case of difference, may be determined by the Court.

(5) The committee of inspection shall have the right to inspect the accounts of the official liquidator at all reasonable times.

(6) The committee shall meet at such times as they may from time to time appoint, and, failing such appointment, at least once a month, and the liquidator or any member of the committee may also call a meeting of the committee as and when he thinks necessary.

(7) The committee may act by a majority of their members present at a meeting, but shall not act unless a majority of the committee are present.

(8) A member of the committee may resign by notice in writing signed by him and delivered to the liquidator.

(9) If a member of the committee becomes bankrupt, or compounds or arranges with his creditors, or is absent from five consecutive meetings of the committee without the leave of those members who together with himself represent the creditors or contributories as the case may be, his office shall thereupon become vacant.

(10) A member of the committee may be removed by an ordinary resolution at a meeting of creditors if he represents creditors, or of contributories if he represents contributories, of which seven days' notice has been given, stating the object of the meeting.

(11) On a vacancy occurring in the committee the liquidator shall forthwith summon a meeting of ~~creditors~~ ^{and contributories}, as the case may require, to fill the vacancy and the meeting may, by resolution, re-appoint the same or appoint in the creditor or contributory to fill the vacancy.

(12) The continuing member of the committee, if not less than two, may act notwithstanding any vacancy in the committee.

ment

This section is new. It has been inserted by the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936 and is based on s. 199 of the English Act of 1929. For the effect of the amendment see Introduction.

Powers of official
liquidator

- 179 The official liquidator shall have power, with the sanction of the Court, to do the following things:—
- (a) to institute or defend any suit or prosecution, or other legal proceeding, civil or criminal, in the name and on behalf of the company;
 - (b) to carry on the business of the company so far as may be necessary for the beneficial winding up of the same;
 - (c) to sell the immoveable and moveable property of the company by public auction or private contract, with power to transfer the whole thereof to any person or company, or to sell the same in parcels;
 - (d) to do all acts and to execute, in the name and on behalf of the company, all deeds, receipts, and other documents, and for that purpose to use, when necessary, the company's seal;
 - (e) to prove, rank and claim in the insolvency of any contributory, for any balance against his estate, and to receive dividends in the insolvency, in respect of that balance, as a separate debt due from the insolvent, and rateably with the other separate creditors;
 - (f) to draw, accept, make and indorse any bill of exchange, hundi or promissory note in the name and on behalf of the company, with the same effect with respect to the liability of the company as if the bill, hundi or note had been drawn, accepted, made or indorsed by or on behalf of the company in the course of its business;
 - (g) to raise on the security of the assets of the company any money requisite;
 - (h) to take out, in his official name, letters of administration to any deceased contributory, and to do in his official name any other act necessary for obtaining payment of any money due from a contributory or his estate which cannot be conveniently done in the name of the company; and in all such cases the money due shall, for the purpose of enabling the liquidator to take out the letters of administration or recover the money, be deemed to be due to the liquidator himself. Provided that nothing herein empowered shall be deemed to affect the rights, duties and privileges of any Administrator General.

- (c) to do all such other things as may be necessary for winding up the affairs of the company and distributing its assets.

An order under a compulsory winding up in general terms giving the liquidator power to do all acts without the previous sanction or interference by the Court may be made 1. But an order in general terms will not be readily made 2. As to whether or not a general sanction includes a power to compromise see the case noted below 3.

It is the duty of the Court to settle the list of contributories to rectify the register of members if necessary 4 and to make calls 5. But the High Court may by rules enable or require the official liquidator to perform these duties provided that the official liquidator shall not without the special leave of the Court rectify the register of members or make any call 6. The Calcutta High Court in a recent case 7 has observed that in India as distinct from England there is at present no provision by which the liquidator in a compulsory winding up can make a call without coming to the Court. But it is apprehended that in this respect there is little distinction between the Indian and the English Act for the proviso mentioned above exists in the English Acts substantially 8.

The defendant to proceedings brought by the liquidator cannot take the objection that the sanction of the Court has not been obtained. The Court's sanction may sometimes be inferred from the general authority given to the liquidators on their appointment 9.

On the appointment of a liquidator all the powers of the directors cease 10. The Company when in liquidation observed Lord Walton although by no means correct could no longer act by its directors in appoint or employ agents capable of limiting the corporation or its estate and was superseded by the liquidator who could not himself carry on its business without the special leave of the Court 11.

Where the party to a proceeding under s 143 of the Code of Criminal Procedure is not the company but the liquidator and though the latter happens only to be a party by reason of the fact that he is clothed with that character for the purposes of a proceeding under s 145 he is to be regarded as a separate personality responsible for the action of his men, though he may be in fact acting on behalf of the company 1

A successful litigant with the company in prima facie entitled to be paid immediately the cost ordered to be paid in full. The onus is on the liquidator to show that immediate payment cannot be made, or that other persons have claims in priority or ranking pari passu 2. Where the costs are to be paid by the liquidator personally and he is to be at liberty to retain them out of the assets of the company such costs rank even before the costs of realization 3. Actual expenses of realization mean strictly the costs of a sale of the assets and do not extend to bill of costs of the liquidator's solicitor 4.

When the liquidator does not sue or defend in his own name but in that of the company, there is no jurisdiction to order the liquidator to pay costs personally any more than the directors of a going company can be ordered to pay costs 5. But if he takes proceedings in his own name he will incur a personal liability 6, and if he appeals without leave and his appeal is dismissed he will be ordered to pay the costs out of his own pocket 7. Where the liquidator is the applicant and fails, the proper order would be as between himself and the adverse party that he do pay costs, without prejudice to any application that as between him and the estate the costs be paid out of the estate 8.

In the Appeal Court if a liquidator be the appellant and fails he will be ordered personally to pay the costs 9 which he may recover from the estate. But if the proceedings be in the Court which has the control of the winding up it may at once determine whether as between the liquidator and the estate the cost will come out of the estate 10.

Where in an order winding up a company there was no order as to costs by the appellate Court it was open to the liquidator under the direction of the Court to allow payments of costs incurred by the directors to a reasonable amount if he is satisfied that they were so incurred in bono in the interest of the company 11. Where a company passed a resolution for voluntary winding up and a creditor shortly after that filed a petition for compulsory winding up which was opposed by the voluntary liquidator costs of the latter were properly allowed in the discretion of the Court 12.

the company then in case the assets are insufficient to pay these costs and the costs of the winding up, the former are entitled to payment in priority 1 Where in arbitration proceedings the liquidator is in the position of a defendant and an award is made against the company the costs of the reference and award should not be ordered to be paid by the liquidator personally with a right to reimbursement out of the assets of the company, but should be ordered to be paid by the company 2 If however the liquidator applies for the statement of a special case at the hearing of which he feels he is being there in the position of a plaintiff, may be ordered to pay the costs of the hearing with a right to reimbursement 3

Where a winding up order is discharged the liquidator is not entitled against any person his remuneration or costs 4 His only claim is as against the assets of the company and then only so far as without interfering with the rights of the secured creditors 5 The liquidator is as a rule entitled to his costs out of the estate and they are generally left to the liquidation Judge 6

The advocate litigant if he be the defendant may apply for security for costs under s 281

The solicitor appointed by the liquidator will be deemed to have contracted to act for the company with recourse to the assets for payment 7, and Solicitors appointed by liquidator is such his no claim against the liquidator personally 7 This applies in the case of a solicitor to the voluntary liquidator 8 In complicated cases the liquidator should be advised by a valuer dissociated from either side 9

The Court will not encourage a liquidator in resisting especially on technical grounds claims to which manifestly there is no defence 10 The Court must be upright will also insist on the liquidator as its officer to act in an upright manner even to the company's opponents but he must not be generous at other people's expense 11

Where the registration of an out and out transfer of shares has not been obtained by any falsehood or concealment the company is bound by such registration and the liquidator is not entitled to take advantage of any equitable rights which the transferee may have as against the transferor to have the transfer set aside 12

An official liquidator is not entitled by summary order to a refund of money realized by a creditor before the winding up order was passed but after the company has passed a resolution stopping payment of debts The liquidator in such a case has to institute a regular suit like other claimants to recover the amount realized by such creditor 13

The liquidator is in the position of a receiver and manager of partnership assets appointed by the Court. Under s 241 an order may be obtained for inspection of books of the company and it will be the liquidator's duty to give every assistance and facility in finding out the relevant books and papers but he cannot be called upon to make an affidavit of documents ¹

Where the liquidator represents the company as a party litigant the adverse party has right to obtain from him the same measure of discovery as he would from any other litigant ². Discovery may also be obtained from the liquidator in his personal as distinguished from his representative character upon a proper case being made out ³.

A Judge in liquidation has no jurisdiction to make any order giving the liquidator leave to bid at an auction sale. He can of course give any direction to him to take such legal steps as he desires to take in accordance with the general provisions of the law, but the granting or refusing of permission to bid at a sale is clearly a matter for the execution Court ⁴.

Cause of action for the liquidator to realize contributions from the contributories arises only on the appointment of the liquidator ⁵.

Cl (b) What is necessary for the beneficial winding up of a company will be determined by the Court having regard to all the circumstances and includes 'mercantile necessity' ⁶. The company when in liquidation "observed Lord Watson, although by no means defunct could no longer act by its directors and appoint or employ agents capable of binding the corporation" ⁷. Without the special leave of the Court ⁷ a liquidator cannot carry on the business of the company with the view of making a profit for the company ⁸ or for facilitating reconstruction ⁹. Contracts may be made for the purpose of beneficial winding up of a company ¹⁰ and the onus of proving that a contract is not beneficial lies upon the party objecting to it ⁸. It is only for the purpose of administration and realization that the business can be continued, if a majority carry a resolution which goes beyond this the minority are entitled to a declaration that it is ultra vires ⁹. But a contract not required for the beneficial winding up may be binding between the company and the person with whom it is made, although it is between the shareholders and officer of the company it may be open to objection ¹⁰.

The costs of carrying on the business may not be chargeable as costs of preservation in priority to the claims of debenture holders 1. If goods are sold and bills given by the purchaser which have not matured at the commencement of the winding up the liquidators can collect the bills or discount them without embarking on new business.

As to voluntary winding up see s 203 and notes thereto.

Where it would be clearly for the benefit of the creditors that a further sum should be advanced for completion of a certain transaction even a provisional liquidator would be justified in advancing the money 2.

CI (c) This clause makes the official liquidators power to sell whether by auction or by private treaty conditional on the sanction of the Court, but this must be exercised with judicial discretion having regard to the interests of the company and its creditors 3.

A claim by a company against its directors for misfeasance is a chose in action and can be sold under this section 4. As to the Court's jurisdiction to sanction the reconstruction of a company by sale of its assets to a new company or to another company see the cases noted below 5.

CI (d) Documents executed under this clause are the company's documents, and a covenant in a lease to a company against assignment is broken by an assignment by the liquidator 6.

Where a fixed deposit receipt issued by a bank which has since gone into liquidation is in the name of several persons and is not payable to 'either or survivor' the liquidator is not bound to pay the dividend to any one or more of the joint holders of the receipt without obtaining a discharge from all the holders 7.

When a liquidator appointed by the Court performs a contract of the company without disclaimer or purports to make a new contract on its behalf there is no presumption that he does so in his personal capacity even though he does not describe himself as liquidator and his position in this respect is not altered by the new s 230A which gives him the right to disclaim any contract which he thinks onerous 8. In my view, observes Lawrence J the position of a liquidator appointed by the Court is not the same at that of a receiver appointed by the Court. A liquidator is the agent of the company 9 a receiver is not 10. It is true both are appointed and can be dismissed by the Court and both control the assets of the company and may have to carry out the contracts of the company, but the liquidator acts for and in the interests of the company whereas the receiver and manager acts in the interests of the debenture holders and not for the company 11.

Although liquidation proceedings may be expected to come to an end at any time, it does not excuse the liquidator from fixing the period of employment in the case of an employee, and where no term is fixed an employee on a monthly salary is entitled to notice when his services are to be terminated 1

Where a liquidator makes an application for leave to disclaim an onerous lease the Court may properly balance the advantages and disadvantages of a disclaimer to be gained by the liquidator in relation to the assets and by the persons affected by the disclaimer. Where lessors who are entitled to appear would suffer substantial injury if the disclaimer were allowed the Court will in the exercise of its discretion disallow it 2

Set off Cl (e) The debt due to the liquidator is observed Jessel M R., distributable among the creditors, and the debt due to the individual from the company would only rank with the view of obtaining a dividend for the creditor for the amount due. The two debts are not applicable to the same purpose and could not properly be made subject of set off 3. In the case of insolvency of a contributory who is also a creditor, the debt may however be set off against calls under s 101. But until the insolvency there is no right of set off 4. A bankruptcy notice must be in the name of the company and not of the liquidator 5

Where a creditor is a member of a partnership firm a debt alleged to be due by the latter to the company cannot be set off against the separate debt due by the company to the partner 6

Where the set off claimed is not legally recoverable being time barred and the parties do not fill the same character in respect of the set off as they do in respect of the suit set off will not be granted 7

Negotiable instruments Cl (f) As to the Court's sanction to the liquidator accepting or negotiating bills—see the cases noted below 8

After dissolution of the company the liquidator has no power to indorse a promissory note 9

Meaning of assets Cl (g) The assets include all contributions which the liquidator is entitled to get from the members past or present as well as all assets which have been misappropriated as against creditors 10. The realized assets of a company divided among the shareholders in pursuance of a resolution are assets within the meaning of this clause 11

In the winding up of an insurance company the deposit made with the Government forms assets of the company available for distribution among all its creditors—

generally and is not primarily applicable to the satisfaction of the claims of the policy holders 1

Where in response to an advertisement for a sale of a company's property a person offered either to take a mortgage or to purchase the property on certain terms he will not be allowed to act otherwise than in the way promised first as the liquidator has acted in the manner suggested and has thereby changed his position secondly the offer having been accepted should be regarded as a valid and binding contract 2

Letters of administration Cl (h) The official liquidator need not take out letters of administration of the estate of a deceased shareholder before settling the list of contributories 3

Distribution of assets Cl (i) The contributions and assets with other properties of the company form a common fund to be applied in the manner directed by the Act 4 after satisfying the claims of its secured creditors who are not bound to avail themselves of the winding up proceedings but may pursue their own remedies 5 The liquidator has with the sanction of the Court power to distribute shares of other companies forming part of the liquidating company's assets instead of selling them 6

Before any distribution of surplus among the contributories the liquidator ought to take every means to satisfy himself that all creditors are paid, not only by advertising but by writing to those creditors of whose existence he knows, and by asking them if they have any claims against the company 7 A liquidator who has failed to see that the assets are applied in paying debts is liable to a creditor who has suffered damage 8 This rule would apply even before dissolution when the default is the result of neglect of duty even though not wilful 8 In a recent case the Judicial Committee observed But that it should be regarded as a normal course of liquidation justifiable without explanation that a liquidator should pay the creditors merely a dividend on their debts when surplus assets large in amount remain in hand and should then allow the contributories without definition of their interests therein to take possession for themselves of these surplus assets seems to the Board a serious matter, and it is necessary their Lordships think to call attention to its impropriety 9

The duties and responsibilities of the liquidator are as serious in the liquidation of a private company as of any other 9

Subject to the rights of the secured creditors and certain other creditors who are to be paid in priority, the assets in a winding up are subject to a trust for the benefit of all the creditors and must be distributed on a footing of equality The assets include all contributions which the liquidator is entitled to obtain from members or persons who have been members within a certain time before the winding up commenced 1

and all assets which have been misapplied and misappropriated as against the creditors and which a creditor has a right to have recouped 1

When the company is dissolved the statutory remedy of the creditors is gone, but the duty of the liquidator remains, and a contributory or creditor has a remedy at common law for injury caused to him by a breach of the liquidator's statutory duty 2

The liquidator is not however liable for loss occasioned by the felonious acts of servants if properly selected 3

Payment by the liquidator of statute barred debts is improper and the money must be returned 4

In a winding up observed Su W Page Wood V C the liquidator acts not merely for creditors but for contributories and for the companies also. At the same time Legislature stopped short of saying that a winding up should be a bankruptcy. The liquidator does not act more for the creditors than he does for the company 5. The liquidator is only the company's agent appointed by the Court and there is no parallel between his position and that of the trustee of a bankrupt or of the sheriff as to property taken in execution for the purpose of dealing with the company's property. The cases in bankruptcy in which it has been held that a trustee in a bankruptcy can assign free from the bankrupt's covenant against assignment without licence depend on the circumstance that the bankrupt's leasehold interest vests in his trustee by operation of law so that he is not an assign of the bankrupt and consequently not bound by the covenant. These cases therefore have no application to a liquidator because the company's leasehold interest remains vested in the company after a winding up order and the liquidator acts on behalf of the company in assigning it 6

The official liquidator is also an agent of the Court for the purpose of liquidation. A decree obtained by the company before liquidation does not vest in the liquidator and he cannot take any proceedings in execution in his own name. Where such a decree is transferred to another Court for execution before liquidation it can be executed by the transferee Court after liquidation on the application of the liquidator in the name of the company 7

The voluntary liquidator is bound to get all contracts for the allotment of shares otherwise than for cash filed with the registrar, for such a liquidator is also an officer of the company 8

The official liquidator should not become party in a dispute between two sets of contributories concerning the propriety of an order from which alone his authority proceed. His only duty on an appeal against such an order is to take a position of complete impartiality and in the interests of the whole body of his constituent contributories to be ready to inform the Court of any facts and circumstances in relation to

Letters of administration Cl (h) The official liquidator need not take out letters of administration to the estate of a deceased shareholder before settling the list of contributories 3

Distribution of assets Cl (i) The contributions and assets with other properties of the company form a common fund to be applied in the manner directed by the Act 4 after satisfying the claims of its secured creditors who are not bound to avail themselves of the winding up proceedings but may pursue their own remedies 5 The liquidator has with the sanction of the Court, power to distribute shares of other companies forming part of the liquidating company's assets instead of selling them 6

Before any distribution of surplus among the contributories the liquidator ought to take every means to satisfy himself that all creditors are paid, not only by advertising but by writing to those creditors of whose existence he knows, and by asking them if they have any claims against the company 7 A liquidator who has failed to see that the assets are applied in paying debts is liable to a creditor who has suffered damage 7 This rule would apply even before dissolution when the default is the result of neglect of duty, even though not wilful 8 In a recent case the Judicial Committee observed But that it should be regarded as a normal course of liquidation justifiable without explanation that a liquidator should pay the creditors merely a dividend on their debts when surplus assets large in amount remain in hand and should then allow the contributories without definition of their interests therein to take possession for themselves of these surplus assets seems to the Board a serious matter, and it is necessary their Lordships think to call attention to its impropriety 9 "The duties and responsibilities of the liquidator are as serious in the liquidation of a private company as of any other" 9

Subject to the rights of the secured creditors and certain other creditors who are to be paid in priority, the assets in a winding up are subject to a trust for the benefit of all the creditors and must be distributed on a footing of equality The assets include all contributions which the liquidator is entitled to obtain from members or persons who have been members within a certain time before the winding up commenced the company's affairs about which he might be asked. In this case their Lordships of the Judicial Committee severely condemned the partisan activities of the official liquidator. In such cases the liquidator should be assisted by a wakil equally dissociated from either side. Their Lordships strongly deprecated ex parte orders giving the official liquidator leave to oppose the appeal which enabled him, free of expense to the petitioners in relief to their responsibilities and already at a cost far in excess of any possible interest of theirs in assets to fight their battle with non success and at what must be the inordinate expense to their opponents. It is to be hoped observed their Lordships, that orders like that of 14th November 1923 will not in future be lightly made in the course of an Indian winding up.

It is highly improper for any liquidator observed Lord Romilly, 'to employ any of the company's money in his hands in any loan whatever. Of course if he does and if any profit is made out of it that profit will belong to the owners of the money. It must never however be forgotten that no money can be lent on loan without some risk even for a short time. If therefore the persons to whom the loans are made should fail the loss would fall with the greatest severity on the creditors and contributories of the company.' 4

This omnibus clause (i) does not however authorize the official liquidator to make a reference to private arbitration of the dues of the company's.

This section is by virtue of s 276 applicable to an unregistered company wound up under s 21. So in the bankruptcy of a contributory of an unregistered company the liquidator may prove for the estimated amount of future calls. 6

180 The Court may provide by any order that the official liquidator may exercise any of the above powers without the sanction or intervention of the Court, and, where an official liquidator is provisionally appointed, may limit and restrict his powers by the order appointing him.

In liquidation ordinarily the appointment of the petitioning creditors' solicitors as solicitors for the liquidator is favoured especially where they are acquainted for sometime with the proceedings 1 In complicated cases the liquidator should be advised by a solicitor dissociated from either side 2 Although the liquidator may employ a solicitor with the sanction of the Court he is not justified in obtaining ex parte sanction 3 He is bound to have regard to the directions mentioned in s 1533 i.e. he should take the opinion of the creditors and contributors 4 The sanction to institute or defend legal proceedings does not dispense with the necessity of obtaining express sanction to the employment of a particular solicitor 5 The interests of the creditors are involved in the selection by the liquidator of a firm of solicitors who were not previously concerned in the proceedings 6 Such selection is always a matter of some importance and the Court accedes to an invitation to reconsider its ex parte decision on significant facts being brought to its notice 7 As to the form of authority see re Lazarou 8

Employment of solicitor

If the liquidator employs a solicitor the former is not personally liable to him 9 The solicitor has a lien on any funds recovered through his instrumentality 10 and may obtain a charging order in respect of them 9 But the solicitor has no lien on documents coming into his possession after commencement of the winding up in respect of a debt existing before the winding up 10

(1) The official liquidator of a company which is being wound up by the Court shall keep, in manner prescribed, proper books in which he shall cause to be made entries or minutes of proceedings at meetings, and of such other matters, as may be prescribed, and any creditor or contributory may, subject to the control of the Court, personally or by his agent inspect any such books

Official books to be kept by liquidator in winding up

(2) Every official liquidator shall, at such times as may be prescribed but not less than twice in each year during his tenure of office, present to the Court an account of his receipts and payments as such liquidator

(3) The account shall be in the prescribed form, shall be made in duplicate, and shall be verified by a declaration in the prescribed form

(4) The Court shall cause the account to be audited in such manner as it thinks fit and for the purpose of the audit the liquidator shall furnish the Court with such vouchers and information as the Court may require, and the Court may at any time require the production of and inspect any books or accounts kept by the liquidator.

(5) When the account has been audited, one copy thereof shall be filed and kept by the Court, and the other copy shall be delivered to the registrar for filing, and each copy shall be open to the inspection of any creditor, or of any person interested.

By the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936, the original s. 182 has been re-numbered as sub s. (1) and sub s. (2), (3), (4) and (5) have been added. These reproduce s. 190 of the English Act of 1929. For effect of the amendment see Introduction.

183 (1) Subject to the provisions of this Act the official liquidator of a company which is being wound up by the Court shall, in the administration of the assets of the company and in the distribution thereof among its creditors, have regard to any directions that may be given by resolution of the creditors or contributories at any general meeting or by the committee of inspection, and any directions given by the creditors or contributories at any general meeting shall in case of conflict be deemed to override any directions given by the committee of inspection.

(2) The official liquidator may summon general meeting of the creditors or contributories for the purpose of ascertaining their wishes, and it shall be his duty to summon meetings at such times as the creditors or contributories, by resolution, may direct, or whenever requested in writing to do so by one tenth in value of the creditors or contributories, as the case may be.

(3) The official liquidator may apply to the Court in manner prescribed for directions in relation to any particular matter arising in the winding up.

(4) Subject to the provisions of this Act, the official liquidator shall use his own discretion in the administration of the assets of the company and in the distribution thereof among the creditors.

(5) If any person is aggrieved by any act or decision of the official liquidator, that person may apply to the Court, and the Court may confirm, reverse or modify the act or decision complained of, and make such order as it thinks just in the circumstances.

By the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936 the words in italics have been added to sub s (1)

Sub s (2) In the case of Palloil & Bright, a meeting was summoned under this section

Sub s (3) In an application for sanction of a compromise or an arrangement between a company in liquidation and its creditors the Court would give effect to the wishes of the statutory majority unless something is brought to the attention of the Court to show that there has been some material oversight or misstatement

Court's direction

Where a majority in number of the creditors and contributories vote one way and a majority in value vote the other way the Court will decide the matter. The opinion of the majority in value should be given effect to especially when they are in favour of the liquidator.

Sub s (4) Where a person made a deposit to a company as security for the performance of a contract but stipulated that in the event of the company raising a loan secured by a debenture or mortgage the sum deposited was to be forthwith invested in Government securities and to be ear marked in some manner satisfactory to the depositor it was held that this did not create a fiduciary relation and no preference could be claimed by the depositor in respect of the assets of the company in the hands of its liquidator.

Distribution of assets

Sub s (5) The petitioning creditors are persons interested in the appointment of the solicitors for the official liquidator and ought to be deemed to be persons aggrieved by the act of the official liquidator under this sub section. They can therefore apply for review ex parte order appointing a particular firm as attorneys.

Ordinary Powers of Court

184 (1) As soon as may be after making a winding up order, the Court shall settle a list of contributories, with power to rectify the register of members in all cases where rectification is required in pursuance of this Act, and shall cause the assets of the company to be collected and applied in discharge of its liabilities.

Settlement of list of contributories and application of assets

(2) In settling the list of contributories, the Court shall distinguish between persons who are contributories in their own right and persons who are contributories as being representatives of or liable for the debts of others.

This section incorporates s 38. On an application under this section the Court has power to decide any question relating to the title of the aggrieved person to have his name entered in or omitted from the register of members and generally to decide any question necessary or expedient to be decided for the rectification of the register. The exercise of the jurisdiction is discretionary.

Court's power discretionary

tion try him, regard to the person who is the applicant and to all the facts and circumstances of the case 1

As to who is liable to be settled on the list of contributories see ss 156 to 161 and notes thereto 2 The liquidator can settle the list of contributories, but he cannot rectify the register of members without leave of the Court 3 With the special leave of the Court he can rectify the register either at the time of the original settlement of the list 3 or subsequently 4, and the power conferred by the section is not limited to rectification for the purpose of settling the list of contributories 5 When a certain bank was appointed liquidator and notice signed by the manager of the bank was sent to a person stating that his name was included in the list of contributories it was held that the notice was valid 6 As to rectification of the register see s 158 and notes thereto

When limitation is specifically provided for in the Rules for filing objections to a notice the specific provision must prevail and not the general provision in the Limitation Act 6

After completion of the preliminary list of contributories the official liquidator will give notice to the persons entered on the list of the day appointed by the Court for hearing objections 7 The Court on the day appointed will hear the objections, even if the Rules framed by the High Court under s 246 require that the objector should first get his name entered in a book before the hearing of the objections 8

There is nothing in the Court of Wards Act which conflicts with the Companies Act in the matter of allowing an application for the varying of the list of contributories by placing upon it the name of the Collector in lieu of the name of a person whose estate has been taken over by the Court of Wards 9

The liability of a registered shareholder to contribute is a prima facie liability only it being open to him to show that although his name was on the register he did not agree to become a member nor was he cognizant of the registration of his name 10 But if the person whose name is duly entered on the register is a member on the date of commencement of the winding up seeks to have his name removed on the ground that although he agreed to become a member the agreement is voidable at his option it is necessary that he should before the winding up commenced have definitely and effectively repudiated the agreement 10, and followed up his repudiation by active measures to have his name removed from the register 11 except where there is some agreement which exonerates the member from the necessity of taking such steps. 1. The same principles apply whether the winding up is compulsory or voluntary or under supervision of the Court. 2.

The liability of the legal representatives of deceased householders to contribute is limited to the extent of the assets if any coming into their hands.

Where a person knows that the shares in respect of which he remains on the

Certificate— where no estoppel by certificate—ratist were not paid for or paid up he cannot rely on the share certificate stating they were fully paid up is an estoppel so he must remain on the list of contributories 4

Substitution of names. Where a person with the intention of deceiving the company takes shares in the name of a fictitious person or of some person without his authority, the liquidator can place his name on the list of contributors, and the Court will rectify the register and if necessary the list of contributors⁵. But rectification by substituting the name of a beneficiary for that of his registered trustee cannot be obtained⁶. The liquidator can substitute a trustee for the transferee where the latter is an infant at the time the winding up commences⁶. The liquidator cannot however substitute the name of a husband for that of his wife although she has no separate estate and the shares were given to her by him⁷.

A father purchasing shares in the name of his minor son is personally liable for the shares and the list of contributors can be altered by substituting the father's name for that of the son's.

The shareholder who seeks to be discharged from liability must have repudiated the contract and have got his name off the register subject to the qualification

Shareholder's duty & right that if he has, before the commencement of the winding up, taken proceedings to have his name removed that will be sufficient. A person cannot be settled on the list of contributories if before the commencement of the winding up he has not only repudiated the shares, but has also asserted his right to repudiate them in an action by the company to enforce calls upon him.¹⁰ But the right of rescission which is ordinarily available against the company cannot be enforced against its creditors who are the persons actually interested in the winding up.¹¹

In a winding up proceeding the shareholder is not entitled to have his name struck off the list of contributories on the ground that he was induced to purchase the shares by the false reports and balance-sheet issued by the company.¹² Where the contributory fails to show that his name was entered in the register fraudulently or without sufficient cause in order for rectification of the share register by deleting a certain number of shares standing against the name of the applicant ought not to be refused.¹³

Irregular allotment when in valid and when not The allotment of shares by an irregularly constituted board is invalid. But if the articles validate such an act by a de facto director in a bona fide manner the Court will uphold his act. Where the applicant for shares did not decline to accept the shares allotted to him, he could not raise an objection against his being put on the list of contributories when the company went into liquidation 1

Where no notice of allotment of shares is served upon those to whom shares are allotted they cannot be placed upon the list of contributories 1

Conditional allotment Where shares applied for were allotted on condition that a limited company would be started which failed to materialize the allottee could not be regarded as a member but a creditor and he was not liable as a contributory 2

Where the application for shares is conditional on the applicant being appointed a director or an officer of the company and the condition was not fulfilled the applicant cannot be treated as a shareholder 3

When share holder liable If before a contract to take shares is rescinded a winding up has commenced or the company ceases to be a going concern the applicant can no longer be relieved but will be liable to be a contributory 4

Where shares have been forfeited by the managing director in such a way that the proceeding is ultra vires the shareholder may be placed on the list of contributories in spite of such forfeiture 5

A resolution passed by a company authorizing the money of those shareholders to be returned who had not paid their allotment money and were not willing to remain as members is ultra vires and cannot operate to relieve such shareholders of their liability as contributories 6

Right of set off A debtor who is not a member is entitled to plead in an action by the official liquidator by way of set off that an ascertained sum of money is due to him from the company 7

Where action for call commenced If the liquidator has already commenced an action for calls this does not preclude him from discontinuing it and settling the defendant on the list but the costs of the action will be deducted from the amount recovered 8

Payment of uncalled capital Where the directors knowing that the company is insolvent make payment of an amount representing the uncalled capital due by them for shares an such payment will be treated as a payment towards capital and not as a loan to the company 9

A subscriber to the memorandum of association remains a member until the company, authorized to do so by its articles, accepts a surrender of the shares for valid reasons or the subscriber himself pays for the shares and validly transfers them to somebody else 1. The present of paid up shares by a third party does not satisfy the obligation of a subscriber to the memorandum of association to take shares 2. The issue of a certificate does not stop the company so long as the certificate does not pass to a bona fide purchaser for value 2. Where there are left shares available for allotment the fact that none has been allotted to the subscriber makes no difference and the liquidator was entitled to hold him to the contract which he had made with the company when he signed the memorandum 3.

Where an unsuccessful application by an official liquidator to place certain shareholders on the list of contributories is in a fide made the Court would order the costs of each side to be a first charge on the assets 9. Similarly the cost of a contest by a person disputing his liability as a contributory and failing must except under very exceptional circumstances be paid by such contributory 4.

If a shareholder commences a litigation to have his name removed and there is an agreement between the company and other repudiating shareholders that all the costs shall stand a bill by the result of that litigation then if that case is decided in favour of the litigant shareholder the others will be relieved 5.

The power given to the Court under this section will not be exercised by it of its own motion but on application and considering all the circumstances 11. Procedure: After the winding up order and before the list of contributories has been settled a contributory and the company can move for rectification under this section and s 87. As between a vendor and a purchaser of shares after the commencement of the winding up order for rectification will not be made on exceptional grounds 8.

Where the rectification is applied for in liquidation by the company the application ought to be in the name of the company and not of the liquidator 9.

Where the register is rectified after the list of contributories has been settled the Court may rectify the list 4 and the register may be rectified retro date so as to give effect to an act done before rectification by the person who by rectification comes on to the list or so as to affect the list of contributories 10.

Where a contributory contests his liability on the ground of a transfer or otherwise he ought to bring before the Court the person who according to him is liable 1 But if the transferee cannot be found 2 or there is no legal person or representative of the transferee 3 or where the transferee is an infant 4 in order for rectification will be made

When shares are transferred to an infant the transferor remains liable as a contributory 5 A man who executes a transfer of shares remains liable unless and until there is on the list a transferee who is legally liable to the company 5 Thus where the transferee is an infant and the company is ignorant of the fact, the official liquidator may refuse to accept him as a shareholder although after coming of age he may be willing to confirm the transfer 6

A transfer of shares by a director, who is aware that the financial position of the company is hopeless to a person of straw for the sole purpose of avoiding liability on the shares is not invalid provided the transfer is absolute and unqualified 7 On the winding up of the company the liquidator is not entitled in such a case to rectification of the register and of the list of contributories by deleting the name of the transferee and inserting the transferor's name 8

Where a person has been given shares or shares have been transferred to him as qualification for his directorship such a transfer makes the transferee a member of the company and if such a person holds out that he is a shareholder, he is estopped from denying that he is a member when the company goes into liquidation on the ground that the transfer was a mere colourable transaction. He cannot object to his name being included in the list of contributories 7

Where the liquidator seeks to place a person on the list of contributories and the latter objects on the ground of his having transferred his shares, it is incumbent on him to show that at some time or other there was on the register a transferee of his who could be made liable to him for the shares 8

Where a suit by a voluntary liquidator against a person for the recovery of a sum of money said to be due by him to the company by reason of his being a shareholder is dismissed for default in application by the official liquidator for placing the same person on the list of contributories is barred by Res judicata 9

A question which has been settled by the liquidating Court cannot be reopened by a regular suit for the legislature never intended that matters should be decided twice over 10

stories, if not appealed against, becomes final and the question as to his liability as contributory cannot be re-opened 1

If owing to the default of the company a transfer has not been registered before the winding up the Court will not rectify the register on the application of the official liquidator 2 If fully paid shares are purported to be allotted by an improperly constituted board, and the allottees are aware of the irregularity their names can be removed from the register on the application of the company 3 The company may lose its right by laches to have the register rectified 4

The official liquidator is not precluded by delay from placing a subscriber to the Liquidator's memorandum of association on the list of contributories 4 delay

Where shares have been issued as fully paid up without compliance with the provisions of the Act, the shareholder will be placed on the list of contributories, but a purchaser of the shares without notice of the irregularity will not be so placed nor another purchaser from him although this latter knew of this irregularity 5

185. The Court may, at any time after making a winding up order, require any contributory for the time being settled on the list of contributories and any trustee, receiver, banker, agent, or officer of the company to pay, deliver, surrender or transfer forthwith, or within such a time as the Court directs, to the official liquidator any money, property or documents in his hands to which the company is prima facie entitled.

This section is applicable only to contributories, officers of the company and other persons mentioned therein The company's solicitor is such a person 6, but not an accountant to whom the books have been made over for preparing a balance sheet 7, nor a creditor who has obtained a garnishee order as a 'trustee' within the meaning of this section 8

A banker holding adversely to the company is not within the section 9 Generally the section does not apply if a dispute is raised there being nothing in the section empowering the Court to determine the question 6

Under this section the Court has summary power to take steps to preserve pendente lite the property which prima facie appears to belong to the company, and apart from the Companies Act the Court has ample power ex debito justitie to pass interim orders for protection and preservation of the subject matter in litigation under ss 94 and 151 and Orders 39 and 40 of the Code of Civil Procedure 10 Where the managing agents of a company admitted to be in possession

sion of money belonging to the company, but claimed a lien over it the Court asked them under this section to deposit the amount in Court until the adjudication of their claim 1 Where the chairman of a bank took money from the bank in way which amounted to the taking of the money wholly illegally and without any authority and converted this money for his own use by purchasing property in his own name it was held that the chairman being a trustee of all the moneys of the bank the liquidator was prima facie entitled to be given possession of the property under this section 2 The Court will not however make an ex parte order for delivery of documents by the manager of a company to the official liquidator 3

An agent who is in possession of properties belonging to a company under an agreement by which he was to advance money for working expenses has, in the absence of a contract to the contrary a lien on such properties under s 221 of the Indian Contract Act and this section does not authorize the Court to deprive the agent of his possession of the security 4 An auditor is not an officer of the company within the meaning of this section 5 But a director who contracted to sell property to the company may be ordered to deliver possession thereof 6

If a receiver for the debenture holders is appointed he may be ordered to hand over to the liquidator such books and documents as relate to the management and business of the company and are not necessary to support the title of the debenture holders 7

In a voluntary winding up the liquidator can apply to the Court to exercise the above powers 8

The section should not be strained to bring within its purview persons who are not within its express words 9 or even the persons named in the section if there is a bona fide dispute as to the liquidator's rights In such a case proceedings should be taken by action in the ordinary way 10 See notes to s 188.

186 (1) The Court may, at any time after making a winding up order, make an order on any contributory for the time being settled on the list of contributories to pay, in manner directed by the order, any money due from him or from the estate of the person whom he represents to the company exclusive of any money payable by him or the estate by virtue of any call in pursuance of this Act

(2) The Court in making such an order may, in the case of an unlimited company, allow to the contributory by way of set-off any money due to him or to the estate which he represents from the company on any independent dealing or contract with the company, but not any money due to him as a member of the company in respect of any dividend or profit; and may, in the case of a limited company, make to any director whose liability is unlimited or to his estate the like allowance.

Provided that, in the case of any company, whether limited or unlimited, when all the creditors are paid in full, any money due on any account whatever to a contributor from the company may be allowed to him by way of set-off against any subsequent call.

Object of the section The object of this section and similar sections is to avoid a double process and to do complete justice in the winding up. It is only in rare instances as where some of the parties concerned are not amenable to the jurisdiction in the winding up that an action should be brought instead of making use of the jurisdiction given by the section 1.

This section (1) is concerned as observed by their Lordships of the Judicial Committee only with moneys due from a contributor; other than money payable by virtue of a call in pursuance of the Act. A debtor who is not a contributor is untouched by it. Moneys due from him are recoverable only by suit in the company's name. (2) it is a section which creates a special procedure for obtaining payment of moneys. It is not a section which purports to create a foundation upon which to base a claim for payment. It creates no new rights, (3) the power of the Court to order payment is discretionary. It may refuse to act under this section leaving the liquidator to sue in the name of the company and it will readily take that course in any case in which it is made apparent that the respondent under this procedure if continued would be deprived of some defence or answer open to him in a suit for the same moneys².

As soon as the list of contributors is settled the liability of the contributors is founded on a different footing from the one on which it rested till then. Before the order for contribution is passed the liability is a contractual one and subsequent to that order it is a new liability which may be described as a statutory liability³.

There are two provisions in this section for allowing set off. The one is contained in the proviso and is operative only as between contributors after all the debts are paid. This is applicable to both limited and unlimited companies. The other is confined to unlimited companies and seemingly allows a set off of debts due from the company to the contributor (as distinguished from moneys due to him as a member) against that which under this section the Court can order him to pay that is debts due from the contributor in calls made before the winding up⁴.

4. Buckley, p. 104.

Sub-section (1) does nothing more than create a new machinery to recover debts due by a contributory. It does not create new liabilities or confer new rights. It merely provides for summary procedure for enforcing existing legal liabilities. The words "at any time" in sub-sec. (1) does not authorize the Court to order payment of a statute-barred debt, they mean at any time in the course of the liquidation proceedings. The words "any money due from him or from the estate of the person whom he represents" in the company must be confined to money due and recoverable in a suit by the company and they do not include any monies which at the date of the application under this section could not have been so recovered. 2

A contributory can be required not only to meet calls but also to pay any debt which he owes to the company. But the Court is not bound to proceed under this section for recovery of a debt due from a contributory, and may if so advise to direct the liquidator to file a regular suit for the purpose. 3

A debt due on a promissory note by a contributory is "money due from him to the company" 4 within this section and the Court has upon 5 a summary application the power to direct the contributory to pay the money. 5 The Court however has no jurisdiction to recover by summary process the money due from a debtor who is not a contributory. 6 An opinion expressed by the liquidation Judge in such a case with regard to set off does not operate as res judicata. 6

In order to make a contributory liable under this section for payment of debts other than calls debts must be due from the contributory himself. Where the S 43, Contract Act debts are due from a firm of which the contributory is a member the payment of those debts cannot be enforced under this section, the provisions of s. 13 of the Indian Contract Act having no application to such a case. 7

A person to whom the liquidator has transferred a payment order made under this section against a contributory is entitled to invoke the summary jurisdiction of the Court under s. 199 for recovering the money. 8 But generally speaking a third party cannot take advantage of the provisions of the section 9, for it is no part of the Court's duty to help third persons who have purchased debts due to the company. So the Court cannot make a payment order under this section in respect of a debt which has been sold to a third person. 10 In a recent case in England Mingham J however allowed an application of the Commissioners of Income Tax under the corresponding section (s. 163) of the English Act of 1909 asking for an order upon a contributory who had received money from the liquidator on a distribution of surplus assets with notice that the liquidator had not provided for the super-tax payable by the company to refund that amount to the creditor.

of the liquidator so that the super tax might be paid. This decision was upheld by the Court of Appeal 1

Payment order—whether decree A payment order under this section made ex parte is not a decree and Art 164 Sch 1 of the Limitation Act has no application for setting it aside. Art 181 refers to all applications for the making of which the Code of Civil Procedure gives authority 2

A decree which is a nullity may be disregarded without any proceeding being taken to set it aside. So a payment order which is a nullity may be disregarded by a Court whose assistance is sought for its execution (note "last page")

Set off—unlimited company In the case of an unlimited company the Court may allow a contributory a set off in respect of debts due to him from the company but no set off will be allowed of a debt due from the company against calls made upon him in the winding up 3

Limited company In the case of a limited company a set off will not be allowed to a contributory against calls due from him in respect of any debt due to him from the company 4. He must pay his calls in full and then prove his debt 5 even if there is a special agreement that there shall be a set off 6. Where the contributory is a bankrupt his trustee is however entitled to a set off against a demand for calls made by the liquidator 7. But where an insolvent company is a contributory and creditor of another insolvent company no set off will be allowed 8

Both In the case of creditors of a limited or unlimited company the Bankruptcy Rules is to set off apply under which all claims provable in the winding up may be subject of set off provided there is a mutuality 9 and that each claim results in a liability to pay money and not to return goods 10

Court's discretion The Court has a discretion in allowing set off and if the claim against the company requires investigation it may allow payment of calls to be enforced without waiting until the cross claim has been investigated 11

Voluntary winding up s. 216 enables the Court to make an order under this section in a voluntary winding up. In an action by a voluntary liquidator to enforce a call the defendant cannot counterclaim for debt or damages 12. And if to the company's action commenced before the winding up the defendant has pleaded a set off, and before judgment the company goes into liquidation the set off cannot be allowed 13

Winding up under supervision In an action against a member brought by the liquidator under supervision order, a debt due to the defendant previous to the voluntary resolution cannot be set off against a debt incurred after the resolution 14

sett s

In my question of set off the two demands must be of such a character that the general principles of set off may apply.

The Court will not settle a supplemental list of contributories in respect of the holders of fully paid shares simply to bring them within this section and give jurisdiction to enforce payment of debts due from them to the company.²

For further cases see notes to the next section

Though the making of an order of contribution under this section is not controlled by any rule of limitation the enforcement of such an order is not equally so controlled. It is subject to the general law of limitation applicable to execution applications.³ An application by the liquidator filed within three years from the date of the winding up order, if otherwise properly made under and within the provisions of this section, is not one which must be dismissed under s. 1 of the Limitation Act as it is either an application made within time, or it is an application made for which no period of limitation is prescribed.⁴ In the last cited case at p. 66 their Lordships also observed "The learned Judges in the present case took the erroneous view that once the winding up commenced there could be no further application of the rule of limitation in regard to any debt due to the company and not then already time barred. Their Lordships know of no justification for this view. In this respect there is no analogy between the position of a debtor and a creditor of a company in liquidation."

187 (1) The Court may, at any time after making a winding up order, and either before or after it has ascertained the sufficiency of the assets of the company, make calls on and order payment thereof by all or any of the contributories for the time being settled on the list of the contributories to the extent of their liability, for payment of any money which the Court considers necessary to satisfy the debts and liabilities of the company, and the costs, charges and expenses of winding up, and for the adjustment of the rights of the contributories among themselves.

(2) In making the call the Court may take into consideration the probability that some of the contributors may partly or wholly fail to pay the call.

Cesser of directors power After the winding up order the directors' power to make call ipso facto comes to an end. So where uncalled capital has been charged by the company in favour of debenture holders, the Court has no jurisdiction, after the winding up order to order either a receiver appointed in an action to enforce the debentures or the liquidator to make call in the winding up. The

was explained

receiver in the action may however be empowered to take proceedings in the name of the liquidator for getting in the call 1

The call may be made before or after ascertaining what claims against the company will be established as debts and the words debts and liabilities mean estimated debts and liabilities 2 The list of contributories however must be settled first 3 In sanctioning a call the Court may allow payment by instalments 4

When a company goes into liquidation and an official liquidator is appointed the contributories are only liable to pay up the balance of their share money then uncalled 4 and when the Court is satisfied that the financial condition of the company is such that a call is necessary to discharge the liabilities of the company The shareholder is not liable to pay one farthing of the uncalled share money until the Court has made such an order in which the call then becomes a claim on the contributory 5

Shareholders are liable to pay calls made in the winding up although by the contract under which they took the shares the calls were only payable by instalments and the date of payment has not arrived 6 Provisions in the articles as to payment of interest on calls or as to the time and amount of payment do not apply to calls made by the liquidator 7 He can also enforce calls made by the directors before commencement of the winding up 8 for this section is not confined to original calls but includes unpaid calls made before the winding up as well as those made after the winding up They are enforceable by a summary action on the motion of the official liquidator 9

As to the enforcement of an order against property situated within the jurisdiction of a District Court see notes to s 200

Although as a matter of practice when the High Court makes an order to enforce calls it directs the contributory to pay to the Imperial Bank that is purely a precautionary measure and if it becomes necessary in order to facilitate enforcement of the payment the High Court by its Rules has power to make an order on the contributories to pay to the official liquidator direct 10 In the last cited case where a contributory paid the amount due from him to the then official liquidator in obedience to his requisition before an order was made by the Court under this section, Sir George Rankin C J held that in the absence of evidence that the then official liquidator misapplied the money the contributory should not be asked to pay the money over again

In a winding up although a shareholder who is a creditor of the company can prove in competition with the outside creditors he cannot set off a debt owing to him by the company against a call 11 whether made before or after the commencement of the winding up 12 although in the former case there has been an agreement to do so 1 Where however a company in liquidation is both a creditor and a shareholder of another company in liquidation it cannot even when insolvent set off against calls made by the liquidator of the latter company a debt owing to it by that company 2 or take any dividend until it has paid up all calls due 3 In a common law action by liquidator for a call made before liquidation the defendant has no right of set off 4

An agreement between a director and the company that any money which the former may pay under a guarantee of the company's overdraft at the bank shall be treated as payment made in advance of future calls though such an agreement is within the company's powers and validly made will not enable the director to set off amounts so paid against a subsequent call made by the liquidator in a compulsory winding up 5

Where a director has received in breach of trust a present of paid up shares from the company's vendors he may be made liable for misfeasance, but he cannot be made liable as a contributory for unpaid shares 6

After the commencement of winding up a shareholder can assign a debt due to him by the company subject only to a right of set off by the company of all calls which may be made subsequent to the assignment and previous to the payment of the debt 7 But where the winding up was after the assignment he is entitled to a dividend on the debt notwithstanding the non-payment by his assignor of calls due from him 8

Persons who are on the register at the commencement of the winding up are not entitled to resist the making of a call on the ground that they assert a right to have their names removed from the list, their remedy is to apply for suspension of the operation of the call 9

The Court will not wait until claims have been established before making a call nor will it postpone calling up the full amount unpaid on the shares or make such amount payable by instalments where there is no reasonable doubt that the full amount will be required for paying the creditors 10

On a summons for call 11 or other proceeding under the winding up order 12 the propriety or validity of the winding up order cannot be called in question 13 Winding up order is not however a judgment in rem and a stranger or a purchaser from the liquidator may dispute its validity 14

Where a shareholder has paid all calls which have become due he is entitled to a dividend on the amount of any debt owing to him from the company pari passu with other creditors 1 A shareholder whose shares have been improperly forfeited and sold may prove for damages in competition with the creditors 3

An order for payment of money against a contributory is valid when it is obtained in his life time His estate can be made liable only when those who represent the estate are brought on the record before an effective order is made 2

A contributory who petitions for and obtains a winding up order is entitled to the costs of his petition before payment of any call 4

The debt due from a shareholder does not become recoverable until he is registered as a shareholder 5

The section does not apply to the case of a company which is being voluntarily wound up 6 But this section read with s. 211 enables the Court to make an order against a contributory for payment of calls in such a company

The Courts in India treat a call order made by the Court of Chancery in England upon a contributory of a company registered in England as a foreign judgment and will not allow the liability of a defendant sued upon such an order to be disputed unless it be shown that the Court had no jurisdiction to make the order or that the defendant had no notice of it or that it is not in its nature a final order 7

The right to sue for calls does not arise from the failure to register the contract but from the fact of taking shares, and the liability thence arising to pay up the shares in cash can only be taken away by a duly registered contract and not by an agreement to register one 8

The mortgage of shares is not the trustee for the mortgagee when the former paid forced calls in a compulsory liquidation 9

A call is recoverable although barred under art. 112 of the Limitation Act 10 for liquidation gives the official liquidator a cause of action 11 Just as a claim if brought by the company might be barred by limitation but not if brought by the official liquidator so a claim which might be held to be barred by the Civil Procedure Code if brought by the company can be brought by the official liquidator under the provisions of the Companies Act 11

See notes to art. 12-13 of Table A

188 The Court may order any contributory, purchaser or other person from whom money is due to the company to pay the same into the account of the official liquidator in any schedule bank as defined in clause (c) of section 2 of the Reserve Bank of India Act, 1931 instead of to the official liquidator, and any such order may be enforced in the same manner as if it had directed payment to the official liquidator

Amendment By the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936 the words "the Bank of Bengal the Bank of Madras or the Bank of Bombay, as the case may be or any branch thereof respectively to have been omitted after the words "the same into" By the same Act the words in italics have been inserted

For a list of the schedule banks see p 270 71 ante

Purchaser The word purchaser does not mean any person who has purchased any good from the liquidator or from the company the word must be taken to refer to the word contributory which immediately precedes it and means the purchaser of the interest of a contributory

Other persons &c The words "or other persons from whom money is due" have a reference to a person from whom money is due under s 180 2 There is no provision in the Companies Act which enables the Court directing the winding up to recover or authorise the recovery of moneys in the hands of the persons other than those expressly mentioned in s 180 by summary process Such orders if made are without jurisdiction and cannot be enforced The only course open to the official liquidator in such cases is to institute regular suits 3 Persons who enter into contract with the liquidator during the course of liquidation do not come under s 180 consequently order directing them to pay the liquidator cannot be enforced under s 180 nor can such an order be enforced under this section 4

Enforcement of order—jurisdiction The words "any such order may be enforced in the same manner as if it had directed payment to the official liquidator" do not give jurisdiction to enforce an order against persons other than contributories or persons mentioned in s 180 The most natural construction to place on these words is that if an order can be enforced which is an order directing payment to the official liquidator, the same order can be enforced if it directs payment to a bank 2d The company Judge has jurisdiction for the purpose of carrying out the liquidation that is the realization of the assets of the company and the payment of the creditors &c But judicial decisions of matters which may arise with third parties owing to the transactions entered into by the liquidator is foreign to his jurisdiction 3

190. (1) An order made by the Court on a contributory shall (subject to any right of appeal) be conclusive evidence that the money, if any thereby appearing to be due or ordered to be paid is due

(2) All other pertinent matters stated in the order shall be taken to be truly stated as against all persons, and in all proceedings whatsoever

191 The Court may fix a time or times within which creditors are to prove their debts or claims, or to be excluded from the benefit of any distribution made before those debts are proved

Creditors proving after appointed time Whenever there are funds in Court or otherwise available a creditor although the time appointed for bringing in his claim has long elapsed is invariably allowed to prove subject to terms as to costs and as regards dividends already paid 1 Where a creditor fails to bring in his claim by the date announced by the official liquidator he is not precluded from coming in at a later stage the only penalty in such case is that the claimant will be excluded from the benefit of any distribution made before the debt is proved 2

Limitation The statute of limitation ceases to run against a creditor on a winding up order being made and he is allowed to prove at any time before the company is dissolved but so as not to interfere with dividends already paid 3, but a proof in respect of claims statute barred before the order is not allowed 4

Damages for breach of contract Proof may be made for damages for breach of contract such as to buy goods, to purchase a business to repair a shop to give fully paid shares in satisfaction of a debt or to employ a person as a servant of the company, and the claims may include damages sustained under a continuing breach of contract after the winding up commenced 15

192 The Court shall adjust the rights of the contributories among themselves, and distribute any surplus among the persons entitled thereto

Adjustment of rights of contributories

In adjusting the rights of the contributories and distributing the surplus the liability of the ordinary shareholders for the unpaid balance of their shares must not be disregarded and after discharging all debts and liabilities and repaying to the ordinary and preference shareholders the capital paid on their shares the assets ought to be divided among the shareholders in the absence of any other provision in the memorandum or the articles not in proportion to the amounts paid on the shares but in proportion to the shares held 1

Principle of distribution

It cannot be said that the creditors have been paid in full until they have got interest on their outstanding debts. So the preference shareholders cannot get anything before the said interest is paid. But the Court is not bound to give the creditors their contractual rate of interest 2

Where the members of a company in liquidation have been assessed to surtax in respect of their incomes from the company in the name of the company, and the liquidator has paid the surtax he is bound in distributing any surplus among the members to bring into account the surtax so paid by him against the amounts receivable by the shareholders in respect of the income of which the surtax was assessed. The surtax cannot be treated as a liability of the company payable before the ascertainment of the amount available for distribution 3

The Court may make calls on any of the contributories for the purpose of adjusting rights of the contributories among themselves 4. The holders of fully paid shares are contributories 5. Calls may be made on the holders of partly paid shares for the purpose of equalizing the rights between them and the fully paid shareholders 6

On whom calls may be made

A shareholder cannot participate in the distribution until he has paid all calls due 7. The right of a liquidator to require payment of money due from a contributory before he is allowed to participate in a dividend only applies where both amounts are due at the commencement of the winding up 7

Participation in dividend

Whether a company is limited or unlimited when all the creditors have been paid in full any money due on any account whatsoever to a contributory from the company may be allowed to him by way of set off against any subsequent call. When the creditors have been paid in full any surplus is to be distributed amongst the contributories according to their rights inter se as adjusted by the Court 8

If the memorandum and articles of association contain any provision as to how surplus assets are to be divided, then subject to the terms on which the capital has been issued the surplus assets are divided and losses are borne in proportion to the nominal amounts of the shares and not to the sums paid up.¹ Where however some shareholders have paid up more than others the Court will adjust the amounts until all have paid up in the same proportion and the surplus thus arrived at will then be distributed in proportion to the nominal amounts.² The rights may be adjusted by making larger returns to those who have paid larger amounts² or by making calls.³

A provision in the articles as to how dividends are to be distributed while the company is a going concern does not per se govern or affect the distribution of surplus assets in the winding up.

Sometimes it may be necessary to make a call upon those who have paid less in order to repay those who have paid more for equalization 4 If the articles state that the loss is to be borne in proportion to the amount paid the liquidator should make such calls as will make all the shares paid up to the same extent, and the assets will then be divisible proportionately to the number of shares 5 But an article providing that the loss is to be borne by the members in proportion to the capital paid up or which ought to have been paid up at the commencement of the winding up on the shares held by them respectively excludes the principle laid down in ex parte Mutual 6 and in such a case the liquidator cannot make calls for the purpose of equalization 7 Each case however depends on the words used and decided cases are of little help in interpreting a different set of words 8

If the shares are of different amounts and the surplus is divisible without regard to the amount of shares the presumption in the absence of express words is that this means the surplus after repaying capital as well as debts.⁹

It is a well established principle that where a person is entitled to participate in a fund he is also bound to make a contribution in aid of that fund. He cannot be allowed to participate unless and until he has fulfilled his duty to contribute. 10 But where the debtor has died insolvent before commencement of the winding up the amount to be contributed by representatives is a term of sharing in the distribution = the proper dividend on and not the full amount of the debt. 10

If after payment of the debts there are surplus assets the fully paid shareholders are except where the articles provide otherwise entitled to receive the difference between the amount paid on their shares and that paid on the other shares 12 For the purpose of distribution of surplus assets they ought to be placed on the list of contributors 13

Where inequality in the amounts paid up arises from the shareholders having made payments in advance of calls each shareholder for the purpose of equalizing is entitled to be repaid the amount advanced with interest at the agreed rate up to the date of payment before any payment is made in respect of the other shares ranking pari passu with his shares in repayment of capital 1

Where after repayment to the shareholders of all fully paid up capital there is still a surplus remaining for distribution then subject to the articles of association and the terms of issue 2 the surplus so far as it represents capital is divisible in proportion to the nominal amount of shares whether they are preference or ordinary shares and whether at the winding up they are partly or fully paid up 3 The surplus so far as it represents undivided profits is in some cases divisible among the shareholders as if it were profit available for dividend 4 but in other cases it must be treated as capital 5 Unless the articles so provide the holders of shares issued at a premium are not in a winding up entitled to have the premium repaid 6 Because shareholders are entitled to a preferential dividend it does not follow that they are entitled to payment of the capital 7

"So long as there are assets undistributed in the liquidation it remains open to the Court to correct any mistakes or injustice due to falsified estimate or other irregular incidents arising in a prolonged and difficult administration 8

Where the articles contain no express provision as to payment of arrears of the preference dividend in a winding up then if on the true construction of the articles the right of the preference shareholders to receive preference dividend whilst the company is a going concern is conditional upon such dividend being declared they have no right to receive any arrears or deficiency of such dividend in a winding up even though the distributable assets include or in part represent accumulated profits 9 If however the articles are so framed that profits earned before the members irrespective of dividends being declared the distributable assets in a winding up so far as representing accumulated profits will be divisible among the members according to their rights in profits and the preference shareholders will first be entitled to payment thereof of any deficiency of their preference dividend, and the balance will belong to the ordinary shareholders 1. For other instances see the cases noted below 2.

Where the memorandum or the articles provide that the preference shareholders are entitled to payment of capital in priority to all other shares in the distribution of surplus assets they are entitled to share them pari passu with the ordinary shareholders.³ In the last cited case at p. 15, Lord Hanworth, M.R. observed: 'We start therefore the consideration of this question with the two principles in our minds that the incorporators have entered into a contract by which they become partners and that when there are surplus assets left over they are to be dealt with as between the members on the basis of equality whatever were the original or limited rights of the preference shareholders earlier.

In the absence of express provision to the contrary in the articles preference share holders are entitled to share with the ordinary shareholders pari passu in the distribution of the surplus assets. The mere fact of this priority as to cumulative dividend and return of capital will not disentitle them to such participation in the surplus assets.⁴

The words 'surplus assets' mean where there is a loss 'assets remaining after due equalization of the capital accounts' 5 or sums payable by the shareholder who have not paid in full 6. But where the general assets are sufficient to enable debts &c to be paid and the capital accounts to be equalized without any call there is no capital called or treated as called for the purpose of satisfying creditors in such a case the only capital paid is that paid before the winding up 7.

apart from any question of equalising capital accounts the expression "surplus assets" may mean "assets remaining after payment of debts and costs" or it may mean "assets remaining after payment of debts and costs and return of all paid up capital."

Where the memorandum of association of a company provided that the preference shareholders should be entitled in a winding up to such a share of the surplus assets as shall provide for the holders of preference shares an amount per share equal to one half of the amount per share provided for the holders of ordinary shares but so that the total sum so provided for the holders of the preference shares shall not exceed five shillings per share the preference shareholders being entitled to no further participation in the profits or assets, it was held that the expression 'surplus assets' meant what was left after the payment of debts and the repayment of the whole of the preference and ordinary capital.

Distribution in specie It is common to introduce provisions in the memorandum and articles of association for division of surplus assets in specie. For the effect of such a provision see the case noted below 1

Discount Any discount on shares unlawfully issued if a discount is treated as capital unpaid, which may be so regarded in adjusting accounts or may be called up to adjust the rights of contributories 3

If too much has been paid to a shareholder he may be ordered to refund the amount 5

193 The Court may, in the event of the assets being insufficient to satisfy the liabilities, make an order as to the payment out of the assets of the costs, charges and expenses incurred in the winding up in such order of priority as the Court thinks just

Priority of costs charges &c It is held by the House of Lords in 1872 that although in a compulsory winding up there was no statutory provision as in the case of a voluntary winding up 6 that all costs charges and expenses properly incurred in the winding up including the liquidator's remuneration be payable out of the assets in priority to all other claims the same principle would be applied 7

Distribution After the costs charges and expenses have been paid the assets are to be applied in payment of the company's debts and liabilities to the creditors. When the creditors have been paid in full any surplus is to be distributed amongst the contributories according to their rights inter se as adjusted by the Court 8

Remuneration As regards the liquidator's remuneration the rule is, that first the costs of the petition for winding up next the costs of the winding up and then the remuneration of the liquidator are to be paid 9. In the case noted below 10 the Court in its discretion allowed the voluntary liquidator to retain the remuneration received by him before the date of the notice of the assessment of income tax. The remuneration of a receiver and manager appointed in a debenture holder's action is paid in priority to the debt incurred by him with the Court's sanction 11

Where in a litigation an order has been made that costs shall be paid out of the assets of the company or by the liquidator with leave to retain them out of the assets the amount is payable forthwith without waiting to see if the funds will be sufficient to pay all costs incurred in the winding up and if the liquidator pays such costs he may repay himself at once 1

The costs ordered to be paid out of the assets come before the general costs of the winding up 2 If the liquidator continues proceedings commenced before the winding up order the whole costs including those incurred before the order are costs of the winding up 3

As to the priority of solicitor's costs and other costs and generally see Buckley 10th ed pp 40-8 The costs are however generally in the Court's discretion and if unfounded charges are made or the petitioner's conduct is unsatisfactory or his debt small an order may be made without costs 4

194 (1) When the affairs of a company have been completely wound up, the Court shall make an order that the company be dissolved from the date of the order, and the company shall be dissolved accordingly

Dissolution of company

(2) The order shall be reported within fifteen days of the making thereof by the official liquidator to the registrar, who shall make in his books a minute of the dissolution of the company

(3) If the official liquidator makes default in complying with the requirements of this section, he shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees for every day during which he is in default

Dissolution puts an end to the existence of a company 5 It prevents any proceeding being taken against promoters directors or officers of the company in respect of any misfeasance or breach of trust 6 or a creditor proving a debt against the company 7

Effect of dissolution

When a company is dissolved the statutory duty of the liquidator towards the creditors and contributories is gone but if he has committed a breach of his duty to any creditor by distributing the assets without complying with the requirements of the Act he is liable in damages to the creditor 8

Liquidator's liability

Effect of dissolution upon pending proceedings
&c

A judgment obtained against a company after its dissolution is invalid and the solicitor acting for the company is liable personally to pay the costs of the action from the date of the dissolution and consequent revocation of his authority 1 After dissolution however the Court has jurisdiction to make an order upon an application made but not heard before the dissolution 2

Bona
vacantia

Where a company is dissolved, its personal property including its right against a bankrupt estate in respect of debt vests in the Crown as bona vacantia 3 As to whether a debt to a company is extinguished by its dissolution see the last noted case 1 But estates and interests in land do not necessarily vest in the Crown In such cases the reversion is accelerated 4 It has however been held in a recent case that the doctrine of bona vacantia extends to leaseholds and that where they are mortgaged the equity of redemption passes to the Crown upon dissolution of the company 5 The principle under which the Crown takes bona vacantia is that the King is the owner of every thing which has no other owner 6

Special
order

To relieve the directors and others from personal liability incurred by carrying on business after the company has been dissolved the Court may make a special order and it will not be made in a flagrant case 7

Solicitor's authority is determined

A solicitor's authority to represent the company is determined by its dissolution 8 and if he continues to act or purports to act for a company not in fact incorporated 9, he will be liable to the other party for costs.

No misfeasance proceedings after dissolution

After dissolution no proceedings can be taken under s 235 for misfeasance 10 But a creditor has remedy in damages against the liquidator if with knowledge of the debt he has wilfully or negligently distributed the assets without providing for such debt 11

Liquidator
can perform formal acts after dissolution

Although when a company has been dissolved it ceases to exist for all purposes and its officers including the liquidators are functus officio 12 yet even after dissolution the liquidator can complete a formal act like giving a transfer in writing for a decree which has been already transferred by him while he was still a liquidator 13, for a decree is not an actionable claim within the meaning of the Transfer of Property Act and therefore an assignment of a decree need not be in writing though for the purposes of execution O 21

Extraordinary Powers of Court

195 (1) The Court may, after it has made a winding up order, summon before it any officer of the company or person known or suspected to have in his possession any property of the company, or supposed to be indebted to the company, or any person whom the Court deems capable of giving information concerning the trade, dealings, affairs or property of the company

Power to

(2) The Court may examine him on oath concerning the same, either by word of mouth or on written interrogatories, and may reduce his answers to writing and require him to sign them

(3) The Court may require him to produce any document in his custody or power relating to the company; but, where he claims any lien on documents produced by him, the production shall be without prejudice to that lien, and the Court shall have jurisdiction in the winding up to determine all questions relating to that lien

(4) If any person so summoned, after being tendered a reasonable sum for his expenses, refuses to come before the Court at the time appointed, not having a lawful impediment (made known to the Court at the time of its sitting, and allowed by it), the Court may cause him to be apprehended and brought before the Court for examination

This section was enacted to enable the Court in charge of liquidation proceedings to examine the persons mentioned therein to ascertain inter alia their conduct with regard to the management of the company and to find out the financial condition and the assets. In these proceedings there is no contest between two parties and therefore the proviso to s 132 of the Evidence Act does not confer any special privilege on the persons so examined. The proceeding is a private examination which the Court sanctions in order that the liquidator may obtain the necessary information to enable him to proceed in the winding up and for many reasons it is most undesirable that the opposing party in the litigation contemplated by the liquidator should be allowed to be present at a proceeding which is a proceeding for the purpose of informing the officer of the Court and the Court what course ought to be pursued. 2

The powers of the Court under this section are very wide and it is not necessary

1 Ramchand v King Emp [1926] L 383 27 Cr L J 1392, 98 I C 599
2 Haddock's case [1907] 2 Ch 73 (80), see Grey & Brewery Co [1884] 2, Ch D 400.

that the Court must first determine that the person called upon to furnish the information does actually possess that information. If the Court has reason to think or even an allegation is made that a certain person is in possession of information which would be useful for the purposes of the winding up the Court can call upon him to appear in Court and can examine him 1

An order for examination under this section may be obtained by the liquidator or by a contributory. The Court can however of its own motion direct such an examination to be held 2 s. 210 (now s. 216) enables the Court to pass orders under this section in a voluntary winding up 3 but such orders will be made only under exceptional circumstances 4

The examination is as a rule entrusted to the liquidator but the Court may commit the whole or some part of the examination to a creditor or contributory 4 The Court can give the conduct of the examination to a petitioning creditor where the liquidator refuses to act or has not the means to act. The Court has discretion to allow a creditor to attend even where the official liquidator has the conduct of the examination. But such a discretion ought not to be exercised except in very extreme cases 5

If the Judge has made an order for an examination the Court of appeal will not generally interfere with his discretion 6 unless the order appears to be oppressive 7

It is in the discretion of the Court conducting the winding up to determine whether it will exercise the powers vested in it by this section but the discretion must be exercised judicially and not without consideration 8 The order cannot be obtained as of right 9

If a party is entitled to take part in or to conduct an examination the ordinary rule must prevail that he is entitled to do so with the help of counsel 10 But it is a matter entirely within the discretion of the Court whether the services of counsel should be allowed to an official liquidator 10

The Court has jurisdiction to order the examination to be held in open Court but the jurisdiction should be exercised in very exceptional circumstances. For instance, a person not charged with fraud should not be examined in open Court 11 As a rule the examination will be held in private and creditors and contributories will not be entitled to attend unless they have obtained leave of the Court 12

Before granting an application under this section the Court ought to be satisfied that the inquiry is just and beneficial for the purposes of the winding up and not merely intended to harass and annoy the directors and managers 1 or for the purpose of advancing the individual interest of a single contributory 2

The witness must answer questions even if they relate to matters of hearsay 3 but he need not answer questions as to matters which might incriminate him or as to matters involving professional confidence 4 The only ground on which a witness summoned to attend for examination can contest the validity of the summons is a want of jurisdiction to issue it or to put the order 5

A witness may not inspect and take copies of the deposition of his examination under this section unless he has obtained the leave of the Court 6 In a recent case 7 Mr Justice Buckland held that in the interests of criminal justice the Court should allow a public officer charged with the investigation of criminal offences such as a Deputy Commissioner of Police to inspect the depositions of a person, who is believed to be involved in a criminal offence, under this section and to inform himself of all the things that may come to light on such inspection, he cannot however take copies of the deposition but only notes and in doing so he cannot reproduce verbatim any portion of the deposition however brief

Delivery of a document without prejudice to an alleged right of lien does not involve its admission and does not in any way prejudice it if it exists 8 Delivery of document If delivery is necessary for the purposes of a voluntary winding up the liquidator is entitled to the delivery 8 Where there is no good right of lien properly so called, there may be a right of retention on the ground of implied contract 8

A liquidator while so acting is an officer of the Court charged with the duty of investigating the affairs of the company and the acts of its past managing agents and directors and he is entitled to be given all reasonable information as to past transactions Any creditor who refuses to do so at his own peril and in the ultimate resort can be summoned under this section, and if necessary arrested 9 But the liquidator cannot use a summons under this section to obtain relief against a stranger for instance, by seeking to enforce a claim against an alleged debtor to the company or asking for rescission of the contract 10

Orders have been made to compel information from —the managing clerk of a bank with which a contributory had an account —the broker by whom a transfer was made in a case in which the transferee was an infant —the sister and nephew of a contributory who had been served with a balance order —the mother in law of a contributory —a creditor of the company who claimed commission for service rendered and work done as agent of the company —brokers who entered into contracts with the company 1 But a mere creditor cannot be examined 2

The persons examined under this section will not be allowed their costs 3

Under s 202 an appeal lies from an order under this section 4 But the Calcutta High Court (C C Ghose & Buckland JJ) held that an order under this section directing the directors to appear before the Court for examination is not a judgment within cl 1 of the Letters Patent and therefore not appealable 5

196 (1) When an order has been made for winding up a company by the Court, and the official liquidator has applied to the Court stating that in his opinion a fraud has been committed by any person in the promotion or formation of the company or by any director or other officer of the company in relation to the company since its formation, the Court may, after consideration of the application, direct that any person who has taken any part in the promotion or formation of the company, or has been a director, manager or other officer of the company, shall attend before the Court on a day appointed by the Court for that purpose and be publicly examined as to the promotion or formation of the company, or the conduct of the business of the company, or as to his conduct and dealings as director, manager or other officer thereof

(2) The official liquidator shall take part in the examination, and for that purpose may, if specially authorised by the Court in that behalf, employ such legal assistance as may be sanctioned by the Court

(3) Any creditor or contributory may also take part in the examination either personally or by any person entitled to appear before the Court

(4) The Court may put such questions to the person examined as the Court thinks fit

(5) The person examined shall be examined on oath, and shall answer all such questions as the Court may put or allow to be put to him.

1 "In the case of a company which has been wound up by the Court, the official liquidator may, if specially authorised by the Court in that behalf, employ such legal assistance as may be sanctioned by the Court.

ribans v National Sugar Mill
Co. (supra)

(6) A person ordered to be examined under this section may at his own cost employ any person entitled to appear before the Court, who shall be at liberty to put to him such question as the Court may deem just for the purpose of enabling him to explain or qualify any answers given by him. Provided that if he is, in the opinion of the Court, exculpated from any charges made or suggested against him, the Court may allow him such costs as in its discretion it may think fit.

(7) Notes of the examination shall be taken down in writing, and shall be read over to or by, and signed by, the person examined, and may thereafter be used in evidence against him in civil proceedings, and shall be open to the inspection of any creditor or contributory at all reasonable times.

(8) The Court may, if it thinks fit, adjourn the examination from time to time.

(9) An examination under this section may, if the Court so directs, and subject to any rules in this behalf, be held before any District Judge or before any officer of the High Court, being an official referee, master, registrar or deputy registrar, and the powers of the Court under this section as to the conduct of the examination, but not as to costs, may be exercised by the person before whom the examination is held.

The two sections have quite different scopes. s 195 is intended to be used for the purposes of promoting the liquidation proceedings while s 196 is primarily intended to investigate the conduct of those who have been charged with its affairs.¹ It appears that under the previous section the Court can of its own motion for the purpose of obtaining information summon and examine the persons mentioned therein. But under the present section before the Court takes any action the official liquidator must make an application to the Court stating that in his opinion a fraud has been committed by any person in the promotion or formation of the company or by a director or officer after its formation.²

A public examination can be ordered only when (i) the company is being wound up by the Court (ii) the official liquidator has applied to the Court, (iii) the application alleges fraud or the facts stated in it show clearly that in the opinion of the official liquidator there has been fraud on the part of the persons to be examined.³ The official liquidator must make the application whenever he arrives at a judicial conclusion that such facts are in proof that it becomes his duty to make the application.³

3: Ex p Barnes (supra) at p 150

The application should set out such facts as the basis of his opinion as will warrant the Court to order the examination 1 Fraud on strangers will not however be taken into account 2 The power to direct a public examination of the persons does not apply to any one of those persons against whom a prima facie case of fraud has not been disclosed by the report of the official receiver [Ex p Barnes (1886) 11 C 146] The Court before it passes an order for public examination must be satisfied that some facts are given in the application which entitle the Court to find that there is a prima facie case of fraud against the particular persons named The wording of the section does not justify the Court on a general allegation of fraud in the management of the company in making an order for public examination of 'any person' not directly implicated in the application But there is no necessity to specify the charge of fraud with the same particularity as would be necessary in a criminal charge What should be the contents of an application under this section depends on the facts of the particular case 3 In the last cited case it has been held that the English decisions on the point of an investigation by a liquidator into the conduct of the officers of the company before liquidation are not binding upon Indian Courts on the ground that the language of this section differs from the language of the corresponding section (s 173) of the English Act of 1908 But is the difference substantial?

The official liquidator may apply ex parte for an order for public examination 4 Order may be made ex parte The person against whom the order is made can move to have the order discharged 5, provided that he applies within a reasonable time 5

Upon evidence that a contributory is about to sell his goods and chattels for the purpose of evading payment of a call the Court may make an order for the seizure of the goods but may decline to order his arrest upon a mere hearsay statement of his intention to leave the country 6

The Court cannot order the official liquidator personally to pay costs as he is merely discharging a statutory duty 7 The official liquidator will only be ordered to pay costs out of the company in the event of exculpation of the person accused 8

It is only a creditor or contributory or some party to the proceedings which are pending who would be entitled to inspect the notes of examination under this section 9 An order refusing inspection and copies of statements is appealable under s 202 9

This section was not intended to override the provisions of the Evidence Act and the intention of the legislature in using the words 'in civil proceedings' in cl 7, was to make the statement admissible in civil proceedings and subject to s 132 of the Evidence Act in criminal proceedings In an examination under this section there being no contest between two parties the provisions to s 132 of the Evidence Act does not confer special privileges on the persons examined 1

Under s 215 (now = 216) a voluntary liquidator is entitled to ask the Court for an order for the examination of persons who are connected with the company with regard to its formation or management and the Court has power to make such an order in voluntary liquidation 2 But where the provisions of s 203 are not strictly complied with the company is not in voluntary liquidation and the Court has no power to order the directors to be examined under this section 3

The pendency of an action by the liquidating company against an examine or a third party may be a ground for postponing the examination 4

An order directing that a person should be examined under this section is not a final order and is appealable 5
Appeal judgment with cl 13 of the Letters Patent, hence no appeal lies against the order 6

197 The Court, at any time either before or after making a winding up order on proof of probable cause for believing that a contributory is about to quit British India or otherwise to abscond, or to remove or conceal any of his property, for the purpose of evading payment of calls or of avoiding examination respecting the affairs of the company, may cause the contributory to be arrested and his books and papers and moveable property to be seized and him and them to be safely kept until such time as the Court may order

Under this section the Court may order the contributory to be arrested and his property to be seized or it may order the one without the other 6

198. Any powers by this Act conferred on the Court shall be in addition to, and not in restriction of, any existing powers of instituting proceedings against any contributory or debtor of the company, or the estate of any contributory or debtor, for the recovery of any call or other sums

Enforcement of and Appeal from Order

199 All orders made by a Court under this Act may be enforced in the same manner in which decrees of such Court made in any suit pending therein may be enforced

201 Where any order made by one Court is to be enforced by another Court, a certified copy of the order so made shall be produced to the proper officer of the Court required to enforce the same, and the production of such certified copy shall be sufficient evidence of such order having been made; and thereupon the last mentioned Court shall take the requisite steps in the matter for enforcing the order, in the same manner as if it were the order of the Court enforcing the same

Mode of dealing with orders to be enforced by other Courts Where an order made by one Court is sought to be enforced through another Court this section removes the necessity for complying with the procedure laid down in s 33 and OI XXI RR 4 and 5 C P C 1 See notes to s 193

An order for winding up was made by the Punjab Chief Court and under s 164 subsequent proceedings were taken in the Court of the District Judge of Lahore against contributories residing in districts within the jurisdiction of the Allahabad High Court. On an application to the latter Court by the official liquidator to enforce these orders it was held that the High Court had jurisdiction to enforce the orders by proceeding in execution before itself or to authorise the official liquidator to apply to the various District Courts in respect of each of the persons against whom orders for contribution had been passed 2

202 Re-hearings of, and appeals from, any order or decision made or given in the matter of the winding up of a company by the Court may be had in the same manner and subject to the same conditions in and subject to which appeals may be had from any order or decision of the same Court in cases within its ordinary jurisdiction

Appeals from orders Compare s 141 of Act X of 1866 and s 169 of Act VI of 1882 where the right of appeal was given subject to the restriction that no such re-hearing or appeal shall be heard unless notice of the same is given within three weeks after any order complained of has been made in manner in which notices of appeal are ordinarily given under the Code of Civil Procedure unless such time is extended by the Court of Appeal

Provisions of the previous Acts Where a private offer to the official liquidator to purchase certain machinery belonging to the company which was its sole property was sanctioned by the District Judge under s 141 (c) of the Act of 1882 (corresponding to s 179 of the present Act) without notice to the creditors or contributories and without satisfying himself that no better offer would be forthcoming if due publicity was given and on the application by the contributories revoked his order, it was held that whether or not the District Judge had a power of review either under s 169 of that Act or under his inherent power the High Court could permit the contributories and creditors to file an appeal under s 169 against the original order granting sanction and excuse delay in filing the appeal 3 register and the register being satisfied with the security accepted it, it was held that the order could not be reviewed 1

An appeal is a stage in and part of the proceedings in a suit and therefore no person can appeal unless he is a party to the suit. A person who had not complied with the Rules framed by the High Court and had not entered his name in the book kept for the purpose and had not in fact attended the proceedings has no locus standi to appeal 2. In the last cited case the application is not even treated as a petition for revision.

An appeal against a winding up order may be taken by a creditor or a contributory who has appeared 3 in the winding up Court or by the company itself. Where after the winding up order the majority of contributories declare themselves at a meeting held for the purpose in favour of appealing against the order in the name of the company an appeal so instituted in the company's name is competent, but this is all mere form. The appeal in such cases is really that of the contributories who are behind it and they may truly be regarded as the appellants 4.

If the company is the only appellant security for costs of the appeal must be given 5 not out of the company's funds but from an outside source namely, by the directors or shareholders who are at the back of the appeal and the security must be substantial 6. Application for security must except under special circumstances be made before the appeal is in the paper for hearing 7. The directors may appeal in the name of the company from the winding up order 5. With the Court's leave the liquidator may appeal 8 but not an outsider 9. Unless a person shows that he has got an interest which is adversely affected by the decree of the lower Court or has an interest in the subject matter which is under litigation he has no right to appeal 10.

Contributories or creditors who have not appeared below cannot appeal without leave 11. Other interested persons have no right of appeal but may be heard as amici curie 12. As to the costs of various parties see the case noted below 13.

Winding up appeals should be expedited see the caustic remarks of their Lordships in the case of note 4.

An appeal does not stay the proceedings except so far as the Judge of the Court Effect of appeal of Appeal orders. Where a winding up order is discharged on appeal, all proceedings taken under it are also discharged 14.

An appeal lies from an order refusing to wind up a company 1 or from an order made for examination of directors or where the order impugned is vexatious or oppressive so far as the appellant is concerned and where it is not necessary or beneficial for the purposes of the winding up 2

An order directing a preferential payment to be made to a creditor is one which relates to and is an incident of the winding up and the right of appeal is an incident of the winding up.³ But the appointment of any person as an official liquidator is so entirely a matter for the discretion of the Judge dealing with the winding up that an appellate Court will not review his decision except under very special circumstances or unless it can be shown that the Judge had acted on a wrong principle.⁴

This section applies only to order making in the matter of winding up and has no application to an order fixing the remuneration of an employee of a liquidator. Such an order therefore is not appealable.⁵

An order passed in a proceeding under s 200 is in order made in the winding up 6 But an order passed under cl (b) of s 217 refusing to restore a company on to the register is not an order made in the matter of winding up and hence it is not appealable Where the order is based on an erroneous view of the law it is however open to revision 7 There is also no appeal under this section from an order made or an application under s 113 by a company which is not in the course of being wound up 8 But an order refusing inspection and copies of statements under s 106 is appealable 9

An order depriving a creditor who has a claim which he has lawfully put in the form of a proof of debt against a company and which the liquidators are willing to admit is an order which deprives him of a substantial and important right and it cannot be held that such an order is not appealable by reason that it is not a judgment under cl. 1, of the Letters Patent 10.

An appeal is competent from order passed in winding up proceedings under supervision of Court II.

An order of the District Judge is liquidation Judge dismissing certain objections to the attachment of property is not appealable under this section as the order is under O. 21 R. 6 C P C 12

The Court under the Act being a Court of full jurisdiction is governed by the general provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure as made applicable by s. 141 of the Code and should in dealing with ex parte orders proceed under O. 9 r. 13 mutatis mutandis 13.

Where an application is made to discharge an order made in chambers the analogy of this section will be followed.¹

Voluntary winding up

203 A company may be wound up voluntarily—

- (1) when the period (if any) fixed for the duration of the company by the articles expires, or the event (if any) occurs, on the occurrence of which the articles provide that the company is to be dissolved and the company in general meeting has passed a resolution requiring the company to be wound up voluntarily,
- (2) if the company resolves by special resolution that the company be wound up voluntarily,
- (3) if the company resolves by extraordinary resolution to the effect that it cannot by reason of its liabilities continue its business, and that it is advisable to wind up, and the expression "resolution for voluntarily winding up" when used hereafter in this Part means a resolution passed under clause (1), clause (2) or clause (3) of this section

Circumstances in which company may be wound up voluntarily

By the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936 at the end of clause (3) the words in italics have been inserted

The word company does not include an unregistered company² but includes a company formed and registered under the Indian Act of 1866 or any Act or Acts repealed thereby or under the Act of 1882³

Creditors have no voice before the amending Act of 1936 as to whether a company should be wound up voluntarily⁴ but they might under an order of the Court, obtain a certain amount of control over the proceedings. Now see ss 209 to 209H

Cl (2) A company by passing a special resolution can wind up itself under the clause or under cl (1) of s 167⁵

The members power to wind up voluntarily cannot be excluded by any provision in the articles except to the extent of precluding certain shareholders or classes of them from the right of voting⁵

The resolution to wind up will not be valid if it is passed at a meeting which was not properly convened 1 or at a meeting at which a quorum was not present 2 Resolution or if the resolution passed at the meeting was not in accordance with when the resolution of which notice had been given 3 But a resolution to invalid wind up will not be rendered invalid by the fact that it was passed con-temporaneously and in concert with an invalid resolution for reconstruction 4

The notice must show clearly that it was intended to propose a resolution that the company was unable by reason of its liabilities to continue its business 5 Notice A notice stating that a resolution in the terms of this section will be proposed may however be sufficient 6

Where a notice was given calling an extraordinary general meeting and if necessary to pass a special resolution that the company be voluntarily wound up and that liquidators be appointed and then it went on to say that in the event of the said resolution being passed a special meeting would be held immediately after the extraordinary general meeting confirming the same and a resolution was passed for winding up the company and liquidators were appointed it was held that the resolution not being a special resolution as defined in the Act, the voluntary winding up was not according to law and the appointment of liquidators was a nullity and they had no locus standi to exercise the statutory power of a properly appointed liquidator 7

If an irregularity in passing an extraordinary resolution directing a voluntary winding up is discovered after the supervision order under s 231 the order
What is a may be discharged on application to the Court of Appeal and the time for fatal defect making the appeal if necessary may be extended 8 The omission to state in an extra in the resolution that the company cannot by reason of its liabilities ordinary continue its business and that it is advisable to wind it up is a fatal defect 8 resolution

Where the company has not passed an extraordinary resolution to the effect that it can not by reason of its liabilities continue its business and that it is advisable to wind it up is required by s 203 (3) and the notice calling the general meeting at which the question of liquidation was discussed did not specify the intention to propose the resolution as an extraordinary resolution the company is not in voluntary liquidation in accordance with the provisions of the Act 9

It is however competent for all shareholders acting together to waive the formalities required by s 81 as to notice of intention to propose a resolution as an Waiver of extraordinary resolution, and all the shareholders meeting and passing formalities a resolution to wind up the company the resolution is an extraordinary resolution within the meaning of this section and it is not open to a creditor to impeach its validity 10

Contempt of Court It is a contempt of Court, while a petition for compulsory winding up is pending to obtain by improper means a resolution for a voluntary winding up with a view to mislead the Court as to the real views of the shareholders and thereby induce the Court to abstain from making a compulsory order¹

When compulsory order may be made An order to wind up a company compulsorily will be made on the petition of a paid up shareholder, notwithstanding that an extraordinary resolution has been passed to wind it up voluntarily²

Effect of resolution Passing a resolution for voluntary liquidation does not operate as a notice of discharge to the servants of the company where the business is continued³

Where a company goes into voluntary liquidation merely with a view to reconstruct itself the property of the old company being transferred to the new company, it does not cease to carry on business within the meaning of an agreement which provides that in the event of the company ceasing to carry on business the Municipality should have the right of purchasing the company's telephone lines with plants, stores &c⁴

Gratuities A company should not after the commencement of the voluntary winding up give gratuities to directors or servants and if they are voted the liquidator should refuse to pay them⁵

204 Commencement of voluntary winding up A voluntary winding up shall be deemed to commence at the time of the passing of the resolution for voluntarily winding up

By the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936 the words in italics have been substituted for the words 'authorising the winding up'

Importance of the date The date of commencement of a winding up is important, as past members may escape by reason of a year having elapsed since they ceased to be members or fraudulent preference may have become unimpeachable⁷

A special resolution was deemed to have been passed at the date when it was confirmed⁸

Date of liquidation under supervision Where a voluntary winding up is continued under supervision the winding up commences at the date of the confirmation of the special resolution authorizing the voluntary winding up¹⁰ and it makes no difference that the order was made on a petition presented before the resolution was passed where nothing has been done until after the resolution¹¹

205 When a company is wound up voluntarily, the company shall, from the commencement of the winding up, cease to carry on its business, except so far as may be required for the beneficial winding up thereof

voluntary
winding up on status of company

Provided that the corporate state and corporate powers of the company shall, notwithstanding anything to the contrary in its articles, continue until it is dissolved

From the commencement of winding up a company's existence continues solely for the purpose of the winding up and not for another purpose such as an amalgamation or a reconstruction. With the sanction under ss. 208A (2) or 209D (2) the directors' powers may be exercised. As to compulsory winding up see s. 179 and notes.

A resolution to wind up does not operate as a dismissal of the company's servants.

Compare s. 179, cl. (b) and see notes thereto.

206 (1) Notice of any special resolution or extraordinary resolution for winding up a company voluntarily shall be given by the company within ten days of the passing of the same by advertisement in the local official Gazette, and also in some newspaper (if any) circulating in the district where the registered office of the company is situate

Notice of resolution to wind up voluntarily

(2) If a company makes default in complying with the requirements of this section, it shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees for every day during which the default continues, and every officer of the company who knowingly and wilfully authorises or permits the default shall be liable to a like penalty.

207 (1) Where it is proposed to wind up a company voluntarily, the directors of the company or, in the case of a company having more than two directors, the majority of the directors may, at a meeting of the directors held before the date on which the notices of the meeting at which the resolution for the winding up of the company is to be proposed are sent out, to make a declaration verified by an affidavit to the effect that they have made a full inquiry into the affairs of the company, and that, having so done, they have formed the opinion that the company will be able to pay its debts in full within a period, not exceeding three years, from the commencement of the winding up.

(2) Such declaration shall be supported by a report of the company's auditors on the company's affairs and shall have no effect for the purposes of this Act unless it is delivered to the registrar for registration before the date mentioned in sub-section (1) of this section.

(3) A winding up in the case of which a declaration has been made and delivered in accordance with this section is in this Act referred to as a "members' voluntary winding up", and a winding up in the case of which a declaration has not been made and delivered as aforesaid is in this Act referred to as "a creditors' voluntary winding up".

By sec 103 of the Indian Companies (Amendment) Act, 1936, the new ss 207 to 219 (both included) have been substituted for ss 207 to 219 both included of the Act of 1913. As a result there is no s 219 in this amended Act. The wordings of some of the original sections re appear in the new sections, so relevant case notes have been given at the appropriate places under the new sections.

The above s 207 is new and reproduces s 230 of the English Act of 1909. The original ss 207 to 219 are given below —

Consequences of voluntary winding up 207 The following consequences shall ensue on the voluntary winding up of a company —

- (i) the assets of the company shall be applied in satisfaction of its liabilities pari passu and, subject thereto, shall, unless the articles otherwise provide, be distributed among the members according to their rights and interests in the company
- (ii) the company in general meeting shall appoint one or more liquidators for the purpose of winding up the affairs and distributing the assets of the company, and may fix the remuneration to be paid to him or them,
- (iii) on the appointment of a liquidator all the powers of the directors shall cease, except so far as the company in general meeting or the liquidator, sanctions the continuance thereof,
- (iv) the liquidator may, without the sanction of the Court exercise all powers by this Act given to the official liquidator in a winding up by the Court
- (v) the liquidator may exercise the powers of the Court under this Act of settling a list of contributories, and of making calls and shall pay the debts of the company, and adjust the rights of the contributories among themselves,
- (vi) the list of contributories shall be prima facie evidence of the liability of the persons named therein to be contributories
- (vii) when several liquidators are appointed, every power hereby given may be exercised by such one or more of them as may be determined by the company at the time of their appointment, or in default of such determination by any number not less than two,

(viii) if from any cause whatever there is no liquidator acting the Court may, on the application of a contributory, appoint a liquidator and

(ix) the Court may, on cause shown remove a liquidator and appoint another liquidator

Notice by liquidator of his appointment 208 (1) The liquidator in a voluntary winding up shall within twenty one days after his appointment file with the registrar a notice of his appointment in the form prescribed

(2) If the liquidator fails to comply with the requirements of this section, he shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees for every day during which the default continues

Rights of creditors in a voluntary winding up 209 (1) Every liquidator appointed by a company in a voluntary winding up shall within seven days from his appointment send notice by post to all persons who appear to him to be creditors of the company that a meeting of the creditors of the company will be held on a date not being less than twenty one days nor more than one month after his appointment and at a place and hour, to be specified in the notice and shall also advertise notice of the meeting once in the local official Gazette and once at least in some newspaper (if any) circulating in the district where the registered office or principal place of business of the company was situate

(2) At the meeting to be held in pursuance of the foregoing provisions of this section the creditor shall determine whether an application shall be made to the Court for the appointment of any person as liquidator in the place of, or jointly with, the liquidator appointed by the company, and if the creditors so resolve, an application may be made accordingly to the Court at any time not later than fourteen days after the date of the meeting by any creditor appointed for the purpose at the meeting

Provided that the Court may, by order at any time, extend the time for making an application under this sub section for such period as the Court think proper

(3) On any such application the Court may make an order either for the removal of the liquidator appointed by the company and for the appointment of some other person as liquidator or for the appointment of some other person to act as liquidator jointly with the liquidator appointed by the company or such other order as having regard to the interests of the creditors and contributories of the company, may seem just

(4) The Court shall make such order as to the costs of the application as it may think fit, and if it is of opinion that having regard to the interests of the creditors in the liquidation there were reasonable grounds for the application

210 (1) If a vacancy occurs by death, resignation or otherwise in the office of liquidator appointed by the company in a voluntary winding up the company in general meeting may subject to any arrangement with its creditors fill the vacancy

Power to fill vacancy in office of liquidator

(2) For that purpose a general meeting may be called by any contributory or if there were more liquidators than one, by the continuing liquidator.

(3) The meeting shall be held in manner prescribed by the articles or in such manner as may on application by any contributory or by the continuing liquidators be determined by the Court.

211 (1) A company about to be, or in course of being wound up voluntarily may, by extraordinary resolution, delegate to its creditors or to any committee of them the power of appointing liquidators or any of them, and of supplying vacancies among the liquidators or enter into any arrangement with respect to the powers to be exercised by the liquidators and the manner in which they are to be exercised

Delegation of authority to appoint liquidators

(2) Any act done by creditors in pursuance of any such delegated power shall have the same effect as if it had been done by the company.

212 (1) Any arrangement entered into between a company about to be or in the course of being wound up voluntarily and its creditors shall be binding on the company if sanctioned by an extraordinary resolution and on the creditors if acceded to by three fourths in number and value of the creditors

Arrangement when binding on creditors

(2) Any creditor or contributory may within three weeks from the completion of the arrangement appeal to the Court against it and the Court may thereupon, as it thinks just, amend, vary or confirm the arrangement.

213 (1) Where a company is proposed to be, or is in course of being wound up altogether voluntarily, and the whole or part of its business or property is proposed to be transferred or sold to another company (in this section called the transferee company) the liquidator of the first mentioned company (in this section called the transferor company) may with the sanction of a special resolution of that company conferring either a general authority on the liquidator or an authority in respect of any particular arrangement receive in compensation or part compensation for the transfer or sale, shares policies or other like interests in the transferee company, for distribution among the members of the transferor company, or may enter into any other arrangement whereby the members of the transferor company may, in lieu of receiving cash shares policies or other like interests or in addition thereto participate in the profits of, or receive any other benefit from, the transferee company

Power for liquidators to accept shares etc as consideration for sale of property of company

(2) Any sale or arrangement in pursuance of this section shall be binding on the members of the transferor company.

(3) If any member of the transferor company who did not vote in favour of the special resolution at either of the meetings held for passing and confirming the same expresses his dissent therefrom in writing addressed to the liquidator and left at the registered office of the company within seven days after the confirmation of the special resolution he may require the liquidator either to abstain from carrying the resolution into effect or to purchase his interest at a price to be determined by agreement or by arbitration in manner hereinafter provided

(4) If the liquidator elects to purchase the members' interest the purchase money must be paid before the company is dissolved and be raised by the liquidator in such manner as may be determined by special resolution

(5) A special resolution shall not be invalid for the purposes of this section by reason that it is passed before or concurrently with a resolution for winding up the company or for appointing liquidators but if an order is made within a year for winding up the company by or subject to the supervision of the Court the special resolution shall not be valid unless sanctioned by the Court

214 (1) The price to be paid for the purchase of the interest of any dissentient member may be determined by agreement. If the parties dispute about the same such dispute shall be settled by arbitration

(2) The provisions of the Indian Arbitration Act 1899 other than those restricting the application of the Act in respect of the subject matter of the arbitration shall apply to all arbitrations in pursuance of this section

215 (1) Where a company is being wound up voluntarily the liquidator or any contributory or creditor may apply to the Court to determine any question arising in the winding up or to exercise as respects the enforcing of calls or any other matters all or any of the powers which the Court might exercise if the company were being wound up by the Court

(2) The Court if satisfied that the determination of the question or the required exercise of power will be just and beneficial may accede wholly or partially to the application on such terms and conditions as the Court thinks fit or may make such other order on the application as the Court thinks just

216 (1) Where a company is being wound up voluntarily the liquidator may from time to time summon general meetings of the company for the purpose of obtaining the sanction of the company by special or extraordinary resolution or for any other purposes he may think fit

(2) In the event of the winding up continuing for more than one year the liquidator shall summon a general meeting of the company at the end of the first year from the commencement of the winding up and may be convenient and recorded form containing proceedings in and the position of the liquidation

217 (1) In the case of every voluntary winding up, as soon as the affairs of the company are fully wound up, the liquidator shall make up an account of the winding up, showing how the winding up has been conducted and the property of the company has been disposed of, and thereupon shall call a general meeting of the company for the purpose of laying before it the account and giving any explanation thereof

(2) The meeting shall be called by advertisement, specifying the time, place and object thereof, and published one month at least before the meeting in the manner specified in section 206

(3) Within one week after the meeting the liquidator shall file with the registrar a return of the holding of the meeting and of its date and in default of so doing shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees for every day during which the default continues

(4) The registrar on the filing of the return shall forthwith register it and on the expiration of three months from the registration of the return the company shall be deemed to be dissolved

Provided that the Court may on the application of the liquidator or of any other person who appears to the Court to be interested make an order deferring the date at which the dissolution of the company is to take effect for such time as the Court thinks fit

(5) It shall be the duty of the person on whose application an order of the Court under sub section (4) is made, within twenty one days after the making of the order, to file with the registrar a certified copy of the order and if that person fails so to do, he shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees for every day during which the default continues

218 All costs, charges and expenses properly incurred in the voluntary winding up of a company, including the remuneration of the liquidator, shall be payable out of the assets of the company in priority to all other claims at the date of the winding up

219 The voluntary winding up of a company shall not bar the right of any creditor or contributory to have it wound up by the Court, if the Court is of opinion, in the case of an application by a creditor that the rights of the creditor or, in the case of an application by a contributory, that the rights of the contributories will be prejudiced by a voluntary winding up

208 The provisions contained in sections 208 1 to 208 1, 1 11 inclusive, shall apply in relation to a members' voluntary winding up

Provisions applicable to members' voluntary winding up

This section reproduces s. 231 of the English Act of 1929

208A (1) The company in general meeting shall appoint one or more liquidators for the purpose of winding up the affairs and distributing the assets of the company, and may fix the remuneration to be paid to him or them

Power of company to appoint and fix remuneration of liquidators

(2) On the appointment of a liquidator all the powers of the directors shall cease, except so far as the company in general meeting, or the liquidator, sanctions the continuance thereof

This section reproduces s. 233 of the English Act of 1929 and sub s. (1) is the same as cl. (H) and the sub s. 2 is the same as Cl. (Iii) of the original s. 207 of the Indian Act of 1913

Sub s. (1) The liquidator may be appointed by an ordinary resolution but he must not be appointed until there is an effective resolution to wind up the company 1 If the liquidator is to be appointed by an ordinary resolution, notice of the intention to appoint him need not be given 2 If the resolution to wind up was special the appointment of the liquidator could not be made until after the confirmation, but it might be made by a resolution passed before and confirmed after the confirmation of the winding up resolution 1 As the appointment of a liquidator was not required to be made by a special resolution if any liquidator was proposed in the special resolution it might be changed at the confirmatory meeting 3 But a confirmatory meeting is no longer required, see the new sub s. (2) of s. 81

A liquidator might be appointed at the general meeting at which a special resolution was confirmed or an extraordinary resolution was passed without any special notice being given that a resolution to appoint a liquidator would be proposed 4 If notice is given that a certain person will be proposed at the meeting for the office of the liquidator, and the motion for that purpose fails the meeting may appoint another person 5

The appointment of a liquidator whether in voluntary or a compulsory winding up, determines the authority of agents appointed by the directors from the time when notice of the winding up or the appointment of a provisional liquidator reaches them 6

Effect of the appointment of liquidator

Where a person is appointed liquidator however imperfect he may consider his appointment to be if he is nominally a liquidator and acts as such he must carry out the duties as well as exercise the rights of a liquidator 7

Imperfect appointment

Remuneration of liquidator Where the Court fixes the remuneration of a liquidator, it is generally on a percentage basis 1. When a supposed voluntary liquidation proves to have been irregularly commenced the liquidator has no claim for his service but so far as they have been adopted by the compulsory liquidator the former may be paid upon a quantum meruit 2

Omission If the company in passing a resolution for voluntary winding up has omitted at any point any liquidator the Court may appoint one by the supervision order 3

Joint liquidators Where two persons are appointed liquidators jointly, the refusal of one of them to act renders abortive the resolution appointing them. One of them cannot take up the work alone it clearly being the intention of the shareholders that they should act jointly and not separately 4. So also where there are two liquidators and one of them dies the survivor cannot act until a new liquidator is appointed 5

Liquidator not trustee A voluntary liquidator has been held in England to be not a trustee within the meaning of the English Trustees Act 1925 6

Sanction for continuance of directors powers Sub s (2) The liquidator has power to sanction the continuance of the powers of the directors which cease on his appointment. Before his appointment such sanction may be given by a general meeting of the company 7. In spite of this section the directors, it seems do not cease to be officers of the company 8

208B (1) If a vacancy occurs by death, resignation or otherwise in the office of liquidator appointed by the company, the company in general meeting may, subject to any arrangement with its creditors, fill the vacancy

Power to fill vacancy in office of liquidator (2) For that purpose a general meeting may be convened by any contributory or, if there were more liquidators than one, by the continuing liquidators

(3) The meeting shall be held in manner provided by this Act or by the articles, or in such manner as may, on application by any contributory or by the continuing liquidators, be determined by the Court

This section reproduces s 233 of the English Act of 1929 and its language is almost identical with that of the original s 210 which may be compared 208C (1) Where a company is proposed to be, or is in course of being, wound up altogether voluntarily, and the whole or part of its business or property is proposed to be transferred or sold to another company, whether a company within the meaning of this Act or not (in this section called "the transferee company"), the liquidator of the first-mentioned company (in this section called "the transferor company") may, with the sanction of a special resolution of that company conferring either a general authority on the liquidator or an authority in respect of any particular arrangement, receive, in compensation or part compensation for the transfer or sale, shares, policies, or other like interests in the transferee company, for distribution among the members of the transferor company, or may enter into any other arrangement whereby the members of the transferor company may, in lieu of receiving cash, shares, policies, or other like interests or in addition thereto, participate in the profits of or receive any other benefit from the transferee company.

(2) Any sale or arrangement in pursuance of this section shall be binding on the members of the transferor company.

(3) If any member of the transferor company who did not vote in favour of the special resolution expresses his dissent therefrom in writing addressed to the liquidator and left at the registered office of the company within seven days after the passing of the special resolution, he may require the liquidator either to abstain from carrying the resolution into effect or to purchase his interest at a price to be determined by agreement or by arbitration in manner hereafter provided.

(4) If the liquidator elects to purchase the member's interest, the purchase money must be paid before the company is dissolved, and be raised by the liquidator in such manner as may be determined by special resolution.

(5) A special resolution shall not be invalid for the purposes of this section by reason that it is passed before or concurrently with a resolution for voluntary winding up or for appointing liquidators, but if an order is made within a year for winding up the company by or subject to the supervision of the Court, the special resolution shall not be valid unless sanctioned by the Court.

(6) The provisions of the Indian Arbitration Act, 1899, other than those restricting the application of the Act in respect of the subject-matter of the arbitration, shall apply to all arbitrations in pursuance of this section.

This section reproduces s 231 of the English Act of 1909, and is the same as the original s 213 of the Indian Act of 1913 save only this that sub s (6) is new

Formerly it was considered that if the memorandum of association contained power for the company to sell its business to another company in consideration of shares and to distribute the shares in specie¹ this would enable the company to avoid compliance with this section² But in 1908 the Court of Appeal in England held that the proper function of the memorandum was to deal with the objects of the company during its corporate life and not after the life had come to an end³ and that any clause which could be used to maintain a scheme which imposed upon the members the alternative of accepting liability for a larger sum or being dispossessed of his status as a shareholder upon terms which he was not bound to accept were *ultra vires*⁴ A company limited by shares cannot by its memorandum and articles of association provide as part of its constitution that in an event the corporator shall either submit to a liability on his share or shall be dispossessed of his status as a corporator⁴

Every limited company has under this section a statutory right of effecting an arrangement whereby it is amalgamated with another company No express power need be contained in the memorandum of association⁵, for the scheme of amalgamation does not depend for its validity upon the constitution of the company as contained in the memorandum and articles⁵ But the issue whether the amalgamation is binding upon the transferee company depends not upon the section, but upon the question whether that company is by its constitution empowered to effect such an acquisition⁵

In case where this section is not called into operation the right of every member is to have the assets including the shares in the purchasing company, realized and applied first in payment of the debts and then to have his proportionate share of the balance⁶ So although a company can sell its undertaking under powers in the memorandum when it is intended to retain the proceeds of the sale in the business of the company yet if the company is proposed to be wound up and the transaction is a sale and distribution, then the sale by conversion into money may be replaced by exchange for shares upon the terms but only upon the terms of complying with the provisions of this section⁷, in which case the right of a member to dissent cannot be excluded⁷

As to the rights of the shareholders to set aside the transaction after it has been completed see *Clinel v Financial Corp*⁸

Sub s 1 To comply with sub s (1) there must at least be a special resolution authorizing the liquidator to accept shares in consideration for the sale In the absence of such a special resolution there would be no special resolution to which the provisions relating to dissentients in sub s (3) could apply 1

A sale under this section can be made only to a company already in existence 2 and not to a person about to form a company or to a trustee for an intended company. But the purchasing company need not be one incorporated under this Act 3. The new company however must have power under its memorandum to accept the transfer 4. A reconstruction of an existing company by winding up and sale of its entire undertaking and assets for shares in a new foreign company is however outside the scope of reconstruction under this section 5. But it may be effected as an arrangement under s 133 6. Under this section a company cannot sell or transfer its business or property in a foreign company 7.

The sale binds both the shareholders and the creditors of the transferor company 8 though the mortgagees may be entitled under the terms of their mortgage to prevent a sale of its assets 9. The remedy of a creditor who cannot get payment of his debt is to obtain a winding up order before the expiration of a year 7.

The agreement for sale may validly provide that the transferor company shall call up its unpaid capital and transfer the amount so realized to the transferee company 10, but the agreement cannot validly provide for a call to be made on the shares of the transferor company in case its assets do not realize a specified amount 11. It may provide that shares in the transferee company shall be allotted either to the liquidator or directly to the members of the transferor company, and so either partly or fully paid up. The liability to pay cash however cannot be imposed on the members of the transferor company by allotting them shares credited as partly paid up, except with their consent 12. If there are preference shares with no preference as to capital in the transferor company the preference shareholders are not entitled to preference shares in the transferee company 13. It is not allowable, upon a sale under this section to distribute the assets otherwise than in accordance with the legal rights of the parties 14.

The agreement for sale is not invalid because it provides that part of the purchase money shall be paid to the directors and secretary of the transferor company as compensation for loss of office 15. The proposed payment however should be fully disclosed to the shareholders 1 Upon re construction it is desirable that effective assignment of the old company's property should be taken 2

The Court has no power to authorize a sale to a transferee company in consideration of its agreeing to pay the creditors of the transferor company by instalments 3 nor even to authorize an agreement or resolution compelling the members of the transferor company to pay a premium upon the shares of the transferee company 4

The consideration for the sale must be distributed among the members of the selling company in proportion to their rights and interests 5 under regulations in the assets of the company remaining after payment of its liabilities The persons prejudicially affected by any other mode of distribution can only be bound by their individual consent 6

An application was made for sanction of a scheme under which the liabilities of a company were to be paid up in full by a new company which was to take over the assets and liabilities of the old company, and the shareholders in the existing company were to receive shares of the new company as provided by the scheme Meetings were held and the requisite resolutions of the different classes of shareholders and debenture holders passed in favour of the scheme On Neville J sanctioning the scheme certain shareholders appealed and it was held that there was no jurisdiction (under s 153) to compel the ordinary shareholders to take shares in the new company 7 But in a later case Astbury J held that the last cited case must have depended on the special circumstances and he sanctioned a scheme which allowed dissenting shareholders to dissent 8 The whole subject was exhaustively discussed by the same Judge in a recent case 9 and the following propositions were laid down (1) Where a scheme is really and truly a sale (under s 213) sanctio that section must be complied with and cannot be evaded by calling it a scheme of arrangement (under s 153) (2) where a scheme cannot be carried through under s 213 though it involves inter alia a sale to a company within that section for shares policies and other interests and for liquidation and distribution of the proceeds the Court can sanction it (under s 153) if it is fair and reasonable in accordance with the principles upon which the Court acts in these cases and it may but only if it thinks fit insist as a term of its sanction on the dissentient shareholders being protected in manner similar to that provided for in s 213 (3) where a scheme of arrangement is one outside s 213 entirely the Court can also act as in proposition (2)

Sub s (1) A member who dissents from the sale is entitled if he gives the requisite notice to have his interest purchased by the liquidator and this is a right which the articles cannot deprive him of 10 Provisions in the articles as to the price at which the interest of a dissentient member is to be purchased do not constitute an agreement

there is no indication that there was anything to conceal, the Court will, as far as possible, take a liberal view of the terms of the notice and will not upset the proceedings. The notice calling the extraordinary general meeting is not defective if it fails to disclose difference of opinion among the directors on the question mentioned in the notice nor if the copy of the agreement of the proposed amalgamation is not sent to the shareholders along with the notice. 2

If the word 'amalgamation' is used in the proposed extraordinary resolution in such a case it is not inaccurate, for an amalgamation may take place either by the transfer of the undertaking to a new corporation or by continuance of the old company by the new company upon terms that the shareholders of the former shall become shareholders of the latter. It is not necessary that an altogether new company should be formed. 3

A resolution in which the voluntary winding up of the company is mixed up with other matters relating to the agreement of amalgamation with another company is not illegal. 3 The mere fact that in terms there are no words authorizing the liquidators to receive compensation and distribute it among the shareholders does not also make the resolution illegal. 3

Where a scheme is eminently unfair a dissentient minority may stop it by obtaining a compulsory winding up order. 2

Unfair scheme When under a contract made prior to the sanction of the reconstruction scheme the purchaser is entitled to be registered as transferee of shares in the old company, and the vendor obtains the allotment of shares in the new company the allottee is a trustee of them for the purchaser although he has delayed registration of the transfer. 4

Right of transferee of shares Holders of shares partly paid up with uncalled balance paid in advance of calls and carrying interest are a different class to holders of fully paid shares and to other holders of partly paid shares even if all the shares are ordinary shares. 5

Different classes of holders of shares Should a class of shareholders disapprove the arrangement, the Court will if satisfied that having regard to the value of the company's assets that class has no interest in them disregard their disapproval. 6

A reconstruction of an existing company by winding up and sale of the entire assets for shares in a new company may be effected under s. 103 provided that proper provision is made for dissentient members. 7 Any provision in the articles depriving members of their right under this section is void. 8 If the proposed reconstruction is carried out as a scheme of arrangement under s. 103 the rights of dissentient shareholders must be properly protected under this section, otherwise the scheme will not be sanctioned. 9

A contract for sale usually provides that the purchasing company shall take over all the assets and pay all the liabilities of the old company so that the business of the old company can be wound up at once, but such an arrangement does not relieve the liquidator of the old company from the obligation of seeing that the debts are duly paid before the old company is dissolved. To leave everything to the new company is "a gross dereliction of duty by the liquidator" 1

The parties to an arrangement under this section cannot be sure that it will be ultimately valid and binding. The only way to make the arrangement certain is to apply to the Court for a supervision order and when the order is made to apply that the arrangement may be sanctioned 2

A company cannot sell its assets under this section to a foreign company 3

The form of appointment embodied in a resolution under which in terms the liquidators become merely ministerial officers required to have regard to the supervision of the directors of the two companies proposed to be amalgamated in discharging their duties was deprecated by their Lordships of the Judicial Committee in the under mentioned case 4. It was observed that the Court when it has an opportunity of doing so will always exercise it to be clearly understood that a liquidator in a voluntary liquidation which is an essential condition of such an amalgamation, must not by the resolution appointing him be restricted in the exercise of his statutory duties 4

Executors as representing the estate of a deceased member are members for the purposes of this section and as such are entitled to exercise the right of dissent. The right is not affected by an article prohibiting executors from exercising any of the rights and privileges of a member unless and until they shall have been registered as shareholders because such an article refers to an exercise of rights on their behalf and not on behalf of the testator's estate 5

Where executors or trustees have no power to invest in the shares of a new company, the Court may upon application by the trustees sanction their taking fully paid new shares if it can be shown that the case is one of emergency not contemplated by the settlor and a large loss is likely to result 6

Where a will contains a specific bequest of shares and between the date of the will and the death of the testator the company is reconstructed without substantial alteration in its constitution the shares in the new company will pass under the bequest 7

Although it is necessary to look at the surrounding circumstances in order to see whether there is an amalgamation or a reconstruction yet in considering whether a particular instrument executed in purported performance of such amalgamation or reconstruction is subject to stamp duty or exempt from such duty regard must be had to the terms of that instrument 8

If a liquidator in a voluntary winding up desires to appeal from the decision of a Judge he ought first to obtain leave from the Judge otherwise, if his appeal fails his costs may be refused out of the estate 1

Sub s (6) reproduces sub s (6) of s 234 of the English Act of 1929

208D (1) In the event of the winding up continuing for more than one year, the liquidator shall summon a general meeting of the company at the end of the first year from the commencement of the winding up and of each succeeding year in as soon thereafter as may be convenient within ninety days of the close of the year, and shall lay before the meeting an account of his acts and dealings and of the conduct of the winding up during the preceding year and a statement in the prescribed form containing the prescribed particulars with respect to the position of the liquidation

(2) If the liquidator fails to comply with this section, he shall be liable to a fine not exceeding one hundred rupees

This section reproduces s 235 of the English Act of 1929 Compare sub s (1) with sub s (2) of the original s 116 Sub s (2) is new

208E (1) As soon as the affairs of the company are fully wound up, the liquidator shall make up an account of the winding up, showing how the winding up has been conducted and the property of the company has been disposed of, and thereupon shall call a general meeting of the company for the purpose of laying before it the account, and giving any explanation thereof

(2) The meeting shall be called by advertisement specifying the time, place and object thereof, and published one month at least before the meeting in the manner specified in sub-section (1) of section 206 for publication of a notice under that sub-section

(3) Within one week after the meeting, the liquidator shall send to the registrar a copy of the account, and shall make a return to him of the holding of the meeting and of its date, and if the copy is not sent or the return is not made in accordance with this sub-section the liquidator shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees for every day during which the default continues

Provided that, if a quorum is not present at the meeting, the liquidator shall, in lieu of the said return, make a return if it the meeting was duly summoned and that no quorum was present thereat, and upon such a return being made the provisions of this sub-section as to the making of the return shall be deemed to have been complied with

(4) The registrar on receiving the account and either of the returns mentioned in sub-section (3) shall forthwith register them and on the expiration of three months from the registration of the return the company shall be deemed to be dissolved.

Provided that the Court may, on the application of the liquidator or of any other person who appears to the Court to be interested, make an order deferring the date at which the dissolution of the company is to take effect for such time as the Court thinks fit.

(5) It shall be the duty of the person on whose application an order of the Court under this section is made, within twenty-one days after the making of the order, to deliver to the registrar a certified copy of the order for registration, and if that person fails so to do he shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees for every day during which the default continues.

This section reproduces s 236 of the English Act of 1929. It is almost the same as the original s 217 with the exception of the proviso to sub s (3) which is new.

After the company has been dissolved the Court may at any time within two years after the date of dissolution on the application of the liquidator or of any person who appears to be interested make an order declaring the dissolution to be void ¹. This power will be exercised where upon a reconstruction the new company after agreeing to satisfy the liabilities of the old company has failed to perform its obligation ².

Even after dissolution the liquidator remains liable in damages for breach of statutory duty to a creditor or contributory by distributing the assets without providing for his debt or claim after taking proper steps to ascertain it ³. If the dissolution is not set aside within two years claims by the company against other persons vest in the Crown ⁴.

When a company has been dissolved under this section no petition for its compulsory liquidation will be effective ⁵ unless the petition is ready for hearing before the lapse of three months mentioned in sub s (4) of this section ⁶. After dissolution no proceeding can be taken under section 231 for misfeasance ⁷, and winding up proceedings will not be re-opened unless fraud is proved ⁷.

Under the proviso to sub sec (4) the Court has jurisdiction to pass the order notwithstanding that the three months lapse before the order is made ⁸. It should be noted that the company will be deemed to be dissolved on the expiration of three months from the registration of the return and not from the filing of the return ⁹. If the registrar does not do his duty or the necessary preliminaries which would justify registration have not been of civil and the registrar insists on something more being done before he can take action time does not begin to run until he takes action (see last note). If the liquidator is not satisfied with the decision of the registrar or if any contributory or creditor is dissatisfied with the conduct of the liquidator either can go to the Court under s 216 and claim that in the exercise of the powers conferred by that section the Court may take necessary action (see last note). The words 'are fully wound up' must not be construed so narrowly and so strictly as to bring about a deadlock in the proceedings.

Special order of Court To relieve the directors and others from personal liability incurred by carrying on business after dissolution the Court may make a special order but this order will not be made in a flagrant case 2

It is desirable that upon a reconstruction effective assignment of the old company's property should be taken 3

A guarantee of interest on a company's debenture may continue after the company is dissolved 4

This section reproduces s 237 of the English Act of 1929

209A (1) The company shall cause a meeting of the creditors of the company to be summoned for the day, or the day next following the day, on which there is to be held the meeting at which the resolution for voluntary winding up is to be proposed, and shall cause the notices of the said meeting of creditors to be sent by post to the creditors simultaneously with the sending of the notices of the said meeting of the company

(2) The company shall cause notice of the meeting of the creditors to be advertised in the manner specified in sub-section (1) of section 206 for the publication of a notice under that sub-section

(3) The directors of the company shall—

(a) cause a full statement of the position of the company's affairs together with a list of the creditors of the company and the estimated amount of their claims to be laid before the meeting of creditors to be held as aforesaid, and

(b) appoint one of their number to preside at the said meeting

(5) If the meeting of the company at which the resolution for voluntary winding up is to be proposed is adjourned and the resolution is passed at an adjourned meeting, any resolution passed at the meeting of the creditors, held in pursuance of sub-section (1) of this section, shall have effect as if it had been passed immediately after the passing of the resolution for winding up the company.

(6) If default is made—

- (a) by the company in complying with sub-sections (1) and (2),
- (b) by the directors of the company in complying with sub-section (3),
- (c) by any director of the company in complying with sub-section (4), the company, directors or director, as the case may be shall be liable to a fine not exceeding one thousand rupees and, in the case of default by the company, every officer of the company who is in default shall be liable to the like penalty.

209B The creditors and the company at their respective meetings mentioned in section 209 1 may nominate a person to be liquidator for the purpose of winding up the affairs and distributing the assets of the company, and if the creditors and the company nominate different persons, the person nominated by the creditors shall be liquidator, and if no person is nominated by the creditors the person, if any, nominated by the company shall be liquidator.

Provided that in the case of different persons being nominated, any director, member or creditor of the company may, within seven days after the date on which the nomination was made by the creditors, apply to the Court for an order either directing that the person nominated as liquidator by the company shall be liquidator instead of or jointly with the person nominated by the creditors, or appointing some other person to be liquidator instead of the person appointed by the creditors.

The condition precedent for moving the Court for removing the liquidator is a meeting of the creditors in which the creditors shall determine whether an application shall be made to the Court for the appointment of any other person as liquidator in the place of or jointly with the liquidator appointed by the company 1

209C The creditors at the meeting to be held in pursuance of section 209A or at any subsequent meeting may if they think fit, appoint a committee of inspection consisting of not more than five persons, and if such a committee is appointed the company may, either at the meeting at which the resolution for voluntary winding up is passed or at any time subsequently in general meeting, appoint such number of persons as they think fit to act as members of the committee not exceeding five in number.

Provided that the creditors may, if they think fit, resolve that all or any of the persons so appointed by the company ought not to be members of the committee of inspection, and, if the creditors think the persons mentioned in the resolution shall not, unless the Court otherwise directs, be qualified to act as members of the committee, and on any application to the Court under this provision the Court may, if it thinks fit, appoint other persons to act as members in place of the persons mentioned in the resolution.

209H (1) As soon as the affairs of the company are fully wound up, the liquidator shall make up an account of the winding up showing how the winding up has been conducted and the property of the company has been disposed of, and thereupon shall call a general meeting of the company and a meeting of the creditors for the purpose of laying the account before the meetings and giving any explanation thereof.

Final meeting and dissolution

(2) Each such meeting shall be called by advertisement specifying the time, place and object thereof and published one month at least before the meeting in the manner specified in sub-section (1) of section 206 for the publication of a notice under that sub-section.

(3) Within one week after the date of the meetings, or, if the meetings are not held on the same date, after the date of the later meeting, the liquidator shall send to the registrar a copy of the account, and shall make a return to him of the holding of the meetings and of their dates, and if the copy is not sent or the return is not made in accordance with this sub-section the liquidator shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees for every day during which the default continues.

Provided that, if a quorum (which for the purposes of this section shall be two persons) is not present at either such meeting, the liquidator shall, in lieu of such return, make a return that the meeting was duly summoned and that no quorum was present thereat, and upon such a return being made the provisions of this sub-section as to the making of the return shall, in respect of that meeting, be deemed to have been complied with.

(4) The registrar on receiving the account and in respect of each such meeting either of the returns mentioned in sub-section (3) shall forthwith register them, and on the expiration of three months from the registration thereof the company shall be deemed to be dissolved.

Provided that the Court may, on the application of the liquidator or of any other person who appears to the Court to be interested, make an order deferring the date at which the dissolution of the company is to take effect for such time as the Court thinks fit.

(5) It shall be the duty of the person on whose application an order of the Court under this section is made, within ten days after the making of the order, to deliver to the registrar a certified copy of the order for registration, and if that person fails to do so he shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees for every day during which the default continues.

Members' or creditors' voluntary winding up

210 The provisions contained in sections 211 to 218 inclusive, shall apply to every voluntary winding up whether a members' or a creditors' winding up.

Provisions applicable to every voluntary

This section reproduces s. 244 of the English Act of 1929.

211 Subject to the provisions of this Act as to preferential payments, the property of a company shall, on its winding up, be applied in satisfaction of its liabilities pari passu and, subject to such application, shall, unless the articles otherwise provide, be distributed among the members according to their rights and interests in the company.

This section reproduces s. 217 of the English Act of 1908. The word "property" which occurs both in the English Act of 1908 and 1929 replaces the word "assets" of cl. (1) of the original section 10⁷ which may be compared. But there is little difference between the two words.

When in a voluntary liquidation the assets have been collected they shall be applied first in payment of the costs, charges and expenses properly incurred in the winding up, secondly in payment of the debts entitled to preferential payment and thirdly in payment of the debts of the ordinary creditors. The surplus assets which mean the fund remaining after payment of the debts and the cost of liquidation 1, must then be divided among the members in accordance with the rights conferred on them by the memorandum and the articles of association. In default of any such provision, and where some of the shares are fully paid and others are only partly paid, the liability of the partly paid shareholders must not be disregarded, and after all the capital has been returned the balance should be divided among the shareholders in proportion to the number of shares held by them respectively 2. If however the assets are not sufficient to repay the capital in full, those members who have paid more on the shares than others must first be repaid the excess 3, and if necessary the liquidator may make calls on the partly paid shareholders for the purpose of equalizing the amounts paid up 4.

Where a resolution gave to the holders of certain preference shares a preferential right as regards repayment of capital and otherwise as herein-after mentioned and so that they should accordingly be entitled to have the surplus assets applied first in paying off the capital paid up on the preference shares held by them respectively and secondly in paying off the arrears of any of the preferential dividend to the commencement of the winding up before any return or payment of capital is made to the holders of other shares, it was held that as the resolution did not deal with the whole of the assets except in the case of a deficiency it did not deprive the preference shareholders of a right to share in an ultimate surplus and in the winding up the surplus assets must be rateably distributed between the ordinary and the preference shareholders 5.

In the case of a voluntary winding up of a company occupying certain premises as lessees there is a well defined distinction between amounts due for rent before the date of the winding up order or a resolution for voluntary winding up and the amounts that become due after that date. In respect of the former amount the lessor is entitled only to rateable distribution, but as regards the latter amounts the owner of the premises occupied by the company and continued to be occupied for the purposes of the liquidation proceedings by the liquidator is entitled to recover those amounts in full 6.

Where a bank received cheques as agents for collection there is no relation of debtor and creditor between the bank and its customers, so the liquidator of the bank must pay out of the assets in his hands the full amount of a cheque which passed from the bank to another bank and found by the latter not in order 7.

So long as a company is in voluntary liquidation interest continues to accrue on debts carrying interest 8. But in the case of an ordinary insolvent company the bankruptcy rules apply 9, and no claim can be sustained for interest subsequent to a judgment 10.

This section must be read subject to s 210 as to preferential payments 3 Subject to this the assets must be applied pari passu in satisfaction of the liabilities of the company 4 As to the distribution of assets where the articles provide that if the company should be wound up the assets should be so distributed that the losses should be borne by the members in proportion to the capital paid or which ought to have been paid up see the case noted below 5

(2) The liquidator shall pay the debts of the company and shall adjust the rights of the contributors among themselves.

(3) When several liquidators are appointed, any power given by this Act may be exercised by such one or more of them as may be determined at the time of their appointment, or, in default of such determination, by any number not less than two.

This section reproduces s 248 of the English Companies Act, 1929. Sub s (1) (a) is almost the same as cl (v) of the original section 207. Sub s (1) (e) corresponds to sub s (1) of the original s 216 and sub s (3) is nearly the same as cl (vi) of the original s 207.

Sub s (1) is to the powers of the Court of settling the list of contributors and of making calls see ss 181 and 187.

In a voluntary winding up is distinct from a compulsory winding up it is the liquidator who without any order from the Court may make a call upon his own responsibility and he would be quite in order in such a case to make a call and receive payment 1.

A voluntary liquidator has power to settle the list of contributors 2 and to rectify the register of members 2. The rules relating to the list of contributors do not apply to a voluntary winding up, but the practice in a winding up by the Court should be followed as closely as possible.

A person whose name is settled on the list of contributors is liable for any calls made by the liquidator even though the contributory has received no notice thereof. The liquidator may also obtain an order to enforce any calls made by the directors before the winding up commenced 3. Notice of settlement of the list of contributors is usual but not necessary and absence of notice is no defence to an action for calls 4. Provisions in the articles as to interest on calls do not apply to calls made by liquidators 5.

Fully paid shareholders are contributors in a voluntary winding up and a call made to adjust the rights of contributors inter se after all debts and costs provided for is valid 6.

A shareholder in a voluntary as well as in a compulsory winding up cannot set off a debt owing to him by the company against a call 7. A valid forfeiture of shares before the commencement of the winding up cannot be cancelled by the liquidator 8.

The liquidators cannot delegate their powers generally to one of their number unless the power to do so is given to them at the time of their appointment ¹ In case of death of one liquidator the survivor cannot act ²

Delegation of powers Sub s (3) Where one of several liquidators accepted a bill of exchange without authority of others it was held that the company was not liable for it ³

Power of Court to appoint and remove liquidator in voluntary winding up

This section reproduces s 249 of the English Act of 1929 Sub s (1) is nearly the same as cl (viii) of the original s 207 but is more general in its terms Sub s (2) is identical with cl (ix) of the original s 207

If no liquidator is appointed the Court may appoint a liquidator or where the validity of his appointment is questioned the Court may confirm the appointment ⁴

Appointment & removal of liquidator It may also on cause shown remove a liquidator and appoint another liquidator The application to remove a liquidator must be made by a liquidator or creditor or contributory of the company ⁵ but not a company which has purchased the assets ⁶ As to what is due cause for removing a liquidator see notes to s 176 The Court may also appoint an additional liquidator ⁷ or a liquidator in place of one retiring ⁸ An application for removal may be made by a creditor contributory or a co liquidator but no one else ⁹

The distribution of circulars seeking support to an application for removal of a liquidator will not be restrained by the Court ¹⁰ A voluntary liquidator may be removed on the ground that he is not in a sufficiently independent position ¹¹ A liquidator may appeal from an order removing him ¹²

The jurisdiction of the Court to remove a liquidator is not confined to cases where there is personal unfitness The cause shown is to be measured by reference to the real substantial and honest interest of the liquidation and to the purpose for which liquidators are appointed Fair play to the liquidators is not to be left out of sight but the real interest of the liquidation is the principal thing for consideration ¹³

215 (1) Any arrangement entered into between a company about to be, or in the course of being, wound up and its creditors shall, subject to the right of appeal under this section, be binding on the company if sanctioned by an extraordinary resolution, and on the creditors if accepted by three-fourths in number and value of the creditors

(2) Any creditor or contributory may, within three weeks from the completion of the arrangement, appeal to the Court against it, and the Court may thereupon, as it thinks just, amend, vary or confirm the arrangement

Where there was no mala fide or fraud in a proposed scheme of reconstruction nor was it a sham or device although the result would be that the majority of the shareholders would obtain control of the undertaking and compel the minority to accept a cash payment in lieu of shares in a new company in which that undertaking was to be sold it was held that the scheme was one that could not be interfered with by the Court ³

Scheme of reconstruction

Sub s 1 Sub s 1 applies to an arrangement entered into during a voluntary winding up or shortly before the passing of a resolution for a voluntary winding up ⁴ a composition by a company with its creditors intended to make the company solvent and therefore to prevent a voluntary winding up is not an arrangement within the meaning of this section ⁴

The last cited case illustrates the danger of taking a section from the English Act and inserting it bodily in the Indian Act without considering the effect of the language used, for Mangham J. observes "I may add that the section [s 251 of the English Act corresponding to the above s 215] presents a certain number of practical difficulties. It says nothing about and makes no provision for a meeting of creditors and creditor must be taken to include secured as well as preferential creditors though there is no provision for a valuation of securities. The Legislature seems to have thought that three-fourths in number and value of the creditors secured and unsecured ought to be able to bind a minority of them who may never even have heard of the proposed arrangement. The Court if applied to within three weeks according to sub section (2) of the section has power only to 'amend vary or confirm the arrangement', the draftsman seems to have left out any words showing that the Court may set it aside though by sub section (1) the arrangement is subject to any right of appeal under this section.

Nor is it easy to construe the words 'the completion of the arrangement'. In spite of the difficulties pointed out by Mangham J. in 1931 the authorities responsible for the amending Act of 1936 inserted s 251 of the English Act bodily into the Indian Act.

The object of the Act was observed Sir W James L J "that a company and its directors should be left if possible to settle their affairs without coming to the Court at all either for a compulsory winding up or for a winding up under supervision but to provide them under the 18th section of the English Act of 1862 (corresponding to the present section) with the means of access to the Court whenever any question arose, in the course of a voluntary winding up just in the same way as when any question arose in the case of a compulsory winding up or winding up under supervision. No doubt if a liquidator did not do his duty if he did not take the opinion of the Court in such a case as this, for example it would be in the power of a creditor to apply to this Court for a proper order which would give him some opportunity of obtaining the decision of the Court but if a liquidator is minded to bring a matter before the Court under section 138 I do not myself see the reason why the question should not be determined without obliging the contributories to present a petition for a compulsory winding up or a supervision order which would only lead to increased expense' 1

It is the policy of the Act observed their Lordships of the Judicial Committee that all claims competent to the company should be brought within the scope of the control of the winding up and that not only in a compulsory winding up. Therefore the procedure of obtaining order of the Court under this section is not to be discouraged 2

Exercise of powers under this section must be in cases where it is just and beneficial not only to the petitioner but to all parties. The Court is empowered under this section on the petition of persons named in the first sub section to exercise certain powers for the assistance of the winding up. Sub s (1) is very limited it speaks of determining any question arising in the winding up. Under sub s (2) the Court has to be satisfied that the determination of the question or the required exercise of power will be just and beneficial. Thus a person has no right to come and say that there is no such thing as winding up in a particular case that is to say the winding up is irregular and void for another reason 3

An application under this section cannot be made by a person who is not the liquidator or a creditor or a contributory 4. Where the registrar does not register the return under s 217 (4) [now cl (4) of ss 202E & 202F] the liquidator a contributory or creditor can apply under this section to the Court for taking proper action 5

The liquidator can apply for determination of any question fairly arising in the liquidation 6 but the practice now is only to answer specific questions. Claims for damages will not be decided on such application 7

The Court will not act under this section if it is not satisfied that exercise of the power will be just and beneficial 8. But the Court will not readily cut down its powers under this section 9. Under this section the Court can appoint a liquidator in a voluntary winding up not only where there is no liquidator acting or in the place of a liquidator who is by the Court removed from his office, but also in any other case where due cause is shown for appointing a liquidator, e.g. when an additional liquidator is required and the appointment may be made on the application of the existing liquidator 1 But where the application asks for the appointment of official liquidator to a company in voluntary liquidation the Court cannot treat the application as an application for compulsory winding up of the company If it is treated as a petition for supervision or some such order as the Court might be empowered to make in the case of a compulsory winding up it is obvious that in order to make such an order the Court would have to be satisfied that the winding up had taken place A supervision order can be made only where there is a valid voluntary winding up But where the whole case of the petitioner is that the winding up is ultra vires and void the petition cannot be treated as one for supervision 2 The assistance of the Court is not the only method open to a voluntary liquidator He has power to enforce calls by suit 3

'A Judge in winding up' says the Judicial Committee is the custodian of the interests of every class affected by the liquidation It is his duty even if it be in a voluntary liquidation that opportunity occurs to see to it that all assets of the company are brought into the winding up In authorising proceedings especially if they may or will involve some drain upon the assets he must satisfy himself as to their probable success where they involve no possible charge on a estate he will nevertheless be careful to see that any action taken in the company's name under his authority is not vexatious or merely oppressive 4

Voluntary liquidation does not by itself suspend the right to commence or continue legal proceedings against the company and if the liquidator is confronted with a decree which has to be satisfied out of the assets of the company before distribution of the assets among the creditors his proper remedy is to approach the Court meaning the Court within the meaning of s 2 (3) under this section 5 When proper cause is shown the Court having jurisdiction to wind up the company has power under this section read with s 169 to make an order staying all proceedings against the company 6 The Court may restrain actions 7, executions 8 and distress 9 Where an order is made staying action against a company which is being voluntarily wound up the Court has power, in a proper case, to order the plaintiff to pay the cost of the application 10 The Court can exercise all the powers exercisable in a compulsory winding up 11 The Court will exercise the power where the exercise will be just and beneficial and it has a wide discretion in the matter 1 After having been unsuccessful in the executing Court the voluntary liquidator cannot approach the liquidating Court and ask for a declaration that the auction sale held by the executing Court is invalid 2

Where in a suit instituted by a company long before it went into liquidation a decree for costs was made against the company after liquidation the liability of the company under the decree should not ordinarily be treated in a different way from other liabilities and the decree holder should not be allowed to execute the decree against the company 3 He must prove for his claim with the other creditors 3

Where the delivery of books of the company is necessary for the purposes of liquidation the liquidator in a voluntary winding up is entitled to an order Delivery of books for delivery of the books without prejudice to an alleged right of lien 4

The power to make an order for the stay of proceedings under a voluntary winding up has been given to the Court by this section read with s 173 5 In dealing with such an application the Court has to see whether a stay will be conducive or detrimental to commercial morality and to the interests of the public at large 6

In the case of a voluntary liquidation the onus is on the liquidator to show that an order should be made staying an action for prima facie the ordinary tribunal is the proper one to decide upon a claim against the company The proceedings may be stayed when sufficient ground is shown to do so e.g. when existence of the liability is substantially admitted and the dispute is only as to what is the exact amount due 7 If the claim is undisputed a stay will be granted as a matter of course but if the debt is disputed the Court may allow the action to proceed 8 Unless very exceptional circumstances exist the Court in its discretion will always stay an execution against a company after it has gone into voluntary liquidation 9 The plaintiff in the action which is stayed is entitled to his costs 10

Where the company is in a solvent condition and the resolution for voluntary winding up was passed with a view to the company being restarted after the claims of the creditors have been satisfied proceedings should be stayed subject to the condition that all shareholders should be given the option of retiring from the company or continuing its members 11

A voluntary liquidator is entitled to ask the Court for an order for examination of Examination of persons persons who were connected with the company with regard to its management or formation and the Court has power to make such an order 12

217. All costs, charges and expenses properly incurred in the winding up, including the remuneration of the liquidator, shall, subject to the rights of secured creditors, if any, be payable out of the assets of the company in priority to all other claims.

This section reproduces s 251 of the English Act of 1929 and is the same as the original s 218

Compare s 193 When the assets of a company in voluntary liquidation are insufficient to discharge its liabilities the Court has power under this section read with s 193 to make an order in the exercise of its discretion as to the payment thereof of the costs, charges and expenses (including the liquidator's remuneration) in such order of priority as it thinks just and prima facie all the expenses ought to be paid before the liquidator's remuneration 1 In the last cited case, the liquidator was authorised to retain the remuneration received by him before the date of the notice of the assessment of income tax

Costs of litigation during the liquidation ordered to be paid whether the order is only for payment or payment out of the assets, rank before the liquidator's own costs or the general costs of the winding up 2 This section does not give the liquidator any priority over secured creditors except in so far as he may be entitled in respect of matters of which the mortgagees had the benefit e.g., expenses of collecting the estate for them 3

The costs of litigation ordered to be paid out of the assets are payable immediately and in full in priority to the general cost of the liquidation 4 The rule that costs of unsuccessful litigation incurred by a liquidator whether in a voluntary or compulsory winding up are payable to the party entitled out of the assets of the company in priority to the costs of liquidation applies whether the order simply directs payment of costs or directs that the costs be paid out of the assets of the company, or that the liquidator do pay the costs with liberty to recoup himself out of the assets 5 The onus is on the liquidator to show that the condition of the assets is such that immediate payment cannot be made and if he shows that other persons have a prior right to or are entitled in rem with the successful litigant no order for payment will be made without providing for the other claims The date of the order gives no priority, but payment will not be indefinitely postponed until all claims have come in 6

After the costs, charges and expenses have been paid the assets are to be applied in payment of the company's debts and liabilities When the creditors have been paid in full any surplus is to be distributed amongst the contributories according to their rights inter se as adjusted by the Court 7. In this respect compare the provisions of s 193

In the absence of an express agreement the solicitor to a voluntary liquidator has no claim for the payment of his costs against the liquidator personally. His claim is against the assets of the company only 1, but his costs are payable in priority to the liquidator's remuneration 2. The liquidator is not personally liable for the decision whether the winding up be compulsory 3 or voluntary 4. As to the same point in the case noted below 4.

In proceedings in liquidation where the liquidator is the applicant he may, in case of future assets, be ordered to pay the costs personally, when the order is usual 5. Liquidator's personal liability without prejudice to his right to apply for liberty to retain them out of the assets 5.

When the liquidator in a voluntary winding up elects, for the benefit of the creditors to occupy leasehold premises that are part of the estate the landlord is entitled to have the covenants of the lease carried out and to be paid in full out of the assets got in all claims due and owing for repairs under the covenant 6.

218 The winding up of a company shall not bar the right of any creditor or contributory to have it wound up by the Court but in the case of an application by a contributory the Court must be satisfied that the rights of the contributories will be prejudiced by a voluntary winding up

This section reproduces s. 210 of the English Act of 1929 and is almost identical with the original s. 210.

An existing voluntary winding up is generally a bar to a contributory obtaining a compulsory order 7. But it is no bar if the general body of creditors desire it although no individual creditor proves that his rights will be prejudiced by a voluntary winding up 8. For this section must be read with ss. 174 and 210. The Court may however in its discretion refuse the order if it will not benefit the creditors generally but only the petitioning creditor 9.

Where the rights of the creditors or the contributories are not shown to be prejudiced by a voluntary winding up the Court is not justified in ordering a compulsory winding up though the application to that effect was filed before the company decided to go into voluntary liquidation 10. But where the scheme for reconstruction is eminently unfair to an independent minority of the shareholders the Court will on the petition 223 As to the Court's jurisdiction to carry out and legal proceedings after presentation of the petition and after the winding up order see ss 169 and 171 with notes under those sections.

223 The Court may, in deciding between a winding up by the Court and a winding up subject to supervision, in the appointment of liquidators, and in all other matters relating to the winding up subject to supervision, have regard to the wishes of the creditors or contributories as proved to it by any sufficient evidence.

224 (1) Where an order is made for a winding up subject to supervision, the Court may by the same or any subsequent order appoint any additional liquidator.

(2) A liquidator appointed by the Court under this section shall have the same powers, be subject to the same obligations, and in all respects stand in the same position as if he had been appointed by the company.

(3) The Court may remove any liquidator so appointed by the Court or any liquidator continued under the supervision order, and fill any vacancy occasioned by the removal, or by death or resignation.

Appointment of additional or new liquidator Where in an application for the appointment of an additional liquidator and for supervision order objection was taken to the person suggested for the appointment on the ground (1) that his firm acted as creditors of the company and (2) that the existing liquidator was also an interested party (being a transferee of the company) the Court superseded the appointment of the existing liquidator concerned the appointment of the person suggested and named with him a person unconnected with the company. If the supervision order the shareholders can resolve on the appointment of a new liquidator then the Court will not do so.

 tion of the liquidator, and every alteration in the Avoidance of transfers etc after commencement of winding up status of the members of the company made after the

(2) In the case of a winding up by or subject to the supervision of the Court, every disposition of the property (including actionable claims) of the company, and every transfer of shares, or alteration in the status of its members, made after the commencement of the winding up shall, unless the Court otherwise orders, be void

A winding up by the Court dates from the presentation of the petition 6 while a voluntary winding up or a winding up subject to the supervision of the Date of commencement of winding up Court dates from the passing of the resolution authorizing the winding up 7
 A special resolution was deemed to have been passed at the date when it is confirmed 8 But confirmation is no longer necessary see the new sub s (2) of s 51

Sub-s 1 The execution of a transfer of shares without the sanction of the liquidator is void but not illegal 1 and an action may lie for refusal to execute a transfer although the sanction has not been obtained 2 The liquidator has the power of sanction which involves the power to alter register of members 3 As to a transfer of shares to the liquidator see Thompson's case 4 Where successive transfers are sanctioned by the liquidator under this section the ultimate transferee only is liable to contribute as a present member the transferor and the prior transferees being liable as past members 5 Where shares are pledged without the permission of the Court the transaction is void 6

Where the contract was to deliver registered shares on a certain date but the transferor could not deliver such shares on account of the company having gone into liquidation in the meantime the promisee is entitled to get back the money paid to the promisor 7

A transfer of shares after the commencement of the winding up made without previous sanction of the Court is not void Complete discretion has been left to the Court to do whatever it may think just but an order that the transaction should stand would not ordinarily be made without good ground 8

The right to transfer debentures is not affected by the winding up 9 Where a debenture was issued by a company between the date of presentation of the petition for winding up and the date of the order for its compulsory winding up it was held that notwithstanding the debenture holder's knowledge of presentation of the petition he was entitled to a declaration that the debenture was valid that the costs of his successful application might well be regarded as mortgage costs and must therefore be added to his security and that the costs of the liquidator must be included in the costs of liquidation 10

The words in the section forbidding alteration of status do not affect such transfers as are expressly authorized by the preceding words 11 As between the transferor and the transferee the liability of one to the other is not affected by the Act 12 but the Court will not give effect to the transfer by ordering registration 13

Where a forfeiture has been validly made before the commencement of a voluntary winding up the liquidator cannot under sub s (1) cancel the forfeiture 14 But the power of forfeiture may be exercised by the directors

after the commencement of a voluntary winding up, if they obtain sanction of the liquidator or of a general meeting 1

Sub section 2 In the case of a winding up by or subject to the supervision of the Court every disposition of property of the company shall be void unless the Court otherwise orders 2 Although any disposition of the assets of the company after the winding up order is made and before the appointment of an official liquidator is not regular as the property is then in the custody of the Court constructively, where the company has no creditor and the contributories in a meeting unanimously declare a dividend the dividend so distributed will not be ordered to be repaid to the official liquidator as the only persons interested in the assets are the contributories themselves 2 So where a lease was granted to certain persons pursuant to a resolution of a general meeting of shareholders after a petition for winding up presented by some of the shareholders had been dismissed, but on appeal the company was ordered to be wound up compulsorily the Judicial Committee did not allow the official liquidator to impugn the lease as the company had no creditors and the only persons interested were the shareholders who had by an unopposed resolution approved of the lease 3

Sub-s (2) intends to prevent any improper alienation and disposition of the property of a company in extremis during the period which must elapse before a winding up petition can be heard. Any bona fide transaction carried out and completed in the ordinary course of current business can however be sanctioned. This power is given for the benefit and interest of the company so as to enable that a company which is made the subject of winding up petition may nevertheless obtain money necessary for carrying out its business and so avoid its working being paralysed; but the Court will not allow the assets of the company to be disposed of at the mere pleasure of the company and thus cause the fundamental principles of equity among its creditors being violated 4

There is a dividing line between what is the ordinary course of business before a winding up petition is presented and what is the ordinary course afterwards. Before a petition is presented it is in the ordinary course of business for a company to pay all its debts and incidentally to give security to its bankers for any overdraft or loan it may arrange. But after petition is presented the situation is different. Prima facie all debts will have to be paid pari passu. Therefore it is no longer in the ordinary course of business to pay one creditor in full to the detriment of his fellow creditors 5. The transactions entered into by a creditor in ignorance of the presentation of the petition would be rare but knowledge of the presentation of the petition though an element to be considered is not conclusive on the question of bona fides 5

A judgment would always be a prima facie proof of a debt. It is only when there are circumstances casting doubts on the correctness of the debt as proved by the judgment, that the judgment may be set apart and independent proof may be called for 4

229 In the winding up of an insolvent company the same rules shall prevail and be observed with regard to the respective rights of secured and unsecured creditors and to debts provable and to the valuation of annuities and future and contingent liabilities as are in force for the time being under the law of insolvency with respect to the estates of persons adjudged insolvent, and all persons who in any such case would be entitled to prove for and receive dividends out of the assets of the company may come in under the winding up, and make such claims against the company as they respectively are entitled to by virtue of this section.

Application of insolvency rules in winding up of insolvent companies

Insolvency Acts in force

In the Presidency towns of Calcutta, Madras and Bombay and in the town of Rangoon the law of insolvency in force is the Presidency Towns Insolvency Act (Act III of 1909). In the rest of British India excepting the Scheduled Districts the Provincial Insolvency Act (Act V of 1920) applies. As regards the rules relating to the respective rights of secured and unsecured creditors and to debts provable and to the valuation of annuities and future and contingent liabilities see ss 16 to 50 of the Presidency Towns Insolvency Act and ss 15 to 50 of the Provincial Insolvency Act.

A Full Bench of the Allahabad High Court has held that the phrase 'the same rules under the law of insolvency' in this section is wide enough to include rules contained in the Provincial Insolvency Act rules made under any power conferred by that Act and rules of practice unless there is something in the Companies Act itself already providing for the matter in question or in conflict with the rules which it is proposed to import 5. But the Peshwar Court has held in a recent case that the above phrase should not be widened to include the whole of the law of insolvency as contained in the Insolvency Acts and in particular s 25 (2) of the Provincial Insolvency Act 6. This latter view is in accord with the decisions of English Courts (see at the next page).

Where there are mutual dealings between an insolvent and a creditor an account has to be taken of what is due from the one to the other in respect of such mutual dealings and the balance of the account, and no more has to be paid by one to the other. The law is not that the receiver in insolvency can recover the full amount due to the insolvent leaving the creditor to take a pro rata dividend only. The above principle of s 47 of the Provincial Insolvency Act and s 17 of the Presidency Towns Insolvency Act applies to companies in liquidation by virtue of the present section 229 the only exception being the case of a contributory who cannot set off the debt due to him or any dividend that may come to him afterwards against the calls.¹

In England it has been held that the corresponding section of the English Act does not import into the winding up the Bankruptcy rules relating to reputed ownership² requiring a petitioning creditor to surrender or value his security³ restricting the rights of creditors under attachment of debts⁴ giving a lessor a right to distrain for rent due before the winding up⁵ depriving an execution creditor where the sheriff has notice of a bankruptcy within fourteen days after sale of the fruits of his execution⁶ and the calculation of interest on debts for the purposes of dividend⁷. Only the rules relating to the following are applicable:— (1) the respective rights of secured and unsecured creditors in liquidating the rights of secured creditors inter se and unsecured creditors inter se; (2) the debts and liabilities provable; (3) the valuation of annuities and future and contingent liabilities; and (4) mutual credit and set off⁸. But the phrase with regard to the respective rights of secured and unsecured creditors and debts payable is not wide enough to incorporate s 60 of the English Bankruptcy Act 1914 nor can the section possibly come within the words by reason of a reference to future and contingent liabilities in regard to which s 60 can be fairly described as a rule relating thereto.⁹ s 207 of the English Companies Act of 1929 corresponding to s 229 has been strictly construed and it has been held in numerous cases that the section does not introduce into a winding up bankruptcy rules in a number of matters.¹⁰ For instance a winding up Court unlike an insolvency Court cannot take cognizance of and adjudicate on the title of third persons except to the limited extent mentioned in ss 231 and 232, and if it is necessary to impeach an title the liquidator must have recourse to regular suits cognizable by ordinary civil Courts.¹¹

The effect of the introduction of the Bankruptcy rules is (1) to exclude from proof unliquidated damages for tort and (2) to prevent a secured creditor from proving for the full amount of his debt and subsequently realizing his security.¹²

Where the company is insolvent nothing should be allowed for interest after the commencement of the winding up but the opposite rule applies where the company is solvent that is where there is a surplus. In such a case this section has no application and in whatever manner the dividend may originally have been made, if it turns out that there is an ultimate surplus the account must be taken as between the company and the creditors in the ordinary way that is by applying each dividend in the first place to that payment of the interest due at the date of such dividend and the surplus to the reduction of the principal. The company's solvency is established if, after payment of the principal and interest up to the date of the winding up there are some assets sufficient to meet the liability on account of interest accruing after the commencement of the liquidation 2.

So long as a company is in voluntary liquidation interest continues to accrue on debts carrying interest 3 but in the case of an insolvent company the bankruptcy rules apply and no claim can be sustained for interest subsequent to a judgment (last note, last page). If a supervision order is made the creditors cannot prove for interest accrued after the passing of the winding up resolution, unless there is a surplus remaining over after the other liabilities of the company have been discharged 4.

An unsecured creditor need not, or can be forced to prove his debt and such a creditor can stand wholly outside the winding up proceedings if he so elects, and rely upon his security or his decree if he has obtained one, provided he has obtained leave to proceed from the winding up Judge 5. A secured creditor need not prove at all but may rely on his security.

He may bring an action to realize it without leave in a voluntary winding up and with leave of the Court in a compulsory winding up or in a winding up under supervision 6. Where the security is only a floating charge, certain unsecured debts are paid before those of the debenture holders 7 and before any other payment for carrying on the business 8. The landlord is not a secured creditor in England 9 but he is so in Scotland 10.

In compulsory liquidation of an insolvent company a secured creditor after having exhausted his security cannot, in proving as regards the balance of his debt unsatisfied, include interest after the commencement of the winding up 11. A secured creditor in the case of a liquidation is on the same footing as in that of insolvency proceedings in respect of the unsecured portion of his debt 11.

When a company goes into liquidation a secured creditor may realize his security and recover therefrom the whole of his principal as well as interest up to the date of realization and not merely the amount due on the date of the winding up order. But if he realizes his security and has to prove for a balance the remaining assets of the company would only be liable for such principal and interest as was due on the date of the winding up order. The hypothecated property is liable for the whole claim and it is only the liability of the remaining assets that is affected by the winding up order 1

Where a suit is brought by a plaintiff against a company alleging that he is entitled to a charge the issue ought to be decided in the suit which should be allowed to proceed in spite of the winding up proceedings 2 Upon a winding up a debenture holder is entitled to enforce his charge even though his debenture has not matured 3

If a creditor values his security he cannot prove for more than the balance though the security realizes less than his valuation 4 If he wilfully omits to mention his security in his proof he will not generally be allowed to amend 5

An execution creditor who has seized before commencement of the winding up is a secured creditor 6 He may realize his security 6 The same rule applies if the sheriff seeks to take possession and is resisted 7 or if the creditor was put off by some trickery 8 A solicitor who holds a lien on documents for his costs against the company is a secured creditor and must mention the lien in his proof 9 A creditor who has obtained the appointment of a receiver of land by way of equitable execution is also a secured creditor 10

An attaching creditor is not a secured creditor within the meaning of this section an attachment merely preventing and avoiding alienation 11 In this respect the Indian law differs from the English law 12 After referring to Krishnaswami v Official Assignee 13 Motilal & Karabulbin 14 and Pearce & Madan Gopal 15 where it was held that an attaching creditor does not obtain by his attachment any charge or lien upon the attached property Martin C J in the case noted below 11 points out that one reason for this difference between the Indian and English practice is said to lie in the English writ of fieri facias as compared with the prohibitory orders which are passed in India and the different forms of the writ of attachment delivered to the sheriff

A landlord is not a secured creditor 1 except where s 6) of the Bengal Tenancy Act is applicable, nor is a creditor who has obtained a garnishee order nisi before attaching a debt due to the company but has not served it on the debtor before the winding up 2 But the attachment of a debt by the service of a garnishee order nisi before the presentation of the petition to wind up constitutes the garnishee a secured creditor 3

Where an agent of a bank deposited a certain sum as security for the faithful discharge of his duties and agreed that the bank should receive and hold the money if not forfeited for losses occasioned through the agent's default upon his ceasing to be the bank's agent it was held that in liquidation proceedings the agent could only rank as an ordinary creditor and could not take preference over other creditors of the bank 4

In the case of a going bank it is entitled to treat a security deposit as earmarked for a particular purpose and refuse to deal with it for any other purpose but in liquidation of an insolvent bank if the occasion for realizing the security has not arisen and if the money has with the consent of the giver of the security been received by the bank and mixed with its funds in consideration of an agreement to pay interest on it the bank is only a debtor and not a trustee 5

Although a liquidator has made a payment taking a receipt purporting to be in full discharge of the claim the creditor will not be precluded from claiming and recovering any further amount due, interest unless there has been a bona fide compromise of a disputed claim 6 A creditor residing out of the Court's jurisdiction and seeking to prove may be ordered to give security for costs 8

The assets out of which costs whether payable to an outside litigant or as the winding up costs are payable are those which are left after satisfying the claims of the secured creditors 7

In a recent case where the costs of the winding up petition were taxed and paid out of the assets on the basis that the company was insolvent but the company was ultimately found to be solvent the solicitor was allowed to prove for the balance of his bill of costs being solicitor and client costs incurred upon the instructions of the company and its directors in opposing the petition 8

If the damages in tort have been liquidated by agreement or by judgment actually signed before commencement of the winding up 9 they may be proved 10 A judgment obtained after commencement of a voluntary winding up but before the compulsory order in the same case may be recovered 11

While the plaintiff recovered judgment for damages and costs against a company for personal injuries caused to him by the negligence of one of its servants and before execution could be levied the company went into liquidation, and the insurance company, with which the company in liquidation was insured against third party risks, paid the amount of the damages and costs to the liquidator, it was held that the applicant had no right at law or in equity, either as against the insurance company or as against the liquidator to require that the money so paid should be handed over to him, but that the money formed part of the company's assets available for distribution among its general creditors including the applicant 1

Where a paying passenger on a tramcar suffered serious injuries owing to the tramcar getting out of control and on winding up the tramway company rejected the proof of his claim for damages on the ground that it was a claim for unliquidated damages arising otherwise than by reason of a contract, it was held that as the proof was based on a contract to carry the applicant safely on the journey by the tramway company, the proof must be allowed and there must be an enquiry as to the damages 2

The Court can go behind and re open a judgment obtained before the liquidation, if there was no consideration or a bad consideration for a debt, particularly if the judgment was obtained by default or consent 3 No doubt where there has been a genuine contest between a claimant and a company which subsequently goes into liquidation and the parties have fought out the case

Jona fide it should not be open to the official liquidator to re open the case or go behind the judgment and to look into the consideration for the same but where a decree rests on something less than a real trial on the merits of the case or there are circumstances justifying the official liquidator to doubt the Jona fide of the judgment or to suspect a miscarriage of justice, it would be open to the official liquidator to reject the decree and call for fresh proof of the claim 4 Where therefore a company was assessed on an estimated income and after its winding up it was found that the company had not made any profit during the year but suffered loss the Income-tax officer cannot claim his assessment as binding on the liquidator and the official liquidator can call for its proof 4 'It is well settled that the Court can inquire into the consideration for a judgment debt

If there be a judgment it is not necessary to show fraud or collusion It is sufficient in the language of Lord Esher, to show miscarriage of justice that is to say, that for some good reason there ought not to have been a judgment 5

Where judgment is obtained on the confession of the insolvent, it is open to the liquidator to set apart the decree and ask for proof of the claim 6 Lord Justice James observed in exp Kibble 7 It is settled rule of the Court of Bankruptcy on which we have always acted, that the Court of Bankruptcy can enquire into the consideration for a judgment debt 8 No judgment recovered against the bankrupt no covenant for payment given by or account stated with him, can deprive the trustee in bankruptcy of his right and duty to investigate the nature and grounds of the claim made against the bankrupt's estate, the trustee is therefore entitled to go behind these forms and require satisfactory evidence that the debt is a real debt 8

S 52 of the Presidency Towns Insolvency Act does not apply to cases of floating charges created before the liquidation 1
 S 52 Presy Towns Ins Act

In the winding up of a life assurance company where there are contractual obligations at the date of the winding up the breach of which might give rise to a claim for damages the claim is provable in the winding up and the policy holder is entitled to set off the value of his policy against his debt 2
 Life as insurance companies

230 (1) In a winding up there shall be paid in priority to all other debts—

Preferential payments

- (a) all revenue, taxes, cesses and rates, whether payable to the Crown or to a local authority, due from the company at the date hereinafter mentioned and having become due and payable within the twelve months next before that date,
- (b) all wages or salary of any clerk or servant in respect of service rendered to the company within the two months next before the said date, not exceeding one thousand rupees for each clerk or servant,
- (c) all wages of any labourer or workman, not exceeding five hundred rupees for each, whether payable for time or piece-work, in respect of services rendered to the company within the two months next before the said date,
- (d) compensation payable under the Workmen's Compensation Act, 1923, in respect of the death or disablement of any officer or employee of the company,
- (e) all sums due to any employee from a provident fund, a pension fund, a gratuity fund or any other fund for the welfare of the employees maintained by the company and
- (f) the expenses of any investigation held in pursuance of clause (u) of section 138 of this Act

(2) The foregoing debts shall—

- (a) rank equally among themselves and be paid in full, unless the assets are insufficient to meet them, in which case they shall abate in equal proportion, and
- (b) so far as the assets of the company available for payment of general creditors are insufficient to meet them, have priority over the claims of holders of debentures under any floating charge created by the company, and be paid accordingly out of any property comprised in or subject to that charge

2 National Benefit Assurance Co [1921] M Ch 333

(3) Subject to the retention of such sums as may be necessary for the costs and expense of the winding up, the foregoing debts shall be discharged forthwith so far as the assets are sufficient to meet them

(4) In the event of a landlord or other person distraining or having distrained on any goods or effects of the company within three months next before the date of a winding up order, the debts to which priority is given by this section shall be a first charge on the goods or effects so distrained on, or the proceeds of the sale thereof

Provided that in respect of any money paid under any such charge the landlord or other person shall have the same rights of priority as the person to whom the payment is made

(5) The date hereinafter in this section referred to is—

(a) in the case of a company ordered to be wound up compulsorily which had not previously commenced to be wound up voluntarily, the date of the winding up order, and

(b) in any other case the date of the commencement of the winding up

By the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936 the word and at the end of Cl (b) of s 11 (1) of this section has been omitted and after Cl (c) the new clauses (d) (e) and (f) have been inserted. For the effect of the amendments see Introduction

Sub (1) of (a) The prerogative right of the Crown in the winding up to payment of its debts in priority to all other creditors is inconsistent with and was abrogated by ss 186, 207 and 209 of the English Act of 1908 (corresponding to ss 207, 229 and 230 respectively of the present Indian Act) which negatived the prerogative by giving certain specified debts priority over all other including the Crown debts. The Crown cannot claim even the narrower prerogative right to take the assets of the company by writ of extent or otherwise to the exclusion of all other claims and apart altogether from winding up for that also is inconsistent with the provision of the above sections.

Where the legislature has dealt with the powers under the prerogative the prerogative must be taken to have been merged in the statute and the powers previously within the prerogative can be exercised only in the manner and subject to the limitations contained in the statute 1 But in a later case the Lahore High Court has held that where there is a conflict between the Companies Act and the Insolvency Act, the provisions of the former must be given effect to It is the intention of the legislature to confine the decisions of all questions of priority to the present section which was enacted to deal specially with the same questions as were dealt with in s 61 of the Provincial Insolvency Act 1920 2

The priority of payment of all Crown debts which prevails in insolvency under s 19 of the Presidency Towns Insolvency Act obtains equally in the winding up by reason of s 229 and the priority is not confined to the debts mentioned in the section 1 See s 232 (2) and notes thereto

If this section had read 'all taxes cesses rates and other revenue', the word 'revenue' would have had to be read eiusdem generis with the preceding words The word 'revenue' means income, hence the rent of the Government telephone lines and also the charge for trunk calls are within its meaning 3

The duty cast by s 129 and this section upon a receiver appointed by debenture holders of a company to pay rates then due from the company applies to a subsequent increase in those rates resulting from an appeal being allowed against the derating of part of the company's premises 4

As to what are rates see the cases noted below 5

Cl (b) A secretary may be a clerk or servant so as to be entitled to the preferential payment in a winding up 6 but a secretary who does not give his whole time to the company or performs his duties by a deputy is not within the section 7

Where the articles of association allow it a director may hold any other office under the company and as such he may be a clerk or servant and entitled to preferential payment 8 But as a rule a director, even though a managing director, is not regarded to be in the employment of the company 9 Where the employee is not a whole time servant, but in the nature of a "contributor" to a periodical he is not entitled to preferential payment 9

Persons appointed to investigate the management of a company and to make a report is not a 'clerk or servant' of the company 10 A reporter in the employment of a newspaper company who does not work at the office is not employed exclusively by the company, is not bound to render any general service and is not under the control of the company, is not a servant of the company so as to be entitled to preferential payment 1. Under special contract a singer in opera has been held to be a servant 2. A chemist employed at weekly wages to prepare formula may be a servant 3. Wages made up partly by fixed salary and partly by commission upon work done are wages 4.

Effect of winding up on contract of service If the winding up order is made before expiry of the term of the contract of service the servant is entitled to his salary to the end of the period of his contract.⁵ The order is notice of discharge of the servant.⁶ even in the case of a voluntary winding up.⁷ The appointment by the Court of a receiver and manager or a debenture holder's action has a similar effect.⁸

Sub s (2), Cl (1) A floating charge operates as an immediate and continuing charge on the property charged subject only to the company's powers to deal with the property in the ordinary course of its business. A floating charge unless otherwise agreed leaves the company at liberty to create specific mortgages ranking in priority to the floating charge and by dealing with debtors to give them a right of set off. A notice of the floating charge does not postpone subsequent mortgages. As to what is a floating charge see notes to s 109.

Personal liability of receiver If a receiver disposes of the assets without making provision for the preferential payments he is personally liable ¹³ and moneys paid to a debenture holder cannot be recovered to make the necessary payments ¹⁴

These are the only priorities recognized in law and except the floating charge referred to in s 129 there is no priority over the claims of mortgages or debenture holders who are outside the liquidation.¹⁵ The priority is in respect only of assets subject to a floating charge.¹⁶

Costs and expenses Sub s (3) The effect of this sub-section is to make the costs and expenses of winding up payable out of the assets comprised in the floating charge before payment of the preferential debts, but if the free assets are insufficient to pay the preferential debts the balance must be paid out of the assets comprised in the floating charge 17

Costs of unsuccessful litigation incurred by a liquidator, whether in a voluntary or a compulsory winding up, are payable out of the assets in priority to the costs of liquidation This rule applies whether the order simply directs payment of costs or directs that the costs be paid out of the assets of the company or that the liquidator do pay the costs with liberty to recoup himself out of the assets 1

As to costs generally see notes to s 193

Sub-s (5) The material date for the purposes of sub-s (1) of s 230 is in the case of a compulsory winding up which has been preceded by a voluntary winding up the date of the commencement of the voluntary winding up 2 Where a voluntary winding up is succeeded by a compulsory order the two months for which a clerk or servant can claim preferential payment are the two months next before the resolution for the winding up 3 The section deals with the winding up as one continuous process which may be commenced as a voluntary and continued as a compulsory winding up and there is nothing to show that persons who have acquired preferential rights under the voluntary winding up are to be deprived of them if a compulsory order is made 3 As to the date of the commencement of a winding up whether voluntary or continued under supervision of the Court see s 204

230A (1) Where any part of the property of a company which is being wound up consists of land of any tenure burdened with Disclaimers onerous covenants, or shares or stock in companies, or of property unprofitable contracts or of any other property that is unsaleable, or not readily saleable, by reason of its binding the possessor thereof to the performance of any onerous act, or to the payment of any sum of money, the liquidator of the company, notwithstanding that he had endeavoured to sell or has taken possession of the property, or exercised any act of ownership in relation thereto, may, with the leave of the Court and subject to the provisions of this section, by writing signed by him, at any time within twelve months after the commencement of the winding up or such extended period as may be allowed by the Court, disclaim the property

Provided that, where any such property has not come to the knowledge of the liquidator within one month after the commencement of the winding up, the power under this section of disclaiming the property may be exercised at any time within twelve months after he has become aware thereof or such extended period as may be allowed by the Court

(2) The disclaimer shall operate to determine, as from the date of disclaimer, the rights, interest and liabilities of the company, and the property of the company, in or in respect of the property disclaimed, but shall not, except so far as is necessary for the purpose of releasing the company and the property of the company from liability, affect the rights or liabilities of any other person.

(3) The Court, before or on granting leave to disclaim, may require such notices to be given to persons interested, and impose such terms as a condition of granting leave, and make such other order in the matter as the Court thinks just.

(4) The liquidator shall not be entitled to disclaim any property under this section in any case where an application in writing has been made to him by any persons interested in the property requiring him to decide whether he will or will not disclaim, and the liquidator has not, within a period of twenty-eight days after the receipt of the application or such further period as may be allowed by the Court, given notice to the applicant that he intends to apply to the Court for leave to disclaim, and in the case of a contract, if the liquidator, after such an application as aforesaid, does not within the said period or further period disclaim the contract, the company shall be deemed to have adopted it.

(5) The Court may, in the application of any person who is, as against the liquidator, entitled to the benefit or subject to the burden of a contract made with the company, make an order rescinding the contract on such terms as to payment by or to either party of damages for the non-performance of the contract, or otherwise as the Court thinks just, and any damages payable under the order to any such person may be proved by him as a debt in the winding up.

(6) The Court may, on an application by any person who either claims any interest in any disclaimed property or is under any liability not discharged by this Act in respect of any disclaimed property and on hearing any such persons as it thinks fit, make an order for the vesting of the property in or the delivery of the property to any persons entitled thereto, or to whom it may seem just that the property should be delivered by way of compensation for such liability as aforesaid, or a trustee for him, and on such terms as the Court thinks just, and on any such vesting order being made, the property comprised therein shall vest accordingly in the person therein named in that behalf without any conveyance or assignment for the purpose.

Provided that, where the property disclaimed is of a leasehold nature, the Court shall not make a vesting order in favour of any person claiming under the company whether as under-lessee or as mortgagee except upon the terms of making that person—

- (a) subject to the same liabilities and obligations as those to which the company was subject under the lease in respect of the property at the commencement of the winding up, or
- (b) if the Court thinks fit, subject only to the same liabilities and obligations as if the lease had been assigned to that person at that date.

and in either event (if there is a requirement) as if the lease had comprised only the property comprised in the vesting order, and any mortgagee or under-lessee declining to accept a vesting order upon such terms shall be excluded from all interest in and security upon the property, and, if there is no person claiming under the company who is willing to accept an order upon such terms, the Court shall have power to vest the estate and interest of the company in the property in any person liable, either personally or in a representative character, and either alone or jointly with the company, to perform the lessee's covenants in the lease, freed and discharged from all estates, incumbrances and interests created therein by the company

(7) Any person injured by the operation of a disclaimer under this section shall be deemed to be a creditor of the company to the amount of the injury, and may accordingly prove the amount as a debt in the winding up

This section has been introduced by the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936. It is a reproduction of s 267 of the English Act of 1929 which gives a liquidator power corresponding to that of a trustee in bankruptcy, to disclaim land burdened with covenants unprofitable contracts and property which is unsaleable

Fraudulent preference

(1) Any transfer, delivery of goods, payment, execution or other act relating to property which would, if made or done by or against an individual, be deemed in his insolvency a fraudulent preference, shall, if made or done by or against a company, be deemed, in the event of its being wound up, a fraudulent preference of its creditors, and be invalid accordingly

(2) For the purposes of this section the presentation of petition for winding up in the case of a winding up by or subject to the supervision of the Court, and a resolution for winding up in the case of a voluntary winding up, shall be deemed to correspond with the act of insolvency in the case of an individual

(3) Any transfer or assignment by a company of all its property to trustees for the benefit of all its creditors shall be void

Sub s (1) The preference is fraudulent when the substantial and dominant motive in the mind of the debtor (or the company, if it is a rule by its directors) was to prefer one creditor or particular creditors. It is essential that the payment should have been made with a view to give preference to the creditor(s) to whom it is made. It is not sufficient that the creditor was in fact preferred. In such cases the question of fraudulent preference is what was the dominant motive in making the payment or transfer. The Court must look at the motive and at the result. Now when you are considering Hanworth v R to set aside a conveyance or transfer of property or charge as a fraudulent preference, I think it is plain that there must be evidence given affirmatively not merely that there was in fact a preference, but that the preference was given with a view or object or goal of preferring. As to the application of the Bankruptcy rules in cases of fraudulent preferences, Trust of G. Smith & Patent Circular Co. To prove the motive or intention and use of other creditors of preference in favour of other creditors committed it or about the same time is a permissible. 6

Onus In the case of an application for declaration that a particular transaction is a fraudulent preference the onus is on those who claim to avoid the transaction to establish what the debtor really intended and that the real intention was to prefer. The onus is only discharged when the Court upon a review of all the circumstances is satisfied that the dominant intent to prefer is present. In this case the liquidator took out a summons for a declaration that by suffering a judicial proceeding to go by default (i.e. by withdrawing of position to an application by a creditor to extend time for registration of an equitable mortgage under the provisions of the Companies Act at a time when the company was in fact insolvent) a fraudulent preference had been committed by the company, but the House of Lords held that upon the material available the inference that the intent was to prefer could not in law be properly drawn. 7

Fraudulent preference cannot be inferred where a creditor has been pressing for his debt and payment is made to avoid the pressure. But payment from a sense of moral obligation or the issue of debentures to a director who had guaranteed the company's overdraft, is a fraudulent preference and invalid. 9 A morally irreproachable transaction may be a 'fraudulent preference'. 10

An assignment made in pursuance of an earlier agreement is not a fraudulent preference. 11 If the debtor really thinks that the creditor's case is one of hardship, the preference is essentially an undue one. 12

The issue of debentures to outsiders in satisfaction of existing debts is not necessarily a fraudulent preference. 13 But where a director takes debentures to secure an amount due to him or for which he is a surety and postpones registration until within three months before the winding up the issue is a fraudulent preference 1

After citing a number of cases Clauson J said in a recent case 2 'The result of these authorities appears to me to be that a transfer by a debtor of substantially the whole of his property whether by way of charge or by way of sale, will be an act of bankruptcy if the necessary consequence of the transfer will be to defeat or delay his creditors and with these authorities to guide me I feel no difficulty in holding that the substitution in place of a going business and substantial business assets of (a) shares in a private company which has taken over the debtor's assets and liabilities together with (b) a right of action by the debtor against that company on its covenant to discharge his liabilities must necessarily have the result of delaying the creditors and cannot be treated as providing something which the creditors can reach just as easily and satisfactorily as the assets which have been transferred. The fact that it was in the contemplation of all parties that further finance should be secured by placing a prior charge on the transferred assets certainly makes the position no better for those who seek to argue that the creditors will not be delayed.

In order to ascertain whether there has been fraudulent preference under this section it must be seen whether the act is done by free will and volition. The preference should be voluntary and not brought on by pressure 7b. So where an assignment is made in favour of a particular creditor under the impression that unless he is paid the company will go into liquidation there cannot be said to be an overriding intention to prefer and the preference cannot be said to be fraudulent preference within the statute 8

Fraudulent preference cannot be pleaded by a debtor in defence to a suit filed against him in order to avoid his own obligation and not for the benefit of the creditors generally. It can be pleaded if at all only in the Insolvency Court (note 8 last page) and set off within three months of a winding up is fraudulent preference 4

The object of s. 37 of the Provincial Insolvency Act is to protect the interests of the whole body of creditors over whom an undue preference has been given in favour of other creditors. The same principle applies to a transaction which is sought to be impeached under this section so that the disposition of a company's property cannot be impeached on the ground of fraudulent preference except on behalf of the general body of creditors. Therefore a person who is not a creditor of the company but a debtor cannot impeach a transfer made by the company on the ground of undue preference 5

The sale of an insolvent business to a private company for shares or debentures may be set aside as fraudulent 6 or may be treated as an act of bankruptcy 7

Sub s (2) The presentation of the petition or the winding up resolution corresponds with the act of bankruptcy of the individual Every transfer &c made within three months prior to the date of petition for adjudging insolvent will be deemed fraudulent 1

Where a company which has gone into voluntary liquidation is ordered to be wound up by the Court the date to which regard is to be had in ascertaining whether a fraudulent preference has been made is the date of the presentation of the petition and not that of the extraordinary resolution 2 The date of the commencement of a winding up by the Court is the date of the presentation of the petition 3 A winding up continued under supervision of the Court dates from the resolution authorizing the winding up 4 But for the purpose of this section the date of the presentation of the petition is the material date This is so in the case of a compulsory order though there has been a previous voluntary winding up

Sub s (3) A debenture by way of floating charge issued to a trustee for the benefit of all the company's creditors is a conveyance and assignment within the meaning of this section if the value of the equity of redemption is merely nominal 5 An assignment by a company of all its property to a trustee for all its creditors is void 6

Where any payment is void as a fraudulent preference of directors or other officers of the company misfeasance proceedings under s 233 may be taken to recover the amount paid 7 But there is no provision in the Act for a summary method of recovering money paid to a creditor by way of fraudulent preference 8

On a proper cause shown the Court having jurisdiction to wind up the company has power to make an order staying all proceedings against the company or the proceeding in the winding up 1 But where the company is not in liquidation, and a petition for winding up is not pending, the Court cannot after ordinary meetings to be summoned and before approving the scheme of reconstruction stay an execution on a judgment recovered before the order 2

Where a company had gone into liquidation a sale of its assets, after the winding up order in execution of a decree passed before the date of that order without leave of the Court is provided in s 171 was voidable at the instance of the liquidator but would now be void Want of knowledge of the winding up order does not validate such a sale 3 But with the leave of the Court a distress on execution may be levied (note 9 last page) If the property was attached prior to the date of the application for winding up the sale in continuation of the attachment was not be invalid 4 but will be void now Under this section the attachment &c put in force without leave of the Court is void and not merely voidable

See ss 169 171 225 (2) and notes to those sections

This section is expressly limited to winding up either by the Court or subject to the supervision of the Court so a voluntary liquidation cannot ipso facto have the effect of putting an end to an attachment already in force under a decree passed prior to the liquidation 5

Sub s (2) This sub section is not in the English Act so Mr Justice Page of the Calcutta High Court has held 6 that the effect of s 171 is not to restrict any of the rights to recover debts due to the Crown which the Crown possesses in virtue of its prerogative But the Patna High Court has held in a recent case that it was not the intention of the legislature that the Court should be given discretion to permit proceedings which would have the effect of giving priority to any particular creditor, including the Crown to which the latter is not otherwise entitled this clause notwithstanding 7

233 Where a company is being wound up a floating charge on the undertaking or property of the company created within three months of the commencement of the winding up shall, unless it is proved that the company immediately after the creation of the charge was solvent, be invalid except to the amount of any cash paid to the company at the time of, or subsequently to the creation of, and in consideration for, the charge, together with interest on that amount at the rate of five per cent per annum

The object of this section is to prevent insolvent companies from creating floating charges to secure past debts or for moneys which do not go to swell their assets and become available for creditors 8

As to what is a 'floating charge' see notes to s. 109. A floating charge is a present charge though it does not finally attach or crystallize upon any specific property until the happening of some event which puts an end to the right of the company to deal with the property in the course of the business 1

What is a floating charge

It is not a future security but a present one affecting all the assets of the company expressed to be included in it. On the other hand it is not a specific security the holder being unable to affirm that the assets are specifically mortgaged to him. The assets are mortgaged in such a way that the mortgagor can deal with them without the concurrence of the mortgagee 2. See notes to ss. 109 and 230 (2) (b).

A floating security being only a charge on the assets for the time being the company may in the ordinary course of its business unless it is otherwise agreed and until the security becomes fixed sell let mortgage or otherwise deal with any of its assets and pay dividends out of the profits just as if the floating charge had not been created 3.

Mortgage debentures usually contain a charge upon the undertaking of the company and all its property real and personal whether present or future and may or may not give a charge upon uncalled capital. A specific charge is one that without more fastens on ascertained and definite property or property capable of being ascertained or defined, whereas a floating charge is ambulatory and shifting in its nature hovering over and so to speak floating with the property which it is intended to affect until some event occurs or some act is done which causes it to settle and fasten on the subject of the charge within its reach and grasp 4.

A debenture constituting a floating security over the undertaking and assets of a company does not specifically affect any particular assets until some event occurs or some act on the part of the mortgagee is done which causes the security to crystallize into a fixed security. A demand by the debenture holder is not such an act nor is a notice by him to the company's bankers claiming payment to him of the company's bank balance which has been attached by a judgment creditor of the company under a garnishee order for there is no equity in a debenture holder whose security is a floating charge arising from his merely giving notice to seize a particular asset of the company 5.

Under this section a floating charge created within three months of winding up is invalid except to the amount of any cash paid at the time, unless the company's business is actually solvent at the time apart from the value of the fixed assets 6. Where there is a condition for payment of a sum at a time and place certain the condition is not broken by non payment at the time unless the demand for payment is made at the specified place 7.

Where floating charge is invalid

Where moneys are advanced to secure the liability of a company under an antecedent independent guarantee, debentures giving a floating charge created by the company in favour of the guarantors who find money to pay off the debt owing to the company and guaranteed by them are, if the company goes into liquidation within three calendar months after the issue of the debentures, invalid unless it is proved that the company was solvent immediately after the creation of the charge¹ Where the debentures were issued to a bank to secure an existing loan account and a current account and the company went into liquidation within three months, the charge was held to be invalid as regards the loan account although in the meantime various advances had been made and repaid on the current account²

Where a debenture trust-deed creating a general floating charge over all the undertaking and assets of the company, present and future, reserves power to the company in the ordinary course of its business to create specific charges over any of those assets then although a second general floating charge over all the property comprised in the first charge but ranking pari passu with or in priority to that charge is under the general law incompatible with the first charge and ranks subject to it yet there is no principle of law which forbids the creation of a second floating charge over part only of the assets ranking pari passu with or in priority to the earlier floating charge, so long as the latter floating charge is within the limits of the power reserved³

Meaning of 'at the time of its creation' A payment made on account in anticipation of creation of the charge and in reliance on a promise to execute it, although made some days before its execution is made 'at the time of its creation' within the meaning of this section⁴

Payment must be in cash The payment must be one in cash⁵, otherwise it is not a good payment⁶ A debenture issued for a past debt is invalid when coming under the provisions of this section⁷ Debentures, so far as given as security of the current account are only valid to the extent of the amount owing by the company on that account at the date of the winding up⁸ But it is sufficient if in substance cash was paid⁹ In the last cited case the debenture was held not to have merely secured past debts but to have obtained for the company the advantage of being able to continue its business and Lord Hanworth M R pointed out 'the cases under this section must, each of them, depend upon their own facts It is very difficult to lay down a precise test which shall bring a case within or without the section'⁹

The effect of this section is to invalidate a floating charge on the undertaking or property of the company created within three months of the commencement of the winding up unless it is proved that the company was solvent immediately after the charge was created but it does not altogether void the debenture.¹ Therefore where such a debenture has been redeemed by payment to the holder before the date of the winding up petition the liquidator is not entitled to recover back the money so paid though he may let it at liberty to apply to it as the debenture is being a fraudulent preference of the creditors whose debts it was given to secure or on any other ground.² As to the case of fraudulent preference under such circumstances see Columbian Fireproofing Co 2 and L Stanton Ltd 3.

234 (1) The liquidator may, with the sanction of the Court when the company is being wound up by the Court or subject to the supervision of the Court, and with the sanction of an extraordinary resolution of the company in the case of a voluntary winding up, do the following things or any of them :

General scheme of liquidation may be sanctioned

- (i) pay any classes of creditors in full,
- (ii) make any compromise or arrangement with creditors or persons claiming to be creditors or having or alleging themselves to have any claim, present or future, whereby the company may be rendered liable,
- (iii) compromise all calls and liabilities to calls, debts and liabilities capable of resulting in debts, and all claims, present or future, certain or contingent subsisting or supposed to subsist between the company and a contributory or alleged contributory or other debtor or person apprehending liability to the company, and all questions in any way relating to or affecting the assets or the winding up of the company, on such terms as may be agreed, and take any security for the discharge of any such call, debt, liability or claim, and give a complete discharge in respect thereof

(2) The exercise by the liquidator of the powers of this section shall be subject to the control of the Court, and any creditor or contributory may apply to the Court with respect to any exercise or proposed exercise of any of these powers.

In this section the Court has been allowed a discretion to order payment in full to any class of creditors other than those referred to in s 230 and when the discretion used by the Court is not capricious or in disregard of any legal principle the High Court will be very slow to interfere with the exercise of the discretion.

Sub s (1) Cl (1) No distinction is made between different kinds of creditors the word creditor being general 2 Every person having a pecuniary claim against the company whether actual or contingent is a creditor Secured creditors are included and also foreign and colonial creditors when their rights are in question 3 A creditor having a claim against the company for damages for breach of contract may be admitted as a creditor under this section as on the date of breach 4 The arrangement must be such as any man of business would reasonably approve 5 and it should be fair and reasonable as regards the different classes if any 6

Sub s (1) Cl (ii) A power to compromise rights presupposes some dispute about them or difficulties in enforcing them 7 A compromise however is good if both parties bona fide believe that there is a question in dispute although it may not really be doubtful 8

Where there are several classes of creditors and contributories and the scheme does not affect the rights of some particular class it is not the practice nor is it necessary to send notice of any meeting to the members of such class, the dissent of a class which is not interested may be disregarded. It is however necessary for different classes of those affected by the scheme to have separate

Meaning of class meetings 5 As to what is meant by a class for the purpose see Sovereign Assurance Co v Dodd 10 Where there are matured and unmatured policy holders of an insurance company a dissentient holder of matured policy is not bound by a resolution passed at a meeting to which all the policy holders are summoned 10

The Court will not sanction a scheme when the required majority is made up of persons not acting bona fide in the interest of the class to which they belong as where their votes are given to get rid of their liability for amounts unpaid on their shares 11 In the absence of any improper motive there is nothing to prevent a creditor who is also a shareholder from voting 12 If the first meeting be unsatisfactory, a second meeting may be called 13 The Court can sanction only a bona fide scheme 14

Schemes have been sanctioned containing the following provisions:—that the first mortgage debenture holders are to be postponed to other debentures or charges about to be issued or created, that debenture holders and other creditors of the old company are to accept shares in the new company in satisfaction of their debts, that debentures the interest on which is to be paid only out of the profits of the company are to be taken in satisfaction of debentures the interest on which is payable whether profits are made or not 1

The Court may and often does impose conditions on its sanction to a scheme. Where the scheme proposes that a company in difficulties is to make over its assets to a new company the sanction may be refused unless the scheme provides that the new company will undertake to obey the order of the Court as to any proceedings which it may think it right to have taken against officers of the old company 2. In one case the order on the assignment of the undertaking to a new company provided that the rights of the official receiver and liquidator to take misfeasance proceedings against officers of the transferor company should be preserved and that the proceeds of any such proceeding should be held for the benefit of the shareholders of the transferor company 3. In another case the Court gave its sanction on the undertaking of the liquidator to pay the unsecured creditors in full out of the assets in his hands, not to act upon the resolution as regards underwriting and to procure the cancellation of underwriting agreements, and provided that the shareholders who opposed should if they elected within a prescribed time to dissent from the special resolution, be entitled to the rights of dissentient shareholders on an ordinary reconstruction 4. A scheme once sanctioned by the Court is binding on all contributories 5.

Persons whose interests are affected by a scheme but who have not opposed it at a meeting or appeared at the hearing of the petition cannot appeal without leave from the order sanctioning the scheme 6.

In an application under this section for sanction of a scheme the duty of the Court is not confined to ascertaining that all formalities have been complied with and to giving effect to the policy of the majority, but the Court must be satisfied that the proposals are not ultra vires that they have been adopted in good faith and that they work no injustice to a dissentient minority. It is the duty of the Court to consider any criticisms that are made affecting the feasibility of the scheme its fairness to all persons interested and its financial soundness. If alternative methods of dealing with the position are suggested the Court will consider whether any of them may not be a more satisfactory solution 7. The Court will not sanction a scheme merely because it has been approved by a large majority of the creditors. It will demand to be satisfied that the proposed arrangement is fair and equitable 8.

Reconstruction & re-organization Arrangements may be entered into for the purpose of reconstruction staying any pending winding up proceedings or distributing assets among creditors 1 They may also involve the reduction or reorganization of the company's capital, but if so the proceedings must comply with the other requirements of the Act 2

Compromise The Court has no jurisdiction to compel a liquidator to consent to a compromise with a contributory or a creditor 3 The compromise can only be made with the sanction of both the Court and the liquidator 3 If a voluntary liquidator makes compromise of a claim by the company against a third party without obtaining the sanction of the company, the compromise is still binding on the company unless and until it is set aside 4 A compromise under this section is binding only on those creditors who assent to it 5

In the case of a winding up under supervision the voluntary liquidator may, unless the Court has otherwise directed, make a compromise without obtaining the Court's sanction 6 Any creditor or contributory may appear either to support or to oppose an application for sanction of the Court. If the sanction is obtained by misrepresentation, it will be rescinded 7

A general compromise of claims upon contributories as a class may be sanctioned 8, but not so as to be binding on an unwilling minority 5. A compromise with contributories on the A list does not release contributories on the B list 9, or affect the liability of other contributories on the A list 10

Compromise between liquidator and company A compromise between a liquidator and a company is not binding upon the company until it is sanctioned by an extraordinary resolution of the company 11 But it has been held that a person entering into a compromise with a voluntary liquidator is not bound to see that the liquidator has got the necessary sanction. He is entitled to assume that the requisite authority has been obtained 12

If a claim made against a company in voluntary liquidation is brought to the Court for adjudication under s 21 (now s 216) the liquidator cannot compromise without the Court's sanction 12

General compromise The power to compromise extends to making a general compromise with creditors or contributories as a class notwithstanding difference in position among them, and without enquiring closely into the merits of each individual 13 A compromise entered into with a contributory on the A list does not discharge his transferee on the B list 14 and if the B contributory is called upon to pay his transferee remains liable notwithstanding the compromise to indemnify him.

Whether an order to sanction a compromise made under this section or s. 19 there must be such evidence before the Court as will enable it to exercise a judicial discretion in the matter.

As to appeal see s. 202 and notes.

235. (1) Where in the course of winding up a company it appears that any person who has taken part in the formation or promotion of the company or any past or present director, manager or liquidator, or any officer of the company has misapplied or retained or become liable or accountable for any money or property of the company, or been guilty of any misfeasance or breach of trust in relation to the company,

Power of Court to assess damages against delinquent directors etc

the Court may on the application of the liquidator or of any creditor or contributory made within the years from the date of the first appointment of a liquidator in the winding up, set the misapplication, retention, misfeasance or breach of trust in the case may be whichever is longer, examine into the conduct of the promoter, director, manager, liquidator or officer, and compel him to repay or restore the money or property or any part thereof respectively with interest at such rate as the Court thinks just, or to contribute such sum to the assets of the company by way of compensation in respect of the misapplication, retention, misfeasance or breach of trust as the Court thinks just.

(2) This section shall apply notwithstanding that the offence is one for which the offender may be criminally responsible.

By the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936 in sub s (1) of this section the words in italics have been inserted and sub s (3) has been omitted. See Introduction.

The sub s (3) was as follows —

(3) The Indian Limitation Act 1908, shall apply to an application under this section as if such application were a suit.

There was a great conflict of decisions in different High Courts as to whether Arts 36, 90, 113, 116 or 190 of the Limitation Act was applicable to an application under this section. This has been removed by the above amendment which provides a special limitation of three years from the date of the first appointment of a liquidator or of the misapplication, retention, misfeasance or breach of trust whichever is longer. As the cases under the old sub s (1) have become obsolete they have been omitted from the present edition.

This section creates no new or additional right or liability 1. Being a procedure section only it provides a summary way of enforcing against directors or other officers a liability for breach of trust or other misconduct which previously might have been enforced by action 2. To bring a case within the section it is essential (1) that there has been a breach of trust, (2) that the breach has resulted in pecuniary loss to the company and (3) that the applicant has an interest in the result of the application 3. Orders in a misfeasance proceeding under this section do not bar a suit against a third person whose wrongful act has caused loss to the company for such proceedings are domestic proceedings between the company and its officers and the orders are passed in a special jurisdiction investing the Court with certain powers over the internal affairs of the company 4.

The section is not in terms meant to be applied for the purpose of enforcing claims due under contracts between the company and other persons whether such persons happen to be directors or not. Therefore the section cannot be invoked for the purpose of enforcing payment for arrears of rent due by a director to the company 5. It does not extend to all cases in which a company has a right of action against an officer, but is limited to cases where there has been something in the nature of a breach of duty by an officer as such which has caused pecuniary loss to the company 6. "It has been settled that the misfeasance spoken of in that section is not misfeasance in the abstract, but misfeasance in the nature of a breach of trust resulting in a loss to the company 7."

Meaning of misfeasance covers every misconduct by an officer of the company as such for which he might apart from the section have been sued 8. Thus directors may be compelled to replace dividends paid out of capital 9 money applied for a purpose which the company cannot sanction 10 money improperly paid for undersitting commission 11 or money improperly paid to or received from a promoter 12. The more serious acts of misfeasance are the allotment of shares by the directors without having received the minimum subscription or the money due on application for shares obtaining by fraud the certificate for commencement of business commencing business although the directors had not paid the application and allotment moneys due on their shares 6. For a wilful contravention of the provisions of s 101 the directors will be liable to pay

Cic 62,

The misfeasance summons has been constantly resorted to # 7, where directors have used funds of the company for objects not sanctioned by the company's memorandum of association or paid dividends out of capital or made secret profits or sold their property to the company.

It is a misfeasance for directors to qualify themselves by taking shares from the promoters holding them in trust for the latter and executing a blank transfer which the promoter may fill up and so disqualify the directors whenever they please the result being that the directors are bound to act according to the will of the promoters 1 In such a case the directors will be liable for the amount of qualification and may be liable for acts done on account of their subservient position 1 It is wrong and improper for the directors to accept any gift whatever while the consideration or completion of a contract is still open 2

Directors are responsible for the management of the company where by the articles of association the business is to be conducted by the board with the assistance of an agent. They cannot divest themselves of their responsibility by delegating the whole management to the agent and abstaining from all enquiry. If the latter proves unfaithful under such circumstances, the liability is theirs just as much as if they themselves had been unfaithful. In such a case the estate of the deceased director is liable on the ground that the misfeasance of a director is a breach of trust and not a mere personal default. The section gives a summary remedy only against such directors or other officers as have been personally guilty of some act of misfeasance and does not give the Court power to make an order against the directors in masse for all acts of misfeasance without any specific finding against the individuals who are actually responsible for the particular acts of misfeasance. A elaborate discussion as to the liability of directors and auditors under this section will be found in the case noted below where the previous authorities have been considered.

Although the liability of a director depends more or less on the particular circumstances of each case and also the memorandum and articles yet apart from this where the directors have been wilfully shutting their eyes to the acts of the agents or managing agents and recklessly sanctioning acts of such agents consciously and thereby aiding misfeasance, misapplication and falsification of balance sheets and the state of affairs continues over a series of years the directors are guilty of misconduct and are liable to pay compensation &

This section applies to the conduct of a director as such and anything done by him during the period of his directorship in his capacity as a debtor cannot be made a ground of liability under the section 7. A director is not trustee of the loans advanced by a company before his acceptance of office as such a. Where in an application under this section the liquidator sought to establish the liability of an ex director on the ground that he did not, at the time of his appointment as director disclose his indebtedness to the company, it was held that it was the duty of the applicant to satisfy the Court that loss or damage resulted to the company from the alleged non disclosure (1st note last page)

The insertion of names of persons as vendors when they have no real interest in the property sold being a device for enabling them to get fully paid up shares for their services in the promotion of the company if such shares are issued to them it is a misfeasance on the part of the directors 1

The mere fact that the directors of a company carrying on banking business allow advances to be made on the strength of a promise by the debtor to execute a mortgage instead of the mortgage itself does not amount to an act of misfeasance on the part of the directors so as to make them personally liable to the extent of the amount of advances, but where the directors permit a depositor to make an overdraft and one of the directors who is a creditor of such depositor receives a portion of the amount represented by the overdraft in payment of the debt due to him by the depositor such director cannot be allowed to retain the amount and is liable to refund it to the bank 2

De facto directors or managers are liable if loss has resulted to the company through their acts of misfeasance 3 The executors of a deceased officer are not officers and are not therefore liable to misfeasance proceedings 4 but the survivors of several directors are liable 5 The estate of a deceased director however remains liable for his breaches of trust 6 but not for his negligence 7

"If the directors apply money of the company for purposes so outside its powers that the company could not sanction such application they may be made personally liable as for a breach of trust. On the other hand if they apply the money of the company or exercise any of its powers in a manner which is not ultra vires then a strong and clear case of misfeasance must be made out to render them liable. Lord Hatherley in Overend & Gurney Co v Gibb 8 intimates that in such a case their conduct must amount to crassa negligentia. In Martins Case 9 a definite test is applied, Lord Justice James said — 'A director should not be held liable upon any very strict rules which were laid down by the Court of Chancery to make unfortunate trustees liable, directors are not to be made liable on those strict rules which have been applied to trustees. And he intimates that the negligence for which a director would be held liable must be such as would make a managing director of a business liable to his employers. Lord Justice Brett said, the director must be 'guilty of such negligence as would make him liable in an action. Mere imprudence is not such negligence. Want of judgment is not. It must be such negligence as would make a man liable in point of law', and with this Lord Justice Cotton concurs. This is the law' 10

Where the managing director of a bank wishing the bank to make a better show than the real facts of its working would warrant in order to maintain the confidence of the shareholders and the public and so to make possible a project for increasing the bank's capital by some manipulation of the accounts induced the shareholders to declare a larger dividend, it was held that the managing director was guilty under s 109 I P C because being entrusted with the property of the bank, he dishonestly used and disposed of some of the property contrary to the bank's articles of association causing the shareholders to declare a dividend larger than what the profits warranted 1 If a balance sheet falsely states the condition of the company, it is a false balance sheet though it follows the accounts as shown in the books of the company 2

A managing director occupies the position of a trustee for the company and he is bound to exercise his powers for the benefit of the company and for that alone He cannot in law withdraw from the till of the company a sum of money and mix it with money belonging to himself In such a case he is guilty of breach of trust and misfeasance 3 An order under this section should however be made only on a clear case being made out 3 The fact that the act was not concealed from the auditors does not obviate the guilt nor can it be ratified by the board of directors 3 The funds of the company cannot be used by the directors for paying their own litigation costs although these would not have been incurred if they had not been directors 4 But the costs of prosecution for libel on the company if properly incurred, must be paid by the company 5 A director is no doubt liable to the company for any unauthorized profits made by virtue of his office 6 But if he is acting in the interest of the company, he is not liable merely because he is also promoting his own interest 7

If a director has received moneys of the company which it was ultra vires for it to pay, he can be made to repay it at the instance of the liquidator or creditors although all the shareholders knew and approved of the payment 8 But it is otherwise if the payment was intra vires 9 Where directors receive benefits from promoters or vendors complete disclosure of the facts in the prospectus will protect the former from liability to repay 10 A partial and misleading disclosure however will not suffice 11

Where money is lost through an error of judgment on the part of the directors it cannot be recovered either under this section or by action 12 A director is not bound to bring any special qualification to his office or to have knowledge of the particular class of business he controls, but if he has knowledge he must use it to the best of his ability 13 A release given in general terms by a company to a director will not be a protection 1, but articles declaring that the director shall be liable only in the case of dishonesty is a protection against a claim for negligence 12 (of last page) But see s 8 C. A director is not bound to examine entries in the books and is entitled to rely on accounts kept and audited by duly authorized officers 2

A director cannot set off a debt due to him from the company against his liability to pay damages for misfeasance 3

Distribution of money to the shareholders in the shape of dividends or profits when in fact no profits are being earned is misapplication of the company's funds. When the directors blindly trust a dishonest manager and allow themselves to be in utter ignorance of the affairs of the company they cannot escape liability although they are not dishonest 4. So the auditor who if he had done his duty, would readily have discovered the true state of affairs is similarly liable 4. But where a director in assenting to the payment of dividends out of capital and to advances on improper security honestly relied on the judgment information and the advice of the chairman and general manager by whose statements he was misled and whose integrity skill and competence he had no reason for suspecting it was held by the House of Lords that he was not negligent of his duties as director and was not liable on the winding up 5. 'I cannot think' observed Lord Halsbury L C 'that it can be expected of a director that he should be watching either the interior officers of the bank or verifying the calculations of the auditor. The business of life could not go on if people could not trust those who are put into a position of trust for the express purpose of attending to details of management' 6

A misfeasance summons may be brought against promoters in respect of undisclosed profits received by them 7. Such summons may be brought against directors where they have received money from promoters in pursuance of an agreement to indemnify against loss on qualification shares 8 or where they have received money from vendors to the company to pay for qualification shares 9. They are also liable for presents or remuneration improperly received out of the assets of the company 10. As to travelling expenses taken by directors see the case noted below 11. Directors and promoters, who do not disclose the fact that they are vendors of property are guilty of a breach of duty and the company has a remedy against them even on a misfeasance summons 12. In all cases in which a director becomes entitled to profits in fraud of the company, the latter can recover the amount of the commission or bribe not only from the director but also from the person giving the bribe 13. The principle that a person in a fiduciary position must not make secret profits is based not on actual fraud but on motives of public policy 14. Directors of an insolvent company cannot use their creditor is the Crown 1 But generally speaking where the company has been dissolved the remedy by misfeasance application no longer exists (last note last page) The liquidator in a voluntary winding up is not liable from negligence liable for wrongly admitting a claim by an alleged creditor but where the liquidator does not fulfil his duty of properly investigating the claim he is liable for misfeasance especially where the claim is an invalid one 2

The question as to the liability of a liquidator who without negligence allowed proof of a person having no legal claim was left open by the Court of Appeal in England in Windsor Steam Coal Co 3 A high standard of care and diligence is however required from a liquidator in a voluntary winding up It is his duty to investigate the validity of the proofs and where this duty is not discharged the liquidator cannot escape liability The articles of a company not being a contract between the company and its liquidator do not give protection to liquidators but this section gives a wide discretion to the court 4 Following Sunlight Oil Lamp Ltd (1900) 15 T I R 53; Mingham J in the last cited case held that the liquidator should be ordered to contribute by way of compensation only such a sum as would enable all creditors to be paid in full with interest at 5 p c The position of a liquidator examining a proof for admission or rejection is the same as that of a trustee in bankruptcy as decided in In re Van Jaun (1857) 2 K B 21

An auditor who is duly appointed by a general meeting and not casually called in as occasion may require in an officer of the company within the meaning of this section 5 A misfeasance summons is a proper remedy when an auditor by his neglect of duty has caused property of the company to be improperly paid away as for instance in dividends 6 See notes to s 144

The question however whether the auditors are to be considered as officers of the company must be decided with reference to each company by a consideration of the particular facts and especially by reference to the articles of association 7 Where a person has been appointed auditor and in pursuance thereof does the work of audit he cannot be heard to say that his appointment was invalid or irregular 8 As to whether an auditor is an officer within the meaning of a particular clause in the articles of association see notes to s 144

If the auditor fails in his duty of examining the books of the company carefully and satisfying himself that they show the true financial position the auditors will be jointly and severally liable with those who are responsible for the management of the company although he is not guilty of any dishonesty 9

Neither bankers nor solicitors are officers of a company within the meaning of this section 10 but if the solicitor has other duties and occupies a different position from that of a purely legal adviser, he may come within the section 11

Proceedings under the Act are proceedings in a Court of civil jurisdiction within the meaning of s 141 of the Code of Civil Procedure and a liquidation Court in which a misfeasance proceeding is pending can in a proper case, make an order for attachment before judgment under Or 38 R 5 C P C 1

A representative or an executor of a promoter director and such other persons cannot be brought within the purview of this section. The liquidator may however bring a regular suit against such a representative 2

In the case of death of a director his estate remains liable for any breach of trust he has committed 3 but not for negligence 4 trespass or deceit 4 unless his estate has benefited by the fraud 5 Where a director has been guilty of misconduct in sanctioning a loan fraudulently and in violation of the rules a suit against him by the company for compensation is not one merely for tort but is one for breach of fiduciary obligation towards the company. Even if it is viewed as a suit for tort the right to sue survives on his death against his legal representatives by the application of s 306 of the succession Act 6

If the directors without the knowledge of the shareholders vote and pay themselves out of the company's funds commissions on purchase and sales and make no mention of it in their report and balance sheet they are liable to repay the amount with interest 7

A director is liable for the acts of his co-directors if knowing that they intend to commit a breach of trust he does not by applying for injunction or other wise, prevent it 8 But a director who has in fact retired, is not liable for subsequent acts or statements 9 Nor is an innocent director liable for the fraud of his co-directors in issuing to the shareholders false and fraudulent reports and balance sheets if the books and accounts of the company have been kept and audited by duly appointed and responsible officer and he has no ground for suspecting fraud 2a Consequently if such a director has received dividends declared and paid in pursuance of such reports and balance-sheets such dividends having been in fact payments of capital he cannot be called upon to repay the dividends so paid 10

But a director who knowing the improper character of a transaction contents himself with protesting only stands in no better position than his fellow directors 11 He cannot escape liability by professing ignorance of a state of affairs which he might have learnt from the books of the company 12 Where the debtor does not pay his debt and the loan is tainted with dishonesty of the directors, they must be held responsible for the debt which is found to be bad 1 The question whether a particular debt is worth pursuing by suit or in execution is however largely a matter of discretion in the hands of business men and the Court cannot hold managers responsible for every unrecovered debt merely because steps by way of suit were not taken 2

A director can maintain a suit for contribution against his co directors in respect of damages paid under this section and the liability to contribute survives in the case of death of a co director 3 But where two directors join in signing a cheque whereby a part of the company's funds is used for a purpose not authorised by the articles and one of the directors is subsequently compelled to replace the money so used he cannot recover contribution from the other if the money has been applied for the sole benefit of the director claiming contribution even if the other director has consented to its being so used 4

A misfeasance proceeding under this section is merely an examination by the Court into the conduct of an officer of the company, and as a result of that examination the Court may order the officer to restore the money or the property of the company as the Court may think just Such proceedings cannot be said in any way to be a suit or other legal proceeding within the meaning of s 280 Hence on this ground as well as on the ground of public policy an official liquidator who files a misfeasance summons cannot be required to furnish security for costs 5

The onus is on the plaintiff to prove misfeasance 6 As to the measure of damages see the case noted below 7

An order allowing an amendment of a petition made under this section entirely altering its character by introducing grave questions of fraud after a period of two and a half years has been held to be highly judicial 8

As to the power of the Court to grant relief to a director who has been guilty of negligence or breach of trust see s 281

236. If any director, manager, officer or contributory of any company being wound up destroys, mutilates, alters or falsifies or fraudulently secretes any books, papers or securities, or makes, or is privy to the making of any false or fraudulent entry in any register book of account or document belonging to the company with intent to defraud or deceive any person, he shall be liable to imprisonment for a term which may extend to seven years, and shall also be liable to fine

237. (1) If it appears to the Court in the course of a winding up by, or subject to the supervision of, the Court that any Prosecution of delinquent directors past or present director, manager or other officer, or any member, of the company has been guilty of any offence in relation to the company for which he is criminally liable, the Court may, either on the application of any person interested in the winding up or of its own motion direct the liquidator either himself to prosecute the offender or to refer the matter to the registrar.

(2) If it appears to the liquidator in the course of a voluntary winding up that any past or present director, manager or other officer, or any member, of the company has been guilty of any offence in relation to the company for which he is criminally liable, he shall forthwith report the matter to the registrar and shall furnish to him such information and give to him such access to and facilities for inspecting and taking copies of any documents, books, information or documents in the possession or under the control of the liquidator relating to the matter in question, as he may require.

(3) Where any report is made under sub-section (2) to the registrar, he may, if he thinks fit, refer the matter to the Local Government for further inquiry, and the Local Government shall thereupon investigate the matter and may, if they think it expedient, apply to the Court for an order conferring on any person designated by the Local Government for the purpose with respect to the company concerned all such powers of investigating the affairs of the company as are provided by this Act in the case of a winding up by the Court.

(4) If on any report to the registrar under sub-section (2) it appears to him that the case is not one in which proceedings ought to be taken by him, he shall inform the liquidator accordingly, and thereupon, subject to the previous sanction of the Court, the liquidator may himself take proceedings against the offender.

(5) If it appears to the Court in the course of a voluntary winding up that any past or present director, manager or other officer, or any member, of the company has been guilty as aforesaid, and that no report with respect to the matter has been made by the liquidator to the registrar, the Court may, on the application of any person interested in the winding up or of its own motion, direct the liquidator to make such a report, and on a report being made accordingly, the provisions of this section shall have effect as though the report has been made in pursuance of the provisions of sub-section (2).

(6) If, where any matter is referred to the registrar under this section, he considers that a prosecution ought to be instituted before the Advocate General or the public prosecutor and of every officer and agent of the company (other than the defendant in the proceedings) assistance in connection with the prosecution shall be given.

Provided that no prosecution shall be instituted giving the accused person an opportunity of making a statement to the registrar and of being heard thereon.

For the purposes of this sub-section, the legal adviser of the company shall be deemed to include any person employed by the company as auditor, whether that person is or is not a member of the company.

(7) If any person fails or neglects to give assistance required by sub-section (6), the Court may, on the application of the registrar, direct that person to comply with the requirements of the said sub-section, and where any such application is made in respect to a liquidator, the Court may, unless it appears that failure or neglect to comply was due to the liquidator not having sufficient assets of the company to enable him to do so, direct that the costs of the application shall be borne by the person personally.

By the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936 this section has been substituted by the original s 237. It reproduces s 241 of the English Act of 1900. Its effect see Introduction. The original s 237 was as follows —

237 (1) If it appears to the Court in the course of a winding up or subject to the supervision of the Court that any person present director, manager, officer or member of the company has been guilty of any offence in relation to the company for which he is criminally responsible the Court may, on the application of any person interested in the winding up, or on its own motion, direct the official liquidator or the liquidator (as the case may be) to prosecute for the offence and may order the costs and expenses to be paid out of the assets of the company.

(2) If it appears to the liquidator in the course of a voluntary winding up that any past or present director, manager, officer or member of the company has been guilty of any offence in relation to the company for which he is criminally responsible, the liquidator with the previous sanction of the Court, may prosecute the offender, and all expenses properly incurred by him in the prosecution shall be payable out of the assets of the company in priority to all other liabilities.

In order to determine whether leave ought to be given to institute criminal proceedings under this section and whether the costs of the prosecution ought to be paid out of the assets of the company the Court will consider whether it is a case in which an honest and upright man desiring as a good citizen, of doing his duty by the State would feel that he ought at his own expense to institute a prosecution 1

The law in this respect was laid down by Buckley J in London and Globe Finance Corp'n (supra) in the following words I have next to consider upon what principles I ought to exercise the power given me by s 162 of the Companies Act 1862 to direct the official receiver to institute and conduct a prosecution at the expense of the assets It is obvious that no one legitimately can or ought to institute a criminal prosecution with a view to his personal profit Neither should a prosecution be instituted from motives of vengeance against the offender The motives of every prosecution ought to be to inflict punishment upon the criminal for the proper enforcement of the law and for the advantage of the State and with a view to deter others from doing the like From the prosecution no doubt there may arise benefit to the prosecutor in the sense that if he be a person interested in commerce it may be to his advantage to enforce commercial morality But except in this sense the personal advantage of the prosecutor is not to be regarded —at p 733

Then again Next affirmatively what are the considerations which ought to govern it? If the person at whose expense the prosecution would be instituted were not a class but were a single person and that person were an honest and upright man desirous as a good citizen of doing his duty by the State are the circumstances such as in discharge of that duty he would feel that he ought at his own expense and to his own loss to institute a prosecution? Not in every case in which a criminal offence has been committed would such a one think it his duty to prosecute The question to be answered is Would he in the case think his duty to the State required him to prosecute? If that question be answered in the affirmative then upon principle I think that the Court ought to direct a prosecution Further I think that the Court can and in a proper case ought to direct a prosecution without the assent and even notwithstanding the dissent, of the class or many of the class at whose expense the prosecution would be instituted It is noticeable that the section provides that the Court may act of its own motion No principle suggests itself to me upon which the Court ought 'of its own motion' to direct a prosecution other than that above indicated —at pp 734-5,

The jurisdiction of directing a prosecution of directors or officers for offences in relation to the company for which they are criminally responsible is unfettered and may be exercised by the Court when it is satisfied that a prima facie case in support of the application has been made out without allowing the application to stand over to enable evidence to be adduced in opposition 2

The offences specially dealt with in regard to companies are those referred to in ss 276 and 282

1 London & Globe Finance Corp'n [1903] 1 Ch 729, Charles Denham & Co [1881] W N 122 51 L J 570 51 L J [Ch] 113

- (c) within twelve months next before the commencement of the winding up or at any time thereafter fraudulently removes any part of the property of the company to the value of one hundred rupees or upwards, or
- (d) makes any material omission in any statement relating to the affairs of the company, or
- (e) knowing or believing that a false debt has been proved by any person under the winding up, fails for the period of a month to inform the liquidator thereof, or
- (h) after the commencement of the winding up prevents the production of any book or paper affecting or relating to the property or affairs of the company, or
- (i) within twelve months next before the commencement of the winding up or at any time thereafter, conceals, destroys, mutilates or falsifies or is privy to the concealment, destruction, mutilation or falsification of any book or paper affecting or relating to the property or affairs of the company, or
- (j) within twelve months next before the commencement of the winding up or at any time thereafter makes or is privy to the making of any false entry in any book or paper affecting or relating to the property or affairs of the company, or
- (l) within twelve months next before the commencement of the winding up or at any time thereafter fraudulently parts with, alters or makes any omission in, or is privy to the fraudulent parting with, altering or making any omission in, any document affecting or relating to the property or affairs of the company, or
- (l) after the commencement of the winding up or at any meeting of the creditors of the company within twelve months next before the commencement of the winding up, attempts to account for any part of the property of the company by fictitious losses or expenses; or
- (m) has within twelve months next before the commencement of the winding up or at any time thereafter, by any false representation or other fraud, obtained any property for or on behalf of the company on credit which the company does not subsequently pay for, or

- (n) within twelve months next before the commencement of the winding up or at any time thereafter, under the false pretence that the company is carrying on its business, obtains on credit, for or on behalf of the company, any property which the company does not subsequently pay for, or
- (o) within twelve months next before the commencement of the winding up or at any time thereafter pawn, pledges or disposes of any property of the company which has been obtained on credit and has not been paid for, unless such pawning, pledging or disposing is in the ordinary way of the business of the company, or
- (p) is guilty of any false representation or other fraud for the purpose of obtaining the consent of the creditors of the company or any of them to an agreement with reference to the affairs of the company or to the winding up,

he shall be punishable, in the case of the offences mentioned respectively in clauses (m), (n) and (o) of this sub-section, with imprisonment for a term not exceeding five years, and, in the case of any other offence, with imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years

Provided that it shall be a good defence to a charge under any of clauses (b), (c), (d), (t), (u) and (o), if the accused proves that he had no intent to defraud, and to a charge under any of clauses (a), (h), (i) and (j), if he proves that he had no intent to conceal the state of affairs of the company or to defeat the law

(2) Where any person pawn, pledges or disposes of any property in circumstances which amount to an offence under clause (o) of sub-section (1) every person who takes in pawn or pledge or otherwise receives the property knowing it to be pawned, pledged or disposed of in such circumstances as aforesaid shall be punishable with imprisonment for a term not exceeding three years

This section has been inserted by the Companies (Amendment) Act 1929 following s. 271 of the English Act of 1929 for its effect see Introduction

239 (1) Where by this Act the Court is authorised in relation to winding up to have regard to the wishes of creditors or contributories and if it is proved by any sufficient evidence, the Court may if it thinks it for the purpose of ascertaining those wishes, direct meetings of the creditors or contributories to be called held and conducted in such manner as the Court directs, and may appoint a person to act as chairman of any such meeting and to report the result thereof to the Court.

Meetings to ascertain wishes of creditors or contributories

(2) In the case of creditors, regard shall be had to the value of each creditor's debt.

(3) In the case of contributories, regard shall be had to the number of votes conferred on each contributory by the articles.

Meetings can be called under this section at any time after presentation of the petition. The Court is not bound by the wishes of the majority and may disregard them where the majority consist of persons whose conduct is imputed 2 or where a single person has a controlling interest 3.

Court may disregard wishes of majority

As to meetings to be summoned by the liquidator after the winding up order see the provisions of s. 153.

Compare ss. 174 and 1223 and see notes to those sections.

240 Where any company is being wound up, all documents of the company and of the liquidators shall, as between the contributories of the company, be prima facie evidence of the truth of all matters purporting to be therein recorded.

Documents of company to be evidence

The documents are only prima facie evidence and may be rebutted 4.

241 After an order for a winding up by or subject to the supervision of the Court, the Court may make such order for inspection by creditors and contributories of the company of its documents as the Court thinks just, and any documents in the possession of the company may be inspected by creditors or contributories accordingly, but not further or otherwise.

Inspection of documents

Even in the case of a voluntary liquidation the right to inspect the register of members or the register of mortgage debentures arises as soon as the winding up commences 5, but leave to inspect can be obtained under this section 6. Where leave to inspect is obtained it will include the right to take copies 7.

Right of inspection

Meaning of books The word books includes the register of mortgages 1 After a winding up order this section supercedes ss 36 and 121 2

Taking copies Where an order is made giving liberty to take copies at the expense of the applicant he is not bound to ask the liquidator to make copies and to pay the liquidator for the copies 3

An order for inspection will be made notwithstanding a contrary clause in the articles 4

242 (1) When a company has been wound up and is about to be dissolved, the documents of the company and of the liquidators may be disposed of as follows (that is to say) —

(a) in the case of a winding up by or subject to the supervision of the Court, in such way as the Court directs,

(b) in the case of a voluntary winding up, in such way as the company by extraordinary resolution directs

(2) After three years from the dissolution of the company, no responsibility shall rest on the company or the liquidator or any person to whom the custody of the documents has been committed, by reason of the same not being forthcoming to any person claiming to be interested therein

In sub sec (1) it is five years in the English Act

Voluntary winding up In the case noted below 5 when the company had been dissolved after a voluntary winding up the liquidator was ordered to produce documents upon the footing that they were under his absolute control

243 (1) Where a company has been dissolved, the Court may at any time within two years of the date of the dissolution on an application being made for the purpose by the liquidator of the company or by any other person who appears to the Court to be interested, make an order, upon such terms as the Court thinks fit, declaring the dissolution to have been void, and thereupon such proceedings may be taken as might have been taken if the company had not been dissolved

(2) It shall be the duty of the person on whose application the order was made, within twenty one days after the making of the order, to file with the registrar a certified copy of the order, and if that person fails so to do, he shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees for every day during which the default continues.

Upon the application within two years of the liquidator or any interested person the Court can declare the dissolution void and stay all proceedings 1

An order of dissolution cannot be set aside on the ground of fraud unless fraud is alleged and proved. By what procedure it is sought to overthrow a judgment on the ground of fraud the fraud must be definitely alleged and its particulars unequivocally stated 2

Where a company is received by order of the Court after dissolution its rights prior to the dissolution are not affected 3. As to who are the persons interested see the case noted below 4

The dissolution does not deprive the liquidator from taking action in respect of assets realized after the dissolution 5. Where the liquidator within two years from its dissolution presented a petition in which he craved the Court to declare the dissolution void so as to enable him to grant a title to a certain property which belonged to the company and had been sold subsequent to the dissolution the leave so craved was granted 6

An order under this section declaring the dissolution of a company to have been void does not affect the validity of proceedings taken during the interval between the dissolution and its avoidance 7

Where the assets might be in vacante upon an application on the ground that there were un-distributed assets of the dissolved company the Court held that the Attorney General on behalf of the Crown should be served 8

For the form of an order under this section see the case noted below 9

244 (1) Where a company is being wound up, if the winding up is not concluded within one year after its commencement, the liquidator shall, once in each year at intervals of not more than twelve months, until the winding up is concluded, file in Court or with the registrar, as the case may be, a statement in the prescribed form and containing the prescribed particulars with respect to the proceedings in and position of the liquidation

(2) Any person stating himself in writing to be a creditor or contributory of the company shall be entitled, by himself or by his agent, at all reasonable times, on payment of the prescribed fee, to inspect the statement, and to receive a copy thereof or extract therefrom, but any person untruthfully so stating himself to be a creditor or contributory shall be deemed to be guilty of an offence under section 182 of the Indian Penal Code, and shall be punishable accordingly on the application of the liquidator.

(3) If a liquidator fails to comply with the requirements of this section, he shall be liable to a fine not exceeding five hundred rupees for each day during which the default continues.

(4) When the statement is filed in Court a copy shall simultaneously be filed with the registrar and shall be kept by him along with the other records of the company.

By the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936 in sub s (1) for the words 'at such intervals as may be prescribed' after the words 'the liquidator shall' the words 'once in each year and at intervals of not more than twelve months' and after the words 'is concluded' for the words 'file with the registrar' the words 'file in Court or with the registrar as the case may be' have been substituted. By the same Act the new sub s (4) has been added.

The provisions of this section apply whether the company is being wound up by or under the supervision of the Court or voluntarily.

244A (1) Every liquidator of a company which is being wound up by the Court shall in such manner and at such times as may be prescribed, pay the money received by him into a scheduled bank as defined in clause (c) of section 2 of the Reserve Bank of India Act, 1934.

Provided that if the Court is satisfied that for the purpose of carrying on the business of the company or of obtaining advances or for any other reason it is for the advantage of the creditors or contributories that the liquidator should have an account with any other bank, the Court may authorise the liquidator to make his payments into or out of such other bank as the Court may select and thereupon those payments shall be made in the prescribed manner.

(2) If any such liquidator at any time retains for more than ten days a sum exceeding five hundred rupees or such other sum as the Court may in any particular case authorise him to retain, unless he explains the retention to the satisfaction of the Court, he shall pay interest on the amount so retained in the rate of twenty per cent per annum and shall be disallowed all or such part of his remuneration.

Section 245 — For "the Governor General in Council" substitute "the Central Government or the Crown Representative"

(2) All Courts, Judges, Justices, Commissioners and persons acting judicially in British India shall take judicial notice of the seal or stamp or signature (as the case may be) of any such Court, Judge, person, Consul or Vice-Consul attached, appended or subscribed to any such affidavit or to any other document to be used for the purposes of this Part

Rules

246 (1) The High Court may, from time to time make rules consistent with this Act and with the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, concerning the mode of proceedings to be had for winding up a company in such Court and in the Courts subordinate thereto and for voluntary winding up (both members and creditors), for the holding of meetings of creditors and members in connection with proceedings under section 153 of this Act, and for giving effect to the provisions hereinbefore contained as to the reduction of the capital and the sub-divisions of the shares of a company and generally for all applications to be made to the Court under the provisions of this Act, and shall make rules providing for all matters relating to the winding up of companies which, by this Act, are to be prescribed

(2) Without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing power, the High Court may by such rules enable or require any of the powers and duties conferred and imposed on the Court by this Act, in respect of the matters following exercised or performed by the official liquidator, and subject to the control of the Court, that is to say, the powers and duties of the Court in respect of—

- (1) holding and conducting meetings to ascertain the wishes of creditors and contributories,
- (1) settling lists of contributories and rectifying the register of members where required, and collecting and applying the assets,
- (1) requiring delivery of property or documents to the liquidator,
- (1) making calls,
- (1) fixing a time within which debts and claims must be proved

Provided that the official liquidator shall not, without the special leave of the Court, rectify the register of members and shall not make any call without the special leave of the Court

The words at the end of sub s (1) and shall make rules prescribed were inserted by Act 11 of 1915 and the words in italics in the same sub section have been inserted by the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936 See Introduction

The power of the High Court of making rules under this section was limited to making rules concerning the mode of proceeding to be had for winding up a company and for giving effect to the provisions as to reduction of capital and sub division of shares For the purpose of regulating the costs in other proceedings in company matters recourse must be had to rules framed by the High Court under the rule making powers under the High Courts Act 1 But now by the amendment power has been given to make rules generally for all applications under this Act

Removal of defunct Companies from Register

247. (1) Where the registrar has reasonable cause to believe that a company is not carrying on business or in operation he shall send to the company by post a letter inquiring whether the company is carrying on business or in operation

(2) If the registrar does not within one month of sending the letter receive any answer thereto, he shall within fourteen days after the expiration of the month send to the company by post a registered letter referring to the first letter, and stating that no answer thereto has been received and that, if an answer is not received to the second letter within one month from the date thereof, a notice will be published in the local official Gazette with a view to striking the name of the company off the register.

(3) If the registrar either receives an answer from the company to the effect that it is not carrying on business or in operation, or does not within one month after sending the second letter receive any answer, he may publish in the local official Gazette, and send to the company by post a notice that, at the expiration of three months from the date of that notice, the name of the company mentioned therein will, unless cause is shown to the contrary, be struck off the register and the company will be dissolved.

(4) If, in any case where a company is being wound up the registrar has reasonable cause to believe either that no liquidator is acting or that the affairs of the company are fully wound up, and the returns required to be made by the liquidator have not been made for a period of six consecutive months after notice by the registrar demanding the returns has been sent by post to the company, or to the liquidator at his last known place of business, the registrar may publish in the local official Gazette and send to the company a like notice as is provided in the last preceding sub-section.

(5) At the expiration of the time mentioned in the notice the registrar may unless cause to the contrary is previously shown by the company strike its name off the register, and shall publish notice thereof in the local official Gazette, and, on the publication in the local official Gazette of this notice, the company shall be dissolved. Provided that the liability (if any) of every director and member of the company shall continue and may be enforced as if the company had not been dissolved.

(6) If a company or any member or creditor thereof feels aggrieved by the company having been struck off the register, the Court, on the application of the company or member or creditor, may, if satisfied that the company was at the time of the striking off carrying on business or in operation, or otherwise that it is just that the company be restored to the register, order the name of the company to be restored to the register, and thereupon the company shall be deemed to have continued in existence as if its name had not been struck off, and the Court may by the order give such directions and make such provisions as seem just for placing the company and all other persons in the same position as nearly as may be as if the name of the company had not been struck off

(7) A letter or notice under this section may be addressed to the company at its registered office, or, if no office has been registered, to the care of some director, manager or other officer of the company, or, if there is no director, manager or other officer of the company whose name and address are known to the registrar, may be sent to each of the persons who subscribed the memorandum, addressed to him at the address mentioned in the memorandum

Companies which have never commenced operations or have ceased to carry on business and have no assets to divide are frequently disposed of (without winding up) under this section. In 1923 in England and Wales 1503 companies were in this manner removed from the register, as against 8008 registered and 2308 wound up during the year' 1

A company which is in the course of being wound up voluntarily is still in operation within the meaning of the section 2. A company, although not carrying on business may be in operation 3

The power given to the Court to restore to the register the name of a company which has been struck off by the registrar applies to the case of a company which at the time of the striking off was carrying on business only for the purpose of winding up voluntarily and realizing its assets 4

If a company is struck off the register under this section the personal liability of its officers for engagements made as its agents is preserved 5, and it may be enforced as if the company had not been dissolved. On the application for restoration of the name the Court has no power to impose a penalty as a condition of making the order 5. As to the title of the petition and the terms on which an order will be made see the case noted below 6

A third party has no locus standi to oppose a company's application for restoration under this section but he may be heard as amicus curiæ if the Court so pleases 7

Sub s (6). An order passed under sub s (6) refusing to restore a company is not made in the matter of winding up and hence is not appealable, but where the order is based on an erroneous view of the law it is open to revision 8. The registrar is not bound to remove a company from the register, even though an application be made for the purpose on discovering that the company is not functioning or that its members have been reduced to less than seven (see last note). Where the object of the application to the registrar under this section is to avoid liability in a suit pending against the company the application must be rejected. If the application is granted by the registrar the order is liable to be set aside by the Court.

Where an application was made by a shareholder under this clause for setting aside an order of the registrar and made him alone a party to the application and the Court set aside the order of the registrar it was held that in view of Order 1 in 1913 C.P.C. read with s. 181 (1) the company could not be said to have been properly represented by the registrar as the only person who could legally put in appearance on behalf of the company would either be its secretary or one of its directors though he was no party to the original proceedings. A director can apply for review of such an order.¹

As to the power of the Court to wind up a company which does not commence its business within a year from its incorporation or suspends its business for a whole year see s. 182 (iii) and notes thereto.

An application for winding up a company dissolved under this section may be made within three years of its dissolution.² In the last cited case it was held that Art 181 of the Limitation Act applies to such a case although it has been held in a long series of cases that Art. 181 of the Limitation Act is restricted to applications made under the Code of Civil Procedure.³

PART VI

REGISTRATION OFFICE AND FEES

248 (1) For the purposes of the registration of companies under this Act, there shall be offices at such places as the Local Government thinks fit, and no company shall be registered except at an office within the province in which, by the memorandum, the registered office of the company is declared to be established.

(2) The Local Government may appoint such registrars and assistant registrars as it thinks necessary for the registration of companies under this Act, and may make regulations with respect to their duties.

(3) The salaries of the persons appointed under this section shall be fixed by the Local Government.

(4) The Local Government may direct a seal or seals to be prepared for the authentication of documents required for or connected with the registration of companies.

(5) Any person may inspect the documents kept by the registrar on payment of such fees as may be appointed by the Local Government, not exceeding one rupee for each inspec-

(6) Whenever any act is by this Act directed to be done to or by the registrar it shall, until the Local Government otherwise directs, be done to or by the existing registrar of joint-stock companies or in his absence to or by such person as the Local Government may for the time being authorise, but, in the event of the Local Government altering the constitution of the existing registry offices or any of them, any such act shall be done to or by such officer and at such place with reference to the local situation of the registered offices of the companies to be registered as the Local Government may appoint.

249 (1) There shall be paid to the registrar in respect of the several matters mentioned in Table B in the First Schedule the several fees therein specified, or such smaller fees as the Governor General in Council may direct.

(2) All fees paid to the registrar in pursuance of this Act shall be accounted for to the Crown.

The Act does not contemplate new articles of association and where a company purports to adopt new articles of association they are nothing but special resolution and as such do not require to be stamped.

As to the smaller fees directed by the Governor General in Council see the Notification No 6161-G dated 27.7.1916 in the Appendix.

249A (1) If a company, having made default in complying with any provision of this Act which requires it to file with, deliver or send to the registrar any return, account or other document, or to give notice to him of any matter, fails to make good the default within fourteen days after the service of a notice on the company requiring it to do so, the Court may, on an application made to the Court by any member or creditor of the company or by the registrar, make an order directing the company and any officer thereof to make good the default within such time as may be specified in the order.

PART VII.

APPLICATION OF ACT TO COMPANIES FORMED AND REGISTERED UNDER FORMER COMPANIES ACTS

250 In the application of this Act to existing companies, it shall apply in the same manner in the case of a limited company, other than a company limited by guarantee, as if the company had been formed and registered under this Act as a company limited by shares, in the case of a company limited by guarantee, as if the company had been formed and registered under this Act as a company limited by guarantee, and, in the case of a company other than a limited company, as if the company had been formed and registered under this Act as an unlimited company.

Application of Act to companies formed under former Companies Acts

Provided that—

- (1) nothing in Table A in the First Schedule shall apply to a company formed and registered under Act XIX of 1857 and Act VII of 1860, or either of them, or under the Indian Companies Act, 1866, or the Indian Companies Act, 1882,
- (2) reference, express or implied, to the date of registration shall be construed as a reference to the date at which the company was registered under Act No XIX of 1857 and Act No VII of 1860, or either of them, or under the Indian Companies Act 1866, or the Indian Companies Act, 1882, as the case may be.

251 This Act shall apply to every company registered but not formed under Act No XIX of 1857 and Act No VII of 1860 or either of them, or under the Indian Companies Act 1866 or the Indian Companies Act, 1882, in the same manner as it is hereinafter in this Act declared to apply to companies registered but not formed under this Act.

Application of Act to companies registered but not formed under former Companies Acts

Provided that reference, express or implied, to the date of registration shall be construed as a reference to the date at which the company was registered under the said Acts or any of them.

As to the application of the Act to companies registered but not formed under the Act see s. 266

252. A company registered under Act XIX of 1857 and Act VII of 1860 or either of them may cause its shares to be transferred in the manner hitherto in use, or in such other manner as the company may direct

panies

255 Before the registration in pursuance of this Part of a joint-stock company, there shall be delivered to the registrar the following documents (that is to say) —

- (1) a list showing the names, addresses and occupations of all persons who on a day named in the list, not being more than six clear days before the day of registration, were members of the company, with the addition of the shares or stock held by them respectively, distinguishing, in cases where the shares are numbered each share by its number,
- (2) a copy of any Act of Parliament, Act of the Governor General in Council, Royal Charter, Letters Patent, deed of settlement, contract of copartnery or other instrument constituting or regulating the company, and
- (3) if the company is intended to be registered as a limited company, a statement specifying the following particulars (that is to say) —
 - (a) the nominal share capital of the company and the number of shares into which it is divided or the amount of stock of which it consists,
 - (b) the number of shares taken and the amount paid on each share,
 - (c) the name of the company with the addition of the word "Limited" as the last word thereof, and

(d) in the case of a company intended to be registered as a company limited by guarantee the resolution declaring the amount of the guarantee

256 Before the registration in pursuance of this Part of any company not being a joint-stock company there shall be delivered to the registrar—

(2) If the company omits to give the notice required by this section, then as between the company and the person for the time being interested in the account in respect of which the notice ought to have been given, and so far as respects the account down to the time at which notice is given, but not further or otherwise, the certificate of registration with limited liability shall have no operation

260 No fees shall be charged in respect of the registration in pursuance of this Part of a company if it is not registered as a limited company, or if before its registration as a limited company the liability of the shareholders was limited by some Act of Parliament or Act of the Governor General in Council or by Letters Patent

261 When a company registers in pursuance of this Part with limited liability, the word "Limited" shall form and be registered as part of its name

262 On compliance with the requirements of this Part with respect to registration, and on payment of such fees, if any, as are payable under Table B in the First Schedule, the registrar shall certify under his hand that the company applying for registration is incorporated as a company under this Act, and in the case of a limited company that it is limited, and thereupon the company shall be incorporated, and shall have perpetual succession and a common seal

The certificate of the registrar is conclusive evidence that the company was authorized to be registered

263 All property, moveable and immovable, including all interests and rights in, to and out of property, moveable and immovable, and including obligations and actionable claims as may belong to or be vested in a company at the date of its registration in pursuance of this Part, shall, on registration, pass to and vest in the company as incorporated under this Act for all the estate and interest of the company therein

264. The registration of a company in pursuance of this Part shall not affect the rights or liabilities of the company in respect of any debt or obligation incurred or any contract entered into, by, to, with, or on behalf of, the company before registration

If a previously unlimited company has been registered with a limited liability, a member in spite of the terms of its agreement before registration is not liable to contribute beyond the amount of his shares. A member of an unregistered company which is registered under this Act after the member has parted with all his shares is not a contributory.

265 All suits and other legal proceedings which at the time of the registration of a company in pursuance of this Part are pending by or against the company, or the public officer or any member thereof, may be continued in the same manner as if the registration had not taken place, nevertheless execution shall not issue against the effects of any individual member of the company on any decree or order obtained in any such suit or proceeding but, in the event of the property and effects of the company being insufficient to satisfy the decree or order an order may be obtained for winding up the company

266 When a company is registered in pursuance of this Part—

Effect of registration under Act

- (i) all provisions contained in any Act of Parliament Act of the Governor General in Council deed of settlement contract of copartnership, Letters Patent or other instrument constituting or regulating the company, including in the case of a company registered as a company limited by guarantee, the resolution declaring the amount of the guarantee, shall be deemed to be conditions and regulations of the company in the same manner and with the same incidence as if so much thereof as would, if the company had been formed under this Act have been required to be inserted in the memorandum, were contained in a registered memorandum and the residue thereof were contained in registered articles,
- (ii) all the provisions of this Act shall apply to the company and the members contributories and creditors thereof, in the same manner in all respects as if it had been formed under this Act, subject as follows (that is to say) —
- (i) the regulations in Table A in the First Schedule shall not apply unless adopted by special resolution
- (ii) the provisions of this Act relating to the numbering of shares shall not apply to any joint-stock company whose shares are not numbered,
- (c) subject to the provisions of this section, the company shall not have power to alter any provision contained in any Act of Parliament or

Act of the Governor General in Council relating to the company

- (d) subject to the provisions of this section the company shall not have power, without the sanction of the Governor General in Council, to alter any provision contained in any Letters Patent relating to the company ,
- (e) the company shall not have power to alter any provision contained in a Royal Charter or Letter Patent with respect to the objects of the company ,
- (f) in the event of the company being wound up, every person shall be a contributory, in respect of the debts and liabilities of the company contracted before registration, who is liable to pay or contribute to the payment of any debt or liability of the company contracted before registration or to pay or contribute to the payment of any sum for the adjustment of the rights of the members among themselves in respect of any such debt or liability or to pay or contribute to the payment of the costs and expenses of winding up the company so far as relates to such debts or liabilities as aforesaid and every contributory shall be liable to contribute to the assets of the company, in the course of the winding up all sums due from him in respect of any such liability as aforesaid , and in the event of the death or insolvency of any contributory, the provisions of this Act with respect to the legal representatives and heirs of deceased contributories , and with reference to the assignees of insolvent contributories, shall apply
- (iii) the provisions of this Act with respect to—
 - (a) the registration of an unlimited company as limited
 - (i) the powers of an unlimited company on registration as a limited company to increase the nominal amount of its share capital and to provide that a portion of its share capital shall not be capable of being called up except in the event of winding up

- (c) the power of a limited company to determine that a portion of its share capital shall not be capable of being called up except in the event of winding up, shall apply notwithstanding any provisions contained in any Act of Parliament, Act of the Governor General in Council, Royal Charter, deed of settlement, contract of co-partnership, Letters Patent or other instrument constituting or regulating the company;
- (n) nothing in this section shall authorise the company to alter any such provision contained in any deed of settlement, contract of co-partnership, Letters Patent or other instrument constituting or regulating the company, as would if the company had originally been formed under this Act, have been required to be contained in the memorandum and not authorised to be altered by this Act,
- (i) nothing in this Act shall derogate from any lawful power of altering its constitution or regulations which may, by virtue of any Act of Parliament, Act of the Governor General in Council, deed of settlement, contract of co-partnership, Letters Patent or other instrument constituting or regulating the company, be vested in the company.

Where a member of a unregistered company who is personally liable to be sued for the price of goods supplied to the company has parted with his shares before registration he is not by reason only of the registration released from his pre-existing liability

Power to substitute memorandum and articles for deed of settlement

(1) Subject to the provisions of this section, a company registered in pursuance of this Part may by special resolution alter the form of its constitution by substituting a memorandum and articles for a deed of settlement

(2) The provisions of this Act with respect to confirmation by the Court and registration of an alteration of the objects of a company shall, so far as applicable, apply to an alteration under this section with the following modifications—

- (a) there shall be substituted for the printed copy of the altered memorandum required to be filed with the registrar a printed copy of the substituted memorandum and articles, and

(b) on the registration of the alteration being certified by the registrar, the substituted memorandum and articles shall apply to the company in the same manner as if it were a company registered under this Act with that memorandum and those articles, and the company's deed of settlement shall cease to apply to the company

(3) An alteration under this section may be made either with or without any alteration of the objects of the company under this Act

(4) In this section the expression "deed of settlement" includes any contract of co-partnership or other instrument constituting or regulating the company, not being an Act of Parliament, an Act of the Governor General in Council, a Royal Charter or Letter Patent.

For the provisions of this Act with respect to confirmation by the Court and registration of an alteration of objects see s. 12 et seq

Where a company constituted by a deed of settlement has passed a special resolution to alter the form of its constitution by substituting a memorandum and articles of association for the deed pursuant to this section, the special resolution must be confirmed by the Court under this section even if the memorandum does not make any change in the objects of the company 1

The proposed resolution in such a case should be described as a special resolution and copies of the resolution and the proposed memorandum and articles of association should be sent with the notice of the meeting to the shareholders or if previously sent, should be referred to 2 The conditional notice that if passed, the resolution would be submitted to another general meeting at a specific place and date for final determination and approval is not sufficient 3

A company having power to amalgamate with any other company with similar objects under a contract of co-partnership which formed its constitutive writ presented a petition stating the Court to confirm an alteration of its form of constitution by substituting for the contract of co-partnership a memorandum and articles of association which had been adopted by a special resolution and to confirm an extension of its objects. The memorandum included among other objects power to "sell, transfer or dispose of the undertaking, property and rights heritable or moveable, real or personal and business of the company or any part thereof" it was held that the alteration made should be confirmed in so far as they conferred power to "sell business of the company" 4

268 The provision of this Act with respect to staying and restraining suits and legal proceedings against a company at any time after the presentation of a petition for winding up and before the making of a winding up order shall in the case of a company registered in pursuance of the Part I of the Act, be subject to the condition to stay or restrain is by a resolution of the court and legal proceedings against any contributory of the company.

A total prohibition of staying and restraining suits and legal proceedings against a company at any time after the presentation of a petition for winding up and before the making of a winding up order shall not apply.

269 Where an order has been made for winding up a company registered in pursuance of the Part I of the Act, no suit or other legal proceeding shall be commenced or proceeded with against the company or any contributory of the company in respect of any debt of the company except by leave of the court and subject to such terms as the court may impose.

This section is intended to apply to suits and proceedings instituted by the company or its contributory or by a third person as a creditor of the company or a contributory. It does not extend to suits brought by the company or its contributory to set aside or to wind up the company after the commencement of the suit.

The effect of a suit instituted after the commencement of the winding up is not to bar the institution of a claim before the official liquidator.

Compare s. 171 and see notes to that section.

PART IX.

WINDING UP OF UNREGISTERED COMPANIES

270 For the purposes of this Part, the expression "unregistered company" shall not include a railway company incorporated by Act of Parliament or by an Act of the Governor General in Council, nor a company registered under the Indian Companies Act, 1866, under any Act repealed thereby, or under the Indian Companies Act, 1862, or under this Act, but save as aforesaid shall include any partnership, association or company consisting of more than seven members.

- (n) no unregistered company shall be wound up under this Act voluntarily or subject to supervision
- (m) the circumstances in which an unregistered company may be wound up are as follows (that is to say) —
 - (a) if the company is dissolved, or has ceased to carry on business or is carrying on business only for the purpose of winding up its affairs
 - (b) if the company is unable to pay its debts
 - (c) if the Court is of opinion that it is just and equitable that the company should be wound up
- (n) an unregistered company shall for the purposes of this Act, be deemed to be unable to pay its debts —
 - (a) if a creditor, by assignment or otherwise, to whom the company is indebted in a sum exceeding five hundred rupees then due has served on the company, by leaving at its principal place of business, or by delivering to the secretary, or some director, manager or principal officer of the company, or by otherwise serving in such manner as the Court may approve or direct, a demand under his hand requiring the company to pay the sum so due, and the company has for three weeks after the service of the demand neglected to pay the sum or to secure or compound for it to the satisfaction of the creditor
 - (b) if any suit or other legal proceeding has been instituted against any member for any debt or demand due or claimed to be due, from the company or from him in his character of member, and notice in writing of the institution of the suit or other legal proceeding having been served on the company by leaving the same at its principal place of business or by delivering it to the secretary, or some director, manager or principal officer of the company or by otherwise serving the same in such manner as the Court may approve or direct, the company has not within ten days after service of the notice paid, secured or compounded for the debt or demand, or procured the suit or other legal proceeding to be stayed, or indemnified the defendant to his reasonable satisfaction against the suit or other legal proceeding, and against all costs, damages and expenses to be incurred by him by reason of the same ;

(c) if execution or other process issued on a decree or order obtained in any Court in favour of a creditor against the company, or any member thereof as such, or any person authorised to be sued as nominal defendant on behalf of the company, is returned unsatisfied ; and

(d) if it is otherwise proved to the satisfaction of the Court that the company is unable to pay its debts.

(2) Nothing in this Part shall affect the operation of any enactment which provides for any partnership, association or company being wound up, or being wound up as a company or as an unregistered company, under any enactment repealed by this Act, except that references in any such first mentioned enactment to any such repealed enactment shall be read as references to the corresponding provision (if any) of this Act.

(3) Where a company incorporated outside British India which has been carrying on business in British India ceases to carry on business in British India it may be wound up as an unregistered company under this Part, notwithstanding that it has been dissolved or otherwise ceased to exist as a company under or by virtue of the laws of the country and in which it was incorporated

Amendment By the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936 the new sub s (3) has been added following the provisions of sub s (2) of s 38 of the English Act of 1929

Jurisdiction The Court has jurisdiction under the section to wind up companies incorporated by a special Act also and foreign companies having a place of business in this country ¹ even if the company has ceased to exist ² If there is no member officer or servant of the company on whom the petition to wind up can be served the service must according to Companies Winding up Rules be made by leaving a copy at the company's last known principal place of business within the jurisdiction ³ But when a foreign company is already in the course of being wound up in the country where it was domiciled the winding up here is ancillary to the foreign liquidation, and the power of the liquidator is restricted to dealing with assets in this country 1 Where there is jurisdiction to wind up a foreign company at the time the petition is made, any subsequent order in the foreign country to wind up the company does not affect the former proceedings 1

The Court however has no jurisdiction to wind up a foreign company which has agents but no office in this country 2, or an illegal association 3 or a club 4 or a literary or scientific institution not established for the purpose of carrying on business 9 or a trade union 6 or an association of less than eight members 7

Carrying on business only for the purpose of winding up Where an unregistered company has large outstandings which it would take years to work out and is not insolvent the mere fact that it has ceased to take new business cannot be construed as carrying on business for the purpose of winding up its affairs and would not on that ground only justify a winding up order by the Court 8

Just and equitable So long as a society formed for the mutual assurance of life is solvent and is in a position to do all that it has undertaken to do it will not be just and equitable even if it were the wish of the majority of the shareholders to wind it up against the wishes of the minority 9 For other cases see notes to s 102 (vi)

Companies wound up under this section A telegraph company 10 a water works company 11 an exhibition company 12 and a canal company 13 incorporated by special Acts have been wound up A friendly society registered or unregistered may be wound up under this section 14

Sub s 1 (1b) (a) The words "is dissolved" are equivalent to "has been dissolved" 15

Sub s (3) If a foreign company which after carrying on business in this country has been dissolved in the country of its incorporation it may notwithstanding its dissolution in that country be wound up as an unregistered company under this section although the dissolution took place before the passing of this new sub s (3) and on the instruction of the liquidator with the approval of the Committee of Inspection an action may be brought in the name of the foreign company to recover sums which at the date of its dissolution were due to the company and unpaid 16

 - (iv) the prospectus otherwise complies with this Part, or
- (b) to issue to any person in British India a form of application for shares in or debentures of such a company or intended company as aforesaid, unless the form is issued with a prospectus which complies with this Part

Provided that this provision shall not apply if it is shown that the form of application was issued in connection with a bona-fide invitation to a person to enter into an underwriting agreement with respect to the shares or debentures

(2) This section shall not apply to the issue to existing members or debenture-holders of a company of a prospectus or form of application relating to shares in or debentures of the company, whether an applicant for shares or debentures will or will not have the right to renounce in favour of other persons, but, subject as aforesaid, this section shall apply to a prospectus or form of application whether issued on or with reference to the formation of a company or subsequently

(3) Where any document by which any shares in or debentures of a company incorporated outside British India are offered for sale to the public would if the company concerned had been a company within the meaning of this Act, have been deemed by virtue of section 98A to be a prospectus issued by the company, that document shall be deemed to be, for the purposes of this section, a prospectus issued by the company

(4) An offer of shares or debentures for subscription or sale to any person whose ordinary business or part of whose ordinary business it is to buy or sell shares or debentures, whether as principal or agent, shall not be deemed an offer to the public for the purposes of this section

(5) Any person who is knowingly responsible for the issue, circulation or distribution of any prospectus, or for the issue of a form of application for shares or debentures, in contravention of the provisions of this section shall be liable to a fine not exceeding five thousand rupees

(6) In this section, and in section 277B, the expressions "prospectus", "shares" and "debentures" have the same meanings as when used in relation to a company incorporated under this Act

277B (1) In order to comply with this Part a prospectus, in addition to complying with the provisions of sub-clauses (i) and (ii) of clause (a) of sub-section (1) of section 277A, must—

(a) contain particulars with respect to the following matters —

- (i) the objects of the company
- (ii) the instrument constituting or defining the constitution of the company,
- (iii) the enactments, or provisions having the force of an enactment, by or under which the incorporation of the company was effected,
- (iv) an address in British India where the said instrument, enactments or provisions, or copies thereof, and if the same are in a foreign language a translation thereof in the English language certified in the prescribed manner, can be inspected
- (v) the date on which and the country in which the company was incorporated,

Requirements as to prospectus

- (iv) whether the company has established a place of business in British India and, if so, the address of its principal office in British India

Provided that the provisions of sub-clauses (i), (ii) and (iv) of this clause shall not apply in the case of a prospectus issued more than two years after the date at which the company is entitled to commence business

- (b) subject to the provisions of this section, state the matters specified in subsection (1) of section 93 and set out the reports specified in that section

Provided that—

- (i) when any prospectus is published as a newspaper advertisement, it shall be a sufficient compliance with the requirement that the prospectus must specify the objects of the company if the advertisement specifies the primary object with which the company was formed, and

- (ii) in section 93 of this Act a reference to the articles of the company shall be deemed to be a reference to the constitution of the company

(2) Any condition requiring in binding any applicant for shares or debentures to make compliance with any requirement of this section, or purporting to affect him with notice of any contract, document, or matter not specifically referred to in the prospectus, shall be void

(3) In the event of non-compliance with or contravention of any of the requirements of this section, a director or other person responsible for the prospectus shall not incur any liability by reason of the non-compliance or contravention, if—

- (a) as regards any matter not disclosed, he proves that he was not cognisant thereof, or
- (b) he proves that the non-compliance or contravention arose from an honest mistake of fact on his part, or
- (c) the non-compliance or contravention was in respect of matters which, in the opinion of the Court dealing with the case, were immaterial or were otherwise such as ought, in the opinion of that Court, having regard to all the circumstances of the case, reasonably to be excused

Provided that in the event of failure to include in a prospectus a statement with respect to the matters specified in clause (a) of sub-section (1) of section 93, no director or other person shall incur any liability in respect of the failure unless it be proved that he had knowledge of the matters not disclosed

(1) Nothing in this section shall limit or diminish any liability which any person may incur under the general law or this Act, apart from this section

277C (1) It shall not be lawful for any person to go from house to house offering shares of a company incorporated outside India for subscription or purchase to the public or any member of the public

Restriction on canvassing for sale of shares (2) In this sub-section the expression "house" shall not include an office used for business purposes

(3) Any person acting in contravention of this section shall be liable to a fine not exceeding rupees one hundred

277D The provisions of sections 109 to 117, both inclusive and 120 to 125, both inclusive, shall extend to charges on property in British India which are created and to charges of property in British India which is acquired after the commencement of the Indian Companies (Amendment) Act, 1936 by a company incorporated outside British India which has an established place of business in British India

277E The provisions of sections 118 and 119 shall mutatis mutandis apply to the case of all companies incorporated outside British India but having an established place of business in British India and the provisions of section 130 shall apply to such companies to the extent of requiring them to keep at their principal place of business in British India the books of account required by that section with respect to money received and expended, sales and purchases made, and assets and liabilities in relation to its business in British India

Sections 277A to 277E have been inserted by the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936. Sections 277A and 277B reproduce ss 334 and 335 and ss 277C and 277D follow s 90 of the English Act of 1929. See Introduction

PART XA

Banking Companies

277F. (1) "Banking company" means a company which carries on as its principal business the accepting of deposits of money on current account or otherwise, subject to withdrawal by cheque, draft or order, notwithstanding that it carries in addition in any one or more of the following forms of business, namely —

Definition of banking company

- (1) the borrowing, raising or taking up of money, the lending or advancing of money either upon or without security, the drawing, making, accepting, discounting, buying, selling, collecting and dealing in bills of exchange, hundees, promissory notes, coupons, drafts, bills of lading, railway receipts, warrants, debentures, certificates, scrips and other instruments and securities whether transferable or negotiable or not, the granting and issuing of letters of credit, travellers cheques and circular notes, the buying, selling and dealing in bullion and specie, the buying and selling of foreign exchange including foreign bank notes, the acquiring, holding, issuing on commission, underwriting and dealing in stock, funds, shares, debentures, debenture stock, bonds, obligations, securities and investments of all kinds, the purchasing and selling of bonds, scrips or other forms of securities on behalf of constituents or others, the negotiating of loans and advances, the receiving of all kinds of bonds, scrips or valuables on deposit, or for safe custody or otherwise, the collecting and transmitting of money and securities,
- (2) acting as agents for Governments or local authorities or for any other person or persons, the carrying on of agency business of any description other than the business of a managing agent, including the power to act as attorneys and to give discharges and receipts,
- (3) contracting for public and private loans and negotiating and issuing the same,
- (4) the promoting, effecting, insuring, guaranteeing, underwriting, participating in managing and carrying out of any issue, public or private, of State, Municipal or other loans or of shares, stock, debentures, or debenture stock of any company, corporation or association and the lending of money for the purpose of any such issue,
- (5) carrying on and transacting every kind of guarantee and indemnity business,
- (6) promoting or financing or assisting in promoting or financing any business undertaking or industry, either existing or new, and developing or forming the same either through the instrumentality of syndicates or otherwise

- (7) acquisition by purchase, lease, exchange, hire or otherwise of any property immovable or moveable and any rights or privileges which the company may think it essential or convenient to acquire or the acquisition of which in the opinion of the company is likely to facilitate the realisation of any securities held by the company or to prevent or diminish any apprehended loss or liability
- (8) managing, selling and realising all property moveable and immovable which may come into the possession of the company in satisfaction or part satisfaction of any of its claims
- (9) acquiring and holding and generally dealing with any property and any right, title or interest in any property moveable or immovable which may form part of the security for any loans or advances in which may be connected with any such security,
- (10) undertaking and executing trusts
- (11) undertaking the administration of estates as executor, trustee or otherwise
- (12) taking in otherwise acquiring and holding shares in any other company having objects similar to those of the company,
- (13) establishing and supporting or aiding in the establishment and support of associations, institutions, funds, trusts and concerns calculated to benefit employees or co-employees of the company or the dependents or connections of such persons granting pensions and allowances and making payments towards insurance subscribing to or guaranteeing moneys for charitable or benevolent objects or for any exhibition or for any public, general or useful object
- (14) the acquisition, construction, maintenance and alteration of any building or works necessary or convenient for the purposes of the company,
- (15) selling, improving, managing, developing, exchanging, leasing, mortgaging, disposing of or turning into account or otherwise dealing with all or any part of the property and rights of the company.

(16) accepting and undertaking the whole or part of the business of any person or company, or of any business of a nature enumerated in section 2771 of this section

(17) doing all such other things as a director or officer may be required to do in order to conduct to the promotion of the business of the company

277G (1) No company formed after the commencement of the Indian Companies (Amendment) Act, 1936, to which the word "company" is applied in the name of the company, or in which the word "company" is used as part of the name of the company, shall after the commencement of the said Act carry on business the word "bank" or "banking" in its name, or be registered under this Act, unless the objects of the company are limited to the acceptance of deposits of money on current account, or the issue of promissory notes, or the subject to withdrawal by cheque, draft or otherwise, or any one or all of the forms of business specified in section 2771

(2) No banking company whether incorporated in or outside British India shall after the expiry of two years from the commencement of the said Act carry on any form of business other than those specified in section 2771

Provided that the Government General in Council may, by notification in the Gazette of India, specify in addition to the businesses set forth in clauses (1) to (17) of section 2771 other forms of business which it may be lawful under this section for a banking company to engage in 277H No banking company shall after the expiry of two years from the commencement of the Indian Companies (Amendment) Act, 1936, employ or be managed by a managing agent other than a banking company for the management of the company.

277I Notwithstanding anything contained in section 189, no banking company incorporated under this Act after the commencement of the Indian Companies (Amendment) Act, 1936, shall commence business, unless there has been allotted to an amount sufficient to yield a sum of at least fifty thousand rupees as working capital and unless a declaration duly verified by an affidavit signed by the directors and the manager that such a sum has been received by way of paid-up capital has been filed with the registrar.

277J No banking company shall create any charge upon any unpaid capital of the company, and any such charge shall be invalid.

Prohibition of charge on unpaid capital

277K (1) Every banking company shall, after the commencement of the Indian Companies (Amendment) Act, 1936, maintain a reserve fund.

Reserve fund

(2) Every banking company shall out of the declared profits of each year and before any dividend is declared transfer a sum equivalent to not less than twenty per cent of such profits to the reserve fund until the amount of the said fund is equal to the paid up capital.

(3) A banking company shall invest the amount standing to the credit of its reserve fund in Government securities or in securities mentioned or referred to in section 20 of the Indian Trusts Act, 1882 or keep deposited in a special account to be opened by the company for the purpose in a scheduled bank as defined in clause (c) of section (2) of the Reserve Bank of India Act, 1931.

Provided that the provision of the sub-section shall not apply to a banking company incorporated before the commencement of the Indian Companies (Amendment) Act, 1936, till after the expiry of two years from the commencement of the said Act.

16 In sub-section (1) of section 277L of the said Act, before the words "a statement" the words "three copies of" shall be inserted.

(2) For the purposes of sub-section (1) "demand liabilities" means liabilities which must be met on demand, and "time liabilities" means liabilities which are not demand liabilities.

(3) Nothing in this section or in section 277K shall apply to a scheduled bank as defined in clause (c) of section 2 of the Reserve Bank of India Act, 1931.

(4) If default is made in complying with the requirements of section 277C, section 277H, section 277J, section 277K or section 277M or with the requirements of this section as to the maintenance of a reserve, every director or other officer of the company who is knowingly and wilfully a party to the default shall be liable to a fine not exceeding five hundred rupees for every day during which the default continues, and if default is made in complying with the requirements of this section as to the filing of the statement referred to in sub-section (1), to a fine not exceeding a hundred rupees for every day during which the default continues.

Part 607

17 (1) Section 277M of the said Act shall be re-numbered as sub-section (1) of that section and, in the said section so re-numbered, for the words "A banking company shall not form or hold shares in any subsidiary company except a subsidiary company of its own" the words "A banking company shall not form any subsidiary company except a subsidiary company" shall be substituted.

(2) To the said section as so re-numbered the following sub-section shall be added, namely:—

"(2) Save as provided in sub-section (1), a banking company shall not hold shares in any company whether as pledgee, mortgagee or absolute owner of an amount exceeding forty per cent of the issued share capital of that company.

Provided that nothing in this sub-section shall apply to shares held by a banking company before the commencement of the Indian Companies (Amendment) Act, 1936."

the company and for such purpose to have the books and documents of the company examined by an accountant holding a certificate issued under section 144.

The new Part XI consisting of ss 277I to 277N has been introduced by the Amendment Companies (Amendment) Act 1936 making special provisions applicable to banking companies. See Introduction.

PART XI.

SUPPLEMENTAL

Legal proceedings, offences, etc.

278. (1) No Court inferior to that of a Presidency Magistrate or a Magistrate of the first class shall try any offence against this Act.

Cognizance of offences

(2) If any offence which by this Act is declared to be punishable by fine only is committed by any person within the local limits of the ordinary original civil jurisdiction of the High Courts of Judicature at Fort William, Madras and Bombay, such offence shall be punishable upon summary conviction by any Presidency Magistrate of the place at which such Court is held

(3) Notwithstanding anything in the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898 every offence against this Act shall, for the purposes of the said Code, be deemed to be non-cognizable

This section does not appear in the English Act and seems to have been hastily drafted for in a very recent case a Full Bench of the Allahabad High Court Jurisdiction had seriously to consider whether a High Court has original jurisdiction to try an offence under the Companies Act 1 Their Lordships observed

All that section 278 lays down is that no Court of a grade inferior to that of certain Magistrates shall have power to try such offences. Sub-s (2) refers to the Presidency towns of Calcutta Madras and Bombay and has no application to this High Court. It therefore follows that the Act does not mention any particular Court which would have jurisdiction to try offences under s 83 and other sections of the Act 2 The Companies (Amendment) Act 1936 does not remedy the defect which has been overlooked by those who were responsible for the measure. The above Full Bench however held that the High Court had no original jurisdiction to try an offence under the Act. Their Lordships said The jurisdiction of the High Court referred to in s 3 is obviously the jurisdiction exercised by virtue of the specific provisions of the Act and not a jurisdiction which may be invoked where merely a criminal offence is declared. It is very difficult to say that s 3 has specifically mentioned that the High Court would be the Court which should as a Court of first instance try persons who have been guilty of an offence committed on account of breaches of the provisions of the sections of the Act 2

In criminal proceedings also the summons must be served at the registered office of the company 3 In Falshtun v Fry 4 no opinion was expressed on the question whether a complaint signed by the registrar's clerk is properly instituted

279 The Court imposing any fine under this Act may direct that the whole or any part thereof be applied in or towards payment of the costs of the proceedings, or in or towards the rewarding of the person on whose information the fine is recovered

280 Where a limited company is plaintiff or petitioner in any suit or other legal proceeding any Court having jurisdiction in the matter may, if it appears that there is reason to believe that the company will be unable to pay the costs of the defendant if successful in his defence, require sufficient security to be given for those costs, and may stay all proceedings until the security is given

Power to require limited company to give security for costs

The fact that the company is in liquidation is prima facie a reason for ordering security to be given 1 The amount of security is usually in two instalments to the probable amount of costs payable 2 The Court may direct security to be given for costs up to a certain stage and allow the petition to be renewed 3

When a liquidator brings an action for call against a contributory he will be required to give security for the defendant's costs unless the plaintiff can show that the company is able to pay costs 4, but a liquidator taking out a misfeasance summons will not be so required 5

Where a company is plaintiff in a cross-suit it may not be required to give security for a party who is really a defendant though nominally a plaintiff is not to be hampered in his defence 6

Where co-plaintiff in a cross suit.

281 (1) If in any proceeding for negligence, default, breach of duty or breach of trust against a person to whom this section applies, it appears to the Court hearing the case that that person is or may be liable in respect of the negligence, default, breach of duty or breach of trust, but that he has acted honestly and reasonably, and that having regard to all the circumstances of the case, including those connected with his appointment, he ought fairly to be excused for the negligence, default, breach of duty or breach of trust, that Court may relieve him, either wholly or partly, from his liability on such terms as the Court may think fit

Power of Court to grant relief in certain cases

(2) Where any person to whom this section applies has reason to apprehend that any claim will or might be made against him in respect of any negligence, default, breach of duty or breach of trust, he may apply to the Court for relief, and the Court on any such application shall have the same power to relieve him as under this section it would have had if it had been a Court before which proceedings against that person for negligence, default, breach of duty or breach of trust had been brought

(3) The persons to whom this section applies are the following —

- (a) directors of a company,
- (b) managers and managing agents of a company,
- (c) officers of a company,
- (d) persons employed by a company as auditors, whether they are or are not officers of the company.

Amendment By the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936 this new section has been substituted for the original s 281. The provisions of this section are fuller than those of the original section which was as follows —

281 If in any proceeding before any Court against a director of a company for negligence or breach of trust, it appears to such Court that the director is or may be liable in respect of the negligence or breach of trust but has acted honestly and reasonably, and ought fairly to be excused for the negligence or breach of trust, that Court may relieve him, either wholly or partly, from his liability on such terms as the Court may think proper

Where the section applies Although directors are not, properly speaking trustees they are treated as such in respect of the company's money which comes into their hands or is under their control, and are liable to make good the loss in case the money is misapplied or misappropriated as if they were trustees. Thus directors have been held liable to replace dividends paid out of capital 1, money improperly paid to a promoter 2 and money applied ultra vires the company 3. This section however extends to a transaction in fact wholly ultra vires the company, but which the director acting on counsel considered opinion honestly and reasonably thought to be intra vires 4. But it is not meant to cover gross neglect of a director's ordinary duties over a long series of years 5. A person ceased to be a director for not having acquired his qualification shares (see s 80) within the time, but continued to act and be paid as a director until some time when he became aware of the defect. Subsequently having acquired the qualification shares he was re-appointed as a director. On a petition by him under this section it was held (1) that the Court had power under this section to relieve against the penalties imposed under s 80 and that in the circumstances the petitioner had acted honestly notwithstanding certain negligence, so he ought to be relieved from his liability, (2) that in the absence of any evidence of the view taken by the shareholders and the creditors as to the petitioner's liability to repay to the company the remuneration received by him as director, the Court ought not to exercise its jurisdiction to relieve him of such liability to the company 6.

To render a director liable for negligence it must be in negligence culpable or gross 1. He is not liable for mistakes or errors of judgment 2. In order to debit the directors with the unrealized amounts of 11 it is allowed to be time barred it is necessary for the company to show that the amounts could have been recovered from the judgment-debtors and that the failure to do this was due to the negligence of the directors 3. Where the rate of interest on loan given by a director to the company was impugned but no attempt was made on behalf of the company to prove that the money of which the company was in urgent need could have been raised at any lower rate it was held by the Judicial Committee that the rate of interest was proper 8.

After a director's death his estate remains liable for breach of trust 4 but not for negligence unless his estate has benefited by the neglect 5.

This section need not be specially pleaded to enable a director to avail himself of the protection afforded by it 6 but the onus of proving that he acted honestly and reasonably and ought to be fairly exonerated is on the director seeking relief 7.

An act or an omission to do an act is wilful where the person who acts or omits to act knows what he is doing and intends to do what he is doing but if that act or omission amounts to a breach of that person's duty and therefore to negligence he is not guilty of wilful neglect or default unless he knows that he is committing or intends to commit a breach of duty or is recklessly careless in the sense of not caring whether his act or omission is or is not a breach of his duty 8.

Wilful misconduct has been defined by Lord Alverstone as a misconduct to which the will is party as contradistinguished from accident and is far beyond any negligence even gross or culpable negligence and involves that a person wilfully misconducts himself who knows and appreciates that it is wrong conduct on his part in the existing circumstances to do or to fail or omit to do (as the case may be) a particular thing and yet intentionally does or fails or omits to do it or persists in the act failure or omission regardless of consequences or acts with reckless carelessness not caring what the results of his carelessness may be 9.

Apart from this section a similar provision in the articles is effective to protect a director from liability even for gross negligence 10.

282 Whoever in any return, report, certificate, balance-sheet or other document, required by or for the purposes of any of the provisions of this Act, wilfully makes a statement false in any material particular, knowing it to be false, shall be punishable with imprisonment of either description for a term which may extend to three years, and shall also be liable to fine

A statement may be false not only because of what it states but also because of what it conceals, omits or implies. In the last cited case Woryl 1 False state- uttering the observations of Lord Macnaghten in Gluckstein v ment Barnes 2 of Lord Chelmsford in Peel v Gurney 3, and of Lord Halsbury in Laron's Reefs v Tress 4 and It is true that the opinions which I have read were expressed in civil proceedings but we think that the principles laid down in them 5 are none the less applicable here especially in view of the fact that in Laron's Reefs v Tress Lord Halsbury expressed his view with regard to criminal as well as civil liability 6 As observed by Lord Hewart C J in a recent case "in order to ascertain the question whether the document (prospectus) was false in all material particular one may ask oneself this question. If the facts had been revealed or even clearly indicated would any man of sense have put his money into the scheme?" 7

In the last cited case a prospectus was issued which purported to invite persons to become shareholders in an old established metal dealers' and brokers' business which with a view to obtaining capital for the development of its normal trade desired to require two other similar businesses. The fact was not disclosed that one of the businesses proposed to be acquired had enormous future gambling commitments arising out of an attempt to corner the pepper market and there was no reference whatever to pepper in the prospectus. It was held that the omission of the above facts rendered the prospectus false within the meaning of s 84 of the Larceny Act, 1861. In this connection the following observation of Lord Hewart the Chief Justice of England, is of interest in view of the fact that Courts in this country are often inclined to reject a ruling on the ground that the facts are not on all fours. On behalf of the appellants it is contended that the judgment of Rex v Kylsant 8 does not apply. Of course the facts of the case are not identical with the facts in the case of Rex v Kylsant. The question is not whether the facts are identical the question is whether the well settled principle exhibited but not for the first time laid down in that case, apply. In our opinion they clearly apply here a fortiori 9

Where two of the five directors of a company did not carry out their undertaking for taking up certain number of shares, but a declaration was made to the registrar that every director had paid to the company the sum necessary to be paid on their shares, it was held that the person who made the declaration was guilty of an offence under this section, and it was no defence to urge that in Jan the two directors had ceased to be directors and therefore the declaration filed by the accused could not refer to them 9. In the last noted case strong observations were made by the Judges on the duties and responsibilities of promoters and officers of limited companies in this country

The Bombay High Court in the case noted below 1 held that the officers of a company should not be prosecuted in respect of a statement made in a balance-sheet where the points involved are really technical matters of correct and incorrect accounting and there is no proof of dishonesty 1 In this case Martin C J observed that the Police Courts were not the proper place to fight out disputed questions of finance in big companies or banks that could more properly be done in the civil Courts more especially as the decision of the civil Courts is binding The learned Chief Justice suggested the desirability of amending this section so as to put a check on persons desiring to put the criminal law in motion against officers of companies especially banking companies requiring the sanction of the Advocate General before any prosecution is launched under this section

The Calcutta High Court has however held that under this section it is not necessary that the statement should be such as to deceive any one or that it should even be dishonest Thus where after a company had begun to earn revenue current expenditure has been debited to organisation expenses when it ought to have been debited in revenue accounts in the balance sheet the balance sheet contains a wilful false statement and a technical offence under this section is committed 2 In a more recent case 3 where in the balance sheet of a cotton mill which did not do any subsidiary banking business but received deposits from its customers merely to assist its working capital a certain amount was shown under the heading Deposits by others but the amount so shown did not represent the total figure of accumulated deposits but only the incorporated net figure after deducting a loan advanced to another mill which was nowhere separately shown and it appeared that the managing directors responsible for the balance sheet had an interest in not disclosing the loan granted to the other mill it was held by (Unliffe & Henderson JJ) that an offence of wilfully making a false statement under this section had been committed 3 In the last cited case Mr Justice Cunliffe held that the term wilfully used in the Act does not contemplate a criminal intention but means merely the spontaneous action of a person who is a free agent the matters to be determined according to the circumstances of each case The word wilfully occurs in most of the penal sections under the Act and this definition of the word it is submitted with great respect is rather difficult to understand The last saving clause of it however makes it less stringent His Lordship appears if one may be permitted to say so to be on surer ground when he observes 4 It is quite obvious that a loan and a deposit are items differing completely in principle from the balance sheet point of view Strictly speaking they ought to appear on different sides for one is an asset and the other is a liability, consolidating the two and presenting them as one item to the readers, to my mind, is a striking case of non disclosure amounting to a suppression of the truth 4 Whether there is a false statement in a balance-sheet or a prospectus must be judged by the effect upon the ordinary investor reading the statement in an ordinarily careful manner in which an investor would do 3

Persons in the position of managing directors of a company are entrusted with the money of the public and are bound to deal with it as trustees. They cannot be allowed with impunity to publish false balance sheets in order to conceal their own improper conduct (see note 3 last page).

Where the balance-sheet shows a cash profit for the year by adding bad or doubtful debts it amounts to a false statement and a very material one, the fact that no dividend was declared makes no difference 1. A person signing a false balance sheet as a director, manager or auditor is liable to prosecution under this section 1.

An intention to deceive constitutes the offence without proof of any intent to defraud for "to deceive" is to induce a state of mind and "to defraud" is to induce a course of conduct 2. If a statement is demonstrably false and nobody can reasonably be expected to put it forward as true, then and then only the party responsible for such statement may be held criminally liable, any ex post facto consideration of the view held by the directors with regard to the balance sheet should not be a determining factor in a case under this section 3.

As to what a balance sheet should contain see s 132 and notes and s 132A.

282A Any director, managing agent, manager or other officer or employee of a company who wrongfully obtains possession of any property of a company, or having any such property in his possession wrongfully withholds it or wilfully applies it to purposes other than those expressed or directed in the articles and authorised by this Act, shall, on the complaint of the company or any creditor or contributory thereof, be punishable with fine not exceeding one thousand rupees and may be ordered by the Court trying the offence to deliver up or refund within a time to be fixed by the Court any such property improperly obtained or wrongfully withheld or wilfully misapplied or in default to suffer imprisonment for a period not exceeding two years.

282B (1) All moneys or securities deposited with a company by its employees in pursuance of their contracts of service with the company shall be kept or deposited by the company in a special account to be opened by the company for the purpose in a scheduled bank as defined in clause (c) of section 2 of the Reserve Bank of India Act, 1934, and no portion thereof shall be utilised by the company except for the purposes agreed to in the contract of service.

(2) Where a provident fund has been constituted by a company for its employees or any class of its employees, all moneys contributed to such fund (whether by the company or by the employees) or accruing by way of interest or otherwise to such fund

after the commencement of the Indian Companies (Amendment) Act, 1936, shall be invested, and shall be invested only in securities mentioned or referred to in clauses (a) to (c) of section 20 of the Indian Trusts Act, 1882, and all moneys belonging to such fund at the commencement of the said Act which are not so invested shall be invested in such securities by annual instalments not exceeding ten in number and not less in amount in any year than a tenth of the whole amount of such moneys.

(3) Notwithstanding anything to the contrary in the rules of any fund to which sub-section (2) applies or in any contract between a company and its employees, no employee shall be entitled to receive in respect of such portion of the amount to his credit in such fund as is invested in accordance with the provisions of sub-section (2) interest at a rate exceeding the rate of interest yielded by such investment.

(4) An employee shall be entitled on request made in this behalf to the company to see the bank's receipt for any money or security such as is referred to in sub-section (1) and sub-section (2).

(5) Any director, managing agent, manager or other officer of the company who knowingly contravenes or permits or authorises the contravention of the provisions of this section shall be liable on conviction to a fine not exceeding five hundred rupees.

Section 282A and 282B have been introduced by the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936. For their effect see Introduction.

When the Alliance Bank of Simla went into voluntary liquidation its employees who were members of a provident fund established by the bank for their benefit claimed payment in full of the amounts of the balances standing to their credit. The liquidators refused to pay. The employees claimed that they were entitled to receive five credits in the books of the bank in priority to the unsecured creditors. It was held by Sanderson C J and Richardson J that no distinction could be drawn between those members' subscriptions and the bank's contributions and the credits in respect of interests. Both the subscriptions and the contributions being trust money, the employees were entitled to priority not only in respect of the contributions made by them but also in respect of the contributions made by the bank together with interest provided by the bank. The amounts were the property of the employees in the possession and under the control of the bank.

283 If any person or persons trade or carry on business under any name or title of which "Limited" is the last word, that person or those persons shall, unless duly incorporated with limited liability, be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees for every day upon which that name or title has been used.

(3) The existing registrars, assistant registrars and officers in those offices shall, during the pleasure of the Local Government, hold the offices and receive the salaries hitherto held and received by them, but subject to any regulations of the Local Government with regard to the execution of their duties

287 Nothing in this Act shall affect the provisions of the Indian Life Assurance Companies Act, 1912, or of the Provident Insurance Societies Act, 1912

The provisions of the Companies Act apply to the life assurance companies registered under that Act except in those matters dealt with by the Indian Life Assurance Companies Act 2

Where a statutory deposit has been made by an Assurance Company the policy holders of the class in respect of which the deposit was made and the general creditors of the company whose claims arise in connection

Note—By Notification No 83 (14)—Tr. (C. L.) the Governor General in Council has been pleased to direct that the Chief Commissioners of Chief Commissioners' Provinces other than British Baluchistan shall, until further orders, exercise the powers of a Provincial Government, under section 289A—See Gazette Extra dated 2nd October, 1937, Part 1, p. 1619.

(1) Table A in the First Schedule annexed to the Indian Companies Act, 1882, or any part thereof, so far as the same applies to any company existing at the commencement of this Act

(2) All fees directed, resolutions passed and other things duly done under any enactment hereby repealed, shall be deemed to have been directed, passed or done under this Act.

(3) The mention of particular matters in this section or in any other section of this Act shall not prejudice the general application of section 6 of the General Clauses Act, 1897, with regard to the effect of repeals

Proceedings for obtaining registration of a company and a grant of certificate commence within the meaning of s 6 of the General Clauses Act 1, when the memorandum and the articles of association are received in the registrar's office and a repeal of the Act after that date does not affect those proceedings and the provisions of the Act repealed apply to the company, and not the later Act 2 relating to the right privileges obligation or liability acquired, accrued or incurred under the enactment repealed. THE FIRST SCHEDULE

(See sections 2, 17, 18, 79, 266.)

REGULATIONS FOR MANAGEMENT OF A COMPANY LIMITED BY SHARES

Preliminary

Table A has statutory authority Table A has statutory authority and provisions contained in it or copied from it into special articles are valid although apparently inconsistent with some express provisions of the Act 1. A reference to its contents may be made in order to ascertain the intention of the Legislature in s. 18, Act 2.

Presumption Shareholders are presumed to know the Act as well as the memorandum and the articles of association 3. In the absence of any proof to the contrary it must be taken that Table A has been incorporated in the articles of association 4.

1 In these regulations unless the context otherwise requires, expressions defined in the Indian Companies Act 1913 or any statutory modification thereof in force at the date at which these regulations become binding on the company shall have the meanings so defined, and words importing the singular shall include the plural, and vice versa, and words importing the masculine gender shall include females, and words importing persons shall include bodies corporate.

Definitions For definitions of expressions used in the Act see s. 2 and notes thereto and compare the provisions of the General Clauses Act 1895.

Words importing the singular shall include the plural and vice versa this applies to special articles if they are used with Table A 5.

Business

2 The directors shall have regard to the restrictions on the commencement of business imposed by section 103 of the Indian Companies Act, 1913, if, and so far as, those restrictions are binding upon the company

See notes to s 103

As regards the powers duties and liabilities of directors see notes to s 2 cl

Directors (5) s 83, s 83 A, s 83 B s 85, s 86 s 91 A, s 91 B, s 91 C s 100 and articles 68 to 70

The restrictions imposed by s 103 do not apply to private companies

Shares

3 Subject to the provisions, if any, in that behalf of the memorandum of association of the company, and without prejudice to any special rights previously conferred on the holders of existing shares in the company, any share in the company may be issued with such preferred, deferred or other special rights, or such restrictions, whether in regard to dividend, voting, return of share capital, or otherwise, as the company may from time to time by special resolution determine, and any preference share may with the sanction of a special resolution be issued on the terms that it is or at the option of the company is liable to be redeemed

By the Companies (Amendment) Act 1966 the words in italics have been added
See Introduction

Shares may be preferential as to capital, as to dividend or as to both or may have peculiar privileges in the matter of voting or in other respects
Classes of shares These are generally called preference shares as distinguished from ordinary shares or deferred shares There may be shares of more than three, each of which has peculiar rights and conditions attached to it such as "pre preference" and second preference shares

As to what are 'founders' shares' see notes to s 93, sub s 1 (a)

Where the memorandum of association provides for the division of the capital into different classes with different rights they cannot be altered except as part of a reorganization or arrangement under s 54 or s 107
Right of alteration But it is otherwise if the memorandum itself reserves the right of alteration 1 An article like this is valid when the memorandum is silent on the point 2

A company having no authority under its memorandum or articles of association to create any preference between different classes of shares may by special resolution alter the articles so as to authorize the directors to issue preference shares by way of increase of capital 1 If the memorandum or the articles are silent there is no implied condition that all the shares shall rank equally 1 Where the memorandum of association provides that the preference shareholders are entitled to a cumulative dividend before any dividend is paid or capital repaid to the holders of the ordinary shares the provision does not prevent the preference shareholders from asserting their statutory right to participate with the ordinary shareholders in any surplus assets 2

As regards the rights of the preference shareholders ordinarily except in respect of such matters as must by statute be provided for by the memorandum of association, it is not to be regarded as the dominant document but is to be read in conjunction with the articles 3 But where the provisions of the memorandum with regard to the rights of the preference shareholders are neither ambiguous nor in need of being supplemented the two documents should not be read together 4

Upon construction of the memorandum and articles of a company it was recently held in England that where they contained an exhaustive delimitation of the rights of the preference shareholders in the event of a winding up the latter would be entitled to a return of their capital but not to participate in any surplus assets 5

Where there are preference shares and ordinary shares the holders of both classes are subject to any provision to the contrary entitled to share pari passu in the surplus assets in the winding up after paying up the whole of the capital 6 But a preference share prima facie only gives right to a preferential dividend and not right to a preferential payment of the amount of the share out of the capital in the case of a winding up 7

Preference shares may either give a preferential right only as to dividend or both as to dividend and to the return of capital 8 The preferential dividend may be cumulative or payable only out of the profits of each year Preference shares are not prima facie entitled to receive any dividend beyond the fixed preferential dividend 9 The preference shares bear the same relation to the ordinary shares as the latter do to the deferred shares Whatever preference or postponements are intended to be created should be clear-is set forth in the memorandum or the articles or in the special resolution authorizing the creation. If they are determined by the memorandum they cannot subsequently be varied ¹ except where such variation is contemplated in the memorandum itself. ² But if it is provided in the articles only the company may take power by special resolution to effect the necessary alteration ³.

The provision as to the preference does not give a preference in regard to the division of capital unless it is so expressly mentioned ⁴, and unless the rights of the preference shareholders are clearly expressed in the memorandum articles or special resolution authorizing the creation they may, upon a reconstruction of the company find themselves reduced to the position of ordinary shareholders ⁵.

Where the articles were altered sanctioning the issue of preference shares and providing that the dividends on them should be paid out of profits only and that in the event of winding up the holders of the preference shares should be entitled to have the surplus assets applied first in paying off the capital paid on the preference shares and secondly in paying off the arrears of the preferential dividend it was held that all unpaid preferential dividends were arrears of preferential dividends although no profits had been earned by the company, so that subject to the payment off of the preference shares the surplus assets were applicable in the first place in paying off the whole of the preferential dividend down to the commencement of the winding up ⁶.

If the preference capital is repayable 'with interest' this means with interest from the date of the winding up ⁷.

If preference shares are issued when there is no power to do so, or in an irregular manner the subscribers thereof are entitled to have their money returned and they are creditors of the company ⁸.

Holders of ordinary shares cannot surrender their shares and receive in exchange preference shares of similar amounts ⁹.

If the right to a preference is conferred in the winding up, but is not further dealt with the preference capital is to be repaid first then the ordinary capital and the surplus divided among both classes in proportion to the nominal amount of share ¹⁰.

If it is provided in the memorandum or the articles that the rights of the holders of preference shares should come first they cannot be postponed ¹¹, but if the preference shares were issued subject to the rights of the company to issue fresh capital having such preference and priorities as shall be agreed upon the original preference shares may be postponed ¹².

Rowland & Co

Where a company proposing to issue new preference shares ranking pari passu with its existing preference shares served notice on one of its shareholders (and on behalf of himself and other preference shareholders) and an originating summons was issued for determination of certain questions with reference to the proposed issue Buckley refused to appoint the defendant to represent the plaintiff and said that he would not decide the questions so as to limit the effect of preference shareholders' voting of them was first called who nominated a person to represent the plaintiff. He however decided the question as between the company and the defendant.

Where the articles provided "Shares shall be under the control of the directors who may allot or otherwise dispose of the same to such persons on such terms and conditions and at such terms as the directors think fit and with full power to give to any person the call of any shares either at par or at a premium and for such time and for such considerations as the directors think fit" it was held that the powers conferred on the directors included the power to control the character of the shares.

The Court has power in a proper case to confirm a resolution for reduction of capital notwithstanding that the voting powers may be thereby affected.

See notes to ss 1 and 107 and art 108.

4 If at any time the share capital is divided into different classes of shares, the rights attached to any class (unless otherwise provided by the terms of issue of the shares of that class) may subject to the provisions of section 66 of the Indian Companies Act, 1913 be varied with the consent in writing of the holders of three-fourths of the issued shares of that class or with the sanction of an extraordinary resolution passed at a separate general meeting of the holders of the shares of the class. To every such separate general meeting the provisions of these regulations relating to general meetings shall mutatis mutandis apply, but so that the necessary quorum shall be two persons at least holding or representing by proxy one-third of the issued shares of the class.

In this regulation the words in italics have been included by the Companies (Amendment) Act 1933.

If a class meeting held under this article stands adjourned under article 52 for want of quorum the latter part of art 52 will not apply and the full quorum will be required at the adjourned meeting.

5 No share shall be offered to the public for subscription except upon the terms that the amount payable on application shall be at least five per cent of the nominal amount of the share and the directors shall, as regards any allotment of shares duly comply with such of the provisions of sections 101 and 104 of the Indian Companies Act, 1913, as may be applicable thereto.

See ss 101 and 104 and notes to those sections

§ Every person whose name is entered as a member in the register of members shall, without payment, be entitled to a certificate under the common seal of the company specifying the share or shares held by him and the amount paid up thereon. Provided that, in respect of a share or shares held jointly by several persons, the company shall not be bound to issue more than one certificate, and delivery of a certificate for a share to one of several joint-holders shall be sufficient delivery to all.

See ss 20, 31 and 108 and notes to those sections

7 If a share certificate is defaced, lost or destroyed, it may be renewed on payment of such fee, if any, not exceeding eight annas and on such terms, if any, as to evidence and indemnity as the directors think fit.

Where one of the articles provided: If any certificate be lost or destroyed then upon proof to the satisfaction of the directors or in default of proof on such indemnity as the directors deem adequate being given a new certificate in lieu thereof shall be given to the party entitled to such lost or destroyed certificate it was held by Buckland J that the clause gave an absolute discretion to the directors as to the indemnity to be furnished with which the Court would not interfere.

See notes to s 70

§ It is to be noted that although by section 54A of the Indian Companies Act, 1913 no part of the funds of the company shall be employed in the purchase of, or in loans upon the security of, the company's shares.

The words in italics have been inserted by the Companies (Amendment) Act 1930.

Shares once duly issued cannot be cancelled at the request of the holder of such shares for this will amount to a reduction of capital. For other cases see notes to s 50.

§ The company shall have a lien on every share (not being a fully paid share) for all moneys (whether presently payable or not) called or payable at a fixed time in respect of that share, and the company shall also have a lien on all shares

(other than fully-paid shares) standing registered in the name of a single person, for all moneys presently payable by him or his estate to the company, but the directors may at any time declare any share to be wholly or in part exempt from the provisions of this clause. The company's lien if any, on a share shall extend to all dividends payable thereon.

A lien conferred upon a company by its articles on all shares registered in the name of a member for his debts to the company, such member's title to transfer the same while he remains indebted to the company, thereby made dependent on the approval of the directors is valid ¹ and a lien may be discharged by a new arrangement between the creditor and the debtor the terms of which are incompatible with its retention or with his own intention to waive it ² for the provisions being for the protection of the company it is to waive the lien ³.

Where an indebted shareholder applied to the company for time and the indulgence was granted in consideration of his authorizing certain shares other than those on which a lien is claimed to be sold in default without the delay prescribed in the articles it was held that no limitation of the lien on the shares was contemplated by either party and that a transfer by the indebted shareholder of such shares should not be registered ⁴.

The company's lien is lost if it registers a transfer of the shares subject to the lien ⁵. But a dividend declared after execution but before registration of a transfer may be retained under the lien ⁶. If a transfer is however passed by mistake which is corrected within a reasonable time it may be validated ⁷. If a member pledges his shares to some third party as security for a loan and the company has notice of the transaction the company loses its lien for all debts owing by that member to the company subsequent to the knowledge of the company of the transaction ⁸. The company will be deemed to have knowledge of such transaction when the managing director ⁹ or other directors ¹⁰ had notice of a charge although in their private capacity.

Money payable will include a director's fees paid to a person under mistake ¹¹. A company has a lien on shares for money owing to the company where the lien is given by the articles or by agreement ¹². If the company has lien on A's shares for a debt and A raises the money from B to pay the debt A may call upon the company to assign its lien to B ¹³.

If a member mortgages his shares and the mortgagee gives notice to the company, and then the shareholder incurs a liability to the company, the mortgagee has priority over the company's lien ¹ But the articles may provide that any mortgagee who takes with notice of the company's lien may be postponed to that lien The company may enforce the lien against the registered shareholder, even though he is only a trustee ²

If the articles give the company a first and paramount lien and charge for the debts of the shareholders, the company cannot claim priority in respect of money becoming due from the holder to the company after notice that security has been given upon the shares to another person ³

Where before an attachment the company had no lien on the shares for its debts, the attachment has the effect of preventing the company from giving itself a lien over the shares with a retrospective operation In such cases the claim of the attaching creditor prevails against that of the company ⁴

A provision in the articles making a shareholder's debt to the company a charge on his shares applies to the case of debtors who afterwards become shareholders ⁵

The lien does not cease on the death of a member, but continues available against his executors though not themselves members ⁶

Articles cannot be altered to extend the lien to fully paid up shares ⁷.

As to priorities of the company and third parties advancing money on the security of shares see notes to s. 33

The provisions as to lien and the power to sell under art. 10 are new

10. The company may sell, in such manner as the directors think fit, any shares on which the company has a lien, but no sale shall be made unless some sum in respect of which the lien exists is presently payable, nor until the expiration of fourteen days after a notice in writing, stating and demanding payment of such part of amount in respect of which the lien exists as is presently payable, has been given to the registered holder for the time being of the share, or the person entitled by reason of his death or insolvency to the share.

11. The proceeds of the sale shall be applied in payment of such part of the amount in respect of which the lien exists as is presently payable, and the residue shall (subject to a like lien for sums not presently payable as existed upon the shares prior to the sale) be paid to the person entitled to the shares at the date of the sale. The purchaser shall be register-

Calls on shares

12 The directors may from time to time make calls upon the members in respect of any moneys unpaid on their shares, provided that no call shall exceed one-fourth of the nominal amount of the share, or be payable at less than one month from the last call; and each member shall (subject to receiving at least fourteen days' notice specifying the time or times of payment) pay to the company at the time or times so specified the amount called on his shares.

13 The joint-holders of a share shall be jointly and severally liable to pay all calls in respect thereof.

Under s 21 (1) (2) the liability of the shareholders in respect of the balance due on the shares is a debt accruing due from the time when their liability commenced that is, from the time when they first took up the shares. This liability is not however enforceable until a valid notice has been given in accordance with the articles of association and the provisions of the Act, the mere passing of the resolution will not constitute a valid call¹. The mere demand by a company which has acquired the rights of another company in respect of its uncalled capital cannot take the place of a formal call¹.

As the Act is silent as to the authority which will make calls in a going company, the provision should be made in the articles. Where they empower the board of directors to make calls and fix the liability on the shareholders to pay the amount at the time and place appointed, the call can only be made by a resolution of the board indicating the amount of the call and the time and place at which and the person to whom it is to be paid². Even if a notice is subsequently issued to the shareholders it cannot cure any defect in this respect². An instalment payable by the terms of issue is not a call³.

Unless the power to make calls is expressly reserved to the company in general meeting it may be exercised by the directors⁴. Directors may make calls with the sanction of a general meeting or of the liquidator in a voluntary winding up⁵. In making calls the requirements and formalities stated in the articles must be strictly observed and complied with⁶. An invalid call may however be confirmed by a duly convened and constituted board meeting⁷.

A call made by the directors when the number of directors is below the minimum prescribed in the articles 1 or at a meeting without the necessary quorum 2 is prima facie invalid. But if a director is a party to the resolution making the call he will be estopped from denying his liability 3

It is not necessary for a resolution making the call to specify time for payment or the person to whom or the place where the call is to be made 4. In the last cited case it has been held that when the agents sign in the notice of call 'by order of the board' there is the presumption that the agents act properly. This however appears to be doubtful. But their Lordships guardedly say that even if such a resolution is necessary it is a matter which the parties can waive. In an earlier case Madgavakar & Allison JJ held 5 that where in their resolutions the directors omitted to mention the amount, time or place of payment the calls were invalid and ultra vires and the company was not bound by such ultra vires acts.

A call is owing from the date of the resolution making it although if payable at a future date 6.

As a general rule the Court will not interfere with the internal management of a company by inquiring into the necessity or propriety of making a call in a going company 7. But it may do so in exceptional cases, as for instance where a call was made on two only of several shareholders 8.

Where the amount of a call is limited by the articles the directors can validly at one meeting make two calls each for the maximum amount payable on different dates 9. A call is owing from the day on which it is made although it be payable on a subsequent date 10.

It being ultra vires for a company to issue shares at a discount or by way of bonus, although authorized to do so by the articles the holders of the shares so issued are not thereby relieved from liability in a winding up to calls for the amount unpaid on their shares for the adjustment of rights of the contributories inter se as well as for payment of the company's debts and costs of the winding up 11.

To an action for calls it is not sufficient answer for the defendant to say that he has repudiated the contract because of misrepresentation in the prospectus. In order to succeed he must show not only that he has repudiated the contract but that he has after discovering the misrepresentation complain and taken prompt steps to have his name removed from the register 1 A statement that no further calls are contemplated affords no defence to an action 2

Where the liability of the shareholder to pay the call is questioned the Court may Injunction against forfeiture restrain the company from declaring the shares forfeited during the pendency of the suit 3 In such cases the plaintiff is usually required to pay the amount of the call into Court but this is not necessarily a condition precedent 4

If a share has been forfeited for non payment of a call a future call for the same amount may be made upon the purchaser of the forfeited shares 5 Where it is stated that no further calls are contemplated this does not amount to an assurance or pledge that no call at any time shall be made 6 A company may prove in the administration of the estate of a deceased shareholder whose estate is insolvent for the estimated value of the liability to future calls in respect of the shares standing in his name 7

A contract allowing payment of share money by instalments is determined by the winding up and the liquidator may make immediate call 8 The liquidator in a voluntary winding up may enforce payment of a call previously made by the directors 9

If a transfer of shares has been made and registered after a call has been made but before the amount has become payable the transferor in the absence of a contract to the contrary may be liable 10 In this connection the following dictum of Lindley L J should be borne in mind The word 'share' does not denote rights only—it denotes obligation also and when a member transfers his share he transfers all his rights and obligations as a shareholder as from the date of the transfer He does not transfer rights to dividends and bonuses already declared nor does he transfer liabilities in respect of calls already made but he transfers his rights to payments and his liabilities to future calls 10

When shares are transferred after a call has been made the liability is not transferred to the transferee 10 The company can protect itself by refusing to register the transfer until the call is paid 11 But if the former holder pays calls even after forfeiture this will relieve the purchaser 12

A debt due and owing by the company to a shareholder but not one which is only payable at a future date, can be set off against a sum due from him upon calls while the company is a going concern 13 An agreement to set off a present liability of the company against future calls is also good 14 But

■ set off within three months of a winding up will be regarded as a fraudulent preference 1

An agreement that the calls shall not be payable in cash but only by set off against goods supplied by the shareholder is ultra vires 2

A call made after the death of a member is payable out of his estate 3 In the case of bankruptcy of a member the company may prove not only for calls actually made but also for the estimated amount of future calls 4

The directors may if authorized by the articles allow shareholders to pay amounts in advance of calls and may pay interest thereon if it be for the benefit of the company 5 Such a shareholder becomes a creditor of the company 6 so if there is no profit the interest may be paid out of capital 6 But it does not follow that he is entitled to repayment of the amount so advanced 7

An agreement by a company to treat moneys which the director pays under a guarantee of the company's overdraft as payment in advance of calls on his shares does not enable him to set off moneys so paid after winding up commenced against calls made on the shares by the liquidator 8

Under art 112 of the Limitation Act (IX of 1908) the period of limitation is 3 years from the time when the call is payable 1s to the deposit and allotment moneys the limitation is 3 years from the date on which the allottee [even if he is a subscriber to the memorandum] is registered as a shareholder 9 But if the company goes into liquidation the official liquidator can enforce a call though against the company it is barred by limitation 10 or by the provision of the Code of Civil Procedure 11

In Sorabji v Iswardas 10 Sergeant C J observed as follows : This section [s 61 of Act VI of 1882 (s 156 of the Act of 1913)] corresponds to s 38 of the English Companies Act of 1862, the effect of which was fully considered by Sir George Jessel in the Whitehouse & Co 9 Ch D 595 at p 600 After pointing out that the section creates a new liability as regards the shareholders the Master of the Rolls held that the contribution under the section included unpaid calls made before the winding up as well as those made after the winding up It is true he says that a call made before the winding up is a debt due to the company but that does not affect the new liability to contribute Nor can it in this view of the section affect the liability created by the section that the debt was barred' This view was fully endorsed by Piggot and Walsh JJ in Jagannath v U P Flour Mills 10 where their Lordships said "A question of principle has been raised apparently for the first time in this Court namely as to whether an unpaid call, due from a shareholder to a company which has become time-barred under art 112 Limitation Act and has ceased to be recoverable debt by the company may yet be recovered if at any date subsequent to its having become time barred the company is wound up? Then after referring to ss 125 and 151 of the Act of 1882 corresponding to ss 159 and 187 of the present Act their Lordships went on— 'Clearly it is not even the right of a company which is being enforced by a liquidator. It is a statutory right of the creditors of a company to enforce against the contributories of an insolvent company through the Court the obligation which the shareholders took upon themselves when they originally subscribed in the event of insolvency subsequently overtaking the company. But in a recent case where the purchaser of unpaid call in execution of a mortgage decree against the company after the company had gone into liquidation sued the shareholder for the unpaid call it was held by C C Glos A C J and Peirson J that Art 112 of the Limitation Act applied and the suit was barred by limitation and that the fact that the liquidator was a party to the suit did not improve the plaintiff's position 1

Now the question is whether in respect of this new liability arising under s 156 of the present Act arts 112 113 or 170 of the Limitation Act will be applicable. The Bombay High Court held in 1886 that art 170 applied 2. But the Allahabad High Court has recently held that in such a case art 113 applies and where the shares had been forfeited time runs from the date of forfeiture 3. The Oudh Chief Court has however pointed out in a later case 4 that when a suit to recover call money has been barred by limitation the fact that simply because the name is kept in the register as a shareholder the forfeiture does not revive the debt and the company cannot claim that limitation should run from the date of forfeiture. See notes to ss 156 and 187.

The power of making calls being in the nature of trust should be exercised for the general benefit of the company 5

A suit by a company for recovery of arrears of allotment money and call money due on share allotted is cognizable by a Court of Small Causes s 8 153 Jurisdiction (2) makes an exception with regard to the liability of a contributory no claim founded on such liability being cognizable by any Court of Small Causes sitting outside the Presidency towns. But Mr Justice Patterson of the Calcutta High Court seems to have taken the view that a claim against a shareholder of the balance due on his shares is not of the nature of a claim cognizable by a Court of Small Causes on view of s 152 (2) 6

For calls in the winding up see s 187 and notes thereto whom the sum is due shall pay interest upon the sum at the rate of five per cent per annum from the day appointed for the payment thereof to the time of the actual payment, but the directors shall be at liberty to waive payment of that interest wholly or in part

Interest on calls in arrear can be recovered after forfeiture of the share for non payment of calls 1 especially if there is a special contract in the articles such as this Any member whose shares have been forfeited shall notwithstanding be liable to pay all calls instalments interest and expenses in respect of such shares at the time of forfeiture together with interest thereon from the time of forfeiture until payment at per cent per annum 2 But where a share has been forfeited before the day for payment for a second call arrives there is no liability for payment of the second call 1

Where the articles provide that forfeiture should extinguish all rights relating to the share but that the shareholder should remain liable to pay calls owing at the time of forfeiture interest cannot be recovered upon the arrears of call 3 in the absence of a special contract 4

A forfeiture after notice in which interest is claimed from the date of the call and not from the date fixed for payment is invalid 5

In the absence of a provision for interest after notice to pay on a fixed day interest is allowed at 5 per cent per annum in the case noted below 6

15 The provisions of these regulations as to payment of interest shall apply in the case of non payment of any sum which, by the terms of issue of a share becomes payable at a fixed time, whether on account of the amount of the share, or by way of premium, as if the same had become payable by virtue of a call duly made and notified

16 The directors may make arrangements on the issue of shares for a difference between the holders in the amount of calls to be paid and in the times of payment

This article is authorized by s 49 In the absence of such an arrangement calls made on one or more members only to the exclusion of the others are pro rata invalid 7 and upon all or any of the moneys so advanced may (until the same would, but for such advance, become presently payable) pay interest at such rate (not exceeding, without the sanction of the company in general meeting, six per cent) as may be agreed upon between the member paying the sum in advance and the directors.

The directors may receive payment from a shareholder of any amounts remaining unpaid on his shares and may pay out of capital or any other asset interest on sums so paid up in advance of calls.¹ There is nothing ultra vires in an article providing for payment of such interest out of capital.² The money so paid will not however be regarded as a loan to the company and cannot be repaid.³

The power is a fiduciary one and must be exercised bona fide for the benefit of the company.⁴ If the directors exercise the power for their own interest only the transaction may be set aside.⁵ But the directors not being trustees for the creditors the latter cannot complain if the power has been exercised in such a way as to diminish the fund available for payment of the company's debt.⁶

In the winding up of a company if after payment of debts there are surplus assets for division amongst the shareholders the amount paid in advance with interest up to the date of repayment will be repayable before the balance is divided.⁷

17.1 Transfer and transmission of shares

18 The instrument of transfer of any share in the company shall be executed both by the transferor and transferee, and the transferor shall be deemed to remain holder of the share until the name of the transferee is entered in the register of members in respect thereof.

The word transferred applied to transfers inter vivos and must be distinguished from transmission which is a proper term for what happens on death.⁸ Transmission is used to express the legal result which follows from death but not to express the actual step which is necessary to invest the new holder. That is done by transfer i.e. a change in the register of members.⁹

³ Gilbert v. City [1870] 2 Ch. 411 p. 59, Alexander v. Automatic Telephone Co [1900] 2 Ch. 6.

The word share does not denote rights only—it denotes obligations also, and when a member transfers his share he transfers all his rights and obligations as a shareholder as from the date of the transfer. He does not transfer rights to dividends and bonuses already declared nor does he transfer liabilities in respect of calls already made but he transfers his rights to future payments and his liabilities to future calls.¹

A person who without inquiry takes from another an instrument signed in blank by a third party and fills up the blank cannot, even in the case of a negotiable instrument claim the benefit of being a purchaser for value without notice so as to require a greater right than the person from whom he himself received the instrument.² But if the holder of a blank transfer acting beyond his authority fills up the transfer with the name of a transferee and the transfer is registered the transferor will be estopped and if the purchase be for value without notice he will get the shares but not if he in fact knew that the agent had only a limited authority.³

The holder of a blank transfer may fill in his own name and get the transfer registered holding the legal title to the shares as security.⁴ and in that case he may sell the shares on failure of the mortgagor to pay after a reasonable time.⁴ He can also transfer the security and fill in the name of the purchaser, but he is not entitled to mortgage the shares.⁵

The transfer of a blank certificate may in the case of a mortgage, give a good title if there is an intent to transfer but the duty of the transferee from an earlier mortgagee of such document cannot give a good title unless he has a good title himself.⁶

By depositing with the mortgagee a transfer in blank executed by the mortgagor together with the share certificate a good equitable security may be given and notice to the company is not necessary for perfecting the mortgagee's title.⁷ But where the company itself is an indorser notice should be given to the company.⁸

In the case of a mortgagee of shares by deposit of the share certificate together with a blank transfer, the fact that the mortgagee in giving notice requiring payment makes a mistake as to the amount due on the mortgage and demands too much is not a ground for invalidating the exercise of his implied power.⁹ If a debtor delivers to his creditor a blank transfer by way of security that does not however enable the creditor to delegate to another person authority to fill it up for purposes foreign to the original contract.¹⁰

It is not necessary that a transfer should be by deed sealed and delivered 1 In certain cases shares may validly be transferred even without any instrument of transfer e.g. where shares are sold to enforce a lien But shares transferred by delivery of scrip is illegal 2 An insufficiently stamped transfer will be invalidated by payment of the duty and penalty 3

In the case of a transfer the question is whether the transferor has agreed to transfer and the transferee to accept the shares 4 Where the articles do not require a valid transfer in blank filled up later will convey to the transferee not only the equitable but also the legal title 5 & the legal right to call upon the company to register the transfer But until registration is complete the transferee is not entitled to any rate until all necessary conditions have been fulfilled to give the transferee as between himself and the company a present absolute unconditional right to have the transfer registered 7

Where a shareholder has an absolute right to transfer his shares the transfer is complete as soon as the parties sign the deed of transfer 8

Where the articles as here provide that the instrument of transfer is to be executed both by the transferor and the transferee a transfer executed by the transferor alone is not possibly pass the title 9 But a transferee who has not signed the instrument of transfer may be liable if he has been registered as a shareholder and has acted as such 10

Minor irregularities may not affect the transfer or may be condoned or the parties may be estopped 11 With distinguishing numbers will not affect the transfer 12 nor if the numbers are not inserted by mistake 13 Non-observance of the requisite formalities is however a fatal defect 14

Where the articles provide that whenever any member ceased to be employed by the company then that member should transfer any ordinary shares held by him to a person named by the directors on notice and that the 'fair value of any ordinary share within the meaning of the clause shall be a sum equal to the proportion of the value of the assets of the company, exclusive of goodwill appearing on the books of the company to which the said shares

Where under the articles the directors had power at a general meeting by a three fourths majority to determine that the shares of any member should be sold to other members and to fix the price it was held that the company could not acquire the shares of a member at any price it liked or without ascertaining their value 2 but they could determine the price at a fair valuation provided that the resolution passed for that purpose had not been prompted by ill will or any predatory intention 2

Where a company undertakes to sell the shares of a shareholder the position of its managing director in negotiating and completing the sale is clearly one of a fiduciary character and utmost good faith should be observed in the transaction If any advantage was obtained by the managing director as the fruit of the sale the benefit must go to the owners of the shares 3

A provision in the articles for a compulsory transfer of shares is not repugnant to the nature of personal property nor obnoxious to the rule against perpetuity 4

Articles restricting transfer of shares should be so construed as not unreasonably

Construction to prevent shareholders from fairly and reasonably exercising their powers as members 5

The position of a purchaser at a Court sale is neither better nor worse than that of

Purchaser at Court sale a private purchaser 6

A purchaser of shares subject to a lien is bound by it but he may require the company to resort first to any shares remaining in the hands of the vendor 7

If a transfer is made to a firm in its firm name the company may reject the transfer 8

Letter of renunciation A letter of renunciation in favour of a nominee and acceptance by the latter of an allotment of bonus shares is not a transfer of shares within the meaning of this article 9

19 Shares in the company shall be transferred in the following form or in any usual or common form which the directors shall approve

I, A B of _____ in consideration of the sum of rupees _____ paid to me by C D & Co (hereinafter called "the said transferee"), do hereby transfer to the said transferee the share (or shares) numbered _____ in the undertaking called the _____ Company, Limited, to hold unto the said transferee, his executors, administrators and assigns, subject to the several conditions on which I held the same at the time of the execution thereof and I, the said transferee, do hereby agree to take the said share (or shares) subject to the conditions aforesaid. A witness our hands this _____ day of _____ With ss to the signatures of, etc

Under articles which provide that every transfer must be in writing and in the usual form of form the directors must refuse to register a transfer because it omits particulars which would be found in a common form but are in the instrument escribed

20 The directors may decline to register any transfer of shares, not being fully paid shares, to a person of whom they do not approve and may also decline to register any transfer of shares on which the company has a lien. The directors may also suspend the registration of transfers during the fourteen days immediately preceding the ordinary general meeting in each year. The directors may decline to recognise any instrument of transfer unless—

- (1) a fee not exceeding two rupees is paid to the company in respect thereof, and
- (2) the instrument of transfer is accompanied by the certificate of the shares to which it relates, and such other evidence as the directors may reasonably require to show the right of the transferor to make the transfer

If the directors refuse to register a transfer of any share, they shall within two months after the date on which the transfer was lodged with the company send to the transferee and the transferee notice of the refusal.

The words in italics in this regulation have been inserted by the Indian Companies (Amendment) Act 1936. The amendment is in keeping with sub s (4) of the new s 31 which now reads—

Where by the articles a company reserves to itself the right of refusing to recognise a transfer if it appears to be against the interest of the company and an action is brought against the company in respect of non registration of a transfer the burden is on the plaintiff to prove that the refusal to register the transfer was not bona fide and valid 1

A share in such a company as a manufacturing company carrying on its business in the United States resembles such a share in this respect only that it is assignable and the assignee will be entitled to sue upon it to obtain his appropriate share in the net profits just as the original holders would if 2 shares are paid within the meaning of s. 10 of the Indian Companies Act 1913

Under this form of articles the transfer of shares is not a liability if he has actively and is only liable if the directors refuse to register or if by collusion with the directors he has procured them in breach of their duty to pass a transfer for which they ought not to have passed or has procured postponement of commencement of the winding up in order to get time to execute and tender such a transfer for registration 4

Where the secretary enters the name of the transferee in the register without authority the directors are subsequently liable to pass the transfer 5

Where by the articles the directors have power to refuse registration of a transfer until calls due on the shares are paid the rule will not apply to a transfer which has been entered for registration before the call is called 6

A director may be competent to approve of a transfer of shares to himself 7

21 The executors or administrators of a deceased sole holder of a share shall be the only persons recognised by the company as having any title to the share. In the case of a share registered in the names of two or more holders, the survivors or survivor, or the executors or administrators of the deceased survivor, shall be the only persons recognised by the company as having any title to the share.

The adoption of this clause in its entirety in the articles of association of an Indian company causes hardship to the heirs of small investors who cannot go into the expenses of obtaining letters of administration for the small holding. Under this form of articles the directors often require letters of administration in the case of a deceased shareholder who was a member of a Mitakshara joint Hindu family. But in such a case the shares generally belong to the joint family and a person claiming by survivorship is not entitled to letters of administration to any portion of such property 1, and it is not within the legal competence of any company to lay down any condition regulating the grant of letters of administration in contravention of law 1. In a recent case where a Hindu claimed to represent the deceased by right of survivorship and the articles of the company were in the above form Braund J of the Pangoon High Court has held that the company could rightly ask the claimant to produce a probate or succession certificate 2. In this case the learned Judge observed clauses 21 and 22 of Table A while appropriate to a system such as that prevailing in England under which a legal title from a deceased person can only be traced either through probate or letters of administration are hardly so appropriate to a system under which a legal title by devolution may be obtained apart altogether from and without either probate or letters of administration. In spite of the above remarks and other representations the responsible authorities did not think it necessary to amend the above clauses. This is really regrettable.

A deceased member remains a member for the purposes of the articles so long as his name remains on the register without notice to the company of his death 3 and until his interests are transferred his representatives are liable to pay calls 4 and are entitled to receive dividends 5.

A notice sent to the registered address of the deceased shareholder will in case the company is not aware of his death 6 have the same effect as if he were alive 8. If the company go into liquidation the legal representative and heir of the deceased shareholder will be made contributory and will be compelled to contribute to the assets of the company 7.

The executor will not be personally liable if he simply sends the probate to be noted without getting himself registered 8. Under articles equivalent to this and the following article the executor has the right to be registered as a member subject to the directors' absolute discretionary right to decline such registration 9. But the board's right is required to be exercised by a vote of the board ad hoc, and the mere failure to pass the proposed resolution is not a formal exercise of the right to decline 9.

The production of a probate gives notice to the company of the names and addresses of the executor but not any other provision of the will 10.

The executors are entitled to vote at a general meeting as original members 11.

22 Any person becoming entitled to a share in consequence of the death or insolvency of a member shall, upon such evidence being produced is may from time to time be required by the directors, have the right either to be registered as a member in respect of the share or, instead of being registered himself, to make such transfer of the share as the deceased or insolvent person could have made but the directors shall, in either case have the same right to decline or suspend registration as they would have had in the case of a transfer of the share by the deceased or insolvent person before the death or insolvency.

The executors are entitled to have their names entered on the register of members without any statement that they hold the shares in a representative capacity and to have their names entered in either order as they choose.¹

If the insolvent has executed a transfer by way of trust only the trustee is not entitled to be registered as owner of the shares.²

There is nothing analogous to the bankruptcy law in articles which enable a shareholder to sell his shares to particular persons at a particular price to be fixed for all persons alike or who has not shown to be less than the fair price which might otherwise be obtained.³

23. A person becoming entitled to a share by reason of the death or insolvency of the holder shall be entitled to the same dividends and other advantages to which he would be entitled if he were the registered holder of the share, except that he shall not, before being registered as a member in respect of the share, be entitled in respect of it to exercise any right conferred by membership in relation to meetings of the company.

Upon the death of a member his representative must produce probate granted by a British Court although it will involve him in the liability for death duties.⁴

Articles may be so framed as to entitle the representative to vote without being registered as a member, and if so the rejection of votes tendered by such representative will invalidate the resolution passed.⁵

Forfeiture of shares

24. If a member fails to pay any call or instalment of a call on the day appointed for payment thereof, the directors may, at any time thereafter during such time as any part of such call or instalment remains unpaid, serve a notice on him requiring payment of so much of the call or instalment as is unpaid, together with any interest which may have accrued

A notice by the directors requesting payment of call within a specified time from the date of service of the notice failing which the shares will be forfeited has not by its own force the effect of forfeiting the shares of those who fail to pay the call. Something more is necessary, viz. a subsequent resolution of the directors that the shares of the defaulting members be forfeited. A declared intention to forfeit not carried into effect or not duly confirmed is no forfeiture at all. But if there is power to forfeit and a declared intention to forfeit and the shares treated by the company as well as the shareholder as forfeited the company will be precluded from afterwards insisting that no forfeiture ever took place and the shareholder in such a case will not be liable as a contributory. 1

The ordinary rule is that there is no binding forfeiture unless it be so declared by the directors and a mere notice of forfeiture does not excuse the shareholder from payment of calls. 1

25 The notice shall name a further day (not earlier than the expiration of fourteen days, from the date of the notice) on or before which the payment required by the notice is to be made, and shall state that, in the event of non-payment at or before the time appointed, the shares in respect of which the call was made will be liable to be forfeited

In the absence of a special power of cancellation or forfeiture the directors have no power to release shareholders or to cancel shares. 2 The provisions in the articles as to notice &c. must be strictly followed. 2 A resolution authorizing the money of those shareholders who had not paid their allotment money and are not willing to remain as members to be returned is ultra vires and cannot operate to relieve them of their liability as contributories. 3 If there is a real dispute as to whether or not a person has agreed to become a shareholder the directors can however compromise the dispute and allow him to give up the shares. 3 But a compromise by the directors of unpaid calls under guise of forfeiture is ultra vires and invalid and the company is not bound by such ultra vires acts though they may be beneficial unless expressly ratified by all the shareholders or unless with notice or knowledge they have acquiesced in what has been done. 4

If power is not taken in the articles to forfeit shares neither the directors nor the company in general meeting can make a valid declaration of forfeiture. 5

Articles authorizing forfeiture will be strictly construed 1. Forfeiture must be preceded by all the proper notices containing all the matters prescribed by the articles and giving all the time required and a title inaccuracy in complying with the provisions may be fatal 2. But if the forfeiture is regular the omission to inform the member or to strike his name off the register will not invalidate it 4. A valid call and default are conditions precedent to and necessary for a valid forfeiture 5.

An article authorizing forfeiture of shares of a member who will bring a suit against the company is invalid 6. A forfeiture which is invalid or oppressive may be restrained by injunction 7. The aggrieved shareholder may also sue the company for damages 8.

If a forfeiture is ultra vires no lapse of time will make it valid 9.

The power must be exercised in bona fide for the good of the company and not to relieve a shareholder from his liability 10. A forfeiture collusively arranged between the directors and a shareholder is invalid 11.

Where there is an irregularity in the quorum of directors by whom a call was made or in the length of notice of the call a forfeiture for non payment of the call may nevertheless be valid 12. Where a company without any resolution forfeits the shares of a person who does not challenge the forfeiture and the company enforces the forfeiture for some time the irregularity should be deemed to have been waived and the company cannot set aside the forfeiture without the consent of such person 13.

Where the articles do not prescribe the number of directors required to constitute a quorum the number who usually act in conducting the business of the company will constitute a quorum 14. For other cases see notes to art 22.

A charge on uncalled capital does not affect the directors' power to forfeit shares 15. A forfeiture validly made before the commencement of a voluntary winding up cannot be cancelled by the liquidator under s 237 sub s (1) 16.

The power of forfeiture may be exercised by the directors after a voluntary winding up if they obtain sanction of the liquidator or of a general meeting 17.

17 Ladd's case [1893] 3 Ch 450.

A purchaser of forfeited shares cannot as a rule, vote until all arrears of calls are paid 1

A company cannot get the amount of the share twice over Where a company in pursuance of its articles has forfeited shares for non-payment of calls and the articles provide that notwithstanding forfeiture the ex-shareholder shall be liable to pay the amount of the calls and the shares are subsequently re-allocated to another person, the person is entitled on the winding up of the company to be credited with all sums paid by the previous holder, whether in respect of moneys paid by him as a shareholder in respect of the shares, or as debtor in respect of his liability under the articles to pay calls notwithstanding forfeiture 2 A company is not bound to treat the forfeited shares as if nothing has been paid upon them, this being in effect an issue of shares at a discount 3

Where shares are forfeited and sold to another 'discharged from all calls due prior to the date of the share certificate, the company may nevertheless make calls on the purchaser for the balance due including the amount previously called but not paid 2

The language of the articles of a bank clearly implied an interval between forfeiture and disposal of a share The value of the share fell to nothing by the time the bank decided to take action In a suit for value of such share it was held that there was no obligation on the part of the directors to sell or ascertain the value of a forfeited share the moment it was forfeited and that the decision that the value of the share should be the value at the time of bringing the suit was by no means incorrect and was certainly not in any way perverse or unreasonable 4

28 A person whose shares have been forfeited shall cease to be a member in respect of the forfeited shares, but shall, notwithstanding, remain liable to pay to the company all moneys which, at the date of forfeiture, were presently payable by him to the company in respect of the shares, but his liability shall cease if and when the company received payment in full of the nominal amount of the shares

This article imposes on forfeiture a new obligation or a new debt and as the shareholder thenceforth ceases to be a member, his liability to pay future calls is gone, and all that is left is this new liability to pay the company 'all moneys which at the date of forfeiture were presently payable by him to the company in respect of the shares' Such a person is liable with regard to unpaid calls, not as a contributory, either as a present or past member, but as a debtor to the company This gives the company a fresh cause of action and the period of limitation for a suit to enforce this new obligation begins to run from the time the shares are forfeited and the proper article applicable is art. 115 of the Limitation Act 1. The time from the liquidator filing the list of contributories including the shareholder's name to the date on which the Court held that he was wrongly entered in the list of contributories cannot be excluded under s 14 of the Limitation Act 1

After forfeiture the shareholder ceases to be a member of the company he ceases to be liable to pay any further moneys in his capacity as shareholder, and any further liability on his part must be based on some separate contract making him liable to pay these moneys after he had ceased to be a shareholder 2

Effect of fraud If a person is induced by a fraudulent prospectus to apply for an allotment of shares and his shares are afterwards forfeited for non payment of calls, he ceases to be a shareholder and becomes a mere debtor to the company and if he has done nothing to affirm the contract he may repudiate it and defend an action for calls on the ground of fraud 3

Defaulter's bankruptcy Where the company sustains loss on sale and re allotment of the forfeited shares and the defaulter becomes bankrupt the company's proof in the bankruptcy must be limited to the actual loss and payments of uncalled capital by the new allottees must enure for the defaulter's benefit and release him to that extent from his liability under the contract 4

It seems that the shareholder may be sued in the ordinary way for the arrears of call after forfeiture 5 but he cannot be put upon the list of contributories 6, as he has already ceased to be a shareholder 7 It is not open to the official liquidator to take advantage of any irregularity in the procedure of the directors in forfeiting shares so long as the directors were acting intra vires and bona fide as he stands in the shoes of the directors 8

29 A duly verified declaration in writing that the declarant is a director of the company, and that a share in the company has been duly forfeited on a date stated in the declaration, shall be conclusive evidence of the facts therein stated as against all persons claiming to be entitled to the share, and that declaration, and the receipt of the company for the consideration, if any, given for the share on the sale or disposition thereof, shall constitute a good title to the share, and the person to whom the share is sold or disposed of shall be registered as the holder of the share and shall not be bound to see to the application of the purchase money (if any), nor shall his title to the share be affected by any irregularity or invalidity in the proceedings in reference to the forfeiture, sale or disposal of the share

The object of this article is to give the purchaser a good title so that it may not be attacked on the ground of any irregularity in the forfeiture 1

Forfeiture for debts generally is distinct from those due from a member as a contributory would amount to an illegal reduction of capital 2 A lien being an equitable charge in the nature of a mortgage the power to forfeit the shares of a member on his failure to redeem on a week's notice is a clog on the equity of redemption and is such invalid and ultra vires 2

Conversion of Shares into stock

31 The directors may with the sanction of the company previously given in general meeting, convert any paid-up shares into stock, and may with the like sanction re-convert any stock into paid up shares of any denomination

Stock is simply a set of shares put together in a bundle 3 It is expressed in money instead of a so many shares A company cannot make an original issue of stock 4 Stock not fully paid up is wholly unlawful and confers no rights to the holders 5 They may be entitled to claim as creditors for the amount they have paid 5

See ss 20 and 31 and notes thereto

32 The holders of stock may transfer the same, or any part thereof, in the same manner, and subject to the same regulations, as and subject to which, the shares from which the stock arose might previously to conversion have been transferred, or as near thereto as circumstances admit, but the directors may from time to time fix the minimum amount of stock transferable, and restrict or forbid the transfer of fractions of that minimum, but the minimum shall not exceed the nominal amount of the shares from which the stock arose

36 A share warrant shall entitle the bearer to the shares included in it, and the share shall be transferred by the delivery of the share warrant and the provisions of the regulations of the company with respect to transfer and transmission of shares shall not apply thereto.

37 The bearer of a share warrant shall, on surrender of the warrant to the company for cancellation and on payment of such sum as the directors may from time to time prescribe, be entitled to have his name entered as a member in the register of members in respect of the shares included in the warrant.

38 The bearer of a share-warrant may at any time deposit the warrant at the office of the company, and so long as the warrant remains so deposited, the depositor shall have the same right of signing a requisition for calling a meeting of the company, and of attending and voting at any meeting of the company as the holder of the shares included in the deposited warrant. Not more than one person shall be recognised as depositor of the share-warrant company shall, on two days' written notice, return the share warrant to the depositor

39 Subject as herein otherwise expressly provided person shall as bearer of a share warrant, sign a requisition calling a meeting of the company, or attend, or vote or exercise any other privilege of a member at a meeting of the company or be entitled to receive any notices from the company the bearer of a share warrant shall be entitled in all other respects to the same privileges and advantages as if he were named in the register of members as the holder of the shares included in the warrant and he shall be a member of the company

40 The directors may, from time to time, make rules as to the terms on which (if they shall think fit) a new share-warrant or coupon may be issued by way of renewal in case of demerit, loss or destruction

Alteration of Capital

41 The directors may, with the sanction of the company in general meeting, increase the share capital by such sum, to be divided into shares of such amount, as the resolution may prescribe

By the Companies (Amendment) Act 1938 for the words "an extraordinary resolution of the company" after the words "sanction of" the words in italics have been substituted

The intention to make the specific increase of capital must be embodied in the notice and the resolution

See s 50 sub s 1 (a) and notes thereto

42 Subject to any direction to the contrary that may be given by the resolution sanctioning the increase of share capital, all new shares shall, before issue, be offered to such persons as at the date of the offer are entitled to receive notices from the company of general meetings in proportion, as nearly as the circumstances admit, to the amount of the existing shares to which they are entitled The offer shall be made by notice specifying the number of shares offered, and limiting a time within which the offer, if not accepted, will be deemed to be declined, and after the expiration of that time, or on the receipt of an intimation from the person to whom the offer is made that he declines to accept the shares offered, the directors may dispose of the same in such manner as they think most beneficial to the company. The directors may likewise so dispose of any new shares which (by reason of the ratio which the new shares bear to shares held by persons entitled to an offer of new shares) cannot, in the opinion of the directors, be conveniently offered under this article.

Declaratory suit A suit by a shareholder for a declaration that the allotment of new shares to certain persons is not legal and the allottees have no power as shareholders on the ground that the resolution authorising the increase of capital by issuing new shares was invalid and ineffectual does not lie if no consequential relief such as a prayer for rectification of the register of members by removing the names of the new shareholders or for an injunction is sought.

43 The new shares shall be subject to the same provisions with reference to the payment of calls, lien, transfer, transmission, forfeiture and otherwise as the shares in the original share capital.

Agreement between company & vendor An agreement between a company and the vendor providing that on any future increase of capital the company will allot to the vendor a certain proportion of the new shares and will pay to him a sum equal to the nominal amount of the shares so allotted such sum to be immediately applied in paying up in full the shares so allotted is good so far as the obligation to the allotment goes but is bad so far as it purports to relieve the allottee from liability to pay up the nominal amount of the shares allotted.²

See notes to s. 50 and s. 1 (a)

44 The company may, by ordinary resolution,—

- (i) consolidate and divide its share capital into shares of larger amount than its existing shares,
- (ii) by sub-division of its existing shares or any of them, divide the whole or any part of its share capital into shares of smaller amount than is fixed by the memorandum of association, subject, nevertheless, to the provisions of paragraph (i) of sub-section (1) of section 50 of the Indian Companies Act, 1913,
- (iii) cancel any shares which, at the date of the passing of the resolution, have not been taken or agreed to be taken by any person.

By the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936 in the first line for the words "special resolution" the words in italics have been substituted and Cl (d) has been omitted. Cl (d) was as follows:

- (d) reduce its share capital in any manner and with and subject to any incident authorised and consent required by law.

These powers should be taken in the articles of association otherwise they cannot be exercised. See ss 50 and 51

General Meetings

45 The statutory general meeting of the company shall be held within the period required by section 77 of the Indian Companies Act, 1913

For cases relating to the statutory general meeting see notes to s 77

46 A general meeting shall be held within eighteen months from the date of its incorporation and thereafter once at least in every year at such time (not being more than fifteen months after the holding of the last preceding general meeting) and place as may be prescribed by the company in general meeting, or, in default, at such time in the month following that in which the anniversary of the company's incorporation occurs, and at such place as the directors shall appoint. In default of a general meeting being so held, a general meeting shall be held in the month next following, and may be called by any two members in the same manner as nearly as possible as that in which meetings are to be called by the directors

By the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936 for the words once in every year the words in italics have been substituted

See s 70 and notes thereto for cases relating to general meetings

49 Subject to the provisions of sub-section (2) of section 81 of the Indian Companies Act, 1913, relating to special resolutions fourteen days' notice at the least (exclusive of the day on which the notice is served or deemed to be served, but inclusive of the day for which notice is given) specifying the place, the day and the hour of meeting and, in case of special business, the general nature of that business, shall be given in manner hereinafter mentioned or in such other manner, if any, as may be prescribed by the company in general meeting, to such persons as are, under the Indian Companies Act, 1913, or the regulations of the company, entitled to receive such notices from the company, but the accidental omission to give notice to any person entitled to receive notice by any member shall not invalidate the proceedings at any general meeting

By the Companies (Amendment) Act, 1936, the words in italics after but the have been inserted for the words non receipt of notice and those in italics elsewhere have also been inserted

at p 871

"It is settled that the notice which specifies the business to be done or the objects of the meeting is to be a fair notice intelligible to the minds of ordinary men—the class of men who are shareholders in the company and to whom it is addressed. The Court does not scrutinize these notices with a view to exercise criticism or to find out defects but it looks at them fairly" 1. But the Court is entitled to look at the notice as part of the res gestæ to see if the proceedings are irregular 2.

Shareholders are presumed to know the Act of the legislature and also the terms of the memorandum and articles of association. Notice must be read in reference to these 3.

When the notice did not disclose the contents of the agreement which formed the subject of the resolution it was held that such a resolution although adopted by the requisite majority was invalid and incapable of being made valid by acquiescence on the part of the shareholders 4. But it is competent for the shareholders acting together to waive the formalities required by s. 51 as to notice of intention to propose a resolution as an extraordinary resolution 5. If every member is present at the meeting any resolution passed unanimously which is not ultra vires the company is valid and binding on the company irrespective of what notice, if any, of the meeting was given 6.

Where notice was given of a resolution that three retiring directors should be re-elected with such amendments as should be determined at the meeting and an amendment to the resolution was carried appointing two additional directors it was held that the notice sufficiently indicated the business transacted 7.

The resolutions of a general meeting convened by de facto directors are not invalidated by any irregularity in the constitution of the board 8. But a notice issued by the secretary without the authority of a resolution of the board is invalid 9. It may however become a good notice if adopted and ratified by a board meeting held prior to the general meeting, for the ratification of an act purporting to be done by an agent on behalf of the principal dates back to the performance of the act 10.

Subject to the limitation in the articles all shareholders on the register are entitled to receive notice and if any person entitled to attend is not regularly summoned such meeting is irregular and its proceedings invalid 11. But a member who was present at a meeting cannot question its regularity 12.

No notice need be issued on members residing abroad 13. A notice must give a sufficiently full and frank disclosure of facts upon which the shareholders are asked to vote 14.

In the absence of any provision in the articles the executors or administrators of a member when not themselves registered as members are not entitled to notice 1 It is not necessary to send a notice addressed to a deceased member or to his legal personal representative 1

Members who have no registered address and in respect of whom there has not been furnished to the company any address in this country for the service of notice are not entitled to receive notices of general meetings and the fact that a member has not been served with notice of a particular meeting does not invalidate a resolution passed at the meeting 2

As to what the notice of an extraordinary general meeting should contain see notes to ss 73 and 79

In the corresponding article of Table A of the English Act only seven days notice is provided for Unless it is specifically provided in the articles that the day of service is to be excluded in the number of days such day is not to be excluded 3 The days will probably be calculated from midnight to midnight 4

50 All business shall be deemed special that is transacted at an extraordinary meeting, and all that is transacted at an ordinary meeting with the exception of sanctioning a dividend, the consideration of the accounts, balance-sheets and the ordinary report of the directors and auditors, the election of directors and other officers in the place of those retiring by rotation, and the fixing of the remuneration of the auditors

An ordinary general meeting may transact special business if the notice provided for it 5 but unless the purport of the special business to be transacted is stated in the notice convening the meeting the meeting is invalid 6

Special business It is not sufficient in a notice of an extraordinary general meeting to state merely that special business will be transacted 7 If special business is to be transacted the notice must specify its nature 8

Notice

Under this form of articles the business of the statutory meeting is special business 9

Remuneration for past services of directors cannot be voted at an ordinary general meeting unless special notice is given of the intention to propose such a resolution 10

51 No business shall be transacted at any general meeting unless a quorum of members is present at the time when the meeting proceeds to business, save as herein otherwise provided, two members in the case of a private company and five members in the case of any other company personally present shall be a quorum

By the Companies (Amendment) Act 1933 for the words "three members" the words in italics have been substituted

A person appointed under s. 51 to represent a other company will be deemed to be a "member personally present" 1 Sometimes one member may form a quorum 2

Resolutions for voluntary winding up of companies are invalid unless passed and confirmed at meetings at each of which there is present the necessary quorum 3

The presence of non members at a meeting without their taking any part in the proceedings does not invalidate the meeting 4

A resolution passed at a meeting at which there is no quorum 5 or at a meeting not properly convened is invalid But the minutes will raise a presumption of its validity 7

52 If within half an hour from the time appointed for the meeting a quorum is not present, the meeting, if called upon the requisition of members, shall be dissolved, in any other case, it shall stand adjourned to the same day in the next week at the same time and place, and, if at the adjourned meeting a quorum is not present within half an hour from the time appointed for the meeting, the members present shall be a quorum

This article with article 1 does not enable a single member present in person to constitute an adjourned meeting 8

53. The chairman, if any, of the board of directors shall preside as chairman at every general meeting of the company

Where a general meeting is held in accordance with the Court's order amendments may be rejected by the chairman if they are contrary to the terms of the orders 9

The chairman at a general meeting has prima facie authority to decide all incidental questions which arise at such meeting and necessarily requires decision at the time and the entry by him in the minute book of the result of a poll or of his decision of all such questions although not conclusive is prima facie evidence of the result or of the correctness of that decision and the onus is thrown on those who impeach the entry 10

54 If there is no such chairman, or if at any meeting he is not present within fifteen minutes after the time appointed for holding the meeting, or is unwilling to act as chairman, the members present shall choose some one of their number to be chairman

55 The chairman may, with the consent of any meeting at which a quorum is present (and shall if so directed by the meeting), adjourn the meeting from time to time and from place to place, but no business shall be transacted at any adjourned meeting other than the business left unfinished at the meeting from which the adjournment took place. When a meeting is adjourned for ten days or more, notice of the adjourned meeting shall be given as in the case of an original meeting. Save as aforesaid, it shall not be necessary to give any notice of an adjournment or of the business to be transacted at an adjourned meeting.

At common law there is no right of adjournment of a public meeting and the chairman can exercise it 1. But this must be done for proper conduct of business and not for its frustration. A chairman has no power to stop a meeting at his will and pleasure. If he attempts to do so the meeting can appoint another chairman and resolve to go on with the unfinished business 2.

In the absence of a special provision a chairman is not bound to adjourn a meeting. He cannot adjourn it of his mere motion 3. But where the articles empower the chairman to adjourn a meeting with the consent of the meeting, the chairman has a discretion to adjourn and he can exercise that discretion only with the consent of the meeting while if the meeting desire an adjournment the chairman is not bound to adjourn 4.

The mere absence of a provision for adjournment in the articles does not give rise to an inference that a power to adjourn is prohibited for the law gives the right to every meeting to adjourn itself provided the adjournment is for a bona fide purpose 5. Although discussions regarding the articles are out of order in a shareholder's meeting yet such discussions do not vitiate the bona fides of the meeting because there is no difference between bona fides in fact and bona fides in law or constructive bona fides 5.

An adjourned meeting is the same meeting and merely a continuation of it. The proxies appointed for the meeting are available at an adjourned meeting 6.

(a) in regulation 56, for the words "by at least three members" the following shall be substituted, namely,—

'in accordance with the provisions of clause (c) of sub-section (1) of section 79 of the Indian Companies Act, 1913', company's will be immaterial. As to what is a meeting of the corporation see the note below.

Chairman's right Declaration of the chairman is evidence by an entry in the minute book is conclusive evidence of the fact that a resolution has on a show of hands been carried. In any case the declaration of the chairman is prima facie evidence. Where on a show of hands there are two resolutions before a meeting of shareholders—one for the reduction of capital and another for the conversion of the preference shares into ordinary shares—and where there is a right to a poll the chairman may put the resolutions en bloc if no shareholder requires him to put them separately.

Prima facie evidence The chairman of a general meeting has prima facie authority to decide all incidental questions which arise at such meeting. The entry by him in the minute book of the result of a poll or of his decisions of such questions although not conclusive is prima facie evidence of that result or the correctness of the decisions and the onus of displacing that evidence is on those who impeach the entry.

Amendment The chairman has discretion in moving that the question be now put. An amendment fairly arising on a resolution which is specified in the notice of the meeting must be put to the meeting and the chairman has no right to refuse it.

Where an article provides that no objection should be made to the validity of any vote except at the meeting and that every vote whether given in person or by proxy not disallowed at any meeting should be deemed valid for all purposes the decision of the chairman who in the bona fide exercise of the power conferred upon him by the articles refuses to disallow a vote by proxy to which objection is taken at the meeting is final and will not be reviewed by the Court 1

Where the articles give the shareholder the right to inspect the papers relating to the voting the Court should ordinarily give them an opportunity of doing so. Such an opportunity need not however be given when it appears that the inspection would not yield any useful result 2

Where a meeting is held under the order of the Court the chairman is bound to carry out the instructions given by the Court and has a discretion of his own for matters lying outside the scope of such instructions 3. In the last cited case Fawcett J held that inspection of ballot papers could not be obtained without an express order of the Court. Strong grounds must be shown and the Judge must be satisfied that the application for it was made bona fide.

See notes to s 81

57 If a poll is duly demanded, it shall be taken in such manner as the chairman directs, and the result of the poll shall be deemed to be the resolution of the meeting at which the poll was demanded

In this form of articles the poll may be taken then and there 4. A shareholder must be present personally or by proxy. This principle is not overridden by this article 5

The taking of a poll is not a meeting of the company in the strict sense but is in law a continuation of the meeting at which the poll was directed to be taken 5. Where there is a breakdown of the arrangement of the poll on the fixed date that does not put an end to the taking of the poll because there must be at least a reasonable opportunity to the voters of having the poll taken. The chairman should in such circumstances appoint another date for the poll because if the poll is demanded it must be taken even though the chairman refuses to grant the poll 6. The Court has jurisdiction to entertain a suit by the shareholders against the company in respect of the infringement of their rights when the interests of justice requires it 6

58. In the case of an equality of votes, whether on a show of hands or on a poll, the chairman of the meeting at which the show of hands takes place, or at which the poll is demanded, shall be entitled to a second or casting vote

59 A poll demanded on the election of a chairman or on a question of adjournment shall be taken forthwith. A poll demanded on any other question shall be taken at such time as the chairman of the meeting directs.

Votes of Members

60 On a show of hands every member present in person shall have one vote On a poll every member shall have one vote in respect of each share or each hundred rupees of stock held by him

By the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936 for the words "On a poll every member shall have one vote for each share of which he is the holder", the words in italics have been substituted

For cases relating to votes and proxy see notes to s 76

Unless a poll is demanded votes of members who are personally present will be counted by a show of hands 1 A member present only by proxy has no right to vote upon a show of hands 2 A company present by a representative under s 80 will be deemed to be present in person 3 During a state of war an alien enemy cannot vote 4

Where on a show of hands there are two resolutions before a meeting of shareholders—one for reduction of capital and the other for conversion of preference shares into ordinary shares—and where there is a right to poll, the chairman may put the resolutions en bloc, if no shareholder requires him to put them separately 5

A shareholder's vote is a right to property and he is entitled to exercise it as he pleases even in a manner adverse to what others may think the interests of the company 6 provided his vote be bona fide and not contrary to public policy 7 Unless otherwise provided by the regulations of the company observed Lord Dwyer in Buland v Earle 8 A shareholder is not debarred from voting or using his voting power to carry a resolution by the circumstance of his having a particular interest in the subject matter of the vote "

Where shares have been transferred to a mortgagee and are registered in his name, he has, as legal owner of the shares, the right of voting which may be exercised as he thinks best irrespective of any direction by the mortgagor 9 The right can only be determined by an express contract not to exercise it and in the case of debentures it may be exercised for the debenture holders 9 A mandatory injunction may however be granted to enforce an agreement by the mortgagee of share to vote in accordance with the wishes of the mortgagor 10

Vote given by an executor on behalf of a deceased member must be disallowed and it is not possible to distinguish the case of a liquidator or receiver 11

There is no inherent right of shareholders to vote by proxy such right being by no inherent contract to be construed from the articles 1 Where proxies are allowed rights by the articles the chairman must count the vote of a person holding proxy as a single vote 2

65 The instrument appointing a proxy shall be in writing under the hand of the appointor or of his attorney duly authorised in writing, or, if the appointor is a corporation, either under the common seal, or under the hand of an officer or attorney so authorised No person shall act as a proxy unless he is a member of the company

In the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936 the words in italics have been substituted for the words either he is entitled on his own behalf to be present and vote at the meeting at which he acts as proxy or he has been appointed to act at that meeting as proxy for a corporation

Under articles which provided that no person shall be appointed or have authority to act as a proxy who is not a shareholder a proxy in favour of a person who was not a shareholder when it was signed but was a shareholder at the date of the meeting was valid 3

An article which provides that every vote not disallowed at the meeting shall be valid will validate a vote not objected to at the meeting given by a proxy who is not a shareholder 4

The requirements as to appointment of proxies by corporations being under seal applies only to corporations having a common seal according to English law 4 A corporation may give a proxy under the English law 5 See notes to s 60

66 The instrument appointing a proxy and the power-of-attorney or other authority (if any), under which it is signed, or a notarially certified copy of that power or authority, shall be deposited at the registered office of the company not less than seventy-two hours before the time for holding the meeting at which the person named in the instrument proposes to vote, and in default the instrument of proxy shall not be treated as valid

This article provides for the previous lodgment of the proxy paper Where the articles provide that the instrument appointing a proxy shall be deposited at the registered office of the company, not less than two clear days before the day for holding the meeting, proxies lodged after the date of an ordinary meeting but more than two days before the day fixed for an adjourned meeting thereof cannot be used for the purpose of voting at the adjourned meeting 6

1926 Part I P 132

There is no inherent right of shareholders to vote by proxy, such right being by No inherent contract to be construed from the articles 1 Where proxies are allowed rights by the articles the chairman must count the vote of a person holding proxy as a single vote 2

65 The instrument appointing a proxy shall be in writing under the hand of the appointor or of his attorney duly authorised in writing, or, if the appointor is a corporation, either under the common seal, or under the hand of an officer or attorney so authorised No person shall act as a proxy unless he is a member of the company

In the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936 the words in italics have been substituted for the words either he is entitled on his own behalf to be present and vote at the meeting at which he acts as proxy or he has been appointed to act at that meeting as a proxy for a corporation

Under articles which provide that no person shall be appointed or have authority to act as a proxy who is not a shareholder a proxy in favour of a share holder person who was not a shareholder when it was signed but was a shareholder at the date of the meeting was valid 3

An article which provides that every vote not disallowed at the meeting shall be valid will validate a vote not objected to at the meeting given by a proxy who is not a shareholder 4

The requirements as to appointment of proxies by corporations being under seal applies only to corporations having a common seal according to English law 4 A corporation may give a proxy under the English law 5 See notes to s. 80

66 The instrument appointing a proxy and the power-of-attorney or other authority (if any), under which it is signed, or a notari ally certified copy of that power or authority, shall be deposited at the registered office of the company not less than seventy-two hours before the time for holding the meeting at which the person named in the instrument proposes to vote, and in default the instrument of proxy shall not be treated as valid

This article provides for the previous lodgment of the proxy paper Where the articles provide that the instrument appointing a proxy shall be deposited at the registered office of the company not less than two clear days before the day for holding the meeting, proxies lodged after the date of an adjourned meeting but more than two days before the day fixed for an adjournment thereof cannot be used for the purpose of voting at the adjourned meeting, 6

A person to whom a member gives a proxy is that member's agent for the purpose of voting. The authority of an agent may be revoked expressly or by implication, but unless and until it is so revoked that authority continues. If a man is present and allows another to act for him, presumably he approves what that other does. But even where a proxy had not been validly revoked in accordance with the articles the shareholder who had given the proxy is free to attend at the meeting and vote personally, and when he has done this the vote tendered by the proxy will be rejected. It would be strange observed Lord Hanworth M R if a person in the position of an agent could say to his principal you have entrusted to me a power which I will not allow to pass back to you although you demand the right to exercise it. 1 Where persons who voted on the amendments but did not vote on the substantive proposition but whose votes on the latter were recorded by their proxies it was held that the votes were good 2

Those proxies which are unstamped or upon which the stamps have not been can be rejected. Any votes recorded on the authority of such proxies go out 3

See notes to s 76

The time provided in Table A of the English Act is forty eight hours

67 An instrument appointing a proxy may be in the following form, or in any other form which the directors shall approve —

Company, Limited.

"I of in the district of , being a member of the Company, Limited, hereby appoint of as my proxy to vote for me and on my behalf at the [ordinary or extraordinary, as the case may be] general meeting of the company to be held on the day of and at any adjournment thereof "

Signed this day of

If the articles require that a proxy shall be attested an unattested proxy will be rejected 4

Where the form of proxy was settled by the Court but a certain word was entered by the member signing the proxy and he added other words but the added words were too vague to have any meaning it was held that such votes were good 5

Directors.

68 The number of the directors and the names of the first directors shall be determined in writing by a majority of the subscribers of the memorandum of association that it not appearing from the regulations of the company that a director's services must be rendered to that company and to no other company, he was at liberty to become a director even of a rival company and it not being established that he was making to the second company any disclosure of information obtained confidentially by him as a director of the first company he could not at the instance of that company be restrained in his rival directorate. What he could do for a rival company, he could of course do for himself. And in the present case that principle is not affected by the agreements of each appellant with Levers to devote all his time during business hours to the 'Niger service' 1

Directors are fiduciary donees of their powers' and as such are bound to exercise them so as not to give themselves an advantage over other shareholders 2

Fiduciary position of directors They must not make secret profit out of their office 3 "A director is precluded from dealing on behalf of the company with himself and from entering into engagements in which he has a personal interest conflicting or which may possibly conflict with the interest of those whom he is bound by fiduciary duty to protect and this rule is as applicable to the case of one of several directors as the managing or sole director 4

Directors are entitled to be indemnified by the company for all debts, expenses and liabilities incurred in the ordinary course of business and for money borrowed and applied for those purposes 5 A director is also entitled to contribution from such of his co-directors as have concurred in ultra vires transactions 6 The right is available against the estate of a deceased contributory 6

Directors are not responsible to third persons for the acts of sub-agents of the company properly appointed unless they have derived benefit from a fraud 7

A person dealing with a company is entitled to assume that the directors who are carrying on the business are directors de jure whether they have been duly appointed or not 8, but a person who has notice of the irregularity cannot claim the benefit 9

Where bankers have been put upon inquiry with regard to the appointment of a new director and are guilty of negligence in not investigating the position, they are not entitled to assume that a notice of appointment of an additional director is a valid notice 10

Directors are not trustees for individual shareholders and may purchase the shares of the latter without disclosing pending negotiations for the sale of the company's undertaking 11

As to the knowledge of a common director to companies the following observation of Mulla & L. J. should be borne in mind. I cannot think that because he was a common director to the two companies we are on that account to say that one company has notice of everything that is within the knowledge of the common director and which knowledge he has acquired as director of the other company. 1

If owing to disputes on the governing body the affairs of a company cannot be carried on the Court will interfere by injunction and the appointment of a receiver until a fresh governing body is appointed. 2

The liabilities of the directors are extinguished by the dissolution of the company unless it is set aside by the Court. 3

For other cases see notes to ss. 2(c) 83 1 83 B 85 86 and J1 A

69 The remuneration of the directors shall from time to time be determined by the company in general meeting

The decision of what remuneration the directors are to have for their services is not a part of the business of the company so as to make the powers of the company as to the remuneration of the directors exclusively exercisable by the latter. When the remuneration of a director has been fixed by the company under this article the company has power to reduce his remuneration when it thinks fit. 4 A company with power from time to time to fix the remuneration of the directors can discriminate between directors with regard to the amount of their remuneration. 4 If the remuneration is provided in the articles it cannot be changed without a special resolution. 5

Where the articles provide that there should be allowed to each of the directors out of the company's funds a certain sum per annum as remuneration to be paid at such times as the directors may determine it is a condition precedent to the right of a director to sue for remuneration in respect of a year's service that the directors should determine the time of payment. 6 or how the remuneration is to be divided. 7 No individual director can sue the company for his fees until the directors have made a formal division of the amount available. 8

A director is not entitled to any remuneration beyond what has been sanctioned by the articles for doing an act which would be his duty as a director to do. 9 Directors are not entitled to get travelling expenses unless the payment is expressly authorized by the articles or by the company in general meeting. 10 even though they be entitled to be indemnified against all expenses. 11

Term of service

If a director take part in a resolution of the board determining that no remuneration is to be paid to the director for a particular year, he cannot claim any remuneration for that year. Such a resolution may however be rescinded by a subsequent resolution and if this is done, remuneration will be payable from the date of the rescinding resolution. Neither the uselessness of the director's services nor that they have diminished can be successfully pleaded as a bar to the claim.

The remuneration is not due to a director in his character of a member of the company and is provable as a debt on winding up in competition with the ordinary creditor ¹¹ Payment to a person for special skill and attention is none the less a provable debt because the person is a director or because under the articles a director must be a member ¹²

Director's fees

The meaning of the words "profits" in an article providing remuneration of the directors by a percentage of profits was discussed in Franks v Balfour & Co 14

A director's remuneration is not profit derived from his qualification shares. When he is a trustee for those shares his cestui que trust is not entitled to the amount of the remuneration 1

Directors who in a debenture holders' action are appointed receivers and managers at a remuneration continue as directors and are nevertheless entitled to their remuneration as directors 2

Where a director, managing director or manager is entitled to be paid a percentage of 'profits' it is a question of construction what profits means. Prima facie it means profits arising from the carrying on of the company's business as a going concern and the percentage is not payable on profits made by the sale of the whole undertaking of the company in winding up 3, but is payable on profits in kind earned while the company is a going concern even though not converted into cash until the winding up 4. As income tax payable by the company is part of its profits 5 the percentage is to be calculated on the profits before deduction of the tax 6

If a director's remuneration for extra work as an overseer director has not been determined by the general meeting he cannot receive although he has performed the duties in accordance with the agreement signed and sealed by the directors but must repay to the company on its counterclaim the money paid to him under the agreement 7

The fact that some of the directors are remunerated as receivers and managers in a debenture holders' action does not disentitle them to their remuneration in addition as directors from the time when they were appointed receivers and managers until commencement of the winding up 8

A balance sheet adopted and signed by directors pursuant to s. 333 is not an acknowledgment or written promise by the company or its agents to pay the directors fees 9

For other cases relating to the directors' remuneration see notes to s. 83 A

70 The qualification of a director shall be the holding of at least one share in the company, and it shall be his duty to comply with the provisions of section 85 of the Indian Companies Act, 1913

A company cannot alter the qualification for its directors except by passing a special resolution 10. A director must hold his qualification shares in such a way that the company may safely deal with him as owner of the shares 11. Shares held jointly with any other person may be a sufficient qualification 1 A director who is entered on the register as holder of shares as liquidator of another company is not qualified 2

Powers and duties of Directors

71 The business of the company shall be managed by the directors, who may pay all expenses incurred in getting up and registering the company, and may exercise all such powers of the company as are not, by the Indian Companies Act, 1913, or any statutory modification thereof for the time being in force, or by these articles, required to be exercised by the company in general meeting, subject nevertheless to any regulation of these articles, to the provisions of the said Act, and to such regulations being not inconsistent with the aforesaid regulations or provisions, as may be prescribed by the company in general meeting, but no regulation made by the company in general meeting shall invalidate any prior act of the directors which would have been valid if that regulation had not been made.

A director's duty requires him to act with such care as is reasonably to be expected from him having regard to his knowledge and experience. He is not bound to bring any special qualification to his office, but if he is acquainted with the particular business carried on by the company he must give the company the advantage of his knowledge. He is not responsible for damages occasioned by errors of judgment 3

A company is bound by the acts of the directors however irregular they may be provided they are authorized by the company's constitution 4. Where at a meeting of the directors of a company one of the body was authorized by a power of attorney to be executed by two of the directors to appoint or dismiss servants of the company and pursuant to the power of attorney the general manager was dismissed by the director so authorized it was held that the order of dismissal was valid though some of the directors continued to recognize him as such 5

The directors are trustees of the powers committed to them as for instance the power of approving transfer of shares of allotting shares, of employing the funds of the company of making calls or receiving payments in advance of calls or forfeiting shares and as trustees they may be rendered liable for their misuse 6. They are not however trustees for individual members 7

This form of article clearly delegates to the directors power to do every thing that the company can do except where the authority of a general meeting of the company is expressly prescribed and such delegation would include power to issue preference shares 1 The directors can do all acts necessary for management of the company 2 in luding giving a gratuity to its servants 3 But when the undertaking of the company is sold neither the directors nor the majority of the shareholders can give such gratuity against the wishes of the minority 4

It is within the powers of the directors to compromise a suit in the interest of the company even if the suit is ill founded 5 An action by the company should be commenced only by the directors 6

Unless the articles require the directors to conform to directions given by the company in general meeting the latter cannot except by special resolution take the conduct of the business out of the hands of the directors or to compel them to adopt a particular line of action such as sending a draft deed or effecting sale of the company's property 7 But the expression business of the company does not include the fixing of the directors' own remuneration 8 Directors cannot by contract deprive themselves of the power to control a manager so as to confer power on him to the exclusion of themselves 9

Where the authority of the directors is defined by the memorandum or the articles of association they have no power to go beyond this or to undertake any transaction outside the scope of the company's business But not only do their acts bind the company when done within the scope of their authority, but also where, however irregular, they belong to a class of acts which is authorized by the constitution of the company A company is bound by its dealings with strangers who act bona fide with the company A company is liable for all acts done by its directors even though unauthorized provided that such acts are within the apparent authority of the directors and not ultra vires 10

If the act of the directors is not ultra vires it can be ratified by the company, but such ratification of acts done by the directors in excess of their authority given to them by the articles does not extend to give validity to acts of similar character done subsequently 11 Power given by the articles to directors to raise a loan justifies a mortgage 12

Where the articles provided that no director shall be liable for any loss damage or misfortune whatever which shall happen in execution of the duties of his office or in relation thereto unless the same happens through his dishonesty, it was held that the provision was not illegal and that the articles were intended to relieve the directors who acted honestly, from liability for damages occasioned even by their negligence when such negligence was not dishonest ¹

Indemnity clause in articles

Outsider acting in good faith A bank acting in good faith and without notice of any irregularity is not bound before honouring the cheques to inquire into the state of the accounts between the company and its managing director ²

It has been held in England that under this form of articles the company cannot be sued if the directors do not pay the preliminary expenses even though it has taken benefit of the work done under a contract made before its formation ³ For a discussion of the Indian law in this respect see pp 91-9

Liability to pay preliminary expenses

For other cases see notes to ss 83 A and 100

72 The directors may from time to time appoint one or more of their body to the office of managing director or manager for such term, and at such remuneration (whether by way of salary, or commission, or participation in profits, or partly in one way and partly in another) as they may think fit, and a director so appointed shall not, while holding that office, be subject to retirement by rotation, or taken into account in determining the rotation of retirement of directors, but his appointment shall be subject to determination ipso facto if he ceases from any cause to be a director, or if the company in general meeting resolve that his tenure of the office of managing director or manager be determined

A managing director is an ordinary director entrusted with special powers ⁴ He is not a clerk or servant so as to be entitled to salary in preference to other creditors ⁵ Persons dealing bona fide with a managing director are entitled to assume that he has all the powers which according to the constitution of the company a managing director can have ⁶ Where a company undertakes to sell the shares belonging to a shareholder, the position of the managing director in negotiating and completing the sale is one of fiduciary character Utmost good faith should be observed in such cases ⁷ If any advantage is obtained by the managing director as the fruit of the sale the benefit must go to the owner of the shares ⁷

Directors cannot appoint a managing director or delegate their powers and duties to other persons 2 in the absence of provisions in the articles empowering them to do so 3 Where powers are delegated under the provisions of the articles the directors are absolved from liability for relying on the delegates 4 This article does not expressly authorize any delegation of powers but the authority is implied under this article 5 Such delegation may certainly be obtained under article 91 6 But the appointment or delegation must be made at a meeting where proper quorum is present excluding the interested directors 7

Where the power is given to the directors to appoint a managing director for such period as they think fit and to revoke the appointment they can by agreement appoint a managing director for life and unless they reserve power in the agreement to revoke the appointment the company cannot dismiss the managing director and if it does so he will be entitled to damages 7 Where a managing director is appointed by agreement for a certain number of years at a certain salary and before the expiration of the period a resolution supported by the managing director is passed for voluntary winding up of the company as by reason of its liabilities it cannot continue its business the managing director is entitled to damages for breach of the agreement 8 If a life director is appointed managing director without specification of the term for which he will hold the office he will be liable to be removed by the directors 9

When it is admittedly desirable that a managing director should be appointed but the directors are unable owing to internal friction and faction to make the appointment under the powers conferred by the articles the company in general meeting has power to make the appointment 10

The agreement with the managing director of a company provided The managing director shall not at any time, while he shall hold the office or afterward Agreement shall interfere with or endeavour to entice away from the company any person firm or company who at any time during or at the date of the determination of the employment of the managing director were customers of or in the habit of dealing with the company 11 Shortly after determination of the agreement the defendant (managing director) opened a business of a similar nature In an action by the company to enforce the contract the Court of Appeal (reversing the decision of Firwell J) held that the covenant was not wider than was reasonably necessary for the protection of the plaintiff company's trade, and was therefore enforceable by injunction 11

Under ss 21 and 27 of the Specific Relief Act a limited company cannot be restrained by injunction from dispensing with the services of the managing agents, even when the contract of service provides that the managing agents are only to be removed in a specified manner and after a specified period 12 Nor can the shareholders be restrained

A company suing for a declaration that they are the managing agents of another company must ask consequential relief of injunction to restrain the other company to interfere with the discharge of their duties as managing agents, otherwise no declaration will be granted by the Court.¹

If there is no provision in the articles of the managing director's exemption from retirement by rotation he ceases to be the managing director on his future retirement to be re-elected after retirement even if the directors have purported to appoint him for a fixed period.²

73 The amount for the time being remaining undischarged of moneys borrowed or raised by the directors for the purposes of the company (otherwise than by the issue of share capital) shall not at any time exceed the issued share capital of the company without the sanction of the company in general meeting.

This article deals with the powers of directors in borrowing money. The words "for the time being" do not mean "when the claim is made." The article in terms fixes the limit at any time.³

74 The directors shall duly comply with the provisions of the Indian Companies Act, 1913, or any statutory modification thereof for the time being in force, and in particular with the provisions in regard to the registration of the particulars of mortgages and charges affecting the property of the company or created by it, and to keeping a register of the directors, and to sending to the registrar an annual list of members, and a summary of particulars relating thereto and notice of any consolidation or increase of share capital, or conversion of shares into stock, and copies of special resolutions and a copy of the register of directors and notification of any changes therein.

75 The directors shall cause minutes to be made in books provided for the purpose—

- (a) of all appointments of officers made by the directors;
- (b) of the names of the directors present at each meeting of the directors and of any committee of the directors;
- (c) of all resolutions and proceedings at all meetings of the company and of the directors, and of committees of directors; and every director

A director who is present at a board meeting at which the minutes of a previous meeting are confirmed even though he be a party to this confirmation is not thereby made responsible for what was done at such previous board meeting 1

The Seal

76 The seal of the company shall not be affixed to any instrument except by the authority of a resolution of the board of directors, and in the presence of at least two directors and of the secretary or such other person as the directors may appoint for the purpose, and those two directors and secretary or other person as aforesaid shall sign every instrument to which the seal of the company is so affixed in their presence

A document will be regarded as a forged one if the seal is affixed to it without the authority of a resolution of the board 3 If the seal be affixed under the authority of a board meeting at which a quorum is not present the execution will be as between the company and persons who had no notice of the irregularity as good 4, but if the seal has been wrongfully affixed the company will not be bound 5 Negligence of a company for the purpose of an estoppel must be such negligence as is immediately connected with the act by which the loss arises 6 As affixing the seal is not a matter in which normally a single director would have power to act without the authority of the board a person is not relieved from the obligation to inquire whether the formalities required by the article have been complied with 7

Any person who has power to manage the affairs of the company has power to affix the seal 8 A contract to refer to arbitration any dispute which might arise between a company and an individual is not illegal because it is not under the company's seal 9

- (g) accepts a loan from the company; or
- (h) is concerned or participates in the profits of any contract with the company; or
- (i) is punished with imprisonment for a term exceeding six months;

Provided, however, that no director shall vacate his office by reason of his being a member of any company which has entered into contracts with, or done any work for, the company of which he is director; but a director shall not vote in respect of any such contract or work, and if he does so vote, his vote shall not be counted.

By the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936 the original clauses (e) and (f) have been re-lettered as clauses (h) and (i) respectively and for clauses (a) to (d) the new clauses (a) to (g) have been substituted. The original clause (d) was as follows.

present at any meeting of directors or committee of directors shall sign his name in a book to be kept for that purpose

A director who is present at a board meeting at which the minutes of a previous meeting are confirmed even though he be a party to this confirmation is not thereby made responsible for what was done at such previous board meeting 1

As to notice of matters referred to in minutes read at a meeting in which a director was present see the cases noted below 2
See notes to s 83

The Seal

76 The seal of the company shall not be affixed to any instrument except by the authority of a resolution of the board of directors, and in the presence of at least two directors and of the secretary or such other person as the directors may appoint for the purpose; and those two directors and secretary or other person as aforesaid shall sign every instrument to which the seal of the company is so affixed in their presence

A document will be regarded as a forged one if the seal is affixed to it without the authority of a resolution of the board 3 If the seal be affixed under the authority of a board meeting at which a quorum is not present the execution will be good 4, but if the seal has been wrongfully affixed the company will not be bound 5 Negligence of a company for the purpose of an estoppel must be such negligence as is immediately connected with the act by which the loss arises 6 As affixing the seal is not a matter in which normally a single director would have power to act without the authority of the board, a person is not relieved from the obligation to inquire whether the formalities required by the article has been complied with 7

Any person who has power to manage the affairs of the company has power to affix the seal 8 A contract to refer to arbitration any dispute which might arise between a company and an individual is not illegal because it is not under the company's seal 9

The qualifications of Directors

77 The office of director shall be vacated if the director—is a person who is disqualified from being a director

(b) in clause (a) of regulation 77, for the figure '81' the figure '55' shall be substituted,

- (c) is adjudged insolvent, or
- (d) fails to pay calls made on him in respect of shares held by him within six months from the date of such calls being made, or
- (e) without the sanction of the company in general meeting accepts or holds any office of profit under the company other than that of a managing director or manager or a legal or technical adviser or a banker, or
- (f) absents himself from three consecutive meetings of the directors or from all meetings of the directors for a continuous period of three months, whichever is longer, without leave of absence from the board of directors, or
- (g) accepts a loan from the company, or
- (h) is concerned or participates in the profits of any contract with the company, or
- (i) is punished with imprisonment for a term exceeding six months

Provided, however, that no director shall vacate his office by reason of his being a member of any company which has entered into contracts with, or done any work for, the company of which he is director, but a director shall not vote in respect of any such contract or work, and if he does so vote, his vote shall not be counted

By the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936 the original clauses (c) and (f) have been re-lettered as clauses (h) and (i) respectively and for clauses (a) to (d) the new clauses (a) to (h) have been substituted. The original clauses (i) to (l) were as follows

Cl 16 Where the articles provided that a director should ipso facto vacate his office if he accepted or held any other office under the company except that of the managing director or manager a resolution appointing two of the directors to act as solicitors of the company did not disqualify them 1 But if a director hold the office of a paid trustee of a debenture deed that will disqualify him 2 A secretary if elected a director may act as such if he cease to receive the salary of the post of secretary 3

Insolvency In order that a director should be insolvent within the meaning of this article it is not necessary that there should be a definite act of insolvency done on a particular day from which it can be said that the insolvency dates. It is sufficient if there is evidence from which the Court can find that the director is insolvent.

If a director becomes financially insolvent and asks his creditors to accept a composition he is to be regarded as an insolvent within the meaning of this article 5

Participation in profits of a contract Cl (1) In the absence of a provision in the articles a director is precluded from partaking any benefit from a contract which requires the sanction of his board & and if he makes any profit he must account to the company & It makes no difference that the profit is one which the company itself could have obtained ?

Meaning is to the meaning of the expression 'profits of any contract' - see the cases noted below 8 A director's office is vacated if he is concerned in any such contract, although no profits arise therefrom 9 A director is entitled to be heard on the question whether his office has been vacated 10

When does the disqualification cease? The disqualification ceases ■ soon as the transaction is completed, and the director may be re-elected 11
See notes to s 83 B

Rotation of Directors

78 At the first ordinary meeting of the company, the whole of the directors shall retire from office, and at the ordinary meeting in every subsequent year, one-third of the directors for the time being or, if their number is not three or a multiple of three, then the number nearest to one-third shall retire from office.

Where by the provisions of the articles directors retire from office at an ordinary general meeting future to hold such a meeting will prevent their re-election their retirement dating from the last day in the year in which a general meeting could have been held 1 The word directors does not include de facto directors or subscribers to the memorandum of association It applies only to directors who have been duly appointed under the articles 2

Where additional directors are appointed in accordance with provisions similar to those under article 8, the whole number of directors of whom a proportion is to retire does not include the additional directors who hold office until the ordinary general meeting 3

See notes to Art 82

79 The directors to retire in every year shall be those who have been longest in office since their last election, but as between persons who became directors on the same day those to retire shall (unless they otherwise agree among themselves) be determined by lot

80 A retiring director shall be eligible for re-election

81 The company at the general meeting at which a director retires in manner aforesaid may fill up the vacated office by electing a person thereto

Recommended by board If the company can under the articles only appoint persons recommended by the board the recommendation must be made by a properly constituted board meeting. It is not enough that a majority of the board being present assent to the appointment.

Where a notice state 1 that certain resolution would be passed with such amendments as should be determined upon including a resolution to appoint three named persons as directors it was competent for the company to add three other persons by way of amendment 5

Poll At an election of directors if a poll is demanded a return of the poll must be taken to be good unless the question is raised before a proper tribunal ⁶

Where under the articles directors are to be appointed at a general meeting an agreement made by the directors by which directors are to be imposed upon the shareholders by another company is illegal?

Where the articles provided that a member could not be elected a director unless written notice of the intent on his behalf were given to the company not less than 14 days before the day of election of director, a notice given 11 days before the adjourned meeting was held to be sufficient.

82 If at any meeting at which an election of directors ought to take place the places of the vacating directors are not filled up, the meeting shall stand adjourned till the same day in the next week at the same time and place, and, if at the adjourned meeting the places of the vacating directors are not filled up, the vacating directors or such of them as have not had their places filled up shall be deemed to have been re-elected at the adjourned meeting.

The article does not apply to first directors and where no meeting is held at Where applicable

If for any reason the first or the adjourned meeting does not proceed validly to fill up the places of the vacating directors they will continue in office & position not filled up
In such a case there is no vacancy to which a successor can be elected 4

Where the articles provided that the directors should be elected annually at a general meeting, it was held by B. B. Ghose and Garlick JJ. that so long as the general meeting was not held the directors elected at the previous general meeting would continue in office 5. It was further held in this case that a declaration could not be made under s. 47 of the Specific Relief Act. Pelick A. to the effect that the directors elected in the previous year were no longer directors of the company and that all acts done by them were illegal and void because the plaintiff did not in such a suit claim to be entitled to any legal character or to any right as to any property which had been denied. It was also held that such a declaration ought not to be made by the Court in the exercise of its discretion 6.

83 Subject to the provisions of sections 83A and 83B of the Indian Companies Act, 1913 the company may from time to time in general meeting increase or reduce the number of directors, and may also determine in what rotation the increased or reduced number is to go out of office.

The words in italics have been inserted by the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936

See notes to art. 69

84 Any casual vacancy occurring on the board of directors may be filled up by the directors, but the person so chosen shall be subject to retirement at the same time as if he had become

■ director on the day on which the director in whose place he is appointed was last elected a director

The election of ■ person as a director by the directors entitles him to hold office till the next general meeting while if he is elected at a general meeting he is entitled to hold office for three years under art 78 1

As to what are casual vacancies see the case noted below 2

A casual vacancy means in general any vacancy occurring by death, resignation or bankruptcy and not by effluxion of time 3

A casual vacancy may be filled up either by the directors or by the general meeting 4

85 The directors shall have power at any time, and from time to time, to appoint a person as an additional director, who shall retire from office at the next following ordinary general meeting, but shall be eligible for election by the company at the meeting as an additional director

Under this form of articles the directors only have the power of appointing additional directors 5 But if the company in general meeting has a concurrent power 6 under the articles or if owing to deadlock there is no board capable of making the appointment 7 a general meeting can elect additional directors

Where the articles provide 1 The governing directors shall have power from time to time and at any time to appoint and remove at will additional directors on the construction of the articles it was held that this power was to be exercised by all the governing directors and the words governing directors are not equivalent to a majority of the governing directors The rule of corporation law (laid down in Grinley v Barler (T P 388) that when a duty is delegated to a body of persons those persons can act at a meeting does not apply to the case of articles of associations of companies incorporated under the Companies Act 8

86 The company may by extraordinary resolution remove any director before the expiration of his period of office, and may by an ordinary resolution appoint another person in his stead, the person so appointed shall be subject to retirement at the same time as if he had become a director on the day on which the director in whose place he is appointed was last elected a director

A company, whose directors are appointed under the articles for a definite period has no inherent power to remove them before the expiration of directors of the period without first altering the articles, even a special resolution for removal will not be effective 1

Where the articles provide that a company may remove any director 'for negligence misconduct or any other reasonable cause' at the general meeting who can judge whether the cause is reasonable or not and in the absence of a fraud the Court will not interfere with the decision of the general meeting 2

A director who has been excluded from board meetings by his co-directors has the right to compel them to admit him

Proceedings of Directors

87 The directors may meet together for the despatch of business, adjourn and otherwise regulate their meetings, as they think fit. Questions arising at any meeting shall be decided by a majority of votes. In case of an equality of votes, the chairman shall have a second or casting vote. A director may, and the secretary on the requisition of a director shall, at any time, summon a meeting of directors

Lord Justice Fry said 4 Directors cannot think without meeting Lord Justice Cozens Hardy observed "It was laid down by the Court of Exchequer in D Arey v Tamar 5 that directors must act together at a board and that it is not sufficient to procure the separate authority of a sufficient number of directors to constitute a quorum 6 Jessel M R said "Where 'six directors out of seven met in a different capacity and for a different purpose (at a general meeting of shareholders), such a meeting does not make them a board of directors' 7

Notice of a board meeting must be given to the directors 8 and a director has no power to waive his right to notice 9 But if a director is abroad, a meeting without notice to him will be valid 10 A meeting without notice to all the directors is invalid 11 Even a majority of the directors cannot act at a meeting of which notice has not been given to the whole body 12 A short notice may suffice if the directors can attend 1 Even a verbal notice will do and if the party objecting to the shortness of notice does not intervene at once it will not prevail 1

In default of notice to all the directors the meeting is irregular No notice may, however be necessary if the absent directors had knowledge of the meeting otherwise But from the mere fact that there is nothing on the record to show that notice was given the Court cannot assume that the notice was not given It is for the party alleging that the meeting was irregular to prove to the satisfaction of the Court that notice was not in fact given to the absent directors Generally the Court is entitled to assume that everything has been done regularly and in due course in the absence of evidence to the contrary 2

It is not necessary to state in the notice the business to be transacted at the meeting 3 But if the articles require that a certain business or class of business should be transacted at a meeting specially convened for the purpose the notice must specify the business 4

An irregularity in a meeting of directors for want of notice to all the directors for confirming a transfer of shares does not invalidate a transfer duly made It is sufficient if at the date of the winding up there is upon the register a transferee who is legally liable to the company in respect of the shares 5

Where there were only two directors, and one did not attend a meeting duly summoned but the other meeting him shortly after in the passage of his office proposed the election of a third director and an objection being made declared that by his casting vote as chairman he carried the resolution it was held to be valid 6 But where one director met another at a railway station and proposed resolutions to which the other objected they were held not to be valid 7

At a board meeting the directors can take the items of business in such order as they think proper, and not necessarily in the order on the agenda paper 8

If the previous meeting is informal a subsequent meeting can ratify the business done at the former meeting 9

It seems that a provision in the articles that a letter signed by all or a majority of the directors shall have the same effect as a resolution of the board, is valid 10

A director cannot exclude a co director from a board meeting 11 The excluded director can get an injunction restraining his exclusion 12

88 The quorum necessary for the transaction of the business of the directors may be fixed by the directors, and unless so fixed shall (when the number of directors exceeds three) be three

Where the articles do not prescribe a quorum the number who usually act in conducting business of the company will constitute a quorum 1, or a majority of the directors may form a quorum 2 Unless a quorum is present the business transacted is void 3

The quorum must not be a quorum of persons not competent to vote e.g. directors who are interested in the contract under discussion 3, and the objection will not be removed by dividing the business into two resolutions and each director voting only on the resolution affecting the other 11 or reducing the quorum to one to make the other alone to form a quorum 4

Where the articles provide, as here that the quorum may be fixed by the directors an outsider is entitled to assume that the directors have acted with a proper quorum 5

Under this form of articles the directors may appoint a quorum of one or delegate powers to a committee consisting of one director only 6

The presence of a quorum does not prevent a lawfully constituted director from attending the board meeting or does not allow a portion of the board to exclude others 7

If the number in office is less than a quorum it is doubtful whether they can act 8 It has however been held by the Rangoon High Court that where one of the two directors is debarred from acting the other director can alone act for the company 9

89 The continuing directors may act notwithstanding any vacancy in their body, but, if and so long as their number is reduced below the number fixed by or pursuant to the regulations of the company as the necessary quorum of directors, the continuing directors may act for the purpose of increasing the number of directors to that number, or of summoning a general meeting of the company, but for no other purpose

If the articles provide that the continuing directors may act (not in the restricted manner as in this article) notwithstanding, however, a number less than the minimum allowed by the articles can bind the company 10

business 1

This article does not validate the acts of an original board less in number than the minimum prescribed by the articles— continuing mean continuing after there has once been a board competent to transact

A director may be liable to pay for the shares allotted to him or for any calls made thereon by a resolution to which he was himself a party as a director although the resolution was not passed by a board properly constituted according to the company articles of association. In such cases he will be estopped from denying his liability 2

90 The directors may elect a chairman of their meetings and determine the period for which he is to hold office, but if no such chairman is elected, or if at any meeting the chairman is not present within five minutes after the time appointed for holding the same the directors present may choose one of their number to be chairman of the meeting

The appointment of a chairman made in contravention of the articles is void and is not confirmed by mere acquiescence; consequently where there is no provision for a casting vote of a chairman a resolution carried by his casting vote is inoperative 3

The mere appointment of a permanent director as chairman will not make him a permanent chairman 4

91 The directors may delegate any of their powers to committees consisting of such member or members of their body as they think fit and any committee so formed * shall, in the exercise of the powers so delegated, conform to any regulations that may be imposed on them by the directors

Unless the articles authorize it the directors cannot delegate their powers to a committee 5. The committee under this article may consist of a single director 6. By making such delegation the directors lose their power to act in the matter 7 or to control the company's affairs 8. No single director can bind the company unless powers have been delegated to him by the board under some provisions in the articles 5

Delegated authority will be presumed when one or two directors act in a matter within the scope of the ordinary business of the company 9. By the articles of a company the directors had power to delegate to one or more of their body such of the powers conferred on the directors as they might consider requisite for carrying on of the business of the company and to determine who should be entitled to sign the contracts and documents on the company's behalf. A document purporting to be a guarantee was given to the plaintiffs executed by the company in this form. The F I B Ltd signed N P N P was a director of the company and during the negotiation for the giving of the guarantee he had written to the plaintiffs signing the letters for and on behalf of the company N P Chairman. Upon these facts in relation to the guarantee it was held that the plaintiffs were entitled to presume that the directors had authorised N P to sign contracts on behalf of the company and that the company was liable on the guarantee.

92 A committee may elect a chairman of their meetings if no such chairman is elected, or if at any meeting the chairman is not present within five minutes after the time appointed for holding the same, the members present may choose one of their number to be chairman of the meeting.

93 A committee may meet and adjourn as they think proper. Questions arising at any meeting shall be determined by a majority of votes of the members present, and, in case of an equality of votes, the chairman shall have a second or casting vote.

94 All acts done by any meeting of the directors or of a committee of directors, or by any person acting as a director, shall, notwithstanding that it be afterwards discovered that there was some defect in the appointment of any such directors or persons acting as aforesaid, or that they or any of them were disqualified, be as valid as if every such person had been duly appointed and was qualified to be a director.

If a person who had ceased to be a director by the expiry of the period for which he was elected enters into an agreement as director on behalf of the company with a third party and the other shareholders agree to ratify and carry out the terms of the agreement the irregularity is cured by this article and the company is estopped from challenging the validity of the agreement on the ground that the director was not duly appointed. See s 86 and notes thereto.

Dividends and Reserve

95 The company in general meeting may declare dividends, but no dividends shall exceed the amount recommended by the directors.

Dividend means the sum paid and received as the quotient forming the share of the divisible sum payable to the recipient.

Where by the articles power is given to the directors to declare a dividend with the sanction of a general meeting and also to set aside out of profits a sum as a reserve fund before declaring a dividend, the shareholders in general meeting cannot declare a dividend 1

Unless the memorandum or the articles of association make a clear provision that the whole of the company's profits shall be divided among the shareholders, the company is not bound to do so 2 Whether the whole or a portion or what portion shall be divided among the shareholders are questions of internal management of a company and the Court has no jurisdiction to interfere 3 If the directors in their discretion think that a dividend should not be declared the Court will not be easily induced to override their decision The law in this respect was clearly laid down by their Lordships of the Judicial Committee in the following words Their Lordships are not aware of any principle which compels a joint stock company while a going concern to divide the whole of its profits among its shareholders Whether the whole or any part should be divided, or what portion should be divided and what portion retained are entirely questions of internal management which the shareholders must decide for themselves and the Court has no jurisdiction to control or review their decisions or to say what is a 'fair' or 'reasonable' sum to retain undivided or what reserve fund may be properly required And it makes no difference whether the undivided balance is retained to the credit of profit and loss account, or carried to the credit of a reserve fund or appropriated to any other use of the company These are questions for the shareholders to decide subject to any restrictions or directions contained in the articles of association or bye laws of the company 'If the company may form a reserve fund or retain a balance of undivided profits, it must, it would seem have power to invest the moneys so retained 3 Except in the case of fraud shareholders cannot insist on the payment of dividends even where the profits are amply sufficient, if the directors decline to declare a dividend 4

Final dividend cannot be declared except at an annual general meeting at which accounts up to the prescribed date and reports thereon are submitted 5

Principle of keeping accounts For the principles upon which the accounts of a trading company should be kept for the purpose of showing how dividends ought to be paid see the judgment of Chitty J in the case noted below 6

Until a dividend is declared no class of shareholders are entitled to bring an action to enforce payment 7 A shareholder who has with full notice or knowledge of the facts received part of the proceeds of an ultra vires act committed by the directors—such as payment of a dividend out of capital—and who still retains the money cannot, either individually or as suing on behalf of the general body of shareholders, maintain an action against those directors 8

nor can he do so even if after action and before trial he repays the money he has wrongfully received 1

A company may if its memorandum or articles of association so provide capitalize profits by using fully paid up shares to the members thereby transferring the sum capitalized from the profit and loss account or reserve account to the share capital 2

When this is done the question arises whether the profits thus capitalized and distributed among the shareholders are to be regarded as income or capital. If a testator bequeaths the income of his shares in a limited company to a life tenant and the capital to the residuary legatee it has been decided by the House of Lords that even where the accumulated profits are distributed by the company as bonus dividend which is applied in part payment of new shares allotted the so-called bonus dividend is capital and the life tenant is not entitled to the bonus or the new shares 3. The principle of this decision was applied by the House of Lords in cases where the question was whether dividends of a limited company paid out of its current annual profits and distributed in the form of shares of the company was income of the recipient for the purposes of super tax i.e. whether it was part of the recipient's "total income from all sources" within s 65 of the Finance Act (Eng) 1909 10 or whether it was exempt from super tax by reason of its having become capital 4. In Scan Brewery Co v Rex 5 where the company passed the necessary resolution to increase its capital by issuing new shares and transferred accumulated profits to the credit of share capital account it was held by the Privy Council that the allottees were liable to pay income tax on these shares. In Commissioners of Inland Revenue v Blott 4 the Scan Brewery Company's case was distinguished by the majority on the ground that the Australian Act under which it was decided the word "dividend" was defined to include advantage and that it was held therein that the new shares which had been issued to the shareholders and paid out of accumulated reserve were advantages and so taxable 6. It was also held in Blott's case by Viscounts Finlay and Cive that the reasoning on which the judgment in Scan Brewery Company's case rested was inconsistent with the decision in Bourch v Sproule 9. But in Blott's case Lord Sumner was clearly of opinion that what was said by the Judicial Committee as to the effect in law and business of a distribution of bonus shares was part of the decision and cannot be distinguished from the present case. That case did not turn on the special definition of dividend in the taxing statute of Western Australia 7. He along with Lord Dunedin held that Bourch v Sproule did not touch the question of income tax 8. In Blott's case Lord Haldane said that the company was dominant on the question whether the money in question was to be capital or income for all purposes 9.

Blott's case was followed by the House of Lords in Commissioners of Inland Revenue v Fisher's Executors 1 in which the bonus was distributed in the form of debenture stock instead of preference shares as in Blott's case and the debenture-stock was redeemable by the company after six years. In Fisher's Executors' case Viscount Cave L.C. quoted with approval the following observation of Lord Haldane made in Blott's case at pp 184-85: 'My Lords, for the reasons I have given I think that it is, as matter of principle within the powers of an ordinary joint stock company with articles such as those before us to determine conclusively against the whole world whether it will withhold profits it has accumulated from distribution to its shareholders as income and as an alternative not to distribute them at all but apply them in paying up the capital sums which shareholders electing to take up unissued shares would otherwise have to contribute. If this is done, the money so applied is capital and never becomes profits in the hands of the shareholders at all. What the latter gets is no doubt a valuable thing. But it is a thing in the nature of an extra share certificate in the company. His new shares do not give him an immediate right to a larger amount of the existing assets. These remain where they were. The new shares simply confer a title to a larger proportion of the surplus assets if and when a general distribution takes place as in a winding up. In these assets the undistributed profits now allocated to capital will be included profits which will be used by the company for its business but henceforth as part of its issued share capital. Such a transaction appears to me one purely of internal management with which for the reasons explained by Lord Davey in Burland v Earle [(1902) A.C. 83-93] no Court can interfere.

These cases have recently been followed by the Judicial Committee in what looks like an extreme case 2. In this case the reserve fund was capitalized and distributed in the form of a special capital bonus by debentures credited as fully paid up. They were repayable at the option of the company at any time after three months notice and were in fact all redeemed at various dates prior to the end of 1933. The respondents were assessed to super tax for the year ending 31st March, 1932. Their Lordships held that by the transaction in question no income, profit or gain accrued or arose or were received by the assessee within the meaning of s. 4 Income Tax Act 1922 and that as regards the point in issue there was no ground for distinction between the Imperial Act and the Indian Act. Their Lordships observed that the personal motive or purpose of the individual shareholders even if they held a controlling interest in the company was irrelevant if it was made out that the company had in fact capitalized the accumulated profits and for this their Lordships quoted as authority, the following observations of Lord Sumner himself in Fisher's Executors' case (supra at p. 411). 'In any case desires and intentions are things of which a company is incapable. These are mental operations of its shareholders and officers. The only intention that the company has is such as is expressed in or necessarily follows from its proceedings. It is hardly a paradox to say that the form of company's resolutions and instruments is their substance.'

Declaration of a dividend creates a debt from the company and limitation begins to run immediately 3

A company does not hold its dividends as a trustee for the shareholders 1
 To whom Dividends are payable to the persons whose names are on the register payable of members at the time of the declaration 2

96 The directors may from time to time pay to the members such interim dividends as appear to the directors to be justified by the profits of the company

Meaning of member The word member in this article includes the personal representative of a deceased shareholder whose name remains on the register of members 3

Where the articles provide as here for payment of interim dividends a mere resolution of the board to pay does not create a debt as between the company and the shareholder and the directors are entitled to rescind the resolution subsequently 4

For the meaning of the word "interim" see the case noted below 5

97 No dividends shall be paid otherwise than out of profits of the year or any other undistributed profits

By the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936 the words in italics have been added
 See Introduction

The law is much more accurately expressed by saying that dividends cannot be paid out of capital than by saying that they can only be paid out of profits. The last expression leads to the inference that the capital must always be kept up and be represented by assets which if sold would produce it and this is more than is required by law 6

Perhaps the shortest way of expressing the distinction which I am endeavouring to explain is to say that fixed capital may be sunk and lost and yet that the excess of current receipts over current payments may be divided 6 but that the floating or circulating capital must be kept up as otherwise it will enter into and form part of such excess in which case to divide such excess without deducting the capital which forms part of it will be contrary to law 7 There is no rule of law that profit of one year's trading could not be divided merely because on the profit and loss account there was a debit balance on the trading of former years 8

The statutes do not expressly prohibit payment of dividends out of capital but their provisions are wholly inconsistent with return of capital to shareholders 7 Dividends must not be paid out of capital 9 and under the guise of paying dividends the company must not return any part of the subscribed capital to the members 10 the year. This can only be ascertained by a comparison of the assets of the business at the two dates¹ 1

If the total assets of the business at the two dates be compared the increase which they show at the later date is compared with the earlier date (due allowance of course being made for any capital introduced into or taken out of the business in the meanwhile) represents in strictness the profits of the business during the period in question 2

In the same case Lord Justice Farwell observed. Money which has in fact resulted from the profits made in trading is none the less profit because it is carried over to a suspense account or reserve fund. If it is lost in the trading of subsequent years there is an end of it, but so long as it remains in status quo it remains as undistributed profits, see In re Ley L. in Bradstreet Navigation Co [1891] 2 Ch 317 3

Profit does not necessarily mean any amount actually netted. It only means that that is the amount by which the credit side exceeds the debit side in the accounts as appearing in the company's books. Till an account is finally settled this sort of profit may be merely on paper. Until a business is actually wound up any statement as to profit is partly fact and partly an estimate. In most cases it is impossible to attain exactitude in ascertaining the profits of a business because such profits are naturally dependent upon the valuation of the assets of the concern. The proper ascertainment of profits in the case of a company is of great importance only in order to avoid the possibility of payment of dividend wholly or partly out of capital which is strictly forbidden. If that is guarded against and there is no idea of declaring a dividend showing of profit on paper may not be so vitally misstating the position of the company after all 4

'Net profits' of the business for a year is the excess of the receipts for the year over the current expenses and outgoings of the same year i.e., the fund which for that year is capable of being lawfully applied by the company to the payment of dividend. As a matter of Law that fund could only be arrived at after deducting the excess profits duty which is a debt of the company to the Crown 5

So long as such a company, observe their Lordships of the Judicial Committee "is a going concern and is not restricted as to the profits out of which it may pay dividends it may distribute as dividend to its shareholders the excess of its revenue receipts over expenses properly chargeable to revenue account. The balance to the credit of profit and loss account may in many cases be divided as dividend even if the company's capital account is in debit and such a distribution by way of dividend would prima facie be 'income or profits' of the trust share and belong to the tenant for life" 6

'Dividends presuppose profits of some sort and this is unquestionably true. But the word 'profit' is by no means free from ambiguity' 7. The question of what is profit available for dividends depends upon the result of the whole account fairly taken for the year, capital as well as profit and loss and though dividends may be paid out of earned profits in proper cases notwithstanding depreciation of capital a realized accretion to the estimated value of one item of capital assets cannot be

is not to be a profit divisible amongst the shareholders without reference to the whole accounts fairly taken 1 But where sufficient assets would be left to answer the paid up capital a realized profit on capital asset can be divided unless forbidden by the articles 2

It is clear I think that an appreciation in total value of the capital assets if duly realized by sale or getting in of some portion of such assets may in a proper case be treated as available for purposes of dividend 3

Although the question of the payment of dividend out of capital was discussed by the Court of Appeal in the case of the National Bank of Wales 4 the House of Lords reserved their opinion on this important question 5 Lord Halsbury said 'What are profits and what is capital may be a difficult and sometimes an almost impossible problem to solve' 6

In the same case 7 Lord Macnaghten gave the following warning 'I do not think it desirable for any tribunal to do that which Parliament has abstained from doing—that is to formulate precise rules for the guidance or embarrassment of business men in the conduct of business affairs' 8

But the observations of their Lordships in Dovey v Cory cannot be considered as having overruled or qualified 9 the previous decisions of the Court of Appeal in the cases noted below 10

An ordinary trading company may lawfully pay a dividend out of current profits without setting aside a sum sufficient to cover depreciation in the value of the fixed capital 11 It is not possible for the Court to say that the law prohibits a limited company even a limited banking company, from paying dividends unless its paid up capital is intact 12

Lord Justice Kay held 'Any income received may be divided whether part of the capital is lost or not' At present I do not know of any law to prevent this and it might be difficult to provide such a law without unduly interfering with the liberty of commercial proceedings 13

The Companies Act does not nor does the general law, prohibit a company from distributing the clear net profits of its trading in any year unless its paid up capital is intact or until it has first made good all trading losses incurred in previous years 14

Again Lord Justice Lindley observed 'There is no law which compels limited companies in all cases to recoup losses shown by the capital account out of the receipts shown in the profit and loss account although care must be taken not to treat capital as if it were profit 1 Directors are not bound to set aside a portion of the profits as a sinking fund 2 but it is safe for them to make some provision for making good the loss of fixed capital before paying away profits as dividend 3

If there is a reserve fund and also an interest adjustment account or suspense account sufficient to cover the bad and doubtful debts a company would be justified in declaring a dividend out of profit and under such circumstances the company would be justified in arriving to profit and loss account interest on bad and doubtful debts not actually realised 4

Moreover when it is said and truly that dividends are not to be paid out of capital the word capital means the money subscribed pursuant to the memorandum of association or what is represented by the money Accretions to that capital may be realised and turned into money, which may be divided among the shareholders as was decided in Lubbock v British Bank of South America [1842] 2 Ch 199 5 As to the distinction between the fixed capital and circulating capital see notes to s 6 sub s (1) (v)

Money paid in respect of shares in a limited company may be income or corpus of a settled share according to the procedure adopted i e, according as the money is paid by way of dividend before liquidation or is paid by way of surplus assets in a winding up Each process might appear to involve some injustice the former to the remainderman the latter to the tenant for life 6

The question whether a company has profits available for distribution must be answered according to the circumstances of each particular case the nature of the company and the evidence of competent witnesses 7 Although in some cases fixed capital may be sunk and lost without precluding a payment of dividend circulating capital must be kept up 7

A company which has a balance to the credit of its profit and loss account is not bound at once to apply that sum in making good an estimated deficiency in value of its capital assets It may carry it to suspense account or to reserve and if the assets subsequently increase in value the amount neither has been nor will be part of the capital If therefore a part of that balance is used in paying a dividend that dividend is not paid out of capital because the sum has never become capital although it still remains a question whether it has been paid out of profits or not 8

In a recent case where the directors of a company owning and operating steam trawlers sold some of their vessels for sums largely exceeding the values at which they stood in the balance sheet carried the proceeds to suspense account and distributed them as cash bonuses to the shareholders it was held that not having been capitalized by the issue of bonus shares increasing the total capital the payments were income 9

This subject was first elaborately discussed by eminent Judges in Lee v Newchattel Asphalt Co 1 where it was held that a company was under no obligation to keep the value of its assets up to the nominal amount of its capital, and the payment of a dividend was not to be considered a return of capital merely on the ground that no provision had been made for keeping the assets up to the nominal amount of capital

There is nothing in the Companies Act to prohibit a company formed to work a wasting property as eg a mine or a patent from distributing as dividend the excess of the proceeds of working above the expenses of working nor to impose on the company any obligation to set apart a sinking fund to meet the depreciation in the value of the wasting property. If the expenses of working exceed the receipts the accounts must not be made out so as to show an apparent profit and so enable the company to pay a dividend out of capital, but the division of the profits without providing a sinking fund is not such a payment of dividends out of capital as is forbidden by law 2

'If a company is formed to acquire and work a property of a wasting nature, for example a mine a quarry or a patent the capital expended in acquiring the property may be regarded as sunk and gone, and if the company retains assets sufficient to pay its debts it appears to me that there is nothing whatever in the Act to prevent any excess of money obtained by working the property over the cost of working it, from being divided amongst the shareholders and this in my opinion is true although some portion of the property itself is sold, and in some sense the capital is thereby diminished' 3

'There is nothing in the Act which says that dividends are only to be paid of profits. There is a provision to that effect in Table A, and that rather favours the view that the matter of how profits are to be divided and dealt with, and out of what fund dividends are to be declared is a matter of internal regulation' 4

'But still there is this firmly fixed that capital assets of the company are not to be applied for any purpose not within the objects of the company and paying dividend is not the object of the company, the carrying on the business of the company is its object 5

Having stated shortly what are the provisions of the Act of Parliament relating to this matter, I may safely say that the Companies Acts do not require the capital to be made up if lost. They contain no provision of the kind. There is not even any provision that if the capital is lost the company shall be wound up, and I think this omission is quite reasonable. The capital may be lost yet the company may be a very thriving concern' 6

'The notion that a company is debtor to capital although it is a convenient notion it does not deceive men is apt to lead one astray. The company is not a debtor to capital the capital is not a debt of the company * 1 The amount credited " observe their Lordships of the Judicial Committee upon a share may as between one shareholder and another while the company is a going concern, determine the proportion of profits receivable by him as dividend and in a winding up his proportion of surplus assets but it has no influence to extend or increase the aggregate amount available for division in due course of administration amongst the whole body of shareholders nor does it make the company a debtor for any sum at all" 2

Expenditure chargeable to revenue or capital "It is not open to doubt that under ordinary circumstances where a trader in order to effect a saving in his working expenses dispenses with the services of a particular agent or servant, and makes payment for the cancellation of the agency or service agreement such a payment is properly chargeable to revenue it does not involve any addition to or withdrawal from fixed capital, it is purely a working expense" 3

The broad principle applicable to a case like the present is stated by Viscount Cave LC in British Insulated & Cables v. Atherton 4 But when an expenditure is made not only once and for all, but with a view to bringing into existence an asset or an advantage for the enduring benefit of a trade, I think that there is very good reason (in the absence of special circumstances leading to an opposite conclusion) for treating such an expenditure as properly attributable not to revenue but to capital ' 5

'It should be remembered, in connection with this passage, that the expenditure is to be attributed to capital if it be made 'with a view' to bringing an asset or advantage which is to be for the 'enduring benefit of the trade I agree with Rowlatt J that by 'enduring' is meant 'enduring in the way that fixed capital endures' An expenditure on acquiring floating capital is not made with a view to acquiring an asset that may be turned over in the course of trade at a comparatively early date Nor, of course, need the advantage be of a positive character The advantage may consist in the getting rid of an item of fixed capital that is of an onerous character, as was pointed out by this Court in Mallet v. Starely Coal & Iron Co 6 ' 7

"The Act does not say what expenses are to be charged to capital and what to revenue Such matters are left to the shareholders They may or may not have a sinking fund or a deterioration fund, and the articles of association may or may not contain regulations on those matters If they do, the regulations must be observed, if they do not, the shareholders can do as they like, so long as they do not misapply their capital and cheat creditors" 8.

The following warning of Lord Justice Lindley should always be borne in mind 'You must not have fictitious accounts If your earnings are less than your current expenses you must not cook your accounts, so as to make it appear that you are earning a profit and you must not lay your hands on your capital to pay dividend

Warning of Lord Justice Lindley But it is I think a misapprehension to say that dividing the surplus after payment of expenses of the produce of your wasting property is a return of capital in any sense as is forbidden by the Act" 1

Depreciation of capital assets such as building and fixed plant must be taken into account before arriving at the profits of the year, so if the articles declare that dividend shall only be payable out of profits no dividend can be declared until such depreciation has been allowed 2

Depreciation

Of course a company may be formed upon the principle that no dividends shall be declared unless the capital is kept undiminished or a company may contract with its creditors to keep its capital or assets up to a given value 3

Apart from a special provision in the articles, a single item of gain by redemption of debenture stock cannot be dissociated from the loss of capital assets and the amount of the discount is not distributable as dividend 4 If an amount does not arise out of the company's business, it is not distributable in dividend 4 Where the issue of loan capital was not one of the objects or part of the business of the company but was a power to be exercised incidentally to or in furtherance of its objects the discount was not divisible as net profit as it did not arise out of the company's business 5

Single item of gain

'If the Court sees that the directors of the company have acted fairly and reasonably in ascertaining whether this is a division of profit and not of capital and then in what is really a matter of internal arrangement (if it is done honestly and does not violate any of the provisions of the articles) the Court is very unwilling to interfere and in my opinion ought not to interfere, with the discretion exercised by the directors who have the management of the company, or with the powers exercised by the company within the articles' 6

Dilemma of Cotton L J

Where a company has paid for things properly chargeable to capital, out of revenue, it can recoup the revenue account at a subsequent time out of capital and may, if necessary, raise fresh capital for the purpose under their borrowing powers 7 Payment of dividend out of the so called debenture capital is not illegal 8 as it is no capital at all but money raised by borrowing 9, and for this purpose it is permissible to revalue the assets 10 Where depreciation in investments has been debited to revenue account the investment rising in value, the appreciation may be credited to revenue 11 But earnings after the commencement of winding up are capital and not income 11 A company which applies its profits in writing off a corresponding amount of the value of the goodwill instead of carrying them to a goodwill depreciation reserve fund, but which has not finally and unreservedly capitalized these profits may write back to profit account so much of the depreciation written off goodwill as proves to be in excess of the proper requirement 1

If there has been a sale of capital assets with the result that the assets including the purchase money exceed the aggregate amount of the paid up capital and the company's liability to outside creditors the company can treat the excess as profit and distribute it in dividend although it has been called capital reserve fund 2 Premiums obtained on the issue of shares are profits 3

Dividends may be paid out of estimated profits although not actually realized 4, unless the articles provided that dividends should only be paid out of realized profits 5 Realized profits must be taken in its ordinary commercial sense as meaning at least "profits tangible for the purpose of division 5 Directors who treat estimated profits as realized and in fact pay dividend out of capital on the chance that sufficient profits might be made will however be jointly and severally liable as upon a breach of trust 5 But where debts owing to a company were under estimated for motives or prudence the difference between the estimated and ascertained value when known represents undrawn profits 6

In order to charge directors for dividends paid out of capital it is not necessary to establish fraud 7 But if there is no fraud and the directors acted in the honest belief that there were profits when in fact there were none, they will not be liable even if the payment of dividend is ultra vires 8

If dividend is declared without proper investigation of the financial position of the company and no profit and loss account is prepared, but only an account of receipts and payments making no allowance for risks, the directors will be liable if they fail to show that the dividend was properly declared 9

It is settled by authorities that (1) directors are quasi trustees of the company's capital (2) that directors who improperly pay dividends out of capital are liable to repay such dividends personally upon the company being wound up (3) that the acquiescence of the shareholders does not affect the creditors in such a case and (4) that such an act is a breach of trust and the remedy is not barred by the Statute of Limitation 10 But in this connection the observations of Lindley, M R. should be borne in mind: "It was stated in the judgment of this Court in Tangunas Nitrate Co v. Tangunas Syndicate 11, that if directors act within their powers—if they act with such care as is reasonably to be expected from them having regard to their knowledge and experience—and if they act honestly for the benefit of the company they represent, they discharge their equitable as well as their legal duty to the company. We believe this statement of the law to be correct and we adopt it as our guide 1

Although improper payment of dividend will be restrained by injunction on an action brought by a shareholder a simple creditor cannot bring such an action on the ground that the fund for payment of his debt is thereby diminished 2 nor can a debenture stockholder unless he can show that he has a presently enforceable security 3 maintain such an action even though the assets of the company are insufficient to provide for payment of the so-called loan capital 3

Directors who are knowingly parties to the payment of dividend out of capital are liable to proceedings by action or in the case of winding up by misfeasance summons under s 234. Where the directors fall short of the standard of care which they ought to apply to the affairs of the company, the onus is upon them to show that the dividends have been paid out of profits 4

An individual member can maintain an action in his own name without bringing it on behalf of other persons and himself to restrain the corporation from doing an ultra vires act 5. But if a dividend has been paid out of capital no individual shareholder who has received his dividend with knowledge of all the facts and still retains it can maintain an action against the directors to compel them to pay to the company the amount wrongly distributed as dividend 7

Preference shareholders may obtain an injunction to restrain a proposed payment of an interim dividend in excess of that authorized by the articles 8 or of any ordinary dividend in prejudice of their rights 9

The language of Table A of the English Act of 1862 as also of the Indian Act of 1857 was out of the profits arising from the business of the company. The language of the present article is much wider

98 Subject to the rights of persons (if any) entitled to shares with special rights as to dividends, all dividends shall be declared and paid according to the amounts paid on the shares, but if and so long as nothing is paid upon any of the shares in the company, dividends may be declared and paid according to the amounts of the shares. No amount paid on a share in advance of calls shall, while carrying interest, be treated for the purposes of this article as paid on the share

In the absence of such an article members are entitled to dividend in proportion to their shares and not in proportion to the amount paid thereon 10 for the interests of shareholders in respect of their shares as regards dividends and everything else are equal 11. But in the same company if there are purpose as fifty £ 1 shares 1 Surplus assets remaining after payment of all debts and return of all paid up capital will be divided on the same principle 2

Table A of the Act of 1882 following that of the English Act of 1862 provided
 Table A of The directors may with the sanction of the company in general the Act of meeting declare dividend to be paid to the members in proportion to 1882 the shares

If a class of shares is entitled to a dividend it is subject to deduction of income tax Income tax In the absence of express words the preference shareholders are not entitled to have their preference dividends free of income tax 3

If it is provided in the memorandum or the articles of association that the rights Rights of of the holders of preference shares should come first they cannot be preference postponed 4, but if the preference shares are issued subject to the rights shareholders of the company to issue fresh capital having such preference and priorities as shall be agreed upon, the original preference shares may be postponed 5

A declaration that the profits are to be applied first in paying a dividend on the preference shares and secondly on the ordinary shares gives the preference shareholders cumulative dividend 6 unless it is provided that the profits of each year are to be distributed among the preference shareholders on the basis mentioned 7

Where preference shareholders are given a fixed preferential dividend at a specified rate their right to any further dividend is impliedly negatived 8

1 or other cases see notes to s. 192

Where a clause in the memorandum of association provided that the preference shares should entitle the holder to a fixed cumulative dividend at 7 p c, on the amount for the time being paid up and to the repayment of capital before any dividend was paid to the holders of ordinary shares and to a further dividend calculated as therein mentioned, it was held that the company could pay dividend on ordinary share capital subject only to the fixed cumulative dividend of 7 p c on the preference shares and that the latter were entitled in the event of a winding up to rank pari passu with the holders of ordinary shares in any surplus assets of the company 9

A guarantor of preference dividends who has made payments pursuant to the guarantee can claim only to be subrogated to the rights of preference shareholders and cannot claim to be repaid as a creditor by the company 10

Arrears of dividend cannot be paid up to the date of the winding up dividend unless such dividends have in fact been declared, or unless the articles contain express provisions to that effect 11 think proper as a reserve or reserves which shall, at the discretion of the directors, be applicable for meeting contingencies, or for equalizing dividends, or for any other purpose to which the profits of the company may be properly applied, and pending such application may, at the like discretion, either be employed in the business of the company or be invested in such investments (other than shares of the company) as the directors may from time to time think fit

In general a company is entitled to place rights to a depreciation or to a reserve fund and disentitled shareholders in the absence of a declaration of dividend or bonus or a winding up cannot challenge the decision of the majority 1

A company may without any special authority in the articles carry profits to reserve and use the reserve in the business 2 or invest it in securities 3 But if the articles expressly provide that the profits are to be applied in particular proportions among the different classes of shareholders and contain no provision for a reserve fund they cannot be carried to

Carrying profits to reserve

reserve 4

Right of preference shareholders

The right of the preference shareholders to dividend is in the absence of an express agreement to the contrary subject to the directors right to carry sums to the reserve 5 In such a case it will be the duty of the directors to fix the amount of the fund to be retained with reference to the general interest of all classes of shareholders and not to favour any one class at the expense of the others 6

Profits carried to reserve

Where the articles specify a particular method of placing amounts to reserve the provisions must be complied with 7 Profits carried to a reserve fund remain profits unless and until they are effectually capitalized 8 and may be distributed as dividends 9 though there is a loss on the capital account 10 But as to the right of debenture holders to intervene

see Tilt Cove Copper Co 11

Specific provision in the articles

Where the articles provide that after allowing for all charges the profits should be applied in payment of dividends the directors cannot apply any portion of the profits in creating a reserve fund 12

The articles may be so framed as to prevent the application of the reserve fund to the payment of dividends 13

100 If several persons are registered as joint-holders of any share, any one of them may give effectual receipts for any dividend payable on the share.

101 Notice of any dividend that may have been declared shall be given in manner hereinafter mentioned to the person entitled to share therein.

102 No dividend shall bear interest against the company

Account

103 If directors shall cause to be kept proper ledgers of account with respect to—

- (i) all sums of money received and expended by the company and the matters in respect of which the receipts and expenditure take place,
- (ii) all sales and purchases of goods by the company
- (iii) the assets and liabilities of the company

By the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936 the above regulation 103 has been substituted for the original regulation 103 which was as follows —

103 The directors shall cause true accounts to be kept—

- (i) of the sums of money received and expended by the company and the matter in respect of which such receipt and expenditure takes place and
- (ii) of the assets and liabilities of the company

104 The books of account shall be kept at the registered office of the company or at such other place as the directors shall think fit and shall be open to inspection by the directors during business hours

By the Companies (Amendment) Act 1936 the above regulation has been substituted for the original regulation 104 which was as follows —

104 The books of account shall be kept at the registered office of the company, or at such other place or places as the directors think fit and shall always be open to the inspection of the directors.

105 The directors shall from time to time determine whether and to what extent and at what times and places and under what conditions or regulations the accounts and books of the company or any of them shall be open to the inspection of members not being directors, and no member (not being a director) shall have any right of inspecting any account or book or document of the company except as conferred by law or authorised by the directors or by the company in general meeting.

As a rule the shareholders have no right to inspect the accounts of the company 1
 In the absence of any special provision a director has but a mere share Rights of shareholder holler has not a right to inspect documents held by the company's and directors solicitor on its behalf 2

There is no provision in the Act entitling a member to inspection by proxy even though she is a woman nor can a shareholder beforehand seek to obtain information which can be supplied at the general meeting and ask the Court to stop the meeting till the information is supplied 3

Provision in the articles giving a right to inspect the books of the company ceases
 In case of to apply when the company goes into voluntary liquidation 4 but it may 107 The profit and loss account shall in addition to the matter referred to in sub-section (3) of section 132 of the Indian Companies Act, 1913, show, arranged under the most convenient heads, the amount of gross income, distinguishing the several sources from which it has been derived, and the amount of gross expenditure, distinguishing the expenses of the establishment salaries and other like matters Every item of expenditure fairly chargeable against the year's income shall be brought into account, so that a just balance of profit and loss may be laid before the meeting, and, in cases where any item of expenditure which may in fairness be distributed over several years has been incurred in any one year, the whole amount of such item shall be stated, with the addition of the reasons why only a portion of such expenditure is charged against the income of the year

Notes

112 (1) A notice may be given by the company to any member either personally or by sending it by post to him to his registered address, or (if he has no registered address in British India) to the address, if any, within British India supplied by him to the company for the giving of notices to him.

(2) Where a notice is sent by post, service of the notice shall be deemed to be effected by properly addressing, prepaying and posting a letter containing the notice and, unless the contrary is proved, to have been effected at the time at which the letter would be delivered in the ordinary course of post.

Where under the articles notice of a general meeting is to be given to "members" and such notice may be served upon any "member" either personally or by sending it prepaid by post addressed to "such member" at his registered address it is not necessary, in the case of a deceased member, either to send a notice addressed to him at his registered address or to serve his legal representatives, unless they have themselves become "members" by formal registration.

Where the company through its officers has actual knowledge of the death of a shareholder it cannot however rely upon a notice addressed to the deceased member for

For ordinary purposes a notice sent by post will be deemed to have been served, even if in fact it never reached the addressee. But making over a letter to a postman outside the pillar box is not sufficient. The rule, however, does not apply so as to affect the member with notice of a notice representation (which notice was in fact given by the document), if the document does not reach his hands.

Date of service Provisions in the articles regulating the date on which a notice is to be served must be considered, but an article which provides that the day of service of a notice is to be counted in the relevant number of days must be disregarded?

An article like this does not validate an order for substituted proceedings on a member, if the registered address is not his place of business.

1 The company for the purpose of registration is declared to consist of five hundred members

2 The directors hereinafter mentioned may whenever the business of the association requires it register an increase of members

Definition of Members

3 Every person shall be deemed to have agreed to become a member of the company who insures any ship or share in a ship in pursuance of the regulations hereinafter contained 1

General Meetings

4 The first general meeting shall be held at such time, not being less than one month nor more than three months after the incorporation of the company and at such place as the directors may determine

5 A general meeting shall be held once in every year at such time (not being more than fifteen months after the holding of the last preceding general meeting) and place as may be prescribed by the company in general meeting or in default at such time in the month following that in which the anniversary of the company's incorporation occurs and at such place as the directors shall appoint. In default of a general meeting being so held a general meeting shall be held in the month next following and may be called by any two members in the same manner as nearly as possible as that in which meetings are to be called by the directors

6 The above mentioned general meetings shall be called ordinary meetings. All other general meetings shall be called extraordinary

7 The directors may whenever they think fit and shall on a requisition made in writing by any five or more members call an extraordinary general meeting

8 Any requisition made by the members must state the object of the meeting proposed to be called and must be signed by the requisitionists and deposited at the registered office of the company

9 On receipt of the requisition the directors shall forthwith proceed to call a general meeting if they do not proceed to cause a meeting to be held within twenty one days from the date of the requisition being so deposited the requisitionists or any other five members may themselves call a meeting

Proceeding at General Meetings

10 Fourteen days notice at the least specifying the place, the day and the hour of meeting and in case of special business the general nature of the business shall be given to the members in manner hereinafter mentioned or in such other manner (if any) as may be prescribed by the company in general meeting but the non receipt of such a notice by any member shall not invalidate the proceedings at any general meeting

11 All business shall be deemed special that is transacted at an extraordinary meeting and all that is transacted at an ordinary meeting with the exception of the consideration of the accounts balance-sheets and the ordinary report of the directors and auditors the election of directors and other officers in the place of those retiring by rotation and the fixing of remuneration of the auditors

12 No business shall be transacted at any meeting except the declaration of a dividend, unless a quorum of members is present at the commencement of the business. The quorum shall be ascertained as follows (that is to say) —if the members of the company at the time of the meeting do not exceed ten in number, the quorum shall be five; if they exceed ten, there shall be added to the above quorum one for every five additional members with this limitation, that no quorum shall in any case exceed ten.

13 If within one hour from the time appointed for the meeting a quorum of members is not present, the meeting, if called on the requisition of the members, shall be dissolved; in any other case it shall stand adjourned to the same day in the following week at the same time and place, and if at such adjourned meeting a quorum of members is not present, it shall be adjourned sine die.

14 The chairman (if any) of the directors shall preside as chairman at every general meeting of the company.

15 If there is no such chairman, or if at any meeting he is not present at the time of holding the same, the members present shall choose some one of their number to be chairman of that meeting.

16 The chairman may, with the consent of the meeting, adjourn the meeting from time to time and from place to place, but no business shall be transacted at any adjourned meeting other than the business left unfinished at the meeting from which the adjournment took place.

17 At any general meeting, unless a poll is demanded by at least three members, a declaration by the chairman that a resolution has been carried, and an entry to that effect in the book of proceedings of the company, shall be conclusive evidence of the fact, without proof of the number or proportion of the votes recorded in favour of or against the resolution.

18 If a poll is demanded in manner aforesaid, the same shall be taken in such manner as the chairman directs, and the result of the poll shall be deemed to be the resolution of the meeting at which the poll was demanded.

Votes of Members

19. Every member shall have one vote and no more.

20. If any member is a lunatic or idiot, he may vote by his committee or other legal guardian.

21. No member shall be entitled to vote at any meeting unless all moneys due from him to the company have been paid.

22. On a poll votes may be given either personally or by proxy. Provided that no company shall vote by proxy as long as a resolution of its directors in accordance with the provisions of section 80 of the Indian Companies Act, 1913, is in force. A proxy shall be appointed in writing under the hand of the appointor, or, if such appointor is a corporation, under its common seal.

23. (1) No person shall act as a proxy unless he is a member, or unless he is appointed to act at the meeting as proxy for a corporation.

(2) The instrument appointing him shall be deposited at the registered office of the company not less than forty eight hours before the time of holding the meeting at which he proposes to vote

24 Any instrument appointing a proxy shall be in the following form —

Company Limited

I _____ of _____ being a Member of the _____ Company, Limited hereby appoint _____ of _____ as my proxy to vote for me and on my behalf at the [ordinary or extraordinary as the case may be] general meeting of the company to be held on the _____ day of _____ and at any adjournment thereof
Signed this _____ day of _____ Director

25 The number of the directors and the names of the first directors shall be determined by the subscribers of the memorandum of association

26 Until directors are appointed the subscribers of the memorandum of association shall for all the purposes of the Indian Companies Act 1913 be deemed to be directors

Powers of Directors

27 The business of the company shall be managed by the directors, who may exercise all such powers of the company as are not by the Indian Companies Act 1913 or by any statutory modification thereof for the time being in force or by these articles required to be exercised by the company in general meeting but no regulation made by the company in general meeting shall invalidate any prior act of the directors which would have been valid if that regulation had not been made

Elections of Directors

28 The directors shall be elected annually by the company in general meeting

Business of Company

(Here insert rules as to mode in which business of insurance is to be conducted)

Audit

29 Auditors shall be appointed and their duties regulated in accordance with sections 144 and 145 of the Indian Companies Act 1913 or any statutory modification thereof for the time being in force and for this purpose the said sections shall have effect as if the word members were substituted for shareholders and as if first general meeting were substituted for first meeting

Notice

30 A notice may be given by the company to any member either personally or by sending it by post to his registered address

31 Where a notice is sent by post service of the notice shall be deemed to be effected by properly addressing prepaying and posting a letter containing the notice and unless the contrary is proved to have been effected at the time at which the letter would be delivered in the ordinary course of post

Company, to hold unto the said C D, his executors, administrators, and assigns subject to the several conditions on which I held the same at the time of the execution thereof, and I, the said C D, do hereby agree to take the said share (or shares) subject to the same conditions. As witness our hands the _____ day of _____

(10) The Company may decline to register any transfer of shares made by a member who is indebted to them

Transmission of Shares

(14) Any person who has become entitled to a share in consequence of the death, bankruptcy or insolvency of any member or in consequence of the marriage of any female member may instead of being registered himself, elect to have some person to be named by him registered as a transferee of such share.

(10) The instrument of transfer shall be presented to the Company, together with such evidence as the directors may require to prove the title of the transferee and thereupon the Company shall register the transferee as a member.

(17) If any member fails to pay any call on the day appointed for payment thereof, directors may at any time thereafter during such time as the call remains unpaid serve a notice on him requiring him to pay such call together with interest and any expenses that may have accrued by reason of such non payment.

(18) The notice shall name a further day on or before which such call and all such non payment are to be paid made, the place so named being other place at which calls of the I also state that in the event of mounted the shares in respect of circumstances & limit.

(26) The several holders of stock shall be entitled to participate in the dividends and profits of the Company according to the amount of their respective interests in such stock and such interests shall in proportion to the amount thereof confer on the holders thereof respectively the same privileges and advantages for the purpose of voting at meetings of the Company and for other purposes as may have been conferred by shares of equal amount in the capital of the Company, except the privilege of participating in dividends. No privilege or advantage shall be conferred by any such stock which would not if existing in shares have conferred such privileges or advantages.

Increase in Capital

(26) The directors may with the sanction of a special resolution of the Company previously given in general meeting increase its capital by the issue of new shares, and the aggregate increase to be of such amount and to be divided into shares of such respective amounts as the Company in general meeting directs, or, if no direction is given, as the directors think expedient.

(27) Subject to any direction to the contrary given by the Company in general meeting, the increase of capital shall be in proportion to the existing shares held by the members, and the number of shares to which the offer is not accepted shall be disposed of such time or on the receipt of an intimation from the member to whom such notice is given that he declines to accept the shares offered the directors may dispose of the same in such manner as they think most beneficial to the Company.

(28) Any capital raised by the creation of new shares shall be considered as part of the original capital and shall be subject to the same provisions, with reference to the payment of calls and the forfeiture of shares on non payment of calls or otherwise as if it had been part of the original capital.

General Meetings

(29) The first general meeting shall be held at such time not being more than six months after the registration of the Company and at such place as the directors may determine.

(30) Subsequent general meetings shall be held, once at the least in every year at such time and place as may be prescribed by the Company in general meeting, and if no other time or place is prescribed a general meeting shall be held on the first Monday in February in every year at such place as may be determined by the directors.

(31) The above mentioned general meetings shall be called ordinary meetings, and all other general meetings shall be called extraordinary.

(32) The directors may whenever they think fit and they shall upon a requisition made in writing by not less than one-fifth in number of the members of the Company, convene an extraordinary general meeting.

(33) Any requisition made by the members shall express the object of the meeting proposed to be called and shall be left at the registered office of the Company.

(34) Upon the receipt of such requisition the directors shall forthwith proceed to convene an extraordinary general meeting. If they do not proceed to convene the same within twenty one days from the date of the requisition the requisitionist or any other members amounting to the required number may themselves convene an extraordinary general meeting.

Proceedings at General Meetings

(35) Seven days notice at the least specifying the place, the day and the hour of meeting, and in case of special business the general nature of such business shall be given to the members in manner hereinafter mentioned or in such other manner if any as may be prescribed by the Company in general meeting, but the non receipt of such notice by any member shall not invalidate the proceedings at any general meeting.

(36) All business shall be deemed special that is transacted at an extraordinary meeting, and all that is transacted at an ordinary meeting with the exception of sanctioning a dividend and the consideration of the accounts, balance-sheets, and the ordinary report of the directors.

(37) No business shall be transacted at any general meeting except the declaration of a dividend unless a quorum of members is present at the time when the meeting

proceeds to business. Such quorum shall be ascertained as follows that is to say. If the persons who have taken shares in the Company at the time of the meeting do not exceed ten in number the quorum shall be five. If they exceed ten there shall be added to the above quorum one for every five additional members up to fifty, and one for every ten additional members after fifty with this limitation that no quorum shall in any case exceed twenty.

(38) If within one hour from the time appointed for the meeting a quorum is not present at the meeting if convened upon the requisition of members shall be dissolved. In any other case it shall stand adjourned to the same day in the next week at the same time and place and if at such adjourned meeting a quorum is not present it shall be adjourned sine die.

(39) The chairman (if any) of the Board of directors shall preside as chairman at every general meeting of the Company.

(40) If there is no such chairman or if at any meeting he is not present within fifteen minutes after the time appointed for holding the meeting the members present shall choose some one of their number to be chairman.

(41) The chairman may with the consent of the meeting adjourn any meeting from time to time and from place to place but no business shall be transacted at any adjourned meeting other than the business left unfinished at the meeting from which the adjournment took place.

(2) A condition requiring or binding an applicant for shares in or debentures of a company to waive compliance with any requirement of this section, or purporting to affect him with notice of any contract, document, or matter not specifically referred to in the prospectus, shall be void.

(3) It shall not be lawful to issue any form of application for shares in or debentures of a company unless the form is issued with a prospectus which complies with the requirements of this section :

Provided that this subsection shall not apply if it is shown that the form of application was issued either—

- (a) in connection with a bona fide invitation to a person to enter into an underwriting agreement with respect to the shares or debentures ; or
- (b) in relation to shares or debentures which were not offered to the public.

If any person acts in contravention of the provisions of this subsection he shall be liable to a fine not exceeding five hundred pounds.

(4) In the event of non-compliance with or contravention of any of the requirements of this section, a director or other person responsible for the prospectus shall not incur any liability by reason of the non-compliance or contravention, if—

- (a) as regards any matter not disclosed, he proves that he was not cognisant thereof ; or
- (b) he proves that the non-compliance or contravention arose from an honest mistake of fact on his part ; or

(7) This section shall not apply to the issue to existing members or debenture holders of a company of a prospectus or fo

(6) Nothing in this section shall limit or diminish any liability which any person may incur under the general law or this Act apart from this section.

36.—(1) A company limited by shares or a company limited by guarantee and having a share capital shall not previously to the statutory meeting vary the terms of a contract referred to in the prospectus, or statement in lieu of prospectus, except subject to the approval of the statutory meeting.

Restriction on alteration of terms mentioned in prospectus or statement in lieu of prospectus.

(2) This section shall not apply to a private company.

37.—(1) Where a prospectus invites persons to subscribe for shares in or debentures of a company—

Liability for statements in prospectus.

(a) every person who is a director of the company at the time of the issue of the prospectus, and

(b) every person who has authorised himself to be named and is named in the prospectus as a director or as having agreed to become a director either immediately or after an interval of time, and

(c) every person being a promoter of the company; and

(d) every person who has authorised the issue of the prospectus, shall be liable to pay compensation to all persons who subscribe for any shares or debentures on the faith of the prospectus for the loss or damage they may have sustained by reason of any untrue statement therein, or in any report or memorandum appearing on the face thereof, or by reference incorporated therein or issued therewith, unless it is proved—

(i) that having consented to become a director of the company he withdrew his consent before the issue of the prospectus, and that it was issued without his authority or consent; or

(ii) that the prospectus was issued without his knowledge or consent, and that on becoming aware of its issue he forthwith gave reasonable public notice that it was issued without his knowledge or consent; or

(iii) that after the issue of the prospectus and before allotment thereunder, he, on becoming aware of any untrue statement therein, withdrew his consent thereto, and gave reasonable public notice of the withdrawal, and of the reason therefor; or

(iv) that—

(a) as regards every untrue statement not purporting to be made on the authority of an expert or of a public official document or statement, he had reasonable ground to believe, and did up to the time of the allotment of the shares or debentures, as the case may be, believe, that the statement was true; and

(b) as regards every untrue statement purporting to be a statement by an expert or contained in what purports to be a copy of or extract from a report or valuation of an expert, it fairly represented the statement, or was a correct and fair copy of or extract from the report or valuation ; and

(c) as regards every untrue statement purporting to be a statement made by an official person or contained in what purports to be a copy of or extract from a public official document, it was a correct and fair representation of the statement or copy of or extract from the document :

Provided that a person shall be liable to pay compensation as aforesaid if it is proved that he had no reasonable ground to believe that the person making any such statement, report or valuation as is mentioned in paragraph (iv) (b) of this sub-section was competent to make it.

(2) Where the prospectus contains the name of a person as a director of the company, or as having agreed to become a director thereof, and he has not consented to become a director, or has withdrawn his consent before the issue of the prospectus, and has not authorised or consented to the issue thereof, the directors of the company, except any without whose knowledge or consent the prospectus was issued, and any other person who authorised the issue thereof shall be liable to indemnify the person named as aforesaid against all damages, costs, and expenses to which he may be made liable by reason of his name having been inserted in the prospectus, or in defending himself against any action or legal proceedings brought against him in respect thereof

(3) Every person who by reason of his being a director, or named as a director or as having agreed to become a director, or of his having authorised the issue of the prospectus, becomes liable to make any payment under this section may recover contribution, as in cases of contract, from any other person who, if sued separately, would have been liable to make the same payment, unless the person who has become so liable was, and that other person was not, guilty of fraudulent misrepresentation.

(4) For the purposes of this section—

The expression “promoter” means a promoter who was a party to the preparation of the prospectus, or of the portion thereof containing the untrue statement, but does not include any person by reason of his acting in a professional capacity for persons engaged in procuring the formation of the company.

The expression “expert” includes engineer, valuer, accountant, and any other person whose profession gives authority to a statement made by him.

38 --(1) Where a company allots or agrees to allot any shares or debentures of the company with a view to all or any of those shares or debentures being offered for sale to the public, any document by which the offer for sale to the public is made shall for all purposes be deemed to be a prospectus issued by the company, and all enactments and rules of law as to the contents of prospectuses and to liability in respect of statements in and omissions from prospectuses, or otherwise relating to prospectuses, shall apply and have effect accordingly, as if the shares or debentures had been offered to the public for subscription and as if persons accepting the offer in respect of any shares or debentures were subscribers for those shares or debentures, but without prejudice to the liability, if any, of the persons by whom the offer is made, in respect of misstatements contained in the document or otherwise in respect thereof

(2) For the purposes of this Act, it shall, unless the contrary is proved, be evidence that an allotment of, or an agreement to allot, shares or debentures was made with a view to the shares or debentures being offered for sale to the public if it is shown—

(a) that an offer of the shares or debentures or of any of them for sale to the public was made within six months after the allotment or agreement to allot ; or

(b) that at the date when the offer was made the whole consideration to be received by the company in respect of the shares or debentures had not been so received

(3) Section thirty-four of this Act as applied by this section shall have effect though the persons making the offer were persons named in a prospectus as directors of a company, and section thirty-five of this Act as applied by this section shall have as if it required a prospectus to state in addition to the matters required by that section to be stated in a prospectus—

- (a) the net amount of the consideration received or to be received by the company in respect of the shares or debentures to which the offer relates, and
- (b) the place and time at which the contract under which the said shares or debentures have been or are to be allotted may be inspected.

(4) Where a person making an offer to which this section relates is a company or a firm it shall be sufficient if the document aforesaid is signed on behalf of the company or firm by two directors of the company or not less than half of the partners, as the case may be and any such director or partner may sign by his agent authorised in writing.

Allotment.

39.—(1) No allotment shall be to the public for subscription as the minimum amount of allotment be raised by the issue of shares unless the minimum subscription has been subscribed, and the amount so stated has been paid to received

For the purposes of this subsection a sum shall be deemed to have been paid to and received by the company if a cheque for that sum has been received in good faith by the company and the directors of the company have no reason for suspecting that the cheque will not be paid.

(2) The amount so stated in the prospectus shall be reckoned exclusively of any amount payable otherwise than in cash and is in this Act referred to as "the minimum subscription."

(3) The amount payable on application on each share shall not be less than five per cent of the nominal amount of the share.

(4) If the conditions aforesaid have not been complied with on the expiration of forty days after the first issue of the prospectus, all money received from applicants for shares shall be forthwith repaid to them without interest, and, if any such money is not so repaid within forty-eight days after the issue of the prospectus, the directors of the company shall be jointly and severally liable to repay that money with interest at the rate of five per centum per annum from the expiration of the forty-eighth day:

Provided that a director shall not be liable if he proves that the default in the repayment of the money was not due to any misconduct or negligence on his part.

(5) Any condition requiring or binding any applicant for shares to waive compliance with any requirement of this section shall be void.

(6) This section, except subsection (3) thereof, shall not apply to any allotment of shares subsequent to the first allotment of shares offered to the public for subscription.

40.—(1)

Prohibition of allotment in certain cases unless statement in lieu of prospectus delivered to registrar.

three days before the first allotment of either shares or debentures there has been delivered to the registrar of companies for registration a statement in lieu of prospectus signed by every person who is named therein as a director or a proposed director of the company or by his agent authorised in writing in the form and containing the particulars set out in the fifth schedule to this Act.

(2) This section shall not apply to a private company.

(3) If a company acts in contravention of this section, the company and every director of the company who knowingly authorises or permits the contravention shall be liable to a fine not exceeding one hundred pounds.

(2) If the contrary be shown he shall be liable for damages or costs thereby.

or permits or authorises, with respect to allotment, respectively for any loss, have sustained or incurred

Provided that proceedings to recover any such loss, damages, or costs shall not be commenced after the expiration of two years from the date of the allotment

Return as to allotments 42—(1) Whenever a company limited by shares or a company limited by guarantee and having a share capital makes any allotment of its shares, the company shall within one month thereafter deliver to the registrar of companies for registration—

(a) a return of the allotments, stating the number and nominal amount of the shares comprised in the allotment, the names, addresses, and descriptions of the allottees, and the amount, if any, paid or due and payable on each share; and

(b) in the case of shares allotted as fully or partly paid up otherwise than in cash, a contract in writing constituting the title of the allottee to the allotment together with any contract of sale, or for services or other consideration in respect of which that allotment was made, such contracts being duly stamped, and a return stating the number and nominal amount of shares so allotted, the extent to which they are to be treated as paid up, and the consideration for which they have been allotted

(2) Where such a contract as above mentioned is not reduced to writing, the company shall within one month after the allotment deliver to the registrar of companies for registration the prescribed particulars of the contract stamped with the same stamp duty as would have been payable if the contract had been reduced to writing, and those particulars shall be deemed to be an instrument within the meaning of the Stamp Act, 1891, and the registrar may, as a condition of filing the particulars, require that the duty payable thereon be adjudicated under section twelve of that Act

(3) If default is made in complying with this section, every director, manager, secretary or other officer of the company, who is knowingly a party to the default, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty pounds for every day during which the default continues

Provided that, in case of default in delivering to the registrar of companies within one month after the allotment any document required to be delivered by this section, the company, or any person liable for the default may apply to the court for relief, and the court if satisfied that the omission to deliver the document was accidental or due to inadvertence or that it is just and equitable to grant relief may make an order extending the time for the delivering of the document for such period as the court may think proper

Commissions and Discounts

Power to pay certain commissions, and prohibition of payment of all other commissions, discounts, &c. 43—(1) It shall be lawful for a company to pay a commission to any person in consideration of his subscribing or agreeing to subscribe, whether absolutely or conditionally for any shares in the company, or procuring or agreeing to procure subscriptions, whether absolute or conditional for any shares in the company if—

(a) the payment of the commission is authorised by the articles, and

(b) the commission paid or agreed to be paid does not exceed ten per cent. of the price at which the shares are issued or the amount or rate authorised by the articles, whichever is the less, and

(c) the amount or rate per cent of the commission paid or agreed to be paid is—

(i) in the case of shares offered to the public for subscription, disclosed in the prospectus ; or

(ii) in the case of shares offered to the public for subscription, disclosed in a statement in lieu of prospectus, where a circular or notice, not being a prospectus, inviting subscription for the shares is issued, also disclosed in that circular or notice ; and

(iii) the number of shares which persons have agreed for a commission to subscribe absolutely is disclosed in manner aforesaid.

(2) Save as aforesaid, no person in consideration wholly or conditionally for the acquisition of property acquired by the company, or price, or otherwise

- (a) extinguish or reduce the liability on any of its shares in respect of share capital not paid up ; or
- (b) either with or without extinguishing or reducing liability on any of its shares, cancel any paid-up share capital which is lost or unrepresented by available assets, or
- (c) either with or without extinguishing or reducing liability on any of its shares, pay off any paid-up share capital which is in excess of the wants of the company, and may, if and so far as is necessary, alter its memorandum by reducing the amount of its share capital and of its shares accordingly.

(2) A special resolution under this section is in this Act referred to as "a resolution for reducing share capital"

56.—(1) Where a company has passed a resolution for reducing share capital it may apply by petition to the court for an order confirming the reduction.

Application to court for confirming order, objections by creditors, and settlement of list of objecting creditors

- (a) Every creditor of the company who at the date fixed by the court is entitled to any debt or claim which, if that date were the commencement of the winding up of the company, would be admissible in proof against the company, shall be entitled to object to the reduction :

- (b) — "that the debt or claim is not due to or for the benefit of the company, or that the debt or claim is not a debt or claim in respect of which the company is liable to pay or provide for, or that the debt or claim is not a debt or claim in respect of which the company is liable to pay or provide for, or that the debt or claim is not a debt or claim in respect of which the company is liable to pay or provide for."

(4) If inspection is refused, or a copy is refused or not forwarded, the company and every officer of the company who is in default shall be liable to a fine not exceeding five pounds, and further shall be liable to a default fine of two pounds.

(5) Where a company is in default as aforesaid, the court may by order compel an immediate inspection of the register or direct that the copies required shall be sent to the person requiring them.

Perpetual debentures 74 A condition contained in any debentures or in any deed for securing any debentures, whether issued or executed before or after the commencement of this Act, shall not be invalid by reason only that the debentures are thereby made irredeemable or redeemable only on the happening of a contingency, however remote, or on the expiration of a period, however long, any rule of equity to the contrary notwithstanding.

75.—(1) Where either before or after the commencement of this Act a company has redeemed any debentures previously issued, then—

Power to re-issue redeemed debentures in certain cases (a) unless any provision to the contrary, whether express or implied, is contained in the articles or in any contract entered into by the company, or
(b) unless the company has, by passing a resolution to that effect or by some other act, manifested its intention that the debentures shall be cancelled, the company shall have, and shall be deemed always to have had, power to re-issue the debentures, either by re-issuing the same debentures or by issuing other debentures in their place.

(2) On a re-issue of redeemed debentures the person entitled to the debentures shall have, and shall be deemed always to have had the same priorities as if the debentures had never been redeemed.

(3) Where a company has power to re-issue debentures which have been redeemed, particulars with respect to the debentures which can be so re-issued shall be included in every balance sheet of the company.

(4) Where a company has either before or after the passing of this Act deposited any of its debentures to secure advances from time to time on current account or otherwise, the debentures shall not be deemed to have been redeemed by reason only of the account of the company having ceased to be in debit whilst the debentures remained so deposited.

(5) The re-issue of a debenture or the issue of another debenture in its place under the power by this section given to, or deemed to have been possessed by, a company, whether the re-issue or issue was made before or after the passing of this Act shall be treated as the issue of a new debenture for the purposes of stamp duty but it shall not be so treated for the purposes of any provision limiting the amount or number of debentures to be issued:

Provided that any person lending money on the security of a debenture re-issued under this section which appears to be duly stamped may give the debenture in evidence in any proceedings for enforcing his security without payment of the stamp duty or any penalty in respect thereof, unless he had notice or, but for his negligence, might have discovered, that the debenture was not duly stamped, but in any such case the company shall be liable to pay the proper stamp duty and penalty.

(6) Where any debentures which have been redeemed before the date of the commencement of this Act are re-issued subsequently to that date, the re-issue of the debentures shall not prejudice any right or priority which any person would have had under or by virtue of any mortgage or charge created before the date of the commencement ment of this Act, if section one hundred and four of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1948, as originally enacted, had been enacted in this Act instead of this section.

Restrictions on Commencement of Business

Restrictions on commencement of business 94—(1) Where a company having a share capital has issued a prospectus inviting the public to subscribe for its shares, the company shall not commence any business or exercise any borrowing powers unless—

- (a) shares held subject to the payment of the whole amount thereof in cash have been allotted to an amount not less in the whole than the minimum subscription; and

- (b) every director of the company has paid to the company, on each of the shares taken or contracted to be taken by him and for which he is liable to pay in cash, a proportion equal to the proportion payable on application and allotment on the shares offered for public subscription; and
 - (c) there has been delivered to the registrar of companies for registration a statutory declaration by the secretary or one of the directors, in the prescribed form that the aforesaid conditions have been complied with.
- (2) Where a company having a share capital has not issued a prospectus inviting the public to subscribe for its shares, the company shall not commence any business or exercise any borrowing powers, unless—

- (a) there has been delivered to the registrar of companies for registration a statement in lieu of prospectus, and
- (b) every director of the company has paid to the company, on each of the shares taken or contracted to be taken by him and for which he is liable to pay in cash, a proportion equal to the proportion payable on application and allotment on the shares payable in cash; and
- (c) there has been delivered to the registrar of companies for registration a statutory declaration by the secretary or one of the directors in the prescribed form that paragraph (b) of this subsection has been complied with.

(3) The registrar of companies shall, on the delivery to him of the said statutory declaration, and, in the case of a company which is required by this section to deliver a statement in lieu of prospectus, of such a statement, certify that the company is entitled to commence business, and that certificate shall be conclusive evidence that the company is so entitled.

(4) Any contract made by a company before the date at which it is entitled to commence business shall be provisional only, and shall not be binding on the company until that date, and on that date it shall become binding.

(5) Nothing in this section shall prevent the simultaneous offer for subscription or allotment of any shares and debentures or the receipt of any money payable on application for debentures.

(6) If any company commences business or exercises borrowing powers in contravention of this section, every person who is responsible for the contravention shall, without prejudice to any other liability, be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty pounds for every day during which the contravention continues.

(7) Nothing in this section shall apply to—

- (a) a private company, or
- (b) a company registered before the first day of January, nineteen hundred and one; or
- (c) a company registered before the first day of July, nineteen hundred and eight, which has not issued a prospectus inviting the public to subscribe for its shares.

Register of Members.

95—(1) Every company shall keep in one or more books a register of its members, and enter therein the following particulars:—

Register of members

... .. members,
the
of each member;

(b) The date at which each person was entered in the register as a member;

(c) The date at which any person ceased to be a member:

Provided that where the company has converted any of its shares into stock and given notice of the conversion to the registrar of companies, the register shall show the amount of stock held by each member instead of the amount of shares and the particulars relating to shares specified in paragraph (a) of this subsection.

(2) If default is made in complying with this section, the company and every officer of the company who is in default shall be liable to a default fine.

96.—(1) Every company having more than fifty members shall, unless the register of members is in such a form as to constitute in itself an index, keep an index of the names of the members of the company and shall, within fourteen days after the date on which any alteration is made in the register of members, make any necessary alteration in the index

(2) The index, which may be in the form of a card index, shall in respect of each member contain a sufficient indication to enable the account of that member in the register to be readily found

(3) If default is made in complying with this section, the company and every officer of the company who is in default shall be liable to a default fine

97.—(1) Provisions as to entries in register in relation to share warrants

(b) A statement of the shares included in the warrant, distinguishing each share by its number, and

(c) The date of the issue of the warrant

(2) The bearer of a share warrant shall, subject to the articles of the company, be entitled, on surrendering it for cancellation, to have his name entered as a member in the register of members

(3) The company shall be responsible for any loss incurred by any person by reason of the company entering in the register the name of a bearer of a share warrant in respect of the shares therein specified without the warrant being surrendered and cancelled

(4) Until the warrant is surrendered, the particulars specified in subsection (1) of this section shall be deemed to be the particulars required by this Act to be entered in the register of members, and, on the surrender, the date of the surrender must be entered

(5) Subject to the provisions of this Act, the bearer of a share warrant may, if the articles of the company so provide, be deemed to be a member of the company within the meaning of this Act, either to the full extent or for any purposes defined in the articles.

98.—(1) Inspection of register of members such reasonable restrictions as the company in general meeting may impose so that not less than two hours in each day be allowed for inspection) be open to the inspection of any member without charge and of any other person on payment of one shilling, or such less sum as the company may prescribe, for each inspection

(2) Any member or other person may require a copy of the register, or of any part thereof, on payment of sixpence, or such less sum as the company may prescribe for every hundred words or fractional part thereof required to be copied

The company shall cause any copy so required by any person to be sent to that person within a period of ten days commencing on the day next after the day on which the requirement is received by the company

(3) If any inspection required under this section is refused or if any copy required under this section is not sent within the proper period, the company and every officer of the company who is in default shall be liable in respect of each offence to a fine not exceeding two pounds and further to a default fine of two pounds.

(4) In the case of any such refusal or default the Court may by order compel an immediate inspection of the register and index or direct that the copies required shall be sent to the persons requiring them

99 Power to circulate in the district in which the registered office of the company is situate, close the register of members for any time or times not exceeding in the whole thirty days in each year,

(3) The company shall transmit to its registered office a copy of every entry in its dominion register as soon as may be after the entry is made, and shall cause to be kept at its registered office, duly entered up from time to time, a duplicate of its dominion register.

Every such duplicate shall, for all the purposes of this Act, be deemed to be part of the principal register.

in any other register

(5) A company may discontinue to keep a dominion register, and thereupon all entries in that register shall be transferred to some other dominion register kept by the company in the same part of His Majesty's dominions or to the principal register.

(6) Subject to the provisions of this Act, any company may, by its articles, make such provisions as it may think fit respecting the keeping of dominion registers.

(7) If default is made in complying with subsection (3) of this section, the company and every officer of the company who is in default shall be liable to a default fine.

111 A private company shall send with the annual return required by section one hundred and eight of this Act a certificate signed by a director or the secretary of the company that the company has not, since the date of the last return, or in the case of a first return since the date of the incorporation of the company, issued any invitation to the public to subscribe for any shares or debentures of the company, and, where the annual return

(2) The directors shall, at least seven days before the day on which the meeting is held, forward a report (in this Act referred to as "the statutory report") to every member of the company.

(3) The statutory report shall be certified by not less than two directors of the company, or, where there are less than two directors, by the sole director and manager, and shall state—

- (a) the total number of shares allotted, distinguishing shares allotted as fully or partly paid up otherwise than in cash, and stating in the case of shares partly paid up the extent to which they are so paid up, and in either case the consideration for which they have been allotted;
- (b) the total amount of cash received by the company in respect of all the shares allotted, distinguished as aforesaid;
- (c) an abstract of the receipts of the company and of the payments made thereout, up to a date within seven days of the date of the report, exhibiting under distinctive headings the receipts of the company from shares and debentures and other sources, the payments made thereout, and particulars concerning the balance remaining in hand, and an account or estimate of the preliminary expenses of the company;
- (d) the names, addresses, and descriptions of the directors, auditors, if any, managers, if any, and secretary of the company; and
- (e) the particulars of any contract, the modification of which is to be submitted to the meeting for its approval, together with the particulars of the modification or proposed modification.

(4) The statutory report shall, so far as it relates to the shares allotted by the company, and to the cash received in respect of such shares, and to the receipts and payments of the company on capital account, be certified as correct by the auditors, if any, of the company.

(5) The directors shall cause a copy of the statutory report, certified as required by this section, to be delivered to the registrar of companies for registration forthwith after the sending thereof to the members of the company.

(6) The directors shall cause a list showing the names, descriptions, and addresses of the members of the company, and the number of shares held by them respectively, to be produced at the commencement of the meeting, and to remain open and accessible to any member of the company during the continuance of the meeting.

(7) The members of the company present at the meeting shall be at liberty to discuss any matter relating to the formation of the company, or arising out of the statutory report, whether previous notice has been given or not, but no resolution of which notice has not been given in accordance with the articles may be passed

(8) Any resolution or subsequent resolution shall have the same effect as if it had been passed at a meeting of the company held before the meeting at which it was passed.

(9) In the event of any default in complying with the provisions of this section every director of the company who is guilty of or who knowingly and wilfully authorises or permits the default shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty pounds.

(10) This section shall not apply to a private company.

Coercion of extra-ordinary general meeting on requisition.
 114 — (1) The directors of a company, notwithstanding anything in its articles, shall, on the requisition of members of the company holding at the date of the deposit of the requisition not less than one-tenth of such of the paid-up capital of the company as at the date of the deposit carries the right of voting at the meeting, call a meeting of the company to be held at the date and place specified in the requisition, and may consist of several documents in like form, each signed by one or more requisitionists.

(2) The requisition must state the objects of the meeting, and must be signed by the requisitionists and deposited at the registered office of the company, and may consist of several documents in like form, each signed by one or more requisitionists.

(3) If the directors do not within twenty-one days from the date of the deposit of the requisition proceed duly to convene a meeting, the requisitionists, or any of them representing more than one half of the total voting rights of all of them, may themselves convene a meeting, but any meeting so convened shall not be held after the expiration of three months from the said date

(4) A meeting convened under this section by the requisitionists shall be convened in the same manner, as nearly as possible, as that in which meetings are to be convened by directors

(5) Any reasonable expenses incurred by the requisitionists by reason of the failure of the directors duly to convene a meeting shall be repaid to the requisitionists by the company, and any sum so repaid shall be retained by the company out of any sums due or to become due from the company by way of fees or other remuneration in respect of their services to such of the directors as were in default.

(6) For the purposes of this section the directors shall, in the case of a meeting at which a resolution is to be proposed as a special resolution, be deemed not to have duly convened the meeting if they do not give such notice thereof as is required by section one hundred and seventeen of this Act.

115—(1) The following provisions shall have effect in so far as the articles of the company do not make other provision in that behalf :—

- Provisions as to meetings and votes
- (a) a meeting of a company, other than a meeting for the passing of a special resolution, may be called by seven days' notice in writing ;
 - (b) every member required to be present at a meeting shall be entitled to be heard in his own defence or in support of his motion or resolution, and to be heard in explanation of his vote ;
 - (c) two or more members holding not less than one-tenth of the issued share capital or, if the company has not a share capital, not less than five per cent. in number of the members of the company may call a meeting ;
 - (d) in the case of a private company two members, and in the case of any other company three members, personally present shall be a quorum ;
 - (e) any member elected by the members present at a meeting may be chairman thereof ;
 - (f) in the case of a company originally having a share capital, every member shall have one vote in respect of each share or each ten pounds of stock held by him, and in any other case every member shall have one vote.

(2) If for any reason it is impracticable to call a meeting of a company in any 116—(1) A corporation, whether a company within the meaning of this Act or not, may—

- Representation of companies at meetings of other companies and of creditors.
- (a) if it is a member of another corporation, being a company within the meaning of this Act, it may, if so authorised by its directors, send one or more persons to represent it at any meeting of that corporation ;
 - (b) if it is not a member of another corporation, it may, if so authorised by its directors, send one or more persons to represent it at any meeting of that corporation ; company held in pursuance of this Act or of any rules made thereunder, or in pursuance of the provisions contained in any debenture or trust deed, as the case may be.

(2) A person authorised as aforesaid shall be entitled to exercise the same powers on behalf of the corporation which he represents as that corporation could exercise if it were an individual shareholder, creditor, or holder of debentures, of that other company.

Provisions as to extraordinary and special resolutions 117—(1) A resolution shall be an extraordinary resolution when it has been passed by a majority of not less than three fourths of such members as, being entitled so to do, vote in person or, where proxies are allowed, by proxy, at a general meeting of which notice specifying the intention to propose the resolution as an extraordinary resolution has been duly given.

(2) A resolution shall be a special resolution when it has been passed by such a majority as is required for the passing of an extraordinary resolution and at a general meeting of which not less than twenty-one days' notice specifying the intention to propose the resolution as a special resolution, has been duly given :

Provided that, if all the members entitled to attend and vote at any such meeting so agree, a resolution may be proposed and passed as a special resolution at a meeting of which less than twenty-one days' notice has been given

resolution is

(4) At any meeting at which an extraordinary resolution or a special resolution is submitted to be passed a poll shall be taken to be effectively demanded, if demanded—

- (a) by such number of members for the time being entitled under the articles to vote at the meeting as may be specified in the articles, so however, that it shall not in any case be necessary for more than five members to make the demand, or
- (b) if no provision is made by the articles with respect to the right to demand the poll, by three members so entitled or by one member or two members so entitled, if that member holds or those two members together hold not less than fifteen per cent. of the paid-up share capital of the company

(5) When a poll is demanded in accordance with this section, in computing the majority on the poll reference shall be had to the number of votes to which each member is entitled by virtue of this Act or of the articles of the company.

(6) For the purposes of this section notice of a meeting shall be deemed to be duly given and the meeting to be duly held when the notice is given and the meeting held in manner provided by this Act or the articles.

Registration and copies of certain resolutions and agreements 118—(1) A printed copy of every resolution or agreement to which this section applies shall, within fifteen days after the passing or making thereof, be forwarded to the registrar of companies and recorded by him

(2) Where articles have been registered, a copy of every such resolution or agreement for the time being in force shall be embodied in or annexed to every copy of the articles issued after the passing of the resolution or the making of the agreement.

(3) Where articles have not been registered, a printed copy of every such resolution or agreement shall be forwarded to any member at his request, on payment of one shilling or such less sum as the company may direct.

(4) This section shall apply to—

- (a) Special resolutions ;
- (b) Extraordinary resolutions ;
- (c) Resolutions which have been agreed to by all the members of a company, but which, if not so agreed to, would not have been effective for their purpose unless, as the case may be they had been passed as special resolutions or as extraordinary resolutions ;
- (d) Resolutions or agreements which have been agreed to by all the members of some class of shareholders, but which, if not so agreed to, would not have been effective for their purpose unless they had been passed by some particular majority or otherwise in some particular manner, and all resolutions or agreements which effectively bind all the members of any class of shareholders though not agreed to by all those members,

- (c) Resolutions requiring a company to be wound up voluntarily, passed under paragraph (a) of subsection (1) of section two hundred and twenty-five of this Act

(5) If a company fails to comply with subsection (1) of this section the company and every officer of the company who is in default shall be liable to a default fine of two pounds

(6) If a company fails to comply with subsection (2) or subsection (3) of this section the company and every officer of the company who is in default shall be liable to a fine not exceeding one pound for each copy in respect of which default is made.

(7) For the purposes of the last two foregoing subsections a liquidator of the company shall be deemed to be an officer of the company.

119. Where after the commencement of this Act a resolution is passed at an adjourned meeting of—

- Resolutions (a) a company, passed at (b) the holders of any class of shares in a company;
adjourned (c) the directors of a company;
meetings

the resolution shall for all purposes be treated as having been passed on the date on which it was in fact passed, and shall not be deemed to have been passed on any earlier date

120.—(1) Every company shall cause minutes of all proceedings of general meetings, and where there are directors or managers, of all proceedings at meetings of its directors or of its managers, to be entered in books kept for that purpose.
Minutes of (2) Any such minute if purporting to be signed by the chairman of the proceedings of meetings at which the proceedings were had, or by the chairman of the next succeeding meeting, shall be evidence of the proceedings

(2) Any member shall be entitled to be furnished within seven days after he has made a request in that behalf to the company with a copy of any such minutes as aforesaid at a charge not exceeding sixpence for every hundred words.

(3) If any person refuses or neglects to furnish a copy required by any officer of the company, he shall be liable to a fine not exceeding

(4) In the case of any such refusal or default, the court may by order compel an immediate inspection of the books in respect of all proceedings of general meetings or direct that the copies required shall be sent to the persons requiring them.

Accounts and Audit.

122.—(1) Every company shall cause to be kept proper books of account with respect to—

- Keeping of (a) all sums of money received and expended by the company and the matters in respect of which the receipt and expenditure takes place; books of (b) all sales and purchases of goods by the company;
account. (c) the assets and liabilities of the company.

(2) The books of account shall be kept at the registered office of the company or at such other place as the directors think fit, and shall at all times be open to inspection by the directors.

(3) If any person being a director of a company fails to take all reasonable steps to secure compliance by the company with the requirements of this section, or has by his own wilful act been the cause of any default by the company thereunder he shall, in respect of each offence, be liable on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months or to a fine not exceeding two hundred pounds.

Provided that a person shall not be sentenced to imprisonment for an offence under this section unless, in the opinion of the court dealing with the case, the offence was committed wilfully.

123—(1) The directors of every company shall at some date not later than eighteen months after the incorporation of the company and subsequently once at least in every calendar year lay before the company in general meeting a profit and loss account or, in the case of a company not trading for profit, an income and expenditure account for the period, in the case of the first sheet, since the incorporation of the company, and, in any other case, since the preceding account, made up to a date not earlier than the date of the meeting by more than nine months, or, in the case of a company carrying on business or having interests abroad, by more than twelve months:

the amount of the goodwill and of any patents and trade-marks as so shown or ascertained

(3) Where any liability of the company is secured otherwise than by operation of law on any assets of the company, the balance sheet shall include a statement that that liability is so secured but it shall not be necessary to specify in the balance sheet the assets on which the liability is secured

(4) The provisions of this section are in addition to other provisions of this Act requiring other matters to be stated in balance sheets

125 Where any of the assets of a company consist of shares in, or amounts owing (whether on account of a loan or otherwise) from a subsidiary company or subsidiary companies, the aggregate amount of those assets, distinguishing shares and indebtedness, shall be set out in the balance sheet of the first mentioned company separately from all its other assets, and where a company is indebted, whether on account of a loan or otherwise, to a subsidiary company or subsidiary companies, the aggregate amount of that indebtedness shall be set out in the balance sheet of that company separately from all its other liabilities

126—(1) Where a company (in this section referred to as 'the holding company') holds shares (either directly or through a nominee in a subsidiary company or in two or more subsidiary companies, there shall be annexed to the balance sheet of the holding company a statement, signed by the persons by whom in pursuance of section one hundred and twenty-nine of this Act the balance sheet is signed, stating how the profits and losses of the subsidiary company, or, where there are two or more subsidiary companies, the aggregate profits and losses of those companies, have so far as they concern the holding company, been dealt with in, or for the purposes of, the accounts of the holding company, and in particular how and to what extent,—

(a) provision has been made for the losses of a subsidiary company either in the accounts of that company or of the holding company, or of both, and

(b) losses of a subsidiary company have been taken into account by the directors of the holding company in arriving at the profits and losses of the holding company as disclosed in its accounts :

Provided that it shall not be necessary to specify in any such statement the actual amount of the profits or losses of any subsidiary company, or the actual amount of any part of any such profits or losses which has been dealt with in any particular manner

(2) If in the case of a subsidiary company the auditors' report on the balance sheet of the company does not state without qualification that the auditors have obtained all the information and explanations they have required and that the balance sheet is properly drawn up so as to exhibit a true and correct view of the state of the company's affairs according to the best of their information and the explanations given to them and as shown by the books of the company, the statement which is to be annexed as aforesaid to the balance sheet of the holding company shall contain particulars of the manner in which the report is qualified.

(3) For the purposes of this section, the profits or losses of a subsidiary company mean the profits or losses shown in any accounts of the subsidiary company made up to a date within the period to which the accounts of the holding company relate, or, if there are no such accounts of the subsidiary company available at the time when the accounts of the holding company are made up, the profits or losses shown in the last previous accounts of the subsidiary company which became available within that period

(4) If for any reason the directors of the holding company are unable to obtain such information as is necessary for the preparation of the statement aforesaid, the directors who sign the balance sheet shall so report in writing and their report shall be annexed to the balance sheet in lieu of the statement

127—(1) Where the assets of a company consist in whole or in part of shares in another company, whether held directly or through a nominee whether that other company is a company within the meaning of this Act or not, and—

(a) the amount of the shares so held is at the time when the accounts of the holding company are made up more than fifty per issued share capital of that other company or such as to entitle the company to more than fifty per cent. of the voting power in that other company, or

- (b) The company has power (not being power vested in it by virtue only of the provisions of a debenture trust deed or by virtue of shares issued to it for the purpose in pursuance of those provisions) directly or indirectly to appoint the majority of the directors of that other company, that other company shall be deemed to be a subsidiary company within the meaning of this Act, and the expression "subsidiary company" in this Act means a company in the case of which the conditions of this section are satisfied.

(2) Where a company the ordinary business of which includes the lending of money holds shares in another company as security only, no account shall for the purpose of determining under this section whether that other company is a subsidiary company be taken of the shares so held

128—(1) The accounts which in pursuance of this Act are to be laid before every company in general meeting shall, subject to the provisions of this section, contain particulars showing—

Accounts

particulars as to loans to, and remuneration of,
directors,
&c

(a) the amount of any loans which during the period to which the accounts relate have been made either by the company or by any other person under a guarantee from or on a security provided by the company to any director or officer of the company, including any such loans which were repaid during the said period; and

(b) the amount of any loans made in manner aforesaid to any director or officer at any time before the period aforesaid and outstanding at the expiration thereof, and

(c) the total of the amount paid to the directors as remuneration for their services, inclusive of all fees, percentages, or other emoluments, paid to or receivable by them by or from the company or by or from any subsidiary company.

(2) The provisions of subsection (1) of this section with respect to loans shall not apply—

(a) in the case of a company the ordinary business of which includes the lending of money, to a loan made by the company in the ordinary course of its business, or

(b) to a loan made by the company to any employee of the company if the loan does not exceed two thousand pounds and is certified by the directors of the company to have been made in accordance with any practice adopted or about to be adopted by the company with respect to loans to its employees.

(3) The provisions of subsection (1) of this section with respect to the remuneration paid to directors shall not apply in relation to a managing director of the company, and in the case of any other director who holds any salaried employment or office in the company there shall not be required to be included in the said total amount any sums paid to him except sums paid by way of directors' fees.

(4) If in the case of any such accounts as aforesaid the requirements of this section are not complied with, it shall be the duty of the auditors of the company by whom the accounts are examined to include in their report on the balance sheet of the company, so far as they are reasonably able to do so, a statement giving the required particulars

(5) In this section the expression "emoluments" includes fees, percentages and other payments made or consideration given, directly or indirectly, to a director as such, and the money value of any allowances or perquisites belonging to his office.

129.—(1) Every balance sheet of a company shall be signed on behalf of the board by two of the directors of the company, or, if there is only one director, by that director, and the auditors' report shall be attached to the balance sheet, and the report shall be read before the company in general meeting, and shall be open to inspection by any member.

(2) In the case of a banking company registered after the fifteenth day of August, eighteen hundred and seventy-nine, the balance sheet must be signed by the secretary or manager, if any, and where there are more than three directors of the company by at least three of those directors, and where there are not more than three directors by all the directors

(3) If any copy of a balance sheet which has not been signed as required by this section is issued, circulated, or published, or if any copy of a balance sheet is issued, circulated, or published without having a copy of the auditors' report attached thereto, the company, and every director, manager, secretary, or other officer of the company who is knowingly a party to the default, shall on conviction be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty pounds

130.—(1) In the case of a company not being a private company—

- Right to receive copies of balance sheets and auditors' report
- (a) a copy of every balance sheet, including every document required by
- (b) any member of the company, whether he is or is not entitled to have sent to him copies of the company's balance sheets, and any holder of debentures of the company, shall be entitled to be furnished on demand without charge with a copy of the last balance sheet of the company, including every document required by law to be annexed thereto, together with a copy of the auditors' report on the balance sheet.

he is by virtue of paragraph (b) of this subsection entitled to be furnished, default is made in complying with the demand within seven days after the making thereof, the company, and every director, manager, secretary, or other officer of the company who is knowingly a party to the default, shall on conviction be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty pounds for each person

(2) In the case of a company being a private company, any member shall be entitled to be furnished, within seven days after he has made a request in that behalf to the company, with a copy of the balance sheet and auditors' report at a charge not exceeding sixpence for every hundred words.

If default is made in furnishing such a copy to any member who demands it and tenders to the company the amount of the proper charge therefor, the company and every officer of the company who is in default shall be liable to a default fine thereto as circumstances admit.

(2) A copy of the statement shall be put up in a conspicuous place in the registered office of the company, and in every branch office or place where the business of the company is carried on.

(3) Every member and every creditor of the company shall be entitled to a copy of the statement, on payment of a sum not exceeding sixpence.

(4) If default is made in complying with this section, the company and every director and manager of the company who knowingly and wilfully authorises or permits the default shall be liable to a fine not exceeding five pounds for every day during which the default continues.

(5) For the purposes of this Act a company which carries on the business of insurance in common with any other business or businesses shall be deemed to be an insurance company.

to which the provisions of this section shall apply, and balance sheet to be furnished to the company complies with 132.—(1) Every company shall at each annual general meeting appoint an auditor or auditors to hold office until the next annual general meeting.

Appointment and remuneration of auditors (2) If an appointment of auditors is not made at an annual general meeting the Board of Trade may, on the application of any member of the company, appoint an auditor of the company for the current year.

(3) A person, other than a retiring auditor, shall not be capable of being appointed auditor at an annual general meeting unless notice of an intention to nominate that person to the company not less than fourteen days before the meeting has been given to the members of the company. The company shall send a copy of any such notice thereof to the members either by post or by delivering it to each of them not less than seven days before the annual general meeting :

Notice of an auditor has been given to the members of the company not less than seven days or less after the notice required by this subsection of the appointment thereof, and the notice to the members of the company may, instead of being sent or given within the time required by this subsection, be sent or given at the same time as the notice of the annual general meeting

(4) Subject as hereinafter provided, the first auditors of the company may be appointed by the directors at any time before the first annual general meeting, and auditors so appointed shall hold office until that meeting :

Provided that—

(a) the company may at a general meeting of which notice has been served on the auditors in the same manner as on members of the company remove any such auditors and appoint in their place any other persons being persons who have been nominated for appointment by any member of the company and of whose nomination notice has been given to the members of the company not less than seven days before the date of the meeting ; and

(b) if the directors fail to exercise their powers under this subsection, the company in general meeting may appoint the first auditors, and thereupon the said powers of the directors shall cease.

(5) The directors may fill any casual vacancy in the office of auditor, but while any such vacancy continues the surviving or continuing auditor or auditors, if any, may act as auditors.

(6) The remuneration of any auditor appointed before the first annual general meeting to fill a casual vacancy, may be fixed by the company in general meeting, or, if not so fixed, may be fixed by the Board of Trade.

133.—(1) None of the following persons shall be qualified for appointment as auditor of a company—

Disqualification for appointment as auditor.

- (a) a director or officer of the company ;
- (b) except where the company is a private company, a person who is a partner of or in the employment of an officer of the company ;
- (c) a body corporate

(2) Nothing in this section shall disqualify a body corporate from acting as auditor of a company if acting under an appointment made before the third day of August, nineteen hundred and twenty-eight, but subject as aforesaid any body corporate which acts as auditor of a company shall be liable to a fine not exceeding one hundred pounds.

(3) In the application of this section to Scotland the expression "body corporate" does not include a firm.

134.—(1) The auditors shall make a report to the members on the accounts examined by them, and on every balance sheet laid before the company in general meeting during their tenure of office, and the report shall state—

meetings

(b) whether in their opinion the balance sheet referred to in the report is properly drawn up so as to exhibit a true and correct view of the state of the company's affairs according to the best of their information and the explanations given to them and as shown by the books of the company

(2) Every auditor of a company shall have a right of access at all times to the books and accounts and vouchers of the company and shall be entitled to require from the directors and officers of the company such information and explanation as may be necessary for the performance of the duties of the auditors.

Provided that in the case of a banking company which was registered after the fifteenth day of August, eighteen hundred and seventy-nine, and which has branch banks beyond the limits of Europe it shall be sufficient if the auditor is allowed access to such copies and extracts from such books and accounts of any such branch as have been transmitted to the head office of the company in Great Britain.

(3) The auditors of a company shall be entitled to attend any general meeting of the company at which any accounts which have been examined or reported on by them are to be laid before the company and to make any statement or explanation they desire with respect to the accounts

(i) In the case of an offence in England if it appears to the Board that the case is one in which the prosecution ought to be undertaken by the Director of Public Prosecutions the Board shall refer the matter to him; in the case of an offence in Scotland the Board shall refer the matter to the Lord Advocate.

(2) If where any matter is referred to the Director of Public Prosecutions under which a prosecution ought to be instituted in the public interest that the proceedings in the company, past and present (other than the defendant in the proceedings), to give to him all assistance in connection with the prosecution which they are reasonably able to give.

For the purposes of this subsection the expression "agents" in relation to a company shall be deemed to include the bankers and solicitors of the company and any persons employed by the company as auditors, whether those persons are or are not officers of the company.

(3) The expenses of and incidental to an investigation under the last preceding section of this Act (in this subsection referred to as "the expenses") shall be defrayed as follows—

(a) Where as a result of the investigation a prosecution is instituted by the Director of Public Prosecutions or by or on behalf of the Lord Advocate, the expenses shall be defrayed by the Board of Trade;

(b) Where as a result of the investigation a prosecution is instituted by the company unless the Board are hereby satisfied that the applicants or in

142.—(1) If any person being an undischarged bankrupt acts as director of, or directly or indirectly takes part in or is concerned in the management of, any company except with the leave of the court by which he was adjudged bankrupt, he shall be liable on conviction on indictment to imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years, or on summary conviction to imprisonment for a term not exceeding six months or to a fine not exceeding five hundred pounds or to both such imprisonment and fine: Provisions as to undischarged bankrupts acting as directors.

Provided that a person shall not be guilty of an offence under this section by reason that he, being an undischarged bankrupt, has acted as director of, or taken part or been concerned in the management of a company, if he was on the third day of August, nineteen hundred and twenty-eight, acting as director of, or taking part or being concerned in the management of that company and has continuously so acted, taken part, or been concerned since that date and the bankruptcy was prior to that date.

(2) In England the leave of the court for the purposes of this section shall not be given unless the court is satisfied that it is not contrary to the interests of the creditors of the bankrupt to allow the person to act as director of, or to attend on the hearing of, any proceedings in relation to the bankruptcy.

(3) In this section the expression "company" includes an unregistered company and a company incorporated outside Great Britain which has an established place of business within Great Britain, and the expression "official receiver" means the official receiver in bankruptcy.

(4) Subsection (1) of this section in its application to Scotland shall have effect as if the words "sequestration of his estates was awarded" were substituted for the words "he was adjudged bankrupt."

143. The acts of a director or manager shall be valid notwithstanding any defect that may afterwards be discovered in his appointment or qualification.

Validity of acts of directors.

144.—(1) Every company shall keep at its registered office a register of its directors or managers containing with respect to each of them the following particulars: Register of directors.

(a) in the case of an individual, his name, his usual address, his nationality, and, if that nationality of origin, and his business occupation, and particulars of that directorship or of some one of those directorships; and

(b) in the case of a corporation, its corporate name and registered or principal office.

(2) The company shall, within the periods respectively mentioned in this subsection, send to the registrar of companies a return in the prescribed form containing the particulars specified in the said register and a notification in the prescribed form of any change among its directors or in any of the particulars contained in the register.

The period within which the said return is to be sent shall be a period of fourteen days from the appointment of the first directors of the company, and the period within which the said notification of a change is to be sent shall be fourteen days from the happening thereof.

(3) The register to be kept under this section shall during business hours (subject to such reasonable restrictions as the company may by its articles or in general meeting impose, so that not less than two hours in each day be allowed for inspection) be open to the inspection of any member of the company without charge and of any other person on payment of one shilling, or such less sum as the company may prescribe for each inspection.

(4) If any inspection required under this section is refused or if default is made in complying with subsection (1) or subsection (2) of this section, the company and every officer of the company who is in default shall be liable to a default fine.

(5) In the case of any such refusal, the court may by order compel an immediate inspection of the register.

(6) For the purposes of this section a person in accordance with whose directions or instructions the directors of a company are accustomed to act shall be deemed to be a director and officer of the company.

145—(1) Every company to which this section applies shall, in all trade catalogues, trade circulars, showcards and business letters on or in which the company's

- (b) any former christian names and surnames;
- (c) his nationality, if not British;
- (d) his nationality of origin, if his nationality is not the nationality of origin.

Provided that, if special circumstances exist which render it in the opinion of the Board of Trade expedient that such an exemption should be granted, the Board may by order grant subject to such conditions as may be specified in the order, exemption from the obligations imposed by this sub-section.

(2) This section shall apply to—

- (a) Every company registered under this Act or the Acts repealed by this Act unless it was registered before the twenty-third day of November, nineteen hundred and sixteen; and
- (b) every company incorporated outside Great Britain which has an established place of business within Great Britain, unless it had established such a place of business before the said date; and
- (c) every company licenced under the Moneylenders Act, 1927, whenever it was registered or whenever it established a place of business.

(3) If a company makes default in complying with this section, every director of the company shall be liable on summary conviction for each offence to a fine not exceeding five pounds, and, in the case of a director being a corporation, every director, secretary and officer of the corporation, who is knowingly a party to the default, shall be liable to a like penalty.

Provided that in England no proceedings shall be instituted under this section except by, or with the consent of, the Board of Trade.

(4) For the purposes of this section—

- (a) the expression "director" includes any person in accordance with whose directions or instructions the directors of the company are accustomed to act;
- (b) the expression "christian name" includes a forename;
- (c) the expression "initials" includes a recognised abbreviation of a christian name;
- (d) in the case of a peer or person usually known by a title different from his surname, the expression "surname" means that title;
- (e) references to a former christian name or surname do not include—
 - (i) in the case of a peer or a person usually known by a British title different from his surname, the name by which he was known previous to the adoption of or succession to the title; or
 - (ii) in the case of natural born British subjects, a former christian name or surname where that name or surname was changed or disused before the person bearing the name attained the age of eighteen years; or
 - (iii) in the case of a married woman, the name or surname by which she was known previous to the marriage;
- (f) the expression "showcards" means cards containing or exhibiting articles dealt with or samples or representations thereof.

146.—(1) In a limited company the liability of the directors or managers, or of the managing director, may, if so provided by the memorandum, be unlimited.

Limited company may have directors with unlimited liability. (2) In a limited company in which the liability of a director or manager is unlimited, the directors or managers of the company, if any, and the member who proposes a person for an election or appointment to the office of director or manager, shall add to that proposal a statement that the liability of the person holding that office will be unlimited, and the promoters, directors, managers, and secretary, if any, of the company, or one of them, shall, before the person accepts the office or acts therein, give him notice in writing that his liability will be unlimited.

(3) If any director, manager, or proposer makes default in adding such a statement, or if any promoter, director, manager, or secretary makes default in giving such a notice, he shall be liable to a fine not exceeding one hundred pounds, and shall also be liable for any damage which the person so elected or appointed may sustain from the default, but the liability of the person elected or appointed shall not be affected by the default.

Special resolution of limited company making liability of directors unlimited. 147.—(1) A limited company, if so authorised by its articles, may, by special resolution, alter its memorandum so as to render unlimited the liability of its directors or managers, or of any managing director.
(2) Upon the passing of any such special resolution the provisions thereof shall be as valid as if they had been originally contained in the memorandum.

Statement as to remuneration of directors to be furnished to shareholders. 148.—(1) Subject as hereinafter provided, the directors of a company shall, on a demand in that behalf made to them in writing by members of the company entitled to not less than one-fourth of the aggregate number of votes to which all the members of the company are together entitled, furnish to all the members of the company within a period of one month from the receipt of the demand a statement, certified as correct, or with such qualifications as may be necessary, by the auditors of the company, showing as respects each of the last three preceding years in respect of which the accounts of the company have been made up the aggregate amount received in that year by way of remuneration or other emoluments by persons being directors of the company, whether as such directors or otherwise in connection with the management of the affairs of the company, and there shall, in respect of any such director who is—

- (a) a director of any other company which is in relation to the first-mentioned company a subsidiary company; or
- (b) by virtue of the nomination, whether direct or indirect, of the company a director of any other company, be included in the said aggregate amount any remuneration or other emoluments received by him for his own use whether as a director of, or otherwise in connection with the management of the affairs of, that other company:

Provided that—

- (i) a demand for a statement under this section shall be of no effect if the company within one month after the date on which the demand is made resolve that the statement shall not be furnished; and
- (ii) it shall be sufficient to state the total aggregate of all sums paid to or other emoluments received by all the directors in each year without specifying the amount received by any individual.

(2) In computing for the purpose of this section the amount of any remuneration or emoluments received by any director, the amount actually received by him shall, if the company has paid on his behalf any sum by way of income tax (including super-tax and sur-tax) in respect of the remuneration or emoluments be increased by the amount of the sum so paid.

(3) If any director fails to comply with the requirements of this section, he shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty pounds.

(4) In this section the expression "emoluments" includes fees, percentages and other payments made or consideration given directly or indirectly, to a director as such, and the money value of any allowances or perquisites belonging to his office.

119—(1) Subject to the provisions of this section, it shall be the duty of a director of a company who is in any way, whether directly or indirectly, interested in a contract or proposed contract with the company to declare the nature of his interest at a meeting of the directors of the company.

(2) In the case of a proposed contract the declaration required by this section to be made by a director shall be made at the meeting of the directors at which the question of entering into the contract is first taken into consideration, or if the director was not at the date of that meeting interested in the proposed contract, at the next meeting of the directors held after he becomes so interested, and in a case where the director becomes interested in a contract after it is made, the said declaration shall be made at the first meeting of the directors held after the director becomes so interested.

(3) For the purpose of this section, a general notice given to the directors of a company by a director to the effect that he is a member of a specified company or firm and is to be regarded as interested in any contract which may, after the date of the notice, be made with that company or firm shall be deemed to be a sufficient declaration of interest in relation to any contract so made.

(4) Any director who fails to comply with the provisions of this section shall be liable to a fine not exceeding one hundred pounds.

(5) Nothing in this section shall be taken to prejudice the operation of any rule of law restricting directors of a company from having any interest in contracts with the company.

- (b) nothing in this section shall operate to deprive any person of any exemption or right to be indemnified in respect of anything done or omitted to be done by him while any such provision was in force ; and
- (c) notwithstanding anything in this section, a company may, in pursuance of any such provision as afore-said, indemnify any such director, manager, officer or auditor against any liability incurred by him in defending any proceedings, whether civil or criminal, in which judgment is given in his favour or in which he is acquitted or in connection with any application under section three hundred and seventy-two of this Act in which relief is granted to him by the court

Arrangements and Reconstructions

153 —(1) Where a compromise or arrangement is proposed between a company and its creditors or any class of them, or between the company and its members or any class of them, the court may, on the application in a summary way of the company or of any creditor or member of the company, or, in the case of a company being wound up, of the liquidator, order a meeting of the creditors or class of creditors, or of the members of the company or class of members as the case may be, to be summoned in such manner as the court directs.

(2) If a majority in number representing three-fourths in value of the creditors or class of creditors, or members or class of members, as the case may be, present and voting either in person or by proxy at the meeting, agree to any compromise or arrangement, the compromise or arrangement shall, if sanctioned by the court, be binding on all the creditors or the class of creditors, or on the members or class of members, as the case may be, and also on the company or, in the case of a company in the course of being wound up, on the liquidator and contributors of the company.

(4) If a company makes default in complying with subsection (3) of this section, the company and every officer of the company who is in default shall be liable to a fine not exceeding one pound for each copy in respect of which default is made.

(5) In this section the expression "company" means any company liable to be wound up under this Act, and the expression "arrangement" includes a re-organization of the share capital of the company by the consolidation of shares of different classes or by the division of shares into shares of different classes or by both those methods.

- (a) the transfer to the transferee company of the whole or any part of the undertaking and of the property or liabilities of any transferor company,
- (b) the allotting or appropriation by the transferee company of any shares, debentures, policies, or other like interests in that company which under the compromise or arrangement are to be allotted or appropriated by that company to or for any person,
- (c) the continuation by or against the transferee company of any legal proceedings pending by or against any transferor company,
- (d) the dissolution, without winding up, of any transferor company,
- (e) the provision to be made for any persons, who within such time and in such manner as the court direct, dissent from the compromise or arrangement,

Provided that, where any such scheme or contract has been so approved at any time before the commencement of this Act, the court may by order, on an application made to it by the transferee company with the sanction of the management of this Act authorise notice to be given in any manner after the making of the order, and this order may be subject to such terms as the court may by the order direct instead of the terms provided by the scheme or contract.

transmit a copy of the notice to the transferor company and pay or transfer to the transferor company the amount or other consideration representing the price payable by the transferee company for the shares which by virtue of this section that company is entitled to acquire, and the transferor company shall thereupon register the transferee company as the holder of those shares.

(3) Any sums received by the transferor company under this section shall be paid into a separate bank account, and any such sums and any other consideration so received shall be held by that company on trust for the several persons entitled to the shares in respect of which the said sums or other consideration were respectively received.

(4) In this section the expression "dissenting shareholder" includes a shareholder who has not assented to the scheme or contract and any shareholder who has failed or refused to transfer his shares to the transferee company in accordance with the scheme or contract.

PART V.

Winding Up.

(1) Preliminary

Modes of Winding Up

156.—(1) The winding up of a company may be either—

- Modes of winding up.
- (a) by the court, or
 - (b) voluntary, or

Liability as contributories of present and past members.

- (a) a past member shall not be liable to contribute if he has ceased to be a member for one year or upwards before the commencement of the winding up;
- (b) a past member shall not be liable to contribute in respect of any debt or liability of the company contracted after he ceased to be a member;
- (c) a past member shall not be liable to contribute unless it appears to the court that the existing members are unable to satisfy the contributions required to be made by them in pursuance of this Act;
- (d) in the case of a company limited by shares no contribution shall be required from any member exceeding the amount, if any, unpaid on the shares in respect of which he is liable as a present or past member;
- (e) in the case of a company limited by guarantee, no contribution shall, subject to the provisions of subsection (3) of this section, be required from any member exceeding the amount undertaken to be contributed by him to the assets of the company in the event of its being wound up :

- (f) nothing in this Act shall invalidate any provision contained in any policy of insurance or other contract whereby the liability of individual members on the policy or contract is restricted, or whereby the funds of the company are alone made liable in respect of the policy or contract :

Transfer of proceedings from one court to another and statement of case by county court 165—(1) The winding up of a company by the court in England or any proceedings in the winding up may at any time and at any stage, and either with or without application from any of the parties thereto, be transferred from one court to another court, or may be retained in the court in which the proceedings were commenced, although it may not be the court in which they ought to have been commenced.

(2) The powers of transfer given by the foregoing provisions of this section may, subject to and in accordance with general rules, be exercised by the Lord Chancellor or by any judge of the High Court having jurisdiction under this Act, or, as regards any case within the jurisdiction of any other court, by the judge of that Court.

(3) If any question arises in any winding up proceeding in a county court which all the parties to the proceeding, or which one of them and the judge of the court, desire to have determined in the first instance in the High Court, the judge shall state the facts in the form of a special case for the opinion of the High Court, and thereupon the special case and the proceedings, or such of them as may be required, shall be transmitted to the High Court for the purposes of the determination.

Jurisdiction to wind up companies in Scotland
 166—(1) The Court of Session shall have jurisdiction to wind up any company registered in Scotland.

(2) When the Court of Session is in vacation the jurisdiction conferred on that court by this section may, subject to the provisions of this Act, be exercised by the Lord Ordinary on the Bills.

(3) Where the amount of the share capital of a company paid up or credited as paid up does not exceed ten thousand pounds, the sheriff court of the sheriffdom in which the registered office of the company is situate shall have concurrent jurisdiction with the Court of Session to wind up the company :

Provided that—

(a) it shall be lawful for the Court of Session, if it appears to the court that it is more expedient so to require any petition as aforesaid presented to one sheriff court be remitted to another sheriff court, and

(b) it shall be lawful for the Court of Session to require that any such petition as aforesaid presented to one sheriff court be remitted to another sheriff court, and

(c) in a winding up in the sheriff court it shall be lawful for the sheriff court to submit a stated case for the opinion of the Court of Session on any question of law arising in that winding up.

(4) For the purposes of this section, the expression "registered office" means the place which has longest been the registered office of the company during the six months immediately preceding the presentation of the petition for winding up.

(1) the company has by special resolution resolved that the company be wound up by the court :

(2) default is made in delivering the statutory report to the registrar holding the statutory meeting :

(3) Where under the provisions of this Part of this Act any person as being the husband of a female contributory is himself a contributory, and a share has during the whole or any part of the six months mentioned in proviso (a) (ii) to subsection (1) of this section been held by or registered in the name of the wife, or by or in the name of a trustee for the wife or for the husband the share shall, for the purposes of this section, be deemed to have been held by and registered in the name of the husband.

Powers of court on hearing petition. 171—(1) On hearing a winding-up petition the Court may dismiss it, or adjourn the hearing conditionally or unconditionally, or make any interim order, or any other order that it thinks fit but the Court shall not refuse to make a winding-up order on the ground only that the assets of the company have been mortgaged to an amount equal to or in excess of those assets, or that the company has no assets.

(2) Where the petition is presented on the ground of default in delivering the statutory report to the registrar or in holding the statutory meeting, the Court may—

- (a) instead of making a winding-up order, direct that the statutory report shall be delivered or that a meeting shall be held, and
- (b) order the costs to be paid by any persons who in the opinion of the Court, are responsible for the default.

Power to stay or restrain proceedings against company 172 At any time after the presentation of a winding-up petition, and before a winding-up order has been made, the company, or any creditor or contributory, may—

- (a) where any action or proceeding against the company is pending in the High Court or Court of Appeal in England or Northern Ireland, apply to the court in which the action or proceeding is pending for a stay of proceedings therein, and
- (b) where any other action or proceeding is pending against the company, apply to the court having jurisdiction to wind up the company to restrain further proceedings in the action or proceeding;

and the court to which application is so made may, as the case may be, stay or restrain the proceedings accordingly on such terms as it thinks fit.

(2) The provisions of this section shall so far as relates to any estate or effects of the company situate in England, apply in the case of a company registered in Scotland as it applies in the case of a company registered in England.

Commencement of Winding Up

Commencement of winding up by the court. 175—(1) Where before the presentation of a petition for the winding up of a company by the court a resolution has been passed by the company for voluntary winding up, the winding up of the company shall be deemed to have commenced at the time of the passing of the resolution, and unless the court, on proof of fraud or mistake, thinks fit otherwise to direct, all proceedings taken in the voluntary winding-up shall be deemed to have been validly taken.

(2) In any other case, the winding-up of a company by the court shall be deemed to commence at the time of the presentation of the petition for the winding up.

Consequences of Winding up Order.

Copy of order to be forwarded to registrar 176 On the making of a winding-up order, a copy of the order must forthwith be forwarded by the company, or otherwise as may be prescribed, to the registrar of companies, who shall make a minute thereof in his books relating to the company

Actions stayed on winding up order. 177 When a winding up order has been made, or a provisional liquidator has been appointed, no action or proceeding shall be proceeded with or commenced against the company except by leave of the court, and subject to such terms as the court may impose.

Effect of winding up order 178 An order for winding up a company shall operate in favour of all the creditors and of all the contributories of the company as if made on the joint petition of a creditor and of a contributory.

Official Receiver in English Winding Up.

Official receiver in bankruptcy to be official receiver for winding up purposes. 179.—(1) For the purposes of this Act so far as it relates to the winding up of a company, the official receiver in bankruptcy shall be deemed to be the official receiver for winding up purposes.

(2) Any such officer shall for the purpose of his duties under this Act be styled "the official receiver."

Appointment of official receiver by court in certain cases 180. If the court in England is satisfied that it is convenient so to do, it may appoint an official receiver in that winding up, and the person so appointed shall be deemed to be the official receiver in that winding up for all the purposes of this Act.

Statement of company's affairs to be submitted to official receiver. 181.—(1) Where the court in England has made a winding-up order or appointed a provisional liquidator, there shall, unless the court thinks fit, to order otherwise, be submitted to the official receiver a statement of the company's affairs in the following particulars:—

(a) who are or have been directors or officers of the company;

(b) who have taken part in the formation of the company at any time within one year before the relevant date;

(c) who are in the employment of the company, or have been in the employment of the company within the said year and are in the opinion of the official receiver capable of giving the information required;

(d) who are or have been within the said year officers of or in the employment of a company which is or within the said year was an officer of the company to which the statement relates

(3) The statement shall be submitted within fourteen days from the relevant date, or within such extended time as the official receiver or the court may for special reasons appoint.

(4) Any person making or concurring in making the statement and affidavit required by this section shall be allowed, and shall be paid by the official receiver or provisional liquidator, as the case may be, out of the assets of the company, such costs and expenses incurred in and about the preparation and making of the statement and affidavit as the official receiver may consider reasonable, subject to an appeal to the court.

(5) If any person, without reasonable excuse, makes default in complying with the requirements of this section, he shall be liable to a fine not exceeding ten pounds for every day during which the default continues.

(6) Any person stating himself in writing to be a creditor or contributory of the company shall be entitled by himself or by his agent at all reasonable times, on payment of the prescribed fee, to inspect the statement submitted in pursuance of this section, and to a copy thereof or extract therefrom.

(7) Any person untruthfully so stating himself to be a creditor or contributory shall be guilty of a contempt of court and shall, on the application of the liquidator or of the official receiver, be punishable accordingly.

(8) In this section the expression "the relevant date" means in a case where a provisional liquidator is appointed, the date of his appointment and, in a case where no such appointment is made, the date of the winding up order.

Report by official receiver
182.—(1) In a case where a winding-up order is made, the official receiver shall, as soon as practicable after receipt of the statement to be submitted under the last foregoing section, or, in a case where the court orders that no statement shall be submitted, as soon as practicable after the date of the order, submit a preliminary report to the court—

- (a) as to the amount of capital issued, subscribed, and paid up, and the estimated amount of assets and liabilities; and
- (b) if the company has failed, as to the causes of the failure; and
- (c) whether in his opinion further inquiry is desirable as to any matter relating to the promotion, formation, or failure of the company, or the conduct of the business thereof.

(2) The official receiver shall also submit a preliminary report to the court as to the state of the company's affairs, and as to the assets and liabilities of the company, and as to the conduct of the business thereof.

(3) Where the proceedings are in Scotland, the power to appoint a provisional liquidator may be made at any time before the first meeting of the creditors.

(4) Where a liquidator is provisionally appointed by the court, the court may limit and restrict his powers by the order appointing him.

185. The following provisions with respect to liquidators shall have effect on a winding-up order being made in England :—

Appointment style, &c. of liquidators in England (1) The official receiver shall by virtue of his office become the provisional liquidator and shall continue to act as such until he or another person becomes liquidator and is capable of acting as such :

(3) The court may make any appointment and order required to give effect to the provisions of this Act.

(4) In a case where a liquidator is not appointed by the court, the official receiver shall be the liquidator of the company :

(5) The official receiver shall by virtue of his office be the liquidator during any vacancy :

(b) A liquidator shall be described, where a person other than the official receiver is liquidator, by the style of "the liquidator," and, where the official receiver is liquidator, by the style of "the official receiver and liquidator," of the particular company in respect of which he is appointed, and not by his individual name

Provisions where person other than official receiver is appointed liquidator. 186 Where in the winding up of a company by the court in England a person other than the official receiver is appointed liquidator, that person—
(1) shall not be capable of acting as liquidator until he has notified his appointment to the registrar of companies and given security in the prescribed manner to the satisfaction of the Board of Trade :
(2) shall give the official receiver such access to and information as the official receiver may require for the purpose of enabling him to perform his duties as liquidator

187 The following provisions with respect to the liquidators shall have effect in a winding-up by the court in Scotland :—

Provision as to liquidators in Scotland. (1) The court may determine whether any and what security is to be given by a liquidator on his appointment :
(2) A liquidator shall be described by the style of "the official liquidator" of the particular company in respect of which he is appointed and not by his individual name :
(3) Where an order has been made for winding up a company subject to supervision, and an order is afterwards made for winding up by the court, the court may by the last-mentioned or by any subsequent order appoint any person who is then liquidator, either provisionally or permanently, and either with or without any other person, to be liquidator in the winding up by the court.

188—(1) A liquidator appointed by the court may resign or, on cause shown, be removed by the court.

General provisions as to liquidators (2) Where a person other than the official receiver is appointed liquidator, he shall receive such salary or remuneration as the court may direct, and his remuneration shall be ascertained in such proportions as the court directs.

(3) A vacancy in the office of a liquidator appointed by the court shall be filled by the court.

(4) If more than one liquidator is appointed by the court, the court shall declare whether any act by this Act required or authorised to be done by the liquidator is to be done by all or any one or more of the persons appointed

(5) Subject to the provisions of section two hundred and seventy-eight of this Act, the acts of a liquidator shall be valid notwithstanding any defects that may afterwards be discovered in his appointment or qualification

189—(1) Where a winding up order has been made or where a provisional liquidator has been appointed, the liquidator, or the provisional liquidator, as the case may be, shall take into his custody, or under his control, all the property and things in action to which the company is or appears to be entitled

(2) In a winding up by the court in Scotland, if and so long as there is no liquidator, all the property of the company shall be deemed to be in the custody of the court

190 Where a company is being wound up by the court, the court may on the application of the liquidator by order direct that all or any part of the

 - (d) to pay any classes of creditors in full
 - (e) to make any compromise or arrangement with creditors or persons

- (f) to do all acts and to execute, in the name and on behalf of the company, all deeds, receipts, and other documents, and for that purpose to use, when necessary, the company's seal :

(2) The liquidator in a winding up by the court shall have power—

- (a) to sell the real and personal property, and things in action of the company by public auction or private contract, with power to transfer the whole thereof to any person or company, or to sell the same in parcels :
- (b) to do all acts and to execute, in the name and on behalf of the company, all deeds, receipts, and other documents, and for that purpose to use, when necessary, the company's seal :

(8) The continuing members of the committee, if not less than two, may act notwithstanding any vacancy in the committee.

200 Where in the case of a winding up in England there is no committee of inspection, the Board of Trade may, on the application of the liquidator, do any act or thing or give any direction or permission which is by this Act authorised or required to be done or given by the committee.

201 Additional powers of committee of inspection in Scotland.

General Powers of Court in case of Winding-up by Court.

202.—(1) The court may at any time after an order for winding up, on the application either of the liquidator, or the official receiver, or any creditor or contributory, and on proof to the satisfaction of the court that all proceedings in relation to the winding up ought to be stayed, make an order staying the proceedings, either altogether or for a limited time, on such terms and conditions as the court thinks fit.

(2) On any application under this section the court may, before making an order, require the official receiver to furnish to the court a report with respect to any facts or matters which are in his opinion relevant to the application.

203.—(1) As soon as may be after a list of contributories, cases where rectification cause the assets of the estate and its liabilities:

Settlement of list of contributories and application of assets

Provided that, where it appears to the court that it will not be necessary to make calls on or adjust the rights of contributories, the court may dispense with the settlement of a list of contributories.

(2) In settling the list of contributories, the court shall distinguish between persons who are contributories in their own right and persons who are contributories as being representatives of or liable for the debts of others.

204. The court may, at any time after making a winding up order, require any contributory for the time being on the list of contributories, and any trustee, receiver, banker, agent or officer of the company to pay, deliver, convey, surrender, or transfer forthwith, or within such time as the court directs, to the liquidator any money, property, or books and papers in his hands to which the company is prima facie entitled.

205.—(1) The court may, at any time

(2) In making a call the court may take into consideration the probability that some of the contributories may partly or wholly fail to pay the call.

207.—(1) The court may order any contributory, purchaser or other person from whom money is due to the company to pay the amount due into the Bank of England or any branch thereof to the account of the liquidator instead of to the liquidator, and any such order may be enforced in the same manner as if it had directed payment to the liquidator.

(2) All moneys and securities paid or delivered into the Bank of England or any branch thereof in the event of a winding up by the court shall be subject in all respects to the orders of the court.

208.—(1) An order made by the court on a contributory shall, subject to any right of appeal, be conclusive evidence that the money, if any, thereby appearing to be due or ordered to be paid is due.

(2) All other pertinent matters stated in the order shall be taken to be truly stated as against all persons and in all proceedings, except proceedings in Scotland against the heritable estate of a deceased contributory, in which case the order shall be only prima facie evidence for the purpose of charging his heritable estate, unless his heirs or legatees of heritage were on the list of contributories at the time of the order being made.

209.—(1) Where in proceedings in England the official receiver becomes the liquidator of a company, whether provisionally or otherwise, he may, if satisfied that the nature of the estate or business of the company, or the interests of the creditors or contributories generally, require the estate or business of the company to be placed under the management of the court, and the court may on such order of the said estate or business to be placed under the management of the court, direct, with such powers, including any of the powers of a receiver or manager, as may be entrusted to him by the court.

(2) The special manager shall give such security and account in such manner as the Board of Trade direct.

(3) The special manager shall receive such remuneration as may be fixed by the court.

210. The court may fix a time or times within which creditors are to prove their debts or claims, or to be excluded from the benefit of any distribution made before those debts are proved.

Power to exclude creditors not proving in time.

211. The court shall adjust the rights of the contributories among themselves, and adjust and distribute any surplus among the persons entitled thereto.

Adjustment of rights of contributories.

212. The court may, at any time after making a winding up order, make such order for inspection of the books and papers of the company by creditors and contributories as the court thinks just, and any books and papers in the possession of the company may be inspected by creditors or contributories accordingly, but not further or otherwise.

(2) The court may examine him on oath concerning the matters aforesaid, either by word of mouth or on written interrogatories, and may reduce his answers to writing and require him to sign them.

(3) The court may require him to produce any books and papers in his custody or power relating to the company, but, where he claims any lien on books or papers produced by him, the production shall be without prejudice to that lien, and the court shall have jurisdiction in the winding up to determine all questions relating to that lien

(4) If any person so summoned, after being tendered a reasonable sum for his expenses, refuses to come before the court at the time appointed, not having a lawful impediment (made known to the court at the time of its sitting, and allowed by it), the court may cause him to be apprehended and brought before the court for examination.

215. In the winding up by the court of a company registered in Scotland, the court shall have power to require the attendance of any director or other officer of the company at any meeting of creditors or of contributories or of a committee of inspection for the purpose of giving information as to the trade, dealings, affairs or property of the company.

Saving for rights of creditors and contributories.

(iv) Winding Up subject to Supervision of Court.

256. When a company has passed a resolution for voluntary winding up, the court may make an order that the voluntary winding up shall continue but subject to such supervision of the court, and with such liberty for creditors, contributories, or others to apply to the court, and generally on such terms and conditions as the court thinks just.

Power to order winding up subject to supervision.

Effect of petition for winding up subject to supervision 257. A petition for the continuance of a voluntary winding up subject to the supervision of the court shall, for the purpose of giving jurisdiction to the court over actions, be deemed to be a petition for winding up by the court.

Application of ss 173 and 174 to winding up subject to supervision 258. A winding up subject to the supervision of the court shall, for the purposes of sections one hundred and seventy-three and one hundred and seventy-four of this Act, be deemed to be a winding up by the court.

Power of court to appoint or remove liquidators 259.—(1) Where an order is made for a winding up subject to supervision, the court may by that or any subsequent order appoint an additional liquidator.

(2) A liquidator appointed by the court under this section shall have the same powers, be subject to any restrictions imposed by the court, exercise stand in the same position as if he had been duly appointed in accordance with the provisions of this Act with respect to the appointment of liquidators in a voluntary winding up.

(3) The Court may remove any liquidator so appointed by the Court or any liquidator continued under the supervision order and fill any vacancy occasioned by the removal, or by death or resignation.

Effect of supervision order. 260.—(1) Where an order is made for a winding up subject to supervision, the liquidator may, subject to any restrictions imposed by the court, exercise all his powers, without the sanction or intervention of the court, in the same manner as if the company were being wound up altogether voluntarily.

Provided that the powers specified in paragraphs (d), (e) and (f) of and ninety-one of this Act shall not be exercised by the liquidator, in a case where before the voluntary winding up, with the sanction of either

(2) A winding up subject to the supervision of the court is not a winding up by the court for the purpose of the provisions of this Act which are set out in the Ninth Schedule to this Act, but subject as aforesaid, an order for a winding up subject to supervision shall for all purposes be deemed to be an order for winding up by the court.

Provided that where the order for winding up subject to supervision was made in relation to a creditors' voluntary winding up in which a committee of inspection had been appointed, the order shall be deemed to be an order for winding up by the court for the purpose of section one hundred and ninety-nine (except subsection (1) thereof) and section two hundred and one of this Act, except in so far as the operation of those sections is excluded in a voluntary winding up by general rules.

(v) Provisions applicable to every Mode of Winding Up.

Proof and Ranking of Claims

Debts of all descriptions to be proved. 261 In every winding up (subject in the case of insolvent companies to the application in accordance with the provisions of this Act of the law of bankruptcy) all debts payable on a contingency and all claims against the company, present or future, certain or contingent, ascertained or sounding only in damages, shall be admissible to proof against the company, a just estimate being made, so far as possible, of the value of such debts or claims as may be subject to any contingency or sound only in damages, or for some other reason do not bear a certain value.

Application of rules of bankruptcy to insolvent companies. 262 In the winding up of an insolvent company registered in England the same rules shall prevail and be observed with regard to the respective rights of secured and unsecured creditors and to debts provable and to the valuation of annuities and future and contingent liabilities as are in force for in winding up of insolvent English companies time being under the law of bankruptcy in England with respect to the estates of persons adjudged bankrupt, and all persons who in any such case would be entitled to prove for and receive dividends out of the assets of the company may come in under the winding up, and make such claims against the company as they respectively are entitled to by virtue of this section

263 In the winding up of a company registered in Scotland, the following provisions of the Bankruptcy (Scotland) Act, 1913, that is to say,

- Ranking of claims in Scotland. (a) the provisions of sections forty-five to sixty-two regarding voting and ranking for payment of dividends ;
(b) sections ninety-six and one hundred and five, which respectively relate to the reckoning of majorities and to the interruption of prescription ;

shall so far as is consistent with this Act apply in like manner as they apply in the sequestration of a bankrupt's estate, with the substitution of references to winding up for references to sequestration, of references to the court for references to the sheriff, of references to the liquidator for references to the trustee, and of references to the company for references to the bankrupt, and with any other necessary modifications.

264 —(1) In a winding up there shall be paid in priority to all other debts—

- Preferential payments
(a) All parochial or other local rates due from the company at the relevant date, and having become due and payable within twelve months next before that date, and all assessed taxes, land tax, property or income tax assessed on the company up to the fifth day of April next before that date, and not exceeding in the whole one year's assessment ;
(b) All wages or salary (whether or not earned wholly or in part by way of commission) of any clerk or servant in respect of services rendered to the company during four months next before the relevant date, not exceeding fifty pounds ;
(c) All wages of any workman or labourer not exceeding twenty-five pounds, whether payable for time or for piece work, in respect of services rendered to the company during two months next before the relevant date ;

Provided that where any labourer in husbandry has entered into a contract for the payment of a portion of his wages in a lump sum at the end of the year of hiring, he shall have priority in respect of the whole of such sum, or a part thereof, as the court may decide to be due under the contract, proportionate to the time of service up to the relevant date ;

- (d) Unless the company is being wound up voluntarily merely for the purposes of reconstruction or of amalgamation with another company, or unless the company has at the commencement of the winding up under such a contract with insurers as is mentioned in section seven of the Workmen's Compensation Act, 1925, rights capable of being transferred to and vested in the workman, all amounts due in respect of any compensation or liability for compensation under the said Act accrued before the relevant date ;
(e) Unless the company is being wound up voluntarily merely for the purposes of reconstruction or of amalgamation with another company, all amounts due in respect of contributions payable during the twelve months next before the relevant date by the company as the employer of any persons under either—
(i) the National Health Insurance Acts, 1924 to 1928 ; or
(ii) the Widows', Orphans' and Old Age Contributory Pensions Act, 1925 ; or
(iii) the Unemployment Insurance Acts, 1920 to 1929.

(2) Where any compensation under the Workmen's Compensation Act, 1925, is a weekly payment of a lump sum, the amount of the lump sum shall, for the purposes of paragraph (c), be the amount of the lump sum for which the employer made an advance payment.

(3) Where any payment on account of wages or salary has been made to any clerk, servant, workman or labourer in the employment of a company out of money advanced by some person for that purpose, that person shall in a winding up have a right of priority in respect of the money so advanced and paid up to the amount by which the sum in respect of which that clerk, servant, workman or labourer would have been entitled to priority in the winding up has been diminished by reason of the payment having been made.

(4) The foregoing debts shall—

(a) Rank equally among themselves and be paid in full, unless the assets are insufficient to meet them, in which case they shall abate in equal proportions; and

(b) In the case of a company registered in England, so far as the assets of the company available for payment of general creditors are insufficient to meet them, have priority over the claims of holders of debentures under any floating charge created by the company, and be paid accordingly out of any property comprised in or subject to that charge.

(5) Subject to the retention of such sums as may be necessary for the costs and expenses of the winding up the foregoing debts shall be discharged forthwith so far as the assets are sufficient to meet them, and in the case of the debts to which priority is given by paragraph (e) of subsection (1) of this section formal proof thereof shall not be required except in so far as is otherwise provided by general rules.

Provided that in respect of any money paid under any such charge the landlord or other person shall have the same rights of priority as the person to whom the payment is made

(7) In this section the expression "the relevant date" means—

(a) In the case of a company ordered to be wound up compulsorily which had not previously commenced to be wound up voluntarily, the date of the winding up order; and

(b) in any other case, the date of the commencement of the winding up.

Effect of Winding Up on antecedent and other Transactions

Fraudulent preference. 285—(1) Any conveyance, mortgage, delivery of goods, payment, execution, or other act relating to property which would, if made or done by or against an individual, be deemed in his bankruptcy a fraudulent preference, shall, if made or done by or against a company, be deemed, in the event of its being wound up, a fraudulent preference of its creditors, and be invalid accordingly

(2) For the purposes of this section the commencement of the winding up shall be deemed to correspond with the presentation of the bankruptcy petition in the case of an individual

(3) Any conveyance or assignment by a company of all its property to trustees for the benefit of all its creditors shall be void to all intents

(4) In the application to Scotland of this section the expression "fraudulent preference" includes any alienation or preference which is voidable by statute or at common law on the ground of insolvency or notour bankruptcy, and the expression "bankruptcy petition" means petition for sequestration

Effect of floating charge 266 Where a company is being wound up, a floating charge on the undertaking or property of the company created within six months of the commencement of the winding up shall, unless it is proved that the company immediately after the creation of the charge was solvent, be invalid except to the amount of any cash paid to the company at the time of or subsequently to the creation of, and in consideration for, the charge, together with interest on that amount at the rate of five per cent per annum

Enforcement of duty of company to make returns to registrar 315—(1) If a company, having made default in complying with any provision of this Act which requires it to file with, deliver or send to the registrar of companies any return, account or other document, or to give notice to him of any matter, fails to make good the default within fourteen days after the service of a notice on the company, requiring it to do so, the court may, on an application made to the court by any member or creditor of the company or by the registrar of companies, make an order directing the company and any officer thereof to make good the default within such time as may be specified in the order.

(2) Any such order may provide that all costs of and incidental to the application shall be borne by the company or by any officers of the company responsible for the default.

(3) Nothing in this section shall be taken to prejudice the operation of any enactment imposing penalties on a company or its officers in respect of any such default as aforesaid.

PART VIII

Application of Act to Companies formed or Registered under former Acts

316. In the application of this Act to existing companies, it shall apply in the same manner—

- Application of Act to companies formed under former Companies Acts
- (1) in the case of a limited company, other than a company limited by guarantee, as if the company had been formed and registered under this Act as a company limited by shares,
 - (2) in the case of a company limited by guarantee, as if the company had been formed and registered under this Act as a company limited by guarantee, and
 - (3) in the case of a company other than a limited company, as if the company had been formed and registered under this Act as an unlimited company.

Provided that reference, express or implied, to the date of registration shall be construed as a reference to the date at which the company was registered under the Joint Stock Companies Acts, the Companies Act, 1862, or the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, as the case may be.

Application of Act to companies registered under former Companies Acts 317. This Act shall apply to every company registered but not formed under the Joint Stock Companies Acts, the Companies Act, 1862, or the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, in the same manner as it is in Part IX of this Act declared to apply to companies registered but not formed under this Act:

Provided that reference, express or implied, to the date of registration shall be construed as a reference to the date at which the company was registered under the Joint Stock Companies Acts, the Companies Act, 1862, or the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, as the case may be.

Application of Act to companies re-registered under former Companies Acts. 318. This Act shall apply to every unlimited company registered as a limited company in pursuance of the Companies Act, 1879, or section fifty-seven of the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, in the same manner as it applies to an unlimited company registered in pursuance of this Act as a limited company.

Provided that reference, express or implied, to the date of registration shall be construed as a reference to the date at which the company was registered as a limited company under the said Act or said section, as the case may be.

- 319.—(1) A company registered under the Joint Stock Companies Acts may cause its shares to be transferred in manner hitherto in use, or in such other manner as the company may direct.
- Provision as to companies registered under the Joint Stock Companies Acts. (2) The power of altering articles under section ten of this Act shall, in the case of an unlimited company formed and registered under the Joint Stock Companies Acts, extend to altering any regulations relating to the amount of capital or to its distribution into shares, notwithstanding that those regulations are contained in the memorandum.

- 320 Nothing in this Part of this Act shall apply to companies registered in the Irish Free State or Northern Ireland.
- Exclusion of companies registered in Irish Free State or Northern Ireland

PART IX.

Companies not formed under this Act authorised to Register under this Act.

- 321.—(1) With the exceptions and subject to the provisions contained in this section,—
- Companies capable of being registered. (a) any company consisting of seven or more members, which was in existence on the second day of November, eighteen hundred and sixty-two, including any company registered under the Joint Stock Companies Acts; and

- (b) any company formed after the date aforesaid, whether before or after the commencement of this Act, in pursuance of any Act of Parliament other than this Act, or of letters patent, or being a company within the stannaries, or being otherwise duly constituted according to law, and consisting of seven or more members;
- may at any time register under this Act as an unlimited company, or as a company limited by shares, or as a company limited by guarantee; and the registration shall not be invalid by reason that it has taken place with a view to the company being wound up.

Provided that—

- (i) A company registered in any part of the United Kingdom under the Companies Act, 1862, or the Companies (Consolidation) Act, 1908, shall not register in pursuance of this section;
- (ii) A company having the liability of its members limited by Act of Parliament or letters patent, and not being a joint stock company as hereinafter defined, shall not register in pursuance of this section;
- (iii) A company having the liability of its members limited by Act of Parliament or letters patent shall not register in pursuance of this section as an unlimited company or as a company limited by guarantee;
- (iv) A company that is not a joint stock company as hereinafter defined shall not register in pursuance of this section as a company limited by shares;
- (v) A company shall not register in pursuance of this section without the assent of a majority of such of its members as are present in person or by proxy (in cases where proxies are allowed by the regulations of the company) at a general meeting summoned for the purpose;
- (vi) Where a company not having the liability of its members limited by Act of Parliament or letters patent is about to register as a limited company, the majority required to assent as aforesaid shall consist of not less than three-fourths of the members present in person or by proxy at the meeting;

(vii) Where a company is about to register as a company limited by specified amount.

(2) In computing any majority under this section when a poll is demanded regard shall be had to the number of votes to which each member is entitled according to the regulations of the company

322 For the purposes of this Part of this Act, as far as relates to registration of companies as companies limited by shares, a joint stock company means a company having a permanent paid-up or nominal share capital of fixed amount divided into shares, also of fixed amount, or held and transferable as stock, or divided and formed on the principle of those shares or that stock, and registered with limited liability under by shares.

323. Before the registration of any company limited by shares, the following requirements shall be complied with—

(i) before the issue, circulation or distribution of the prospectus in Great Britain a copy thereof, certified by the chairman and two other directors of the company as having been approved by resolution of the managing body, has been delivered for registration to the registrar of companies ,

(ii) the prospectus states on the face of it that the copy has been so delivered ;

(iii) the prospectus is dated ,

(iv) the prospectus otherwise complies with this Part of this Act , or

(b) to issue to any person in Great Britain a form of application for shares in or debentures of such a company or intended company as aforesaid unless the form is issued with a prospectus which complies with this Part of this Act :

Provided that this provision shall not apply if it is shown that the form of application was issued in connection with a bona fide invitation to a person to enter into an underwriting agreement with respect to the shares or debentures.

(2) This section shall not apply to the issue to existing members or debenture holders of a company of a prospectus or form of application relating to shares in or debentures of the company, whether an applicant for shares or debentures will or will not have the right to renounce in favour of other persons, but, subject as aforesaid, this section shall apply to a prospectus or form of application whether issued on or with reference to the formation of a company or subsequently.

(3) Where any document by which any shares in or debentures of a company incorporated outside Great Britain are offered for sale to the public would, if the company concerned had been a company within the meaning of this Act, have been deemed by virtue of section thirty-eight of this Act to be a prospectus issued by the company, that document shall be deemed to be, for the purposes of this section, a prospectus issued by the company.

(4) An offer of shares or debentures for subscription or sale to any person whose ordinary business or part of whose ordinary business it is to buy or sell shares or debentures, whether as principal or agent, shall not be deemed an offer to the public for the purposes of this section.

(5) Section thirty-seven of this Act shall extend to every prospectus to which this section applies.

(6) Any person who is knowingly responsible for the issue, circulation or distribution of any prospectus or for the issue of a form of application for shares or debentures in contravention of the provisions of this section shall be liable to a fine not exceeding five hundred pounds.

(7) In this and the next following section the expressions "prospectus," "shares," and "debentures" have the same meanings as when used in relation to a company incorporated under this Act.

- [50] 44 No business shall be transacted at any general meeting unless a quorum is present at the time when the meeting proceeds to transact business, save as herein otherwise provided, three members personally present shall be a quorum.

- [51] 45 No business shall be transacted at any general meeting unless a quorum of members is present at the time when the meeting proceeds to transact business, save as herein otherwise provided, three members personally present shall be a quorum.

- [52] 46 If within half an hour from the time appointed for the meeting a quorum is not present, the meeting, if members shall be dissolved; in any other case, the meeting shall be adjourned to the same day in the next week, at the same time and place, and if at the adjourned meeting a quorum is not present, the meeting shall be deemed to have been duly held on the day appointed for the meeting the members present shall be a quorum.

- [53] 47 The chairman, if any, of the board of directors shall preside as chairman at every general meeting of the company.

- [54] 48 If there is no such chairman, or if at any meeting he is not present within fifteen minutes after the time appointed for holding the meeting or is unwilling to act as chairman, the members present shall choose some one of their number to be chairman.

- [55] 49 The chairman may, with the consent of any meeting at which a quorum is present (and shall if so directed by the meeting), adjourn the meeting from time to time and from place to place, but no business shall be transacted at any adjourned meeting other than the business left unfinished at the meeting from which the adjournment took place. When a meeting is adjourned for ten days or more, notice of the adjourned meeting shall be given as in the case of an original meeting. Save as aforesaid it shall not be necessary to give any notice of an adjournment or of the business to be transacted at an adjourned meeting.

- [56] 50 At any general meeting a resolution put to the vote of the meeting shall be decided on a show of hands unless a poll is (before or on the declaration of the result of the show of hands) demanded by at least three members present in person or by proxy entitled to vote or by one member or two members so present and entitled, if that member or those two members together hold not less than 15 per cent of the paid-up capital of the company.

- [57] 51 If a poll is duly demanded it shall be taken in such manner as the chairman directs, and the result of the poll shall be deemed to be the resolution of the meeting at which the poll was demanded.

- [58] 52 In the case of an equality of votes, whether on a show of hands or on a poll, the chairman of the meeting at which the show of hands takes place or at which the poll is demanded, shall be entitled to a second or casting vote.

- [59] 53 A poll demanded on the election of a chairman, or on a question of adjournment, shall be taken forthwith. A poll demanded on any other question shall be taken at such time as the chairman of the meeting directs.

Votes of members.

- [60] 54 On a show of hands every member present in person shall have one vote.

one vote. On a poll every member shall have one vote for each share of which he is the holder.

- [61] 55. In the case of joint holders the vote of the senior who tenders a vote, whether in person or by proxy, shall be accepted to the exclusion of the votes of the other joint holders; and for this purpose seniority shall be determined by the order in which the names stand in the register of members.

- [62] 56. A member of unsound mind, or in respect of whom an order has been made by any Court having jurisdiction in lunacy, may vote, whether on a show of hands or on a poll, by his committee, curator bonis, or other person in the nature of a committee or curator bonis appointed by that Court, and any such committee, curator bonis, or other person may, on a poll, vote by proxy.

- [63] 57. No member shall be entitled to vote at any general meeting unless all calls or other sums presently payable by him in respect of shares in the company have been paid.

- [64] 58. On a poll votes may be given either personally or by proxy.

- [65] 59. The instrument appointing a proxy shall be in writing under the hand of the appointor or of his attorney duly authorised in writing, or, if the appointor is a corporation, either under seal, or under the hand of an officer or attorney duly authorised. A proxy need not be a member of the company.

- [66] 60. The instrument appointing a proxy and the power of attorney or other authority, if any, by which the proxy is signed or a notari- ally certified copy of the instrument, shall be deposited at the registered office of the company not less than four clear days before the time for holding the meeting, and the person named in the instrument of proxy shall not

Articles of Association to accompany preceding Memorandum of Association.

Preliminary.

1 In these regulations . —

The Act means the Companies Act, 1929.

When any provision of the Act is referred to the reference is to such provision as modified by any statute for the time being in force.

Unless the context otherwise requires, expressions defined in the Act or any statutory modification thereof in force at the date at which these regulations become binding on the company, shall have the meanings so defined.

Members.

2 The number of members with which the company proposes to be registered is 500, but the directors may from time to time register an increase of members.

3 The subscribers to the memorandum of association and such other persons as the directors shall admit to membership shall be members of the company.

General Meetings.

4. The first general meeting shall be held at such time, not being less than one month nor more than three months after the incorporation of the company, and at such place, as the directors may determine for the same, the directors present may choose one of their number to be chairman of the meeting.

47. The directors may delegate any of their powers to committees consisting of such member or members of their body as they think fit; any committee so formed shall, in the exercise of the powers so delegated, conform to any regulations that may be imposed on them by the directors.

48. A committee may elect a chairman of its meetings; if no such chairman is elected, or if at any meeting the chairman is not present within five minutes after the time appointed for holding the same, the members may choose one of their number to be chairman of the meeting.

49. A committee may meet and adjourn as it thinks proper. Questions arising at any meeting shall be determined by a majority of votes of the members present, and in case of an equality of votes the chairman shall have a second or casting vote.

Accounts.

51. The directors shall cause proper books of account to be kept with respect to—
All sums of money received and expended by the company and the matter in respect of which the receipt and expenditure takes place;

All sales and purchases of goods by the company; and
The assets and liabilities of the company.

52. The books of account shall be kept at the registered office of the company, or at such other place or places as the directors think fit, and shall always be open to the inspection of the directors.

53. The directors shall from time to time in accordance with section 123 of the Act, cause to be prepared and to be laid before the company in general meeting such profit and loss accounts balance sheets and reports as are referred to in that section.

54. A notice may be given by the company to any member either personally or by sending it by post to him to his registered address, or (if he has no registered address within the United Kingdom) to the address, if any, within the United Kingdom supplied by him to the company for the giving of notices to him.

Where a notice is sent by post, service of the notice shall be deemed to be effected by properly addressing, prepaying, and posting a letter containing the notice, and to have been effected at the expiration of 24 hours after the letter containing the same was posted.

- (l) for an order to wind up a company subject to the supervision of the Court (section 221);
- (m) to declare the dissolution of a company to be void (section 217);
- (n) for security for costs (section 290);
- (o) for an order relieving a director from liability (section 291);
- (p) otherwise originating proceedings under the Act in relation to a company.

6. Applications and orders to bear serial number.—All applications or orders made and all processes issued or documents filed thereafter in such proceedings shall bear the serial number thereof.

7. Ledger of Company Matters—The Registrar shall keep and maintain a book to be called the Ledger of Company Matters.

8. Mode of keeping Ledger of Company Matters—The Ledger of Company Matters shall be kept and indexed according to the nature of the companies to which the entries therein relate, and under the name of the company in which the entries are filed in any proceedings referred to in rule 1. The entries shall be serially numbered in the ledger and shall be endorsed thereon in red ink at the time when such document is recorded.

9. Enlargement and abridgement of time—The power of the Judge to enlarge or abridge the time for doing any act, or taking any proceeding, shall not be deemed to be affected by this chapter.

10. Advertisement.—Where an advertisement is required for any purpose, it shall, unless otherwise prescribed by these Rules or directed by the Judge, be inserted once in the Calcutta Gazette and once in two daily newspapers circulating in Calcutta.

11. Power to dispense with advertisements.—The Judge may in a special case dispense with any advertisement required by these Rules.

12. Validation of defective or irregular proceedings.—No proceedings under the Act or the Rules shall be invalidated by any formal defect or by any irregularity, unless the Judge before whom an objection is made to the proceeding is of opinion that substantial injustice has been caused by the defect or irregularity, and that the injustice cannot be remedied by an order.

13. Application of forms.—The forms to which reference is made in and to be used under these Rules are those in the Appendix, and the same where applicable, and where they are not applicable, forms of the like character with such variations as circumstances may require, shall be used. Where such forms are applicable any costs occasioned by the use of any other or prolix forms shall be borne by or disallowed to the party using the same unless the Judge shall otherwise direct.

Reduction of Capital.

14. Mode of application.—An application for an order confirming the reduction of the share capital of a company shall be made on petition verified by affidavit. Such petition shall be in Form No. 1.

15. Application to dispense with "and Reduced"—An application for an order dispensing with the addition of the words "and Reduced" may be made ex parte at or after the presentation of such petition, provided the Judge may direct notice to be given of such application or adjourn the consideration thereof as he may think fit.

16. Effect of order for reduction of capital.—In a case where the creditors are not entitled to object to the reduction of the share capital of the company, the creditors shall not be necessary parties to the petition for the reduction of the share capital, and the Judge may direct the creditors to be summoned to the petition so that the first or last day of the hearing of the petition shall be not less than 14 days before the day on which the order for the reduction of the share capital is to be made.

17. Procedure when creditors are entitled to object to the reduction of the share capital of the company.—When the creditors are entitled to object to the reduction of the share capital of the company, the petition for the reduction of the share capital shall be made on behalf of the company by the directors or the managing director, and the petition shall be verified by affidavit of the directors or the managing director, and the petition shall be made in Form No. 2.

18. Proceedings to continue by adjournment.—Proceedings under the order shall be continued by adjournment or, if the Judge shall so direct, by further summons.

APPENDIX J.

Income Tax.

For the purposes of income tax the position of a Company is materially different from that of individuals and other associations of individuals. In the case of any person other than a Company it is for the income tax department to initiate proceedings in assessment. See Sec. 22 (2) of the Indian Income Tax Act (Act XI of 1922). In such a case the Income-Tax Officer shall have to serve a notice upon him requiring him to submit a return of his income. Unless and until this notice is issued there is no duty cast upon any such person to disclose his income for the purpose of assessment. In the case of a Company, however, it is the duty of the Company without any such notice to furnish a return of its income. Sec. 22 (1) of the Income Tax Act enacts:—"The principal officer of every Company shall prepare and, on or before the fifteenth day of June in each year, furnish to the Income Tax Officer a return, in the prescribed form and verified in the prescribed manner, of the total income of the Company during the previous year :

Provided that the Income Tax Officer may, in his discretion, extend the date for the delivery of the return in the case of any Company or class of Companies."

A Company is thus required to submit a return of its income of its own accord and is required to do so by the date specified above.

For the purposes of the Income Tax Act the term Company is defined in the following terms:—"Company means a Company as defined in the Indian Companies Act, 1913, or formed in pursuance of an Act of Parliament or of Royal Charter or Letters Patent, or of an Act of the Legislature of a British possession, and includes any foreign association carrying on business in British India whether incorporated or not, and whether its principal place of business is situate in British India or not, which the Central Board of Revenue may, by general or special order, declare to be a Company for the purposes of this Act": See Sec. 2 (6) of the Indian Income Tax Act, 1922. It may be pointed out that this definition was first introduced in the Income Tax Act of 1918. In the Income Tax Act of 1886 the term was defined as follows: "An association carrying on business in British India whose stock or funds is or are divided into shares and transferable whether the Company is incorporated or not and whether its principal place of business is situate in India or not." The present definition limits the term only to incorporated associations unless they are foreign. On the other hand the definition is made more comprehensive so as to include associations not carrying on business as also associations not having shares.

The Principal officer of a Company: It must have been noticed above that Sec. 22 (1) of the Income Tax Act requires that the Principal officer of a Company shall submit the return. The expression "Principal officer" is defined in Sec. 2 (12) of the Income Tax Act, 1922 in the following terms, "Principal officer" used with reference to a Company means—

- (a) the Secretary, treasurer, manager or agent of the Company.....or
- (b) any person connected with the...Company... upon whom the Income Tax Officer has served a notice of his intention of treating him as the principal officer thereof "

Income Tax Officers are required by the departmental instructions to treat as the principal officer the officials specified in clause (a). It is only where an Income Tax Officer has no information regarding the persons who discharge the functions of the officer mentioned in clause (a) or where such persons cannot be found that he should use the powers conferred by clause (b) of treating as the principal officer any other person connected with the Company. See Income Tax Act Manual 1932, page 135.

Total income.—The return to be submitted must show the total income of the Company during the previous year. As to what shall constitute this total income, see sec. 16 of the Income Tax Act. Heads of income chargeable to income-tax are (1) Salaries (Sec. 7), (2) Interest on securities (Sec. 8), (3) Property (Sec. 9), (4) Business (Sec. 10), (5) Professional earnings (Sec. 11), (6) Other sources (Sec. 12) : See Sec. 6 of the Income Tax Act. A Company may have income under any one or more of these heads. Sec. 7 of the Income Tax Act makes provision for assessment in respect of 'Salaries'. For this purpose Salaries would include any salary or wages, any annuity, pension, gratuity, and any fees, commissions, perquisites or profits received by the assessee in lieu of or in addition to any salary or wages etc. See Sec. 7 of the Income Tax Act which runs as follows :—

7. (1) The tax shall be payable by an assessee under the head 'Salaries' in respect of—

N. B.—It should be noticed here that though tax shall not be payable under this head in respect of the sum mentioned in the proviso to clause I, in calculating the total income this sum must be included. So in the return submitted income under the head "Salary" must include this sum.

As to income under the head "Interest on Securities", see sec. 8 of the Income Tax Act which after amendment by Act XVIII of 1933 stands as follows :—

shall be an assessee under the head "Interest on securities" Government of India or money issued by or

Provided that no income-tax shall be payable under this section by the assessee in respect of any sum deducted from such interest by way of commission by a banker realizing such interest on behalf of the assessee :—

Provided, further, that no income tax shall be payable on the interest receivable on any security of the Government of India issued or declared to be income-tax free :—

Provided, further, that the income-tax payable on the interest receivable on any security of a Local Government issued income tax free shall be payable by the Local Government.

Here again it should be noticed carefully that though no tax shall be payable on interest referred to in the second and third provisos to the Section, in calculating 'total income' however, such interests must also be included.

For the taxable income under the head 'Property' see Sec. 9 of the Income Tax Act which after amendment by Act XVIII of 1938 stands as follows :—

namely, —

under the head "Property" in of any buildings or lands such portions of such property to the following allowances

- (i) Where the property is in the occupation of the owner, or where it is let to a tenant and the owner has undertaken to bear the cost of repairs, a sum equal to one-sixth of such value ;
- (ii) Where the property is in the occupation of a tenant who has undertaken to bear the cost of repairs, the difference between such value and the rent paid by the tenant up to but not exceeding one-sixth of such value ;
- (iii) The amount of any annual premium paid to insure the property against risk of damage or destruction ;
- (iv) Where the property is subject to a mortgage, or other capital charge, the amount of any interest on such mortgage or charge, where the property is subject to a ground rent, the amount of such ground rent, and where the property has been acquired with borrowed capital, the amount of any interest payable on such capital and not specifically charged upon the property itself ;
- (v) Any sums paid on account of land-revenue in respect of the property ;
- (vi) In respect of collection charges, a sum not exceeding the prescribed maximum ;
- (vii) In respect of vacancies, such sum as the Income-tax Officer may determine having regard to the circumstances of the case ;

Provided that the aggregate of the allowance made under this sub-section shall in no case exceed the annual value.

(2) For the purposes of this section, the expression 'annual value' shall be deemed to mean the sum for which the property might reasonably be expected to let from year to year :

Provided that, where the property is in the occupation of the owner for the purposes of his own residence, such sum shall, for the purposes of this section, be deemed not to exceed ten per cent. of the total income of the owner.

Company may be owner of a 'property'

It is not any and every property that consisting of any buildings or lands appurtenant thereto are the only properties that come under this head. Income derived from such property alone is a specific category and for income-tax purposes it is not what might actually have been received as income from such property, but a hypothetical sum which is named as its 'annual value', that shall have to be shown as 'income' under this head. As to what income shall have to be shown under this head see the follo-

34. Property. Collection charges [S. 9 (1) (vi)]. As regards collection charges,

Legal expenses incurred in recovering rent from tenants should be treated as a permissible deduction included in collection charges subject to the following conditions :—

- (a) Only net legal expenses, that is, expenses after deducting any costs recovered from the opposite party will be deducted.
- (b) The actual expenses incurred in excess of the costs deducted will be allowed in the year in which the decree is passed; a further allowance for costs proved to be irrecoverable will be given later, if necessary.
- (c) The total allowance for collection charges including legal expenses allowed must, of course, not exceed the statutory 6 per cent.

34 A. Property Deduction for unrealised rent—Unrealised rent on any property exempt from income-tax and is also excluded in computing the total income of an assessee, provided that—

- (a) the tenancy is bona fide;
- (b) the defaulting tenant has vacated, or steps have been taken to compel him to vacate the property;
- (c) the defaulting tenant is not in occupation of other property of the assessee; and
- (d) the assessee has taken all reasonable steps to institute legal proceedings for the recovery of the unpaid rent.

35 Property Allowance in respect of vacancies [S. 9 (1) (vii)]—No fixed rule can be laid down regarding the allowance to be granted in respect of vacancies under clause (vii). Property is taxed on the "annual value" which, as noted above, is the commercial rent of a house—the rent which it would fetch if let by the year. Where the property is let at an annual rental corresponding to the annual value it would be fair to allow a proportionate deduction corresponding to the period of the vacancy, that is, if it were vacant for half the year, half the annual value might be allowed. Property may be let on short lease for a period less than one year and fetch a rent for that period far in excess of what it would fetch if let by the year.

A claim on account of vacancies can only be entertained in connection with property that is usually let.

36 Property. Limitation of total allowance. [S. 9 (1)]—The proviso to s. 9 (1), that the aggregate of the allowances made under that sub-section shall in no case exceed the annual value, was inserted owing to the new provision in s. 21 providing for the set off of losses under one head against income, profits or gains under any other head. Instances have occurred of buildings situated in extensive grounds or on valuable sites being mortgaged for sums the interest on which is far in excess of the "annual value". The result of this proviso is that the annual value of the property belonging to an assessee can in no case be reduced to a minus sum owing to the allowances, and that there can be no loss under this head to be set against income, profits or gains under any other head.

For income under the head "business" see Sec. 10 of the Income Tax Act which runs as follows :—

10. (1) The tax shall be payable by an assessee under the head "Business" in respect of the profits or gains of any business carried on by him.

(2) Such profits or gains shall be computed after making the following allowances, namely:—

- (i) any rent paid for the premises in which such business is carried on provided that when any substantial part of the premises is used as a dwelling house by the assessee the allowance under this clause shall be such sum as the Income-tax Officer may determine having regard to the proportional part so used;
 - (ii) in respect of repairs where the assessee is the tenant only of the premises, and has undertaken to bear the cost of such repairs, the amount paid on account thereof provided that, if any substantial part of the premises is used by the assessee as a dwelling house, a proportional part only of such amount shall be allowed;
 - (iii) in respect of capital borrowed for the purposes of the business, where the payment of interest thereon is not in any way dependent on the earning of profits, the amount of the interest paid;
- Explanation*—Recurring subscriptions paid periodically by shareholders or subscribers in such Mutual Benefit Societies as may be prescribed, shall be deemed to be capital borrowed within the meaning of this clause;
- (iv) in respect of insurance against risk of damage or destruction of buildings, machinery, plant, furniture, stocks or stores, used for the purposes of the business, the amount of any premium paid;
 - (v) in respect of current repairs to such buildings, machinery, plant, or furniture, the amount paid on account thereof;
 - (vi) in respect of depreciation of such buildings, machinery, plant, or furniture being the property of the assessee, a sum equivalent to such percentage on the original cost thereof to the assessee as may in any case or class of cases be prescribed;

Provided that—

- (a) the prescribed particulars have been duly furnished;
- (b) where full effect cannot be given to any such allowance in any year owing to there being no profits or gains chargeable for that year, or owing to the profits or gains chargeable being less than the allowance, the allowance or part of the allowance to which effects has not been given, as the case may be, shall be added to the amount of the allowance for depreciation for the following year and deemed to be part of that allowance, or, if there is no such allowance for that year, be deemed to be the allowance for that year, and so on for succeeding years; and
- (c) the aggregate of all such allowances made under this Act or any Act repealed hereby, or under the Indian Income-tax Act, 1876, shall, in no case, exceed the original cost to the assessee of the buildings, machinery, plant, or furniture, as the case may be;
- (iii) in respect of any machinery or plant which, in consequence of its having become obsolete, has been sold or discarded, the difference between the original cost to the assessee of the machinery or plant as reduced by the aggregate of the allowance made in respect of depreciation under clause (vi), or any Act repealed hereby, or the Indian Income-tax Act, 1876, and the amount for which the machinery or plant is actually sold, or its scrap value;
- *(iv) in respect of animals which have been used for the purposes of the business otherwise than as stock in trade and have died or become permanently useless for such purposes, the difference between the original cost to the assessee of the animals and the amount if any, realised in respect of the carcases of animals;
- (v) any sums paid on account of land-revenue, local rates or municipal taxes in respect of such part of the premises as is used for the purposes of the business;

' (iii) any sum paid to an employee as bonus or commission for services rendered, where such sum would not have been payable to him as profits or dividend if it had not been paid as bonus or commission :

Provided that the amount of the bonus or commission is of a reasonable amount with reference to—

(a) the pay of the employee and the conditions of his service ;

(b) the profits of the business for the year in question ; and

(c) the general practice in similar businesses ;

(ix) any expenditure (not being in the nature of capital expenditure) incurred solely for the purpose of earning such profits or gains ;

' Provided that nothing in clause (viii) or clause (ix) shall be deemed to authorise the allowance of any sum paid on account of any cess, rate or tax levied on the profits or gains of any business or assessed at a proportion of or otherwise on the basis of any such profits or gains.

(3) In sub-section (2) the word 'paid' means actually paid or incurred according to the method of accounting upon the basis of which the profits or gains are computed under this section.

"Business" is defined in Sec. 2 (4) of the Income Tax Act in the following terms : "business includes any trade, commerce, or manufacture or any adventure or concern in the nature of trade, commerce or manufacture."

The following departmental rules giving the method of accounting in this connection will show how the returnable income under this head is to be calculated :

37. Method of accounting. — The assessee shall, as far as is possible, adopt such form and system of accounting as is best suited for his purposes. The only restrictions are that the method adopted must be one that clearly reflects the income of the assessee in respect of the fixed period of "the previous year" and that it is the one regularly employed by him for the purposes of his business. If the tax-payer does not regularly employ a method of accounting which clearly reflects his income for the "previous year" the computation will be made in such manner as in the opinion of the Income-tax Officer does clearly reflect it.

The system made available to the assessee for the purpose of accounting shall be the one which is most suitable for the purpose of accounting. It will be the method of accounting adopted for or by the taxpayer, therefore, that will determine the period within which any item of gross revenue or any deduction therefrom is to be accounted for, and which will determine whether particular allowances are or not permissible.

It is for this reason that the Act does not allow deductions or allowances that are permissible or profits or professional earnings, since certain where the mercantile accountancy system is adopted.

allowance for 'bad debts' where the cash basis is the method of accounting employed. Under the mercantile accountancy system, as noted above, an entry is made on the receipt side when a sale is concluded, although the money on account of such a sale has not been paid and in making up the accounts at the end of the year such entries are treated as receipts and the tax is levied on these 'book profits'. It may happen that some of these 'book profits' cannot be recovered; they are written off as 'bad debts' when found to be irrecoverable, and since such 'book profits' have been included in the income assessed to income-tax, the 'bad debts' must be written off against the 'book profits' in the year in which they are written off in the accounts as irrecoverable. Where the cash system is adopted, there can be no 'bad debts'.

A bad debt or irrecoverable loan cannot be allowed as a deduction unless —

- (a) the assessee has written it off his accounts,
- (b) it has actually become bad or irrecoverable, and
- (c) it actually became so so in the "previous year."

The word "irrecoverable" in the term "irrecoverable loan" should be given a wider sense than its technical legal meaning.

"irrecoverable" is not confined to a loan or other debt but includes any debt which is actually irrecoverable or bad, unless the assessee proves it to be so.

The contention often put forward by assesses, or their representatives that if a debt or loan is written off it can no longer be recovered by suit, should not be admitted because a creditor who has written off a debt or loan in his accounts as bad or irrecoverable is not in any way debarred from suing for its recovery unless the act of writing off is communicated to the debtor or it is agreed between the creditor and debtor that a certain amount shall be paid and accepted in full satisfaction.

Again, it will be the method of accounting that will determine the particular that will determine the year in which such mercantile accountancy system is adopted, the allowances can be claimed in the year in which the liability to pay accrued.

88 Method of accounting "regularly employed." (Section 12).—The method of accounting employed by a person for the purposes of his business should, for the purpose of income-tax, be the method of accounting which he actually employs.

particular practice should be or banker and the loss of such stock-in-trade can clearly be regarded as a trading loss like the loss of the stock-in-trade of any other trader where the loss is not covered by insurance. In settling claims of this nature the question has always to be considered whether money-lending is or is not a part of the business of the trader in question. The investment of savings or occasional loans made to acquaintances cannot be considered to be loans made in the course of trading.

42. Allowance on account of rent of business premises. [Section 10 (2) (i)]—The allowance referred to in this clause is only in respect of that portion of the premises in which the business is carried on and the same limitation applies to all allowances relating to premises or buildings in clauses (ii), (iii), (iv), (v), and (vi). Where premises are owned by the owner of the business of course no allowance on account of rent is permissible since the owner is not liable to pay tax on the annual value of such premises under section 9. Where the trader resides in a part of the business premises, the full rental cannot be set against the profits and the Income-tax Officer must, in each case, determine the portion of the rent that may so be set off.

43. Allowances on account of repairs of business premises.—Where the assessee is himself the owner of his business premises, he is allowed as a deduction the amount spent on repairs each year on the portion of the premises used for the purposes of the business under section 10 (2) (i), where he is the tenant of the premises, he is, under section 10 (2) (iv), allowed the amount expended by him on repairs if his lease requires him to execute repairs. Where the premises are occupied partly as a residence and partly for the purposes of a business, the same proportion of the disbursements on repairs should be permitted to be deducted as is taken in calculating the rent permissible under section 10 (2) (i).

The phrase "current repairs" in section 10, sub-section (2) (i) should be interpreted to mean such repairs required to keep building, machinery, plant and furniture, in serviceable condition, as are rendered necessary by ordinary wear and tear (as opposed to accidental or wilful damage or other unusual causes) and are of their nature recurrent (supposing that the owner displays reasonable care and prudence in keeping the asset, whatever it may be in good order) at comparatively short intervals—say, at least, once in two or three years. It also includes minor replacement (in respect of which it would be absurd to expect an entry to be made in a block account or similar record or in any records maintained for the purposes of calculating depreciation) and also mere adjustments of existing parts and in the case of machinery or plant, any replacement or renewal which is not so extensive as to destroy its identity.

Expenditure on anything that, if it had been done when the asset was new, would have increased its capital value should be regarded as capital expenditure.

44. Business—Allowance in respect of borrowed capital.—[Section 10 (2) (iii).]—The allowance under this clause can only be given where payment of the interest is not borrowed capital cannot be allowed as a business expense.

Salaries or commission paid to a partner can, under no circumstances, be treated as a business expense.

No rule has been made under the "explanation" to this clause defining what Mutual Benefit Societies are to have the benefit of the "explanation." It has been found that the "explanation", if applied, is likely to give more trouble to the societies than the present procedure. Executive instructions have however been issued that in the allowance can be claimed on account of depreciation, for example, of any portion of a building which is used as a residence by the assessee. Further, the buildings, etc., must be the property of the assessee. No allowance can be claimed if they are leased from others.

Buildings belonging to the owner of a business and used by him in order to house his employees are buildings used for the purpose of business if the owner charges no rent. If, however, rent is charged section 9 would apply.

 ance in respect of one business, that cannot be set off against the profits of the same business owing to the profits in question being insufficient, shall be set off, if possible, against the profits for the same year of any other businesses or business owned by the assessee. Any amount of depreciation that cannot be set off against the assessee's business profits for the same year, whether he owns one business or more, shall be set off under section 24 against his income, profits or gains under any other head in the year. Any part of the depreciation allowance due to an assessee that cannot be set off against his income, profits or gains under all heads for the year in question, shall be carried forward to the next year under proviso (b) to sub-section (2) (iii) of Section 10 of the Act. The assessee should not be allowed the option of either setting off unabsorbed depreciation allowance against the profits of any other business or against other heads of income, profits or gains on the one hand or carrying it forward on the other.

This clause provides for the depreciation of furniture, but it may not suit the convenience of particular traders to ask that a depreciation account should be kept up for petty items of furniture and a depreciation allowance on account of furniture should, therefore, be granted only in case in which it is asked for, in which event the cost of replacement should not be allowed, where such depreciation allowance is not asked for the cost of replacement should be allowed in the year in which the furniture is replaced.

Whatever depreciation allowances are granted, it will be necessary to maintain an account showing the original cost to the assessee of the plant, the amount of the annual allowance, the amount of the allowances already granted and the balance still to be allowed.

The percentage allowance fixed in the rule for the permanent way of electric tramways only covers cases where the number of car miles per mile of track does not exceed 125,000 car miles per annum. Where the number of car miles per mile of track exceeds

No depreciation allowances are granted to railways on account of depreciation of their rolling stock as renewal charges are allowed as a business deduction.

An assessee deriving income from a business (such as a tramway) business may at his option elect to deduct such business the following in clauses (i), (ii) and (iii) of

The actual expenditure incurred by the assessee during the previous year on repairs, replacements, and renewals of plant, machinery, buildings and furniture which are the property of the assessee.

If he, however, has exercised the option referred to above in any year, he shall not be entitled to withdraw that option in any subsequent year without the consent of the Commissioner of Income-tax.

No depreciation allowance can be allowed on professional equipment e.g., surgical and dental instruments, because as the law stands, depreciation on machinery and plant, etc., can only be allowed in computing income from business, and not under section 11 in computing income from a profession. The cost of replacing (as distinguished from original and additional purchases) such instruments should be allowed as an expenditure under section 11(2).

Where a business of such a nature that the profits derived from it were not previously liable to tax owing to a special exemption conferred either by statute or by notification, or rule having the force of law (examples are Shipping Companies and first time, the assessee is not entitled to claim in the (b) to section 10 (2) (ii), accumulated depreciation which the profits of the business were not liable to tax must be allowed year by year for the full period

Sums embelzled by an employee are an admissible charge against the business of his employer.

Assessee sometimes receive from their constituents payments intended to cover railway expenses, cooly charges etc which they have to incur in the course of their business. When payments are made out of the sums and are debited specifically to constituents they may be allowed as deductions from the assessable income, without insisting on strict proof of payment by the production of vouchers, provided that it is reasonably certain that the payments have been made.

He should act in the same way in cases where the profits of the Indian branch of a company

■ Premia on issue of shares The premia received by a company on issue of shares are capital receipts, and, as such, not chargeable to tax. In the same way the cost of issuing shares is capital expenditure and cannot be allowed as a deduction for income-tax purposes.

51-A. Professional earnings—Deductions. [Section II (2).]—The cost of replacing furniture, office equipment and instruments used for the purposes of their profession by professional men, such as Doctors, Accountants, Lawyers and Architects, can be allowed as an expense under section 11 (2). The cost of original or additional purchases cannot be allowed.

52. Income from "other sources" — Deductions.—(Section 11 (1).—The interest paid on money borrowed for the purchase of shares or securities can not be set against the income obtained from the shares or securities where it is proved either by a banker's certificate or otherwise that the borrowing has been definitely and solely for that purpose, but where such proof is afforded, an allowance should be given.

53. Deduction on account of taxes paid.—No deduction is permissible in computing the income, profits or gains on account of any taxes or rates paid in respect of such income, profits or gains except that a local rate or tax which is payable irrespective of whether profits are made or not (see paragraph 18) is to be allowed as deduction from income from business. Section 10 (2) (iii) of the Act allows as a deduction from business profits sums paid on account of land revenue, local rates or municipal taxes in respect of premises used for the purposes of business. This specific provision has been inserted because the local rates paid on account of such premises are usually in the nature of a payment for services rendered (e.g. by supply of water, conservancy arrangements, etc.) but that allowance is closely restricted to a local tax or rate levied in respect of the premises used for the purpose of the business. No deduction is allowed for any other local rate or tax such as, for example, local taxes varying according to the income or profits of a business. Nor is any deduction on account of a local rate or tax on property allowed from the annual value of property which is taxable under section 9. Similarly no allowance is permissible on account of income-tax or super-tax paid by an assessee.

It has been seen that in computing the profits or gains of a business certain allowances are made. Clause (ix) of Sec. 10 (2) mentions as allowable deduction "any expenditure (not being in the nature of capital expenditure) incurred solely for the purpose of earning such profits or gains." This is comprehensive enough to include contributions by the employer to the employee's provident fund. In order to claim deduction for such contributions however the provident fund in question must satisfy the conditions laid down in Sec. 58-C of the Income Tax Act. These conditions are :—

(a) All employees shall be employed in India, or shall be employed by an of no other sums.

- (e) The fund shall be vested in two or more trustees* or in the Official Trustee, under a trust which shall not be revocable save with the consent of all the beneficiaries.
- (f) The employer shall not be entitled to recover any sum whatsoever from the fund save in cases where the contribution is payable for the health or life of the employee.

In such cases the recoveries made by the employer shall be limited to the contributions made by him to the individual account of the employee, and to interest (simple and compound) credited in respect of such contributions and accumulations thereof, in accordance with the regulations of the fund.

- (g) The accumulated balance due to an employee shall be payable on the day he ceases to be an employee of the employer maintaining the fund.
- (h) Save as provided in clause (g), or in accordance with such conditions and restrictions as the Governor General in Council may, by rules, prescribe, no portion of the balance to the credit of an employee shall be payable to him.

(2) Where there is a repugnance between any regulation of a recognised provident fund and any provision of this Chapter or of the rules made thereunder, the regulation shall, to the extent of the repugnance, be of no effect.

The Commissioner may, at any time, require that such repugnance shall be removed from the regulations of the fund.

N. B. It will be pertinent to refer to Sec. 4 of the Income Tax Act in this connection. That section defines the scope of application of the Indian Income Tax Act. In order to attract the operation of the Income Tax Act, the income, profit or gain in question must accrue, arise or be received in British India or be deemed under the provisions of the Income Tax Act as so accruing, arising or being received. As regards profits and gains of a business the section provides as follows:—

Sec. 4 (2): "Profits and gains of a business accruing or arising without British India to a person resident in British India shall, if they are received in or brought into British India, be deemed to have accrued or arisen in British India and to be profits and gains of the year in which they are so received or brought, notwithstanding the fact that they did not so accrue or arise in that year, provided that they are so received or brought in within three years of the end of the year in which they accrued or arose.

Explanation:—Profits or gains accruing or arising without British India shall not be deemed to be received or brought into British India within the meaning of this sub-section by reason only of the fact that they are taken into account in the balance-sheet prepared in British India.

*Inserted by the Income-tax (Amendment) Act, 1931 (IV of 1931).

It may be noticed here that certain classes of income are not assessable to tax and as such need not be shown in the return. These are the following :

This act shall not apply to the following classes of income —

- (i) Any income derived from property held under trust or other legal obligation wholly for religious or charitable purposes, and in the case of property so held in part only for such purposes, the income applied, or finally set apart for application, thereto
- (ii) Any income of a religious or charitable institution derived from voluntary contributions and applicable solely to religious or charitable purposes.
- (iii) The income of local authorities.
- (iv) Interest on securities which are held by, or are the property of, any Provident Fund to which the Provident Funds Act, 1897, applies, * †
- (v) Any
- (vi) Any special allowance, benefit or perquisite specifically granted to meet expenses wholly or necessarily incurred in the performance of the duties of an office or employment of profit.
- (vii) Any receipts not being receipts arising from business or the exercise of a profession, vocation or occupation, which are of a casual and non-recurring nature, or are not by way of addition to the remuneration of an employee.
- (viii) Agricultural income.
- † (ix) Any income received by trustees on behalf of recognised provident fund as defined in clause (a) of section 58-A.

In this sub-section "charitable purpose" includes relief of the poor, education, medical relief, and the advancement of any other object of general public utility.

The tax shall not also be payable in respect of (a) any sum which the assessee receives by way of dividend as a shareholder in a company where the profits or gains of the Company have been assessed to income-tax; or (b) such an amount of the profits or gains of any firm which have been assessed to income-tax as is proportionate to his share in the firm, at the time of such assessment; (c) any sum which he receives as his share of the profits or gains of an association of individuals.....where such profits or gains have been assessed to income-tax. See Sec. 14 of the Income Tax Act.

N. B. It should be remembered, however, that though no tax will be payable on item (a), in calculating total income such item must be included.

For income under the head 'other sources' see Sec. 12 of the Income Tax Act which runs as follows :—

12. (1) The tax shall be payable by an assessee under the head "other sources" in respect of income, profits and gains of every kind and from every source to which this Act applies (if not included under any of the preceding heads).

Income and profits shall be computed after making allowance for future incurred solely for the assessee, provided that no allowance

In returning "total income" of a company loss under one head may be set off against profit under another head. See Sec. 24 (1) of the Income Tax Act which lays down :—

24. (1) Where any assessee sustains a loss of profits or gains in any year under any of the heads mentioned in section 6, he shall be entitled to have the amount of the loss set off against his income, profits or gains under any other head in that year.

Previous year :—It has been seen that Sec. 22 (1) of the Income Tax Act requires a return of the total income of the company during the previous year. This expression is defined in Sec. 2 (11) of the Income-tax Act as follows :—

(11) "Previous year" means—to which his accounts have been so made up

Provided that, if this option has once been exercised by the assessee, it shall not again be exercised so as to vary the meaning of the expression "previous year" as then applicable to such assessee except with the consent of the Income-tax Officer and upon such conditions as he may think fit ; or

(b) In the case of any person, business or company, or class of person, business or company, such period as may be determined by the Central Board of Revenue or by such authority as the Board may authorise in this behalf.

See also in this connection Sec. 13 of the Act which lays down :—

13. Income, profits and gains shall be computed for the purposes of sections 10, 11 and 12 in accordance with the method of accounting regularly employed by the assessee :

Provided that, if no method of accounting has been regularly employed or if the method employed is such that, in the opinion of the Income-tax Officer, the income, profits and gains cannot properly be deduced therefrom, then the computation shall be made upon such basis and in such manner as the Income-tax Officer may determine.

The Charging Section (Sec. 3 of the Income Tax Act) lays down :—

3 Where any Act of the Indian Legislature enacts that income-tax shall be charged for any year at any rate or rates applicable to the total income of an assessee tax at the rate or those rates shall be charged for that year in accordance with, and subject to the provisions of this Act in respect of all income, profits and gains of the previous year of every individual, Hindu undivided family, company, firm and other association of individuals.

Assessment in case of discontinued business :—

It must have been noticed that under the scheme of the Income Tax Act of 1922, income under the heads "business," profession or vocation is assessed in arrear. Income for 1922-23, for example, is assessed in 1923-24. Under the Act of 1918, however, income was assessed in advance. Probable income for 1922-23 for example, would have been assessed during the year 1922-23, i.e., before the whole income was earned. Consequently if a business be discontinued during any year, its income for the period during which it continued during the year shall be assessed under the Act of 1922. But in those cases where the business had been assessed under the Act of 1918, no tax shall be payable on the profits of this period. On the other hand the assessee shall be entitled to claim a refund. Under the Act of 1918 income-tax paid during the previous year represented tax on the income to be earned during the subsequent year. If business do not continue during the whole of the subsequent year the assessee would be entitled to claim a refund of tax on the difference between income taxed during previous year and income actually earned during the fractional portion of the year in which the business is discontinued. See Sec. 25 of the Income Tax Act, 1922 which runs as follows :—

25 (1) Where any business, profession or vocation in which income-tax was not at any time charged under the provisions of the Indian Income-tax Act, 1918 is discontinued in any year, an assessment may be made in that year on the basis of the income, profits or gains of the period between the end of the previous year and the date of such discontinuance in addition to the assessment, if any, made on the basis of the income, profits or gains of the previous year.

(2) Any person discontinuing any such business, profession or vocation shall give to the Income-tax Officer notice of such discontinuance within fifteen days thereof, and, where any person fails to give the notice required by this sub-section, the Income-tax Officer may direct that a sum shall be recovered from him by way of penalty not exceeding the amount of tax subsequently assessed on him in respect of any income, profits or gains of the business, profession or vocation up to the date of its discontinuance.

Certain duties of the company under the Income Tax Act :—

See Sections 18 to 20 of the Indian Income Tax Act 1922.

Under Sec. 18 the company is to deduct income-tax on 'salaries' paid by it to its employees. Sec. 18 (2) enacts :—

"Any person responsible for paying any income chargeable under the head 'Salaries' shall, at the time of payment, deduct income-tax on the amount payable at the rate applicable to the estimated income of the assessee under this head :

Provided that such person may, at the time of making any deduction, increase or reduce the amount to be deducted under this sub-section for the purpose of adjusting any excess or deficiency arising out of any previous deduction or failure to deduct."

Sub-section (3) above referred to runs as follows :—

"The person responsible for paying any income chargeable under the head 'Interest on securities' shall at the time of payment, deduct income-tax on the amount of interest payable at the maximum rate."

It is also incumbent upon every company to supply information regarding dividends. Sec. 19-A of the Income Tax Act lays down :—

"The principal officer of every company shall, on or before the 15th day of June in each year, furnish to the prescribed officer a return in the prescribed form and verified in the prescribed manner of the names and of the shareholders maintained by the company, of aggregate dividends exceeding such amount have been distributed during the preceding year each such shareholder."

In exercise of the powers conferred by Sec. 59 of the Indian Income Tax, 1922 the Board of Inland Revenue has made the following rules in this connection :—

Rule 42. A return shall be furnished by the principal officer of a company under Sec. 19-A in respect of a dividend or aggregate dividends if the amount thereof exceeds Rs. 5,000.
